Hijack Ordeal Not Yet Ended

"Been waiting long, son?"

SEOUL, South Korea (Reuters) — The sword-wielding hijackers of a Japanese jet grounded here offered today to release almost 100 hostage passengers if a Japanese minister and a Socialist member of the Diet — Japanese legislature — agreed to accompany them to North Korea.

The hijackers' offer was the first break in an agonizing stalemate that has kept the Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 grounded at Kimpo airport here for last three days.

Airport sources said the apparent breakthrough occurred when Japan's vice-transport minister, Shinjiro Yamamura, 36, pleaded in a radio exchange with the hijackers to talk with them face to face.

Yamamura said a spokesman for the hijackers accepted the offer if the minister could establish his identity to their satisfaction.

The spokesman for the band of left-wing student hijackers, armed with samaurai swords, knives and homemade bombs, said that if the government would send his local member of the Diet, Socialist Sukeya Abe, to identify the vice-minister and also join the flight to North Korea, the passengers would be released Friday.

Another deputy, Moriyoshi Morisaka, also was named as a suitable guarantor for the minister's identity.

Abe said in Tokyo he was prepared to fly to Seoul.

U.S. Air Traffic Remains Crippled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air traffic remained crippled today as union and government officials disagreed whether air controllers were returning in significant numbers to their control towers and radar scopes.

A heavy spring snow storm in the Midwest added to air travel woes caused by the sick leave campaign of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization.

F. Lee Bailey, PATCO's executive director, was called in court today to explain why he should not be cited for contempt of court concerning the walkout that started March 25. A Wednesday hearing was postponed.

PATCO members remained off the job in large numbers and the union said Wednesday its men would not return until negotiations were arranged to include a third party.

The PATCO statement indicated hopes for a quick settlement were slim since the government has said it will not negotiate until the men return.

Snow, Sleet, Rain Slush Out Spring

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Stormy, wintery weather rushed into the Quinte area once more last night and this morning in an attempt to freeze out spring.

Approximately one inch to two inches of snow, sleet and rain fell on the streets and highways, making driving conditions treacherous and all too similar to the wintry days gone by.

But through it all, area motorists had only minor problems as the Belleville detachment of the OPP reported routine traffic attendance.

There were no cancellations of school bus runs although John Bancroft, Hastings County School Board spokesman, said he didn't doubt there was a late bus or two because of the slippery roads.

"Buses with weight don't have many problems," he said.

City police officials echoed OPP sentiments, explaining that no accidents in the city could be attributed to the snowy conditions.

Prince Edward County received two inches of slush which sent plows and graders out, but a spokesman from the County Road Superintendent's office said there had been no incidents and that the snow was melting quickly.

Picton police and Picton OPP reported no accidents, commenting favorably on the safe - driving habits of Prince Edward County motorists despite the snowfall.

Picton itself received little snow, but a small amount of rain described as routine and very much in the tradition of spring.

The Picton-to-Belleville bus did not run this morning, but this was due to a fault with its carburator.

In Tweed, three inches of snow had fallen by nine a.m. this morning and the sleet was still falling at press time.

Officials at Ontario Hydro reported no power failures and said that no complaints had been received.

The city forecaster at CFB Trenton said this morning that the rain and snow would alternate throughout most of the day, ending by tonight.

"By tomorrow we'll have a clearing trend with winds of 20 miles per hour gusting to 40 miles per hour. It will be fair and cool," he said.

Temperatures will continue to be below normal for this time of year, dropping to the 20s at night and rising only to the 30s during daylight hours.

Normal temperatures for early April are a high of 45 degrees and a low of 30 degrees.

The weekend will bring fair skies and continuing cool air, although Sunday will see things warming up a little.

But residents of the Quinte area will turn purple if they hold their breath until sunny skies and warm temperatures prevail. Another stormy weather system is en route to Belleville and should hit this area by Tuesday or Wednesday.

Today's treacherous road conditions are far from over. Slippery conditions should become worse when temperatures drop into the 20s tonight before precipitation has time to melt.

THE TEMPERATURES

Synopsis: An intense storm moving through Ohio is giving northeasterly gales and a mixture of rain and snow to southern Ontario. As the storm moves northeastward snow will spread into the central sections of the province and the rain in the lower Great Lakes regions will change to snow. Strong northerly winds will bring clearing skies later today.

Late April Fool's Joke

There was nothing funny about driving in the city or country today. The only compensation for the snow's return to the Quinte area was picturesque scenes like the one of the J. R. Longstaffe cottage on Old Orchard Drive beneath Onderdonk's Hill in Ameliasburg.

U.S. Truck Strike Could Bring Canadian Layoffs

TORONTO (CP) — Unless there is quick settlement of a United States trucking strike, thousands of Canadian drivers could be laid off, an industry spokesman said Wednesday night.

The layoff could leave as many as 1,500 to 2,000 out of work in Ontario alone, the spokesman said. The U.S. strike started Wednesday and so far, no Canadian layoffs have been reported.

But the big carriers in Ontario and the other provinces depend on trans-shipment of merchandise from U.S. carriers at the border for much of their business.

The U.S. strike by the Teamsters' union, which began after negotiators deadlocked over a new contract for 425,000 truck drivers, has crippled or slowed trucking in at least 22 American cities.

The Teamsters represent about 8,000 men in Ontario trucking.

The rate for city drivers in Ontario under the Teamsters' agreement with the trucking industry is $3.25 an hour. The rate in the central states region is $3.85.

The Ontario rate will climb to $3.80 before the current contract expires Sept. 30, 1971. U.S. Teamsters are demanding an hourly wage increase of $1.70 over three years. The last industry offer was for 90 cents an hour over three years.

Billions at Stake In Truckers' Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trucking and union negotiators haggled over billions of dollars in wages today while many of the 425,000 Teamsters involved in the national labor talks continued striking in dozens of cities.

"There are indications of good progress," said a source in the negotiations that dragged through Wednesday night and into the early morning before recessing in the second day of the biggest trucking strike in U.S. history.

While the bulk of Teamsters drivers remained on the job, chief industry negotiator Ray F. Beagle said the walkouts were massive.

His Trucking Employers Inc. group, representing some 12,000 firms, pledged, however, not to call a nationwide lockout in retaliation as it did three years ago.

The industry pledge eased pressure on President Nixon in dealing with the latest labor crisis by averting—at least for now —a total trucking shutdown.

Industry sources said the difference between Teamsters demands and industry offers for a new three-year contract totalled some $3,000,000,000.

In Kansas City, a Teamsters local official said he was informed an agreement had been reached to make any contract ultimately signed retroactive to the expiration date of the old pact—midnight Tuesday night. Kansas City drivers were returning to work on the basis of this agreement, the official said.

However, strikes of varying magnitude were reported early today in several cities, but there were no walkouts in such major centres as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and New Orleans.

"At this point there will be no precipitate action on the part of the employers," said Trucking Employers in its promise not to stage a lockout.

Blood Transfusion Avoided

Baby Is Taken by Force

KINGSTON (CP) — A two-day-old boy reported to be in serious condition with a blood disease was forcibly taken from Kingston General Hospital by a group of persons in early-morning darkness.

The child had been admitted Wednesday night after being made a ward of the Children's Aid Society and was to have undergone a massive blood transfusion.

Dr. D. J. Delahaye, said the infant "should have been treated early this morning and every hour that passes increases the risk of brain damage."

275 New Drivers Seek Work

Rented Trucks Move Montreal's Mail

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 400 mail truck drivers put out of work by the government takeover of postal deliveries mapped out retaliation strategy Wednesday while a fleet of 85 rented trucks moved the mail.

The Confederation of National Trade Unions, representing the drivers employed until Wednesday by G. Lapalme Inc., did not reveal the tactics it plans to use in its dispute with the federal government.

Meanwhile a postal official said 275 persons had applied for the available jobs of mail truck drivers "but none of these was Lapalme men."

In a meeting Tuesday night, the 457 Lapalme drivers unanimously rejected government offers of employment with the post office. They objected to proposals that would guarantee jobs for only 285 of them, and those who did accept the openings would suffer a 25-cent-an-hour pay cut, lose their seniority and their affiliation with the CNTU.

Despite cancellation of the Lapalme contract, the company's drivers reported for work Wednesday morning but were turned away.

Raymond Parent, secretary-general of the CNTU, later told the men at a meeting that "we may be facing a very long battle for human dignity."

He told the meeting a common front had been formed with the Montreal locals of the Letter Carriers Union, the Canadian Union of Postal Workers and the Quebec Federation of Labor to protest the government takeover.

Mailmen, mail handlers and sorters promised not to do tasks previously performed by Lapalme drivers, he said.

Union official Frank Di Tecchi said more than $700 had been sent by other unions to aid the unemployed Lapalme drivers, but they could not expect much more financial support.

45-Acre Site

Sidney Moves to Attract Growth by Acquiring Industrial Park

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Industrial prospects in Sidney township have taken on a bright glow with the announcement today by Reeve Jack Bush that the township has purchased a 45-acre tract of land for an industrial park adjoining this town's limits.

The reeve termed the level, well - drained parcel of land — between the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway and the CNR tracks, just east of Sidney Street, as "a good industrial site."

He expressed hope that, within a year, the township would have its first new industry since Bata Shoe located on the Trent River 30 years ago.

He said the township was currently negotiating with the Ontario Development Council and "several prospects" and hoped to divide the land into industrial sites joining Trenton's industrial park on the other side of Sidney Street.

Key to the successful development of the site was the co-operation from the town of Trenton, the reeve stressed.

He explained that the industrial park would be serviced by water supplied by Trenton under an agreement now being completed.

The township will cover the cost of extending the Sidney street trunk sewer to service the industrial park.

Trenton mayor Duncan McDonald saluted the news: "It's a wonderful thing and we welcome all the industry we can get into this area.

"This will create more employment for the people of Trenton and the area so we're all going to benefit," he said.

Noting that Reeve Bush deserved credit, the mayor said with the advent of regional government and regional assessment "all taxes and grants would go into one pot and everyone would share in the benefits of industry in the area."

The mayor said each municipality should no longer try and develop strictly within its own boundaries but should concentrate on developing where industry wishes to locate.

Reeve Bush concurred: "There's no use fighting over these things any longer. We've got to get together and develop co-operatively for mutual benefit."

Sidney township's eligibility for provincial industrial grants is considered a prime asset in attempting to attract industries to a new industrial park.

The acquisition of the 45-acre site for $35,000 from Frank J. Barry and Stanley Klemencic, was crucial in eliminating possible land speculation and put the township "in the driver's seat to get something started," Reeve Bush said.

"Last fall we could have had a good industry which would have employed 80 people if we had been prepared. But that problem is settled now with the acquisition of the land and the provision of water by Trenton," he added.

In addition, the reeve explained, the 45-acre site might be the start of something much bigger. Adjoining land could be acquired to expand the industrial park.

Excluded from the site is a 40,000-square-foot parcel of land previously acquired by an oil company for a possible future service centre. This property, on the northwest corner of the industrial park, fronts on Sidney Street.

Committee Votes Lott Site Best For Recreation

When the city gets around to taking action on permanent flood control measures for the Moira River, it appears that the Lott damsite on Station Street, rather than the old College street stone quarry will be favored as the site for the ice control dam.

A firm of Toronto consulting engineers hired by the Moira River Conservation Authority to do an ice control study on the river inside the city limits recommended the old Lott damsite near the Belleville creameries as the location for a possible ice control dam.

The engineers recommended the Lott damsite over the formerly proposed College Street site for two main reasons — the dam would be much closer to the river mouth and would thus control more ice during the spring break-up period.

However, because of the inherent recreational possibilities of the two areas involved, the report was referred to a special committee of city staff officials for consideration.

Committee members included City Engineer Wilbur Purcell, Planning Director Bert Kenny, Parks Superintendent Lloyd Lowe and Recreational Director Lorne Williams.

Their recommendation to the recreation committee is that from the standpoint of recreation, the Lott damsite is the preferable location for an ice control dam.

Other factors taken into consideration by the committee in their decision were that that College Street site, if not flooded, had advantages over the Lott damsite and in the only quarry site available for a rock garden type of development.

The College Street site would also provide an entrance to any future major riverside park on the west side of the river.

The committee felt there was a greater need for a passive park at the College Street site than for active recreation at the Lott site.

Also from the standpoint of facility distribution it was felt that the Lott damsite was more suitably located for swimming activities than was the College Street site.

Viet Cong Offensive Continues

SAIGON (CP) — The offensive by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong continued at a high level today in South Vietnam, sending U.S. casualties toward a high for the year.

In one battle casualties suffered by the Americans were the heaviest in two years.

Eighteen more Americans were reported killed and 138 were wounded in more than half-a-dozen battles and 62 rocket and mortar attacks today.

The funeral of Mrs. Maurice (Alice) Lord was held Wednesday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home where service in the chapel was conducted by Captain E. Garvey of the Salvation Army. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

Public Invited To Bush

Close to 1,500 Grade 4 students from 32 elementary schools in Hastings county are getting first hand information this spring on the art of making maple syrup.

This week and next week, bus loads of school children from all parts of the county are going to the William Collins sugar bush at Moira to tap gathering and boiling down operations. As part of attraction the kiddies get to taste the sap as it comes from the trees and also some of the finished syrup product.

Elementary schools all the way from Trenton and Belleville to Bancroft are taking part in syrup demonstration sponsored each spring by the Moira River Conservation Authority.

This coming Saturday and Sunday, the second weekend of the authority's maple syrup festival will be staged at the Moira community hall.

Members of the general public are invited to take a wagon ride from the county road to the Collins sugar bush and later to enjoy the pancakes and maple syrup at the Moira community hall.

Despite inclement weather last weekend more than 1,0 people took in the syrup festival and with fine weather the turnout this weekend is expected to be much greater.

Reports are that the pancakes are much bigger and better and the slices of ham even thicker than last year.

Testing for Study

The city proposes to widen Dundas Street to a four-lane route between Bleecker Avenue and the No. 1 Firehall by 1971. Study for the project continues and one of the procedures is to measure the resilience of the asphalt base as the public works department team of Brent MacGregor, Bradley Lee and Bill Burgess are doing. The entrance and exit for the hospital will be redesigned.

Weather Affects DDT Disposal

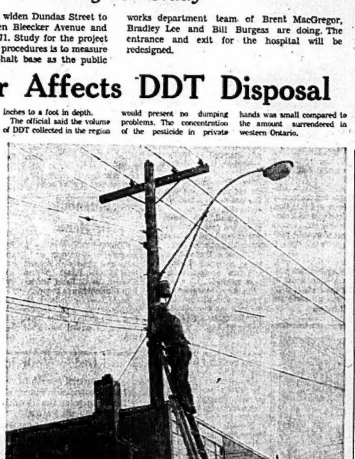
Provincial government authorities in the Eastern Ontario region are sitting out poor weather conditions before moving to dispose of DDT stockpiles.

In Belleville alone, about two tons of the pesticide is now in storage at the city's public works yards.

The DDT was voluntarily surrendered by city and district residents after an Ontario government ban earlier this year.

Collection point was the Dundas Street East firehall. However, the volume of deposits was so great the DDT was trucked to the works yards where it now is awaiting dumping moves by provincial authorities.

Such action will not be taken immediately, a department of energy and resources official in Kingston said today.



Authorities now are awaiting the end of wintry conditions in the region before selecting dumping sites.

It is imperative that such dumps are on higher ground and not in contact with water runoff areas.

A "few good sites" already have been tentatively selected and negotiations must now take place with property owners.

Since oxydization is believed the best natural process to chemically break down the DDT, it likely will be stored in open containers at each dump site. The containers then will be covered with earth, anywhere from six inches to a foot in depth.

The official said the volume of DDT collected in the region would present no dumping problems. The concentration of the pesticide in private hands was small compared to the amount surrendered in western Ontario.

Fisheries Again Has 3-Day Open House

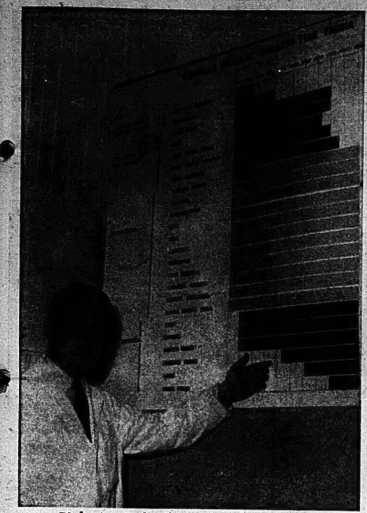
By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — "Fishy goings on" in Prince Edward County yesterday prompted a public investigation of the Ontario Fisheries Research Station six miles northeast of Picton.

Examining laboratory facilities and information displays, visitors filed through the building enjoying open house. Staff members headed by W. J. Christie answered questions and guided the public through nine display areas. Highlighting the open house program were moving conversing fish and fishing.

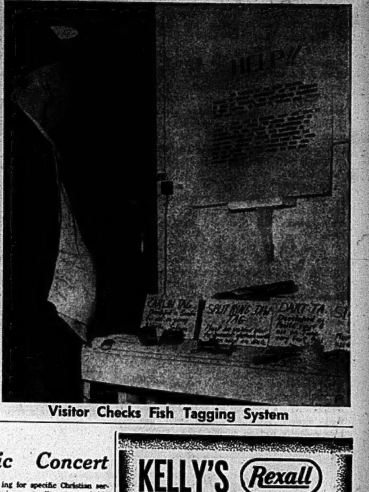
Entering the research station, guests received fishy stares from the occupants of the Glenora aquarium tanks. A wide variety of fresh water fish found in Lake Ontario swim in these tanks apparently unperturbed by tourists' observations.

In the central room of the laboratory's ground floor, visitors saw a number of interactive displays organized by research station staff. Each one was accompanied by explanatory placards.



One exhibit graphically demonstrated a fish system. Tagging of fish and the measurement of their lengths is encouraged by the department of lands and forests and anglers and commercial fishermen. Shown at the research station was a small tank filled with yellow perch tagged by several different methods. The five-inch types commonly used at Glenora are fisher select, cadis, streamer, split ring jaw tag and secret 4-tag, a streamer tag differing in the material used in attaching it. Equipment used in tagging formed an educational exhibit near the aquarium holding the perch.

A second tank of tagged fish represented the focal point of an exhibit showing how research station workers estimate fish population. Scooping out a sethful of these fish a worker explained: "In any sethful we catch our working principal is that the number of tagged fish recaptured will be in the total number of tagged fish in the tank as the total catch to the whole population."



Placed on shelves in a spacious room on the second floor of the research station were hundreds of fish specimens preserved in labelled jars. Fish nets were draped in an adjoining room demonstrating the equipment used by workers to make catches.

Yesterday's open house began at 1 p.m. and continued until 10 p.m. when staff members called it a day. Elementary and secondary school students will tour the research station today and tomorrow gaining information regarding water bugs and pollution, topics for emphasis during open house.

Signatures on the fisheries station guest book show that more than 1,400 persons visited there last year during the three - day period it was open to the general public. Mr. Christie yesterday remarked that this is the station's third annual open house. Because of the interesting displays placed throughout the building this spring, probably many county residents today will heed "gone fishing signs" on their doors and join the students touring the Glenora research station.

PE School Cost Goes Down in '70

PICTON — Prince Edward county's estimated educational expenditures are up this year but the amount to be raised by municipal tax levy has gone down.

The 1970 budget was released by the board of education this morning following its acceptance last night by the trustees.

Estimated total budget for 1970 is $4,447,000, up $698,575 over the 1969 estimated budget of $3,948,425.

However, the financial statement for 1969, issued with the budget shows an estimated operating expense for last year of $4,019,791.

But the amount to be levied by the 19 contributing municipalities in Prince Edward county is down $110,202 from last year.

In 1969 the educational tax levy on property was $1,220,-904; in 1970 it will be down to $1,110,412.

However, two municipalities, Picton and Ameliasburg will have slightly higher education levies in 1970.

Picton property owners will share an increased education-al levy of $13,314 and Ameliasburg will pay $5,200 more.

Salaries for Prince Edward county's 248 teachers will take up 50.53 per cent of the budget, or $2,247,020.

Other salaries account for 8.89 per cent of the budget, or $395,295.

After salaries, debt charges account for the second highest portion of the budget, 11.39 per cent or $528,695. Tuition fees for students now being educated in schools outside the county make up 8.46 per cent of the budget, or $376,000.

Next largest expenditure is transportation, expected to cost $371,870 in 1970, or 8.36 per cent of the budget.

Other expenses for 1970, with their percentage of the budget in brackets are: plant operation and maintenance, $217,240 (4.36); instructional costs $166,555 (3.74); capital expenditure, $87,000 (1.96); educational services $67,405 (1.51); business administration, $37,647 (.84); attendance, health and food $37,080 (.83); and other expenses $5,000 (1).

Prince Edward county has a school population of 5,621, including those for whom education is now being purchased in Belleville schools.

For a five-year-old, starting school is a major event. But failing to adjust once enrolled can take on catastrophic proportions.

The problem is real enough — it's Johnny's first time away from home, and he finds a stranger telling him what to do. He has never worked in a group before, and all this cutting, paste' and paint are something foreign to him.

This is where the United Community Services preschool enrichment program comes in and does something for Johnny before he feels bewildered and frustrated.'

The pilot project has been in operation since May of 1969 and its success will determine whether a permanent preschool stimulation program will be established in the city.

The scheme, which involves the preparation of children for their first year in a regular school program, depends on volunteers for its lifeblood.

With the full co-operation of the Hastings County Board of Education, the project has brought together three groups of four-year-olds who attend two half days weekly at Queen Alexandra, Hillcrest and Queen Mary Schools.

Co-ordinator of United Community Services, Mrs. Ruth Burrows, explained that the 45 children involved in the project were chosen through lists telling organizers the names of all youngsters that would be starting kindergarten in the fall.

"These lists were submitted to project organizers at the United Community Services, and final decisions were then made as to which children would be chosen to participate," said Mrs. Burrows.

Children working in these project groups are culturally disadvantaged, having had no previous opportunity to socialize in a group experience.

"A simple example of this is Sunday School", continued the UCS co - ordinator, "where youngsters can pick up many things once they are familiar with a group learning situation.

"Skills such as these often evolve from behaviour patterns in a group and since the children we have in our classes have never had this opportunity before, this makes the program invaluable for them," she added.

She remarked that the program attempts to give four-year-olds this necessary "socializing experience" and familiarize them with the tools needed for coping with the school's academic program.

During each session, the first hour is spent in free play, which includes educational toys, play dough, water play, coloring and puzzles. After a short refreshment period, a circle provides time to dramatize and sing nursery rhymes. Craft time encourages the use of scissors, glue and tracing materials. Small groups for reading conclude the morning.

Originally the project was begun at Queen Alexandra school and its success led to expansion to include more children in an extended program.

There are three volunteers at each school, and each have been carefully selected for the project.

Each volunteer has taken a training course, sponsored by the Family and Children's Services, coupled with a half day spent at the Belleville Day Nursery.

"We hold frequent discussion sessions to review programs and policy," explained Mrs. Burrows.

The UCS co-ordinator told about the "orientation handbook" she is compiling for volunteers. Included are ideas for further programs involving children, plus articles by teachers, doctors, psychologists and caseworkers.

"I have been working on the handbook for the past six months. I'm editing it now, and am hoping that it will serve as a valuable guideline for volunteers working with children in all types of programs."

At the present time, through the programs of the UCS, there are 65 volunteers working in pre-school projects.

"I am also hoping that the handbook, after it is published, will serve as a guideline for other communities throughout Ontario, embarking on similar projects," said Mrs. Burrows.

Talking about the possibilities for expansion of the program, Mrs. Burrows suggested that the social planning committee of the United Community Services hopes to continue and expand this program in additional schools if and when the county school board can find more space for new groups both in Belleville and the county.

"We need more interested volunteers for this work, and when they are found and trained in the existing projects, then we will have new teams ready to move into other school communities as required," she added.

Foster Bylaw Drafted

A rezoning bylaw to protect the residential nature of the core of Foster Ward will be presented for approval at a meeting of Belleville and Suburban Planning Board to-night at 7:30.

At a meeting two weeks ago, a proposed bylaw was sent back for redrafting because it would make double houses nonconforming and would prevent residents rebuilding if their houses were destroyed by fire.

The new protective zoning, designed to prevent further industrial encroachment in the area until an urban renewal scheme is presented, will make all dwellings existing at this time in the defined area conforming uses. This enables the occupants to restore and improve their houses.

Following approval board approval of the bylaw, it would go to the Belleville council for enactment into law.

The institution is accredited as a Bible college and also approved to grant undergraduate baccalaureate degrees, offering programs leading to the bachelor of science degree.

The public is cordially invited to the concert, according to Rev. Eldon LeRoy, pastor of Wesleyan Methodist Church which is sponsoring the event.

Beginning April 1, D. E. (Dave) Taylor will be active in the Eastern Ontario area as advertising consultant with Harry Dulmage Associates Limited, 279 Front Street, Belleville.

Ontario Economy to Expand Without Additional Taxes

From The Globe and Mail

"Charles MacNaughton must have a rich uncle," said the lady in the blue wool dress as she heard the Provincial Treasurer explain to the Legislature how the provincial economy is going to grow 7.5 per cent this year, how he is going to spend 14.1 per cent more money this year than last, and how he is going to produce a surplus without raising a single cent.

Mr. MacNaughton's uncle must be rich because 14.1 per cent in this league translates as $462-million, give or take a few hundred thousand dollars.

Where do governments find that kind of cash?

As Mr. MacNaughton explained it — in the evident distaste of Opposition members — it seems easy. The largest single chunk, $186-million, is income from personal income tax, because people will make more money this year. Of this $186-million, about $73-million is attributed to a speedup in transfers from the federal Government which collects (at cost) to the provinces (which spends it). This, however, is a one-shot bonanza.

The 5 per cent retail sales tax is expected to yield $45-million more than last year and gasoline tax an extra $18-million. Federal post-secondary education adjustments are expected to bring in an additional $46-million.

Corporations are apparently not doing their part. Their profits are expected to decline, therefore they will pour $25-million less into the Ontario treasury this year.

On the face of it, Mr. MacNaughton at this stage is in trouble; he has found an extra $300 million but he is still $150 million short.

He escapes the jam with the grand gesture.

Revenue from all other provinces for a full fiscal year, will add a further $178-million, bringing our total revenue increase expected for 1970-71 to $447 million.

He's got it made now. There was a $28-million surplus in 1969-70. Fifteen million dollars from there makes $462-million and balances the budget; the other $21-million is the budget of surplus for 1970-71.

Easy? Well it is even easier to spend that $462-million. Education will get the most: $128 million, of which $86.5 million is for the raised (but unspecified) grants from 47 per cent. Health will take $138-million for medicare, medical and nursing schools and mental health. University affairs takes $60-million, municipal affairs $37-million (the province

Pointing Out the Facts

Dr. E. H. Johnson gestures to his audience while speaking about man and his "death-orientated society" last night in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Part of Living

Couple Have Ups and Downs

ARROYSPORD, B.C. (CP) — There have been a lot of ups and downs in the two years Bill and Kay Hardman have been married—but they often kiss and hold hands on the way down.

The ups are in light aircraft, the downs dangling beneath sport parachutes. The friendly pair takes place in a free-fall sky-diving manoeuvre called, for obvious reasons, the kiss pass.

The two first kissed at a few thousand feet at Westlock, Alta., three years ago. Hardman was instructor of a sky-diving course in Edmonton at the time; she was a student.

"I've kissed a lot of other men too," she confesses. "You fall with a 20-second delay (before opening the parachute) and the guys try to get to the girls—and the girls to the guys—on the way down."

Hardman, 25, is a certified instructor with more than 1,700 descents since 1962. His 23-year-old wife has made more than 820 jumps since 1966 and plans to try for an instructor's rating this year.

Neither talks about the possibility of trouble in the air. As Hardman put it: "You're trained to take things as they come, more or less. You don't worry until something has happened."

Things do happen. She has used a reserve parachute once, but says it wasn't really necessary. Hardman has used one three times and recalls the first case as a classic.

"A U.S. Air Force rigger had been showing how sloppily you could pack a parachute. I had come down with a bunch of students and I didn't know what he had been doing.

"I walked in and asked if anybody had a parachute they could lend me. You know which one I got, of course. They just handed it to me. I was just a little bit upset."

The third time was while he and John McGoldrick, 21, a heavy-equipment operator from Hazelmore, B.C., set a joint world record of 150 jumps each from 3,200 feet in a single day, June 21.

Hardman had set a mark of 100 in a day two years earlier —his idea of a 1967 centennial project. Last summer, New York sky-diver John Cortese pushed the figure to 111—descents.

Hardman, a native of Lions Head, Ont., manages the Abbotsford Sport Parachute Centre at an airstrip 40 miles east of Vancouver. He earns $6,000 to $7,000 a year by running his own sky-diving school.

His auburn-haired wife, a hospital operating-room technician, started jumping in Edmonton in 1966. Now, says Hardman, "she's my biggest assistant."

Society Needs Re-orientation Says Johnson

A group of Belleville citizens were told last night that they were living in a society where man seeks to destroy himself.

"It looks as if we live in a death-orientated society" said Dr. E. H. Johnson, minister of the Presbyterian Church in Canada and well known Canadian statesman, during a public meeting at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Johnson spent the day in Belleville, speaking to young people at Belleville's secondary schools and at a supper meeting. Last night's address was his seventh of the day.

He spoke of nuclear warheads that could destroy mankind although stockpiled to preserve peace. He mentioned air and water pollution as other examples of man's killing of himself.

Adding that man believed drugs and permissiveness were part of the ways of life, he said that these ways of life were actually the ways of death.

"Man has created a death-orientated society that is meant to be a life-orientated society. We have to discover the language and the means to convey the vitality of Jesus Christ to the world."

Dr. Johnson commented that the church should not let itself cling to old traditions

"We are bringing in some contemporary forms of expression," he said, using music and the guitar as an example. "Many of our churches are becoming community buildings where they are not only a place of worship, but of activity and fellowship."

He described the place where the church meets the world as the "crucial frontier" where the churches would have to service humanity.

Dr. Johnson, in and out of Nigeria since 1955, spoke of his work with Canairelief during the Biafran-Nigerian conflict.

"We built an airline that never had enough money to last more than one week, but we never borrowed money," he said.

We had the response of people in three different ways.

"We had people who volunteered their lives, such as Stanley Burke." Four airmen volunteered in one day when we lost a crew in a plane crash."

Dr. Johnson said there was a terrific response of gifts and people sending in money.

He spoke of a man giving him a $100 bill, a man who was just a working man.

He remembered letters from people who had sacrificed something to send money, a university student who sent in his Christmas holiday money signing himself as the "dirty hippy," and a school class who went caroling for money for Biafra.

Dr. Johnson added that there was help in the political field as people from all over Canada sent letters to Ottawa to urge action on behalf of the federal government.

"They knew we needed the strength and resources of this government," Dr. Johnson said.

"It was the best evangelistic effort in a long time," he said. "It was the kind of work the church should be in."

Israel, Syria Fight Air War

From AP-Reuters

Israel and Syria waged major battles in the air and on land today, with both sides giving contradictory claims about each other's losses even while the fighting still raged.

Syria said five Israeli planes were downed and two pilots were captured. It said two of its planes were hit and one of its pilots was killed.

Guatemalans Consider Terms Of Kidnappers

GUATEMALA CITY, (Reuters) — The Guatemalan cabinet was called into emergency session today to discuss secret demands made by the kidnappers of West German Ambassador Count Karl von Spreti.

Unofficial sources said the abductors are demanding the release of 16 political prisoners in exchange for the ailing diplomat and that they have selected the papal nuncio, Magr. Gerolamo Prigione, to act as their mediator.

Greek Court Jails and Fines 5 Journalists and Politician

ATHENS (AP) — Five journalists and a former cabinet minister have received jail terms for advocating the replacement of Greece's military dictatorship with a political government.

They also received fines ranging from the equivalent of $6,000 to $10,000 Thursday for violating martial law by publishing "false reports likely to cause anxiety among the public."

The trial resulted from an interview which Sofoc Zigdis, former cabinet minister of the Centre Union party, gave to the Athens newspaper Ethnos after an assassination attempt against President Makarios of Cyprus and the murder of Polycarpos Georgadjis, a former Greek-Cypriot government minister.

In the interview, published March 24, Zigdis called for a government of national unity to cope with the troubles on Cyprus and said Greek-Cypriots were being "threatened with fratricidal dissension." Cyprus, an island republic in the Mediterranean, is perennially plagued by conflicts between its Turkish and Greek communities.

The prosecution called Zigdis the "moral instigator" of the article, and the court sentenced him to 4½ years. John Kapsis, chief editor of the newspaper, received a five-year term.

The defendants also included Ethnos's three co-publishers: Constantine Nicolopoulos, Constantine Kyriazis and his brother Achilles. Constantine Kyriazis got a four-year sentence. His brother and Nicolopoulos were each sentenced to three year terms.

Managing editor Constantine Economides was sentenced to 12 months.

Benson Won't Cut Taxes Unless Recession Comes

HAMILTON (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Wednesday night he would only move to lower taxes if there were clear indication that Canada was entering a period of recession.

"We have not lowered taxes because we do not feel we are heading for a recession," he said in reply to McMaster University students during filming of the program Under Attack.

The program, taped for release later, is produced by Screen Gems Canada Ltd. for distribution to private television stations.

He made the statement after being prodded several times about what he planned to do with the $600,000,000 Ottawa estimates will be available in capital gains tax after five years under proposals of the white paper on tax reform.

He was asked if this extra money could mean a lower tax rate for Canadians at that time.

"If there is too much money . . . I would reduce the tax rate. But gosh knows what the economic situation is going to be like in five years."

He gave little hope that there would be any extra revenue, adding that government expenditures usually expand faster than revenues.

Mr. Benson said the next step after the white paper is translated into law will be to study commodity taxes. He said the plan is eventually to mix income tax and commodity tax, such as sales taxes, in a total tax reform package.

New York Tugs Back at Work

NEW YORK (AP) — Tugboat crews went back to work in New York harbor today after a two-month strike that ended when they agreed to a 53.5-per-cent increase in wages and benefits over three years.

The Marine Towing and Transportation Employers Association said the settlement, which includes a 41-per-cent wage increase, was "the greatest package ever granted in the history of the tug industry."

Sydney J. Harris Says

People Manipulated for Technology

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

Technology was devised in order to meet the demands of people; now people are manipulated in order to meet the demands of technology.

• • •

It's been a long, long time since I met a person who didn't know what this country needs.

• • •

Speaking of technology, it's astonishing that with our magnificent advances in audio equipment and communications system, half the microphones in public auditoriums still don't work when the speaker gets up to deliver the main address, and the janitor has to be called for.

• • •

Observing the docile "party line" voters in Congress, who so often go along with measures they don't personally approve, reminds me of Gladstone's words to a similar Parliament: "Any man can stand up to his opponents; give me the man who can stand up to his friends."

• • •

A grown woman who kisses her dog is telling a great deal about her feeling toward men.

• • •

When someone says, "I say what I think," he is usually defending his habit of talking before he thinks.

• • •

It was rather embarrassing to use the word "dolphonosphist" in a column, and be reminded by readers that it isn't in the American Heritage Dictionary I touted so highly, but is in the Random House.

• • •

"You'll always have cannibalism," said the tribal chief to his aide, "because people have eaten each other as far back in history as we can go; it's just their natural aggressive instinct."

It's really surprising how many women at least 10 years my senior come up and tell me they have been reading my column "since I was a little girl."

• • •

The worst kind of selfishness is that which masquerades as self-sacrifice, when the object neither desires nor appreciates it.

• • •

There is no man so stupid, so ignorant, or so beaten by adversity, that he will freely admit he is a poor judge of human nature; yet the mass victimization of the human race indicates that a large majority are deficient in this area.

• • •

When a man speaks of "lean years," he is speaking fiscally; a woman, anatomically.

• • •

If God made the country, and man made the city, who will take responsibility for the slums.

• • •

If all the statisticians in the world were laid end to end, they'd disagree about the significance of the total length.

• • •

By the time a country gets around to putting up a statue of a great man, it is safe enough to ignore all the dangerous truths he uttered when alive.

Regional Regimes Said Way to Stop Centralization of Power

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Establishing sensible forms of regional government is the only way to stop the drift of power to Queens Park from small Ontario municipalities, the provincial minister of financial and commercial affairs said Wednesday.

"It may well be our last chance to create a form of government that can relate to people," Bert Lawrence told the annual meeting of the Erie Economic Council.

Individual members of the population aren't as strong and independent as they were when 70 per cent of the population were farmers, he contended. Because of this it is essential that proposals on regional government "get a complete working over by the whole public.

"Their ability to have an individual impact on your work and my work is relatively weak," he said. "We all have that much more responsibility to explain what we're doing and to listen to peoples' thoughts."

Demonstrators Visit Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — A protest over the closing of the Toronto plant of Dunlop Canada Ltd. developed into chaos Wednesday when students and workers pushed police aside and stormed the front doors of the legislature.

The demonstration began as an orderly session at the University of Toronto where politicians, professors, students and workers voiced concern for 600 employees to be thrown out of work by the closing of the plant May 1.

J. Neville Procter, president of the British-owned rubber company, announced March 6 the 71-year-old plant will be closed because it had been losing money.

Among the most aggressive of the demonstrators were members of Local 222, United Auto Workers from Oshawa, who said they have been out of work for six months because of the Canada-United States auto pact.

In the melee several demonstrators were pushed against the walls of the building. About 12 policemen kept the crowd from storming into the legislature building.

No arrests were made and no one was reported injured. The group dispersed within half an hour.

Ryerson Sit-in Ends

TORONTO (CP) — Students occupying Administration Hall at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute decided Wednesday night to end their occupation today, when grievance hearings begin into a contract dispute involving five English teachers.

About 200 students began the occupation shortly after noon Wednesday, protesting against a recent decision by the administration not to renew the teachers' contracts.

The students also are asking some say in the hiring of faculty members.

About 60 decided to spend the night on the hall's carpeted floor. There are about 5,500 full-time students at Ryerson.

SILVER SOUGHT

VICTORIA (CP) — Peter Thornton-Trump is going after "an 23 Dorado of silver" in an unusual manner. With three friends this spring, he plans to skin-dive for a missing trailload of silver ore which plunged into Kootenay Lake in southeastern British Columbia in 1921 from the CPR tracks. Trump, a graphics design artist first started looking for the bonanza 10 years ago, but gave up because of a shortage of equipment.

Women Buy Stocks

EDMONTON (CP) — Women already have a strong influence on the stock market, but they could and should be taking a more active part.

That's the opinion of Peter Thomas, president of Western Growth Fund, who says local stock brokers contend that 25 per cent of all direct trading is done by women.

He said in an interview that more than 50 per cent of all stocks traded are owned, influenced and controlled by women.

But he said many women who are able to are not participating in ownership of the Canadian economy.

"The main reason seems to be that they are apprehensive because they think that the mysteries of the market are beyond them."

He added that all housewives and businesswomen should invest.

"Through prudent investing there is no reason why they cannot build up a pension and have an annual wage. . . . It is not impossible to build substantial capital over a period of time by investing a little on a monthly basis, if it is planned, carried out systematically and started soon enough."

He warned against rumors and so-called hot tips, and said investors should get professional help.

Celebrates 92nd Birthday

DESERONTO — Mrs. Calvin (Margaret) Emmons of Deseronto, was 92 years old March 24. With the assistance of her daughter, Mrs. Merton Cummings who lives near, she held open house both afternoon and evening the previous Sunday, with friends and relatives calling to wish her well.

Clarke Rollins, MPP, and Mrs. Rollins called personally to present her with a plaque from the Ontario Government, and she had telegrams of congratulations from Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau; Robert Stanfield, leader of the opposition; Premier John Robarts; Lee Grills, MP and an arrangement of 'mums and roses from Mayor and Mrs. Harvey McFarland of Picton.

Pouring tea during the afternoon were her nieces, Mrs. Donald Macdonald of Oshawa and Mrs. Claude Milligan and Mrs. Jack Burke of Kingston, with her grandniece, Margo Milligan assisting. At the tea table during the evening were her niece Mrs. Laura Russell of Belleville and cousin Mrs. Byron Emmons of Shannonville.

Mrs. Emmons has had a remarkable life, as pioneer nurse, doctor substitute, midwife, operator of what would be called today a nursing home and, at the same time, wife, mother and farm operator, as her husband was a semi-invalid.

New Experiences in North for Teachers

SCHREIBER, Ont. (CP) — The teacher surplus last year shut many doors for two Listowel, Ont., girls, but opened a new experience for them in Northern Ontario.

Wendy MacEwen, 22 and her friend Brenda Langille, 18, accepted jobs in this railroad town north of Lake Superior and in Terrace Bay, nine miles away, when they couldn't find positions in southern Ontario.

Although dismayed at first, they are enthusiastic now about the outdoor activities and friendliness of townspeople. Both are returning next year.

Teaching in the North is relaxed, the girls say. The average class has about 25 pupils, compared with 30 or more in southern Ontario. The schools are well equipped with audio-visual aids.

At Wendy's 210-pupil school in Schreiber, principal Bob Crossman, 29, drives a snowmobile to school and insists everyone be on a first-name basis. The local minister drives the school bus.

Most of the teachers are young and many of the senior high school students are the same age as the girls, so they have many friends. There is no Friday night dance, but skiing, skating, hiking, curling, ice fishing, snowmobiling and watching hockey games have kept the girls busy.

Brenda's 214-pupil school in Terrace Bay had a relaxed atmosphere as rabbits run loose in the hallways, and the budgie in her room lives everywhere but in a cage.

Although the girls' teaching district does not qualify them for an isolation allowance, their starting salary was $200 higher than the $5,700 they would have received in Toronto.

Guides to Attend 'Carousel Canada '1970'

Mrs. Colden, Division Commissioner and chairman, gave a report on the latest area meeting. All the Girl Guides from the Quinte area who applied to attend a "Carousel Canada, 1970" event have been accepted. Carol Thicke of Company 9, Belleville Division, is going to Saskatchewan, July 9 to 31. Carousel Canada '70 is a splendid Canadian venture to help celebrate the Diamond Jubilee of the Girl Guide Movement. Girl Guides, Rangers and Cadets are going to other provinces to take part in special tours and camping with girls chosen from all over Canada.

Mrs. Joan Reid turned in a statement for the Belleville Division tea with a copy for each commissioner. It was noted that the net profit was down from last year. It is important that as many tickets as possible are sold as this is the one big money raising project that supports the Girl Guide Movement in the Belleville Division. It was pointed out that the success of this tea depends on the help given by the mothers of all Brownies and Guides in the Belleville Division.

Girl Guides and Brownies are taking orders ahead this year for cookie day. The cookies are selling for fifty cents a box and will be delivered the beginning of May.

Cooking School Held

Belleville Chapter No. 55 O.E.S. sponsored a cooking school of small appliances. The event was put on by the Ontario Hydro at Tabernacle United Church, March 25.

Mrs. Marjorie Gray, Worthy Matron, gave a short resume on the home economist, Miss Barbara Wood of Ontario Hydro in Belleville. She covers all of the Eastern Ontario region from Port Hope to the Quebec border and north to Deep River, Ont. Miss Wood graduated from the University of Guelph and is the world ed for Ontario Hydro for the past two years.

During her demonstration Miss Wood gave many worthwhile tips on short cuts for busy people with a varied display of useful electrical appliances. Many took advantage of the opportunity to ask questions as well.

Everyone present received a recipe book published by the Ontario Hydro plus useful give-aways. Door prizes were drawn, donated by local firms.

Conveners for the evening were Mrs. Helen Hay and Mrs. Wayne Tomlinson.

A Story-behind-a-Story Often the Best Part

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: We have the cutest kid (10-ish) on our teaching staff since Christmas, from Denmark. He is quiet-spoken.

We had read Hans Christian Andersen's Ugly Duckling from our readers, so he came down and told my class many things we didn't know about Andersen, and about The Ugly Duckling.

He pointed out that this was no child's story but a real lesson to adults. It seems Hans felt he was an ugly duckling and couldn't become his help he wanted to be to his mother, who isn't washing to add to the family budget. But we know how successful he became and that after all he was a beautiful swan. — Nan.

Dear Nan: Delightful! The story - behind - a - story is often the best part.

* * *

Dear Doris: We are sending you our latest instruction sheet for making ditty-bags. We find they are easier to make and pack than the Christmas stockings. Also, they are preferred by our staff people in view of the fact that Christmas does not have the same meaning in every country.

These gifts are always welcomed by our administrators and we like to receive them here in our depot by June 30th, in order to distribute them in time for the Christmas season. Last year they went sent to needy boys and girls in Korea, Greece, Lesotho, Morocco, the West Indies, Labrador and North-ern Ontario. — Depot Supervisor, Canadian Save The Children Fund.

Dear Supervisor: I see that your list of contents includes things to wash with, write with play with; suitable for boys and girls. Just the kind of project that will delight many of our women's groups across Canada.

* * *

Dear Doris: I would like to know exactly what grounds one can get a divorce on and also a bit about getting one myself and saving money on lawyer's fees. — B's All Over.

Dear B's Over: Grounds for divorce in Canada now include: adultery, rape, sodomy, bestiality, homosexual acts, bigamy, cruelty and permanent marriage breakdown.

But you'd better study up if you want to be your own lawyer. Ont. women was reported as doing her own thing, and getting the divorce granted, for just $37. There is a good law book which includes a sample divorce petition and a copy of the Divorce Act. I'll send you the name of the book.

Just the same, I'm sure I'd want a lawyer's personal attention and skill. Such sticky questions come up!

Leftover Egg Yolks for Tasty Sponge Cake

By MARY MOORE

Leftover egg yolks in a sponge-like gold cake are the topic again today, presumably from Easter's Meringue Dessert.

You will treasure this cake because of its flavor and color but I must warn you to beat the yolks separately until thick.

SPONGY GOLD CAKE
(One-set Layer Cake using 4 egg yolks)

4 egg yolks
1¼ cups sugar,
3 tbsps. butter
3 tbsps. shortening
¾ tsp. lemon extract
¼ tsp. vanilla
1¾ cups sifted cake flour
2 tsps. baking powder
¾ tsp. salt
¾ cup milk

Beat egg yolks in small bowl or bowl until thick. In a standard beater bowl beat sugar with butter, shortening, lemon extract and vanilla until creamy. Remove beaters and fold in beaten egg yolks. Sift sifted flour, baking powder, and salt and add to creamed mixture alternately with milk, one-third of each at a time.

Turn into two buttered 8" layer cake tins. I used Teflon. If you do not use Teflon-lined pans line bottom of pans with buttered wax paper (see note below). Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 22 min. Let rest two or three min. then turn out on cake racks to cool.

Between layers spread filling made by heating together in small pan 1¼ tbsps. butter, 1½ tbsps. flour and 1 tbsp. sugar. Then blended stir in ¾ cup milk until thick. Remove from heat and a d d ¾ cup flaked coconut and ½ tsp. almond extract. Cool before spreading between cooled cakes.

Spread sides and tops with frosting made by beating together 2 tbsps. butter, 1¾ cups icing sugar, 2½ to 3 tbsps. milk and shake of salt. When cake is frosted sprinkle top with ½ cup flaked coconut.

NOTES: 1) Instead of coconut, you may use chopped, blanched toasted almonds in filling and on top. 2) I do not own any stock in the Teflon-lined pan company but canned emphasize too much the peace and serenity they give you, for your baked products always turn out easily and cleanly.

Same Basic Problem For the Skinny Girl

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a Registered Nurse who reads your column religiously. From time to time you deal with letters from mothers of overweight daughters. You always advise these mothers to stop nagging — to say nothing about what the girl eats or how she looks. You insist it is an emotional problem and the girl should work it out with a professional under the watchful eye of a physician.

ANN LANDERS

My problem is the opposite. My daughter is not an eater — she is a starver. The girl is 17, skinny as a rail, has one cold after another, is always tired and irritable. I've tried everything under the sun to make her eat. I prepare beautiful food but she pushes the plate away and says, "I'm not hungry." She insists three meals a day is an old-fashioned habit and most people could live on one-tenth of what they eat and be healthier for it.

What can be done with a teen-ager who thinks she knows it all? — WORRIED IN NEWARK.

DEAR WORRIED: Your basic problem is the same as the mother with the obese daughters. My advice is there — in your letter. I hope you heed it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been married only a year to a man who has one terrible fault. No matter where we go — to a restaurant, to a movie, to the theatre, a concert — wherever people gather — Jerry starts a conversation with anyone who will talk to him. The other evening we went to the ice show. He became so chatty with the woman on his left you would have thought she was his date. Her husband didn't like the way Jerry moved in on his wife. I sensed it immediately but Jerry gabbed on and on, totally insensitive to the man's hostility.

Last night Jerry started a conversation with a gentleman in the grocery store. The man was very cool. I was embarrassed. When we left the store I asked Jerry why he does this. His answer: "I've never met a stranger."

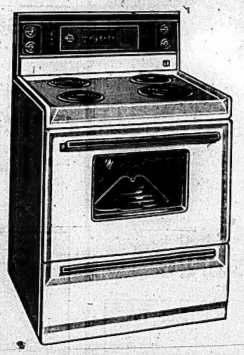
What do you make of it? How can I cure him? — PUZZLED WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: Your husband is a friendly fellow who assumes everyone appreciates being spoken to. He is wrong. Some people cherish their privacy and resent intrusion — especially by strangers.

There is no known cure for super-outgoing types like Jerry. Accept this personality defect and resign yourself to the fact that he will continue to start conversations wherever he goes because it is a compulsion which he cannot control.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What can I do about a lovely mother-in-law who drinks like a fish and smokes like a chimney, talks incessantly about her headaches, backaches, side-aches, gall-bladder attacks, asthmatic attacks and hives, refuses to go to a doctor because they are all "quacks" and runs her life according to what she reads in her horoscope? — UPPUGENSITT.



DEAR UP: You can listen.

School for Citizenship Planned for Volunteers

TORONTO (CP) — The volunteer who spends a day a week helping community services tends ripples out in all around her into that community, whether she knows it or not.

With the conviction that she should know, the National Council of Jewish Women has evolved a school for citizenship. It is designed to show volunteers and even non-volunteers how the community works and what their actions do to it.

Students hear from and talk to politicians, social workers, and pay field visits to schools, jails, city halls and courtrooms.

The school has been starting ripples of its own, attracting teachers and students from an assortment of backgrounds, inspiring some students to get involved, bringing some unlikely people together to work.

The school is actually several schools. It is a national project that has been operating in seven communities for three years. It has had federal grants as an indication of interest.

Mrs. N. I. Zemans of Calgary, co-chairman, says the council now is going to make an effort to involve more voluntary organizations.

She explainsthe courses are not designed as "how-to" series except in the broadest sense.

"We feel we have developed what can be an important tool in helping people see how they can influence change and how they can see beyond whatever immediate service they are doing."

For instance, she says, a volunteer in a pre-school program may affect families, the school system and the social and economic lives of the children.

"If women are going to be involved they have to understand government processes and social institutions.

"The old role is being taken away from the middle-class woman who has been the typical volunteer. Volunteer organizations as we have been used to them won't last unless they work together, take a look at themselves and stop playing their traditional roles of minding someone else's business."

Mrs. Zemans points out that values are changing and some volunteers may find their need flexibility if they are to be useful. New types of social effort are being tried and naive and more groups—the young, the poor, Indians—are making their own efforts and saying they want no interference.

"If we are going to view ourselves as citizens, we have to understand what these new movements mean and how they relate to social issues and how we all relate to them."

The specifics of the course were established as NCJW national policy, but Mrs. Zemans says each community school has adapted them to local interests and resources.

The courses teach basic human rights, how the community functions, and how it affects citizens. Each school is held for 10 or 11 weeks. Most have been limited to about 25 students, not all NCJW members.

The Edmonton school last year had students from the Junior League, the Anglican Church Women, the Catholic Women's League, the Indian and Metis women's organization and women from a welfare group. When the course was over they decided to stay together as a group, Mrs. Zemans said.

This has implications for working out ways that women's organizations could work together.

In Montreal, NCJW members met with women from the National Council of Women and the Quebec Federation of Women to discuss setting up a school. The three groups now have a joint committee and a formal structure within which they can work with each other, quite apart from the school.

Two NCJW members in each city have had training on how to organize a school. They go to the community for its staff, to both professionals and volunteers. Each school uses field trips as well as lectures and discussions.

Winnipeg students went to an open-area school, a family planning clinic, magistrate's court and a grievance committee of city council.

When they talked to a retired federal and provincial politician they were primed to ask questions about who joins his party and why, where its funds come from, whether there is a power elite in Manitoba, whether politicians are equal to their task.

There is no use playing games. You want people to come to you who will answer honestly and you should know what to ask. The level of information of the people attending varies so.

Mrs. Zemans says one further element introduced by some schools is group dynamics. They try to get the group to look at changes in itself as the school progresses.

Local Sorority Group Receives Recognition

Recognition for outstanding achievement by the Xi Beta Zeta Chapter was awarded recently by Beta Sigma Phi International, in giving the local chapter honorable mention in its world wide magazine — the only local group to receive such an honor.

Throughout the past few years the chapter has been involved in many worthy endeavors, one of which is the Christmas card project. During the year 1968, as a project to facilitate the newly rebuilt hospital the Xi Beta Zeta Chapter decided to print, sponsor and sell Christmas cards to raise money for the mental health clinic and the psychiatric wing. This same year, a drawing done by a child patient was selected by one of the members to be used on the cards.

A total of 3,000 cards was printed with all costs underwritten by the Chapter with permission and encouragement from Dr. R. B. Corn, Director of the Mental Health Clinic and hospital administrator P. Richard. Prior to the opening of the new hospital they were presented with a stereo FM unit.

In June 1969, another drawing was chosen and at this time 6,000 cards were printed. Proceeds of these will go towards the purchase of books to be presented to Dr. Corn each year — add 15 cents for each pattern for first-class mailing and special handling. Ontario residents add 4 cents sales tax. Print plainly size, name, address, style number.

During the month of March the chapter held two meetings at the homes of Mrs. Norman Desmond and Mrs. John Pringle with the president Mrs. Leo Fortin in charge at both meetings.

Mrs. Richard Midlane presented the program on the topic "Things Around Us" at the first meeting, while Mrs. John O'Toole presented a program on "Planning Your Home" at the second. Plans were also completed for a dinner meeting to be held at the home of Miss Elizabeth Black.

Black and White Voters Will Ballot for Separate Slates

SALISBURY (AP) — Black and white voters will ballot for separate slates of candidates of their own skin color in the Rhodesian election next week.

Although Rhodesia has 4,500,000 blacks and about 240,000 whites, there are only 85,300 eligible voters.

Asians and mulattos are regarded as "white" for voting purposes and are included in the 87,400 on white rolls.

The 8,300 black voters will choose among 33 candidates in eight constituencies. Eight more black members will be selected by tribal assemblies.

The 14 blacks in Parliament will be evenly divided on tribal lines with parity between the Matabele and the Mashona.

Black political advancement depends on the amount of income tax they pay. They get more seats as they pay more taxes. Theoretically, the blacks can acquire a maximum of 50 seats—the same as whites. In practice, this is unlikely to happen until late in the next century since most blacks rely on subsistence farming.

The question is not whether Smith and his Rhodesian Front will win April 30, but by how much. It is contesting all 50 white seats, none of the black constituencies.

Smith's party goes into the balloting with a head start of 13 unopposed candidates for the 66-member House of Assembly. To be assured of a bare majority in Parliament, the party needs another 21 seats from 37 white constituencies in which there are contests. It needs to win 33 for the two-thirds majority required to amend the constitution.

McLain Pondered Taking Big Plunge

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn has dropped the other shoe in the Denny McLain case and it didn't land as hard as some people thought it might.

Kuhn Wednesday suspended McLain until July 1 because of his involvement with bookmaking activities in Flint, Mich. The decision deprives Detroit Tigers of their star right-hander's services for less than half of the 1970 major league season.

where manager Mayo Smith and the Tigers seemed prepared to face the entire season without McLain.

"Just a half a year's suspension," mused Bill Freehan, McLain's batterymate and one of his cohorts. "It sounds as if he almost did something wrong. It's better than we anticipated."

Smith said he was sure that McLain's and associates would help the Tigers' chances for the American League pennant.

"It'll all settle down until July 1," he said, "then on July 1, when he shots out the Yankees . . ."

New York plays at Detroit on the night McLain's suspension ends and he'll be the probable pitcher. Denny has been working on his own this spring and says he could pitch right now.

"All things being equal," said McLain, "commissioner Kuhn did what he had to do. I can't say I agreed with the decision, because I want to play baseball right now but he made the decision and we'll live by it."

McLain had been waiting since Feb. 19, the date the commissioner tagged him with an indefinite suspension and launched an investigation into the pitcher's off-field activities.

That was the result of a face-to-face confrontation between the pitcher and the commissioner and McLain revealed Wednesday that he contemplated committing suicide by jumping from a building in New York, when Kuhn told him he was to be suspended.

"I looked out the window when they said I was going to be definitely suspended. I really thought for about 10 seconds I was going out," McLain said. "I looked down on the street," said McLain. "That was the darkest moment of my life. I would have jumped out of that window if I had thought about it much longer. But then I thought maybe there would be seven or eight Boy Scouts passing by I might land on."

Kuhn's investigation lasted six weeks and uncovered an involvement "with certain gamblers said to be involved in a bookmaking operation," according to a two-page statement released Wednesday. In January, 1967, according to Kuhn's statement, McLain "commenced placing basketball bets with this operation and subsequently was persuaded to make financial contributions totaling approximately $5,700."

While McLain believed he had become a partner in this operation," Kuhn continued, ... It would appear that in fact he was the victim of a confidence scheme. I would then conclude that McLain was never a partner and had no proprietary interest in the bookmaking operation.

"The fair inference is that his own gullibility and avarice had permitted him to become a dupe of the gamblers with whom he associated."

McLain said he'd "have to get a dictionary" to look up the meanings of gullibility and avarice. "But if it means stupid and greedy," Denny added, "yes, I am stupid and greedy."

Only 5 Points from First

Tonight Rangers' Turn to Root Leafs

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York Rangers weren't cheering for Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night but tonight they should be.

The Rangers had a hard struggle to edge the Leafs 3-1 Wednesday and stay one point behind fourth-place Detroit Red Wings in the battle for the National Hockey League East Division's last playoff berth.

But the Rangers will be rooting for a Toronto victory tonight when the last-place Leafs visit Detroit to play out the Red Wings' game in hand over New York. A win for the wings, on the other hand, would give them three points over the Rangers. It would mean the New Yorkers would have to win both their remaining games this weekend to gain a playoff spot.

The Rangers visit Detroit Saturday and the Wings go to New York for the final season encounter Sunday.

The Red Wings stayed in front of the Rangers with a 5-2 victory over Chicago Black Hawks who share the division lead with Boston Bruins. The Bruins were also kept at a standstill by a 6-3 defeat at the hands of Montreal Canadiens.

In the West Division, Pittsburgh Penguins clinched second place with a 4-1 win over third-place Philadelphia Flyers while Oakland Seals stayed in contention for a playoff berth on a 2-2 tie with St. Louis Blues.

The New York, Detroit and Montreal victories further tightened the hot Eastern race with only five points now separating the fifth-place Rangers from the two leaders.

Chicago and Boston still are the only two clubs assured of playoff berths with either New York or Detroit the most likely to drop out with a fifth-place finish.

Chicago and Montreal exchange visits on the weekend to wind up the schedule while Boston has a similar home-and-home series with Toronto.

The Leafs, although out of playoff contention, never stopped fighting and even pulled goalie Bruce Gamble for an extra attacker to try and tie the game in the dying seconds.

But Ron Ellis' 34th goal of the season was the only one the Leafs could put behind Rangers' netminder Ed Giacomin.

At Montreal, the Canadiens veterans came to life with centre Jean Beliveau collecting two goals and an assist and left-winger John Ferguson a goal and assist.

Ralph Backstrom, Yvan Cournoyer and Jacques Laperriere were the other Montreal scorers to have a record crowd of 18,496 fans.

Canadiens goalie Rogatien Vachon stopped 31 Boston shots but allowed two goals by centre Phil Esposito and one by league scoring leader Bobby Orr.

At Chicago, netminder Tony Esposito held the Hawks in check with a record 15 shutouts, failed to stop a 33-shot Detroit attack while Bruce Gamble was the duel by making 35 saves in the Red Wings nets.

Frank Mahovlich and Pete Stemkowski each scored twice for the Wings and Wayne Connelly added a single goal. Rookie Gerry Pinder scored both Chicago goals.

The one point gained by the Seals at St. Louis moved them into a tie with Minnesota in the battle for fourth place in the West.

Oakland has a home-and-home series remaining with the league-leading Los Angeles Kings while Minnesota faces two road games—at Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Milwaukee Brewers Open With 9-4 Win Over Indians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland Indians Wednesday became the first team this year to lose to Milwaukee Brewers, the late Seattle Pilots.

The transplanted Pilots trounced the Indians 9-4 in exhibition action as Danny Walton slammed a home run and three singles and knocked across five runs. Walton hit his homer in the first inning off Dick Ellsworth with two on.

It was a good day for Detroit Tigers. First they learned they'll only have to do without suspended pitcher Denny McLain until July 1. Then, Al Kaline unloaded a grand slam in the ninth inning to provide a 6-4 victory over Boston Red Sox.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati Reds exploded for nine runs in the sixth inning, including a grand slam homer by Tony Perez, and outslugged Washington Senators 14-6. The big outburst came at the expense of rookie pitcher Dick Such, who brought a string of 14 scoreless innings into the game.

Another rookie, Jerry Janeski, won a spot on the Chicago White Sox' starting rotation by stopping Pittsburgh Pirates for seven innings on six hits and one run. The Sox won 5-1.

Rookie sluggers John Ellis and Thurman Munson continued to impress with homers but New York Yankees lost to Kansas City Royals 4-3. Amos Otis cracked a two-run homer for the Royals.

Outfielder Sam Parrilla, trying to make the big jump from the Carolina League where he hit .323 last season, belted a sixth-inning homer and parlayed a two-run rally in the eighth as Philadelphia Phillies rallied to beat Minnesota Twins 4-3. Parrilla's two-out single started the winning rally.

Tom Gabrielson and Tom Haller walloped consecutive homers in the sixth inning as Los Angeles Dodgers mapped a 2-2 tie and went on to defeat Chicago Cubs 8-2.

Nat Colbert's three-run homer powered San Diego Padres to a 7-1 victory over Oakland Athletics and San Francisco Giants pushed across a run in the 10th inning to nip California 4-3. The Angels had tied it with two in the ninth.

Orioles, Athletics Favored for Pennants

NEW YORK (AP) — Baltimore Orioles, who have the power, and Oakland Athletics, who hope they have added the power, figure to be the teams to beat in the American League baseball pennant races that begin next week.

Each, however, likely will be faced with different problems.

The Orioles, who do not seem to have stiff competition facing them in the Eastern Division, will have to overcome whatever psychological scars were inflicted by being a New York Mets in the World Series last year. The Athletics will have to overcome Minnesota Twins in the Western Division.

With the exception of those three teams—the Orioles, the Athletics and the Twins—it looks from here as if the others will have difficulty keeping within hailing range. The entire order of finish should look something like this:

East—1. Baltimore; 2. Boston; 3. Washington; 4. New York; 5. Detroit; 6. Cleveland.

West—1. Oakland; 2. Minnesota; 3. Kansas City; 4. California; 5. Chicago; 6. Seattle-Milwaukee.

The big battle most likely will develop in the Western Division with the defending champion Twins meeting the challenge of the Athletics.

The Twins, who won it under Billy Martin last year, will be trying to duplicate that effort this year under Bill Rigney and the adjustment required in adapting to that change-over may have been reflected in Minnesota's 9-9 record at the beginning of spring training.

There is heavy artillery available, with Harmon Killebrew and Tony Oliva and the pitching should have improved with the addition of Luis Tiant to a staff that includes Jim Kaat, Jim Perry and Dave Boswell.

The Athletics, however, seem to have improved themselves to the point where they have the ability to overtake the Twins. The addition of Don Mincher and Felipe Alou should add even more dynamite to a lineup that already includes a legitimate super-slugger in Reggie Jackson.

There doesn't seem to be any way the others can be a factor. Kansas City Royals' youthful forces may be the only edge needed to finish third in what figures to be a three-team race with California Angeles and Chicago White Sox. Seattle-Milwaukee, or whatever, will bring up the rear.

In the Eastern Division, only it's complete turnabout can keep the Orioles from another World Series engagement.

With Frank Robinson, Boog Powell and Brooks Robinson swinging and Mike Cuellar, Dave McNally and Jim Palmer pitching, the Orioles just could be as convincing winners as they were last year when they finished 19 games ahead of the second-place Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers figure to fade this year, without the suspended Denny McLain for a half season, and the most likely challenger is Boston Red Sox, hoping to recapture the spirit of 1967 under new manager Eddie Kasko with a solid team led by Carl Yastrzemski.

Another year under Ted Williams should lift Washington Senators into third place despite improvements made by New York Yankees with the acquisition of first baseman Danny Cater and outfielder Curt Blefary.

Five-Team Battle in West

Could Be Amazin' Year for Senior Loop

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Maybe the World Series champion New York Mets will fall flat on their faces. Maybe manager Gil Hodges will lose his magic. Maybe pitchers Tom Seaver and Jerry Koosman won't win at least 40 games. Maybe, but don't bet on it.

After eating chalk as St. Louis Cardinals last spring, this observer has caught the Met religion. The amazin's did the convincing last September and October and there appears to be no reason to abandon ship despite a so-so record in spring training.

The Mets have bolstered the one weak spot in their infield with Joe Foy at third base. They picked up an experienced left-hander in Ray Sadecki. And they will have the full-season services of big Donn Clendenon.

After beating off Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cardinals—to say nothing of Philadelphia, Phillies and Montreal Expos—they must take on the best in the West, before they make the World Series again.

The best in the West could be any one of five teams. We exclude only San Diego Padres from the race. Despite a pitching problem that still exists, that raw power in the Cincinnati Reds' order suggests they will outslug Atlanta Braves, Houston Astros, San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers.

East—1. New York; 2. Chicago; 3. St. Louis; 4. Pittsburgh; 5. Philadelphia; 6. Montreal.

West—1. Cincinnati; 2. Atlanta; 3. Houston; 4. San Francisco; 5. Los Angeles; 6. San Diego.

The Pirates have been getting a big play from the sports writers in Florida who have been awed by their steady batting order and the fine early form of Bob Veale, Bob Moose and Dock Ellis.

But it is hard to overlook the Cubs, who did have a 84-game lead on Aug. 13 and appeared ready to sell World Series tickets. Losing that lead had to leave scars on the Cubs.

However, the big reason we put them second is a shortage of starting pitchers behind Ferguson Jenkins, Bill Hands and Ken Holtzman. The Cubs have a strong but thin-line of regulars.

Injuries to Ron Santo, Ernie Banks, Don Kessinger, Glenn Beckert or Billy Williams could disastrous. For a starter they are in trouble with Randy Hundley on the injured list.

St. Louis is in a modified situation because of the illness of Mike Shannon. Red Schoendienst has been trying Joe Torre, Phil Gagliano and Richie Allen at third base.

GIL HODGES

Allen's big bat is going to be a big help and the pitching trio of Bob Gibson, Steve Carlton and Nelson Briles is a modest situation because of the illness of Mike Shannon. Red Schoendienst has been trying Joe Torre, Phil Gagliano and Richie Allen at third base.

Ted Simmons, the rookie who is expected to be the No. 1 catcher still is in the Army. The bullpen is in trouble without Joe Hoerner.

Manager Gil Hodges will lose his magic. Maybe pitchers Tom Seaver and Jerry Koosman won't win at least 40 games. Maybe, but don't bet on it.

Allen's big bat is going to be a big help and the pitching trio of Bob Gibson, Steve Carlton and Nelson Briles is a modest situation because of the illness of Mike Shannon. Red Schoendienst has been trying Joe Torre, Phil Gagliano and Richie Allen at third base.

The Phillies are rebuilding the kids, installing Larry Bowa at short and Denny Doyle at second in the middle of the infield. They are short one outfielder.

Tim McCarver must bounce back strong if they are to get good catching. Much depends on comebacks by Chris Short and Jim Bunning in the pitching department.

Montreal is in over its head again but could do better than last year's sad 83-110 record.

In the West, the booming bats of the Reds will have to make up for pitching shortages although they hope Jim Maloney and rookie Wayne Simpson will come to the aid of Gary Nolan, Jim Merritt and Jim Maloney.

Sparky Anderson is gambling on rookie shortstop Dave Concepcion but has Woody Woodward to fall back on in case of trouble.

The loss of Ron Reed was a body blow to the Braves, taking away an 18-game winner for an indefinite period. That puts an extra, heavy load on Phil Niekro, George Stone, Pat Jarvis and ex-Oakland Athletic Jim Nash.

Many regard the Astros as the sleeper in the field. That pitching staff, led by Larry Dierker, Don Wilson, Tom Griffin and Denny Lemaster set a strikeout record last year.

Remember, they clobbered the Mets 19-2 in the season series.

Juan Marichal and Gaylord Perry on the mound and Willie McCovey, Willie Mays and Bobby Bonds at the plate are going to keep the Giants in the thick of it. They have finished second five years in a row.

The Dodgers are another club that could blow up a storm if kids like Bill Buckner and possibly Steve Garvey come through. Much depends on Willie Davis in centre and the ability of Maury Wills to play steadily.

San Diego should move up a few lengths but it is difficult to see them getting out of the cellar.

Stars Have Last Word For Tykes

The North Stars had the last word in this year's tyke house league hockey activity last night, downing the Tyke 'A' champion Stephen Licence entry 6-3 in a windup exhibition game.

Thad Shetell did all the damage for the North Stars, "B" champion in this year's tyke house league play. Shetell scored all four North Star goals, including three within the last eight minutes of the game to pull out the win.

Morley's Golf stopped Amedeo's 6-3 to win the Don Bell Sport Shop Trophy in the midget competition. Jim Richardson, Kevin Joudrey, Keith Joudrey, Dave Allen, Robbie Graham and Dave Trumpour all scored for the winners. Amedeo's marksmen were Michael Fort, Rowland Tipper and Ken Vos.

Lou Williams took a 5-1 win from Gord Ray Concrete to capture the Tom Cavanagh trophy in the Bantam "A" division. Steve Cowan was a one - man wrecking crew for the beaten champions, scoring four of the winners' five markers. Ronnie Greenbird added a goal and three assists for Lou Williams. Steve Hodgo was the lone Gord Ray scorer.

Lacrosse Registers 170, Extends Deadline to 18th

Late entrants will be given until April 18 to bolster the ranks of the 170 registered players in the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association this year.

The association, which held an executive meeting last night, expects to operate three novice, four peewee, four bantam and three midget squads this season. All-star teams are planned for at least two of the age groups for Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association entry.

Insurance for all players in the association will be made available this year at a cost of under $1 per player.

On Monday, July 20, Belleville teams will play exhibition contests against peewee and bantam teams from Fergus, which will be touring eastern Ontario.

Other items covered included a list of playing rules and regulations. It was found that the association requires three more sponsors for the upcoming season.

A lacrosse clinic for coaches and referees will be held on Sunday, April 12 at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street at 1 p.m. All those interested in minor lacrosse are invited to attend.

All late entries for the minor lacrosse group may be turned in to the Recreation Centre or to 11 First Street, Belleville.

OASA Meeting Over This Weekend

Belleville softball representatives, including OASA secretary Cliff Belch, are attending a meeting of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association in Peterborough this weekend.

Purpose of the meeting is to discuss amendments to the constitution and playing rules for 1970 and the election of officers.

Nominations for executive officers and auditors have been received previously and will be decided upon by a vote of the attending members. The meeting is scheduled for today and Saturday at the Empress Hotel and will be the 45th annual gathering of its kind.

Among the major items to be discussed will be the innovation of an elimination tournament to decide the representative to the Canadian championships this summer.

Not Duty to Judge if Outlays Wise--Auditor

TORONTO (CP) — It is the responsibility of the legislature, and not the provincial auditor, to decide whether the government spends its money wisely, provincial auditor George Spence told critics of his role Wednesday.

Two weeks ago, Vernon Singer, Ontario deputy Liberal leader, demanded Mr. Spence's removal because the provincial auditor refused to give him a document.

Mr. Singer accused Mr. Spence of taking directives from the government and of not fulfilling the independent function laid out for him in the province's Audit Act.

At a meeting of the legislature's public accounts committee Wednesday, attended by Mr. Singer, Mr. Spence said he considered himself an employee of the legislature, not of the government.

He said the main reason for his lack of criticism of government spending practices was that he conducts a pre-audit of expenditures.

He explained that under a pre-audit system he must approve all government expenditures before they can be made.

"I personally feel it is better to control and prevent doubtful expenditures before it is made rather than to try, as is the case with a post-audit, to get waste corrected."

Asked if it was not also part of his job to see that money is spent wisely, Mr. Spence replied:

"I do not believe it is my responsibility to say whether a government expenditure is valid or not. I believe that is the responsibility of parliament."

Hydro Plant Operations Slowed to Cut Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — Operations at Ontario Hydro's Hearn Generating plant and a city incinerator were cut back Wednesday night when the provincial government's air pollution index reached 23.

It was the highest reading since the index was introduced March 23 and the reductions were requested by the government's air management branch.

A branch spokesman, Thomas Cross, said weather forecasts indicated conditions conducive to raising the pollution level.

"We decided it would be better to suggest they cut back now rather than wait until morning when the index might have been in the 30s."

The index measures the amount of sulphur dioxide and solid particles in the air and relates these to an index running from 1 to 100.

Hydro meteorologist Donald Gillies said the coal-burning Hearn plant was producing only 700 megawatts Wednesday night, 500 below its normal capacity.

Mr. Gillies said the only way Hydro can compensate for the loss of production at the Hearn plant is to buy power from Quebec Hydro.

New Pilotage Formula May Cover All Waters

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposed pilotage rate formula for the Great Lakes may be applied to other pilotage districts in Canada if it proves successful, R. R. Macgillivray, director of marine regulations branch of the transport department said Wednesday.

He told shipping owners and pilots attending a department of transport hearing:

"In setting pilot rates in other parts of Canada it is obvious we will take a good look to see whether the formula should be applied.

"We feel it would be an improvement over what we have in many other pilotage districts in Canada."

He said the transport department had worked out with the U.S. coast guard the new formula which bases rates on the size of ships. The current system is a flat rate no matter what the ship size.

The department has not yet agreed to the rate increases suggested by the coast guard though it favors the formula on which the rates are based.

The proposed rate increases were described as "outrageous" by Phil Hurcomb, general manager of the Dominion Marine Association, which represents ships of Canadian registry sailing in inland waters.

Although members of the association are exempt from pilotage dues on the Great Lakes, Mr. Hurcomb said he feared the Great Lakes plan might be extended to other districts, such as the lower St. Lawrence, where they must pay dues.

Switching to another matter, Alain Lortie, counsel for the Corporation of Great Lakes Pilots, said regulations should be set concerning wheelmen of tankers.

Tankers were "more dangerous types of vessels than other."

"Sometimes the wheelmen don't have the competence they should have in these waters."

He suggested the tankers could be required to travel only in daylight or have special wheelmen in hazardous areas.

When Mr. Hurcomb objected, Mr. Lortie explained he was speaking only of wheelmen on foreign vessels.

Ban on All Lake Erie and Lake St. Clair Fishing Is Feared

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The threat of a total ban on fishing on Lake Erie and Lake St. Clair because of mercury contamination caused dismay Wednesday among Ontario fishermen, processors and operators of fishing resorts.

The federal government already has banned the sale of fish from the lakes and is confiscating all catches. Federal officials are reported to have asked the Ontario government to ban fishing itself, which is under provincial jurisdiction.

"It's just the worst time of the year," said one fisherman. "It couldn't have happened at a worse time. This is just when we make our bread and butter."

William Siddall of Port Maitland said he will continue to fish because he and his sons have an $80,000 investment in equipment.

"We cannot walk out of this without some assurance from the government that we are going to get something in return," he said.

Ontario government pollution experts are meeting with fisheries department officials in Ottawa today to discuss the contamination problem, including possible compensation to the approximately 70 men employed on fishing boats and more than 1,000 persons employed in processing pickerel, perch and smelt.

Laverne Kelly, a commercial fisherman from Erieau, a lakeshore community near Chatham, said he and his associates were "dumfounded" by the announcement of the ban on sales of Lake Erie fish.

"We didn't do anything wrong —why should we be put out of business?

"This mercury poisoning didn't happen overnight. It's been going on for years. How come, all of a sudden, someone finds the levels are not safe and a ban on public sale of perch should be imposed?"

Affected are about 70 fishermen on Lake St. Clair and 180 licensed boats on Lake Erie employing an average of four men per boat.

Most packing plants bordering Lake Erie—the world's largest producer of freshwater fish with an annual catch worth about $4,000,000—expect to stop operations by the weekend unless the ban is lifted.

Among them is the Omsteads Fisheries operation at Wheatley, the largest freshwater fishery in the world, which employs 650 persons.

Murray MacLean of MacLean Bros. packing company at Wheatley said the 10 boats connected with the firm are being advised to bring in what fish they've caught.

"We'll process them and pack them and we'll get confiscated tags for them. But I'm not sure we'll be paid for them."

Harkley Vidler, operator of Erieau Packers Ltd. at Erieau, said the ban on sales, if continued, "will force a shutdown of our entire operation . . ." and those fishermen will also be out of work."

Jim Jubenville, a commercial fisherman from Jeannette's Creek, said "most of them don't have neither a secondary job or advanced education. This is a severe shock . . ."

Chief Burton Jacobs, leader of reserve Indians on Walpole Island in Lake St. Clair, predicted the island's revenue from muskrat trapping—about $20,000 at between $30,000 and $100,000 annually—could be affected. Deed musk rats being found in marsh areas are being tested for mercury poisoning.

"Our first priority is to protect the health of people in this country and the countries which receive our imports," he said.

However, he said, the department also is concerned with the "sociological consequences" of the ban to men who are totally dependent upon fishing for their livelihood.

Ontario has no plans to ban fishing in the lakes until it is satisfied by continuing analysis that the fish are unsafe for human consumption.

The Ontario government was reported to have been requested by the federal government to impose a ban on fishing in the lakes, and an official in the office of Fisheries Minister Jack Davis was quoted as saying Ontario "appears to be a little less concerned" about the problem than is Ottawa.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Already I don't believe her!"

Ontario to Study Mercury Pollution with Washington

TORONTO (CP) — A crash program to determine the effects of mercury contamination of Canadian lake fish continued today as Ontario government pollution experts prepared to discuss the problem with officials in Ottawa and Washington.

Announcement this week of a federal ban on export sales of some fish from Lake Erie because of mercury contamination, blamed for the recent deaths of 43 persons in Japan, caused shockwaves in both Canada and the United States.

Officials of the Ontario Water Resources Commission were meeting in Washington with members of the United States Water Pollution Control Commission to exchange information and possibly take action to control mercury contamination from the U.S. side of the Great Lakes.

Warnings about mercury pollution in watercourses in Ontario, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia were made last November.

But the seriousness of the problem did not become generally apparent until Ottawa last week banned export sales of perch and pickerel from Lake St. Clair, connected to Lake Erie and Lake Huron by the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers.

George Kerr, Ontario's minister of energy and resources, told the legislature Wednesday that government officials were taken by surprise by the mercury poisoning of fish because there was no knowledge of the cumulative effects of the heavy metal as late as last year.

He said a biological report made to the OWRC in May, 1969, showed the presence of concentrations of mercury in mud in the St. Clair River, "but it was not known at that time that mercury content in mud would affect fish life."

He indicated that knowledge still is so scanty that scientific estimates of a safe level of mercury contamination range from 35 parts per million by the World Health Organization to 5 ppm by Canadian health authorities and 1 ppm by Ontario scientists.

Tests carried out last year by University of Western Ontario zoologist Dr. Norvald Fimreite and confirmed this week by the fisheries department research division in Winnipeg showed levels of 1.36 ppm in pickerel caught in Lake St. Clair. Tests continue on Lake Erie fish.

Mr. Kerr said, however, that

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here Saturday

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness and growing thicker hair - will be demonstrated in Belleville this Saturday, April 4.

In the announcement Harrison named Staff trichologist R. Edgar to conduct the Belleville clinic. Mr. Edgar will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday at the Hotel Quinte.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no obligation by seeing Mr. Edgar," director Harrison said. "Your only obligation is to yourself — to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home Treatment, we will frankly tell you so."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no cure-all that will correct everyone of the 18 scalp disorders that cause baldness."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely, "We cannot help men who are stick-bald after years of hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison Trichologists hold clinics in all major cities across Canada.

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate — and baldish — by the time he serves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's "tried everything." So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair:

That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss - and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

Free Scalp Examination

See Mr. Edgar in person. Learn how baldness can be corrected, and new hair grown. The new Harrison method permits you to actually "correct" your baldness and improve your hair in the privacy of your own home.

For an examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Quinte Saturday between 1.00 p.m. and 8.00 p.m. for Mr. Edgar's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. Examinations are given in private.

Duck's Friend

Jack Muir of Niagara Falls puts about 20 tons of grain each year to feed the ducks who call in at his 70-acre farm on their migration. He grows most of the feed himself, finds it is only a minimum diet for the number of birds which visit.

Robarts to Give Indian Policy

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts will map out in the legislature today a program for Ontario Indians.

Indian affairs in Ontario recently became the responsibility of the department of citizenship and immigration, fulfilling a promise made in the throne speech to transfer the responsibilities from the department of social and family services.

The transfer climaxes a year of criticism of the provincial government for its handling of Indian affairs following disclosure that John Yarenko, minister of social and family services, did not spend $1,500,000 allotted in 1968 to provide for Indian community development.

It was announced in the legislature Wednesday the provincial government will spend $1,000,000 on television advertising to induce other Canadians to visit Northern Ontario.

The department of tourism and information has also appointed a permanent representative in London to travel across Europe promoting visits to Ontario.

Tourism Minister James Auld, in presenting his department's spending estimates, said that while Ontario's tourist potential must be promoted abroad, the government also is involved in making Northern Ontario's "tremendous tourists attractions" known.

"Our internal tourist promotion . . . in 1970 will be expanded to a television campaign, aimed at the more than 6,000,000 people in the Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg areas, urging them to discover Northern Ontario in particular."

Mr. Auld also said his budget includes a $1,000,000 loan fund to assist development or expansion of tourist facilities, especially in the North.

Estimates for the tourist department this year—$12,804,000 compared with $12,476,000 in 1969-70—are the first to be debated since the province's $3,725,000,000 budget was released Tuesday.

Donald MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, Wednesday protested government arrangements for the budget release which is seen by civil servants and the press before it reaches members in the house.

He said that as Treasurer Charles MacNaughton was reading the budget Tuesday, civil servants were thumbing through copies while seated under the public galleries. He said arrangements violated the privilege of members.

Speaker Fred Cass agreed and said the government should consider changing the system next year.

Ban Said Publicity Stunt

CORNWALL (CP) — A spokesman for Domtar Fine Papers Ltd. said Wednesday an order from the Ontario government to stop using mercury in industrial processes is merely "a hunger for publicity."

Assistant resident manager Ben Skidwell said the order was completely ridiculous.

"We haven't been using mercury in production, but a mercury chemical as a mould inhibitor in one of our products," he said.

He said the mercury chemical does not find its way into any waterway.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Where Is the Fun In Raising Family?

Quite often I call for help from readers. In many instances their first-hand experiences is much better than mine.

For example consider the ever - present problem to younger parents on how to raise children — yet enjoy them. I shall appreciate any comments related to the following letter received today:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Chronic fatigue. Nervousness. Inability to sleep. These are my presenting symptoms. And no wonder. Trying to bring up four children is the reason.

From older people I hear the old saying: "Enjoy your children while they're young." Sounds good, but how do you do it?

When children are little, at least mine at this stage, they make messes and more work than I can keep up with. Believe me, tranquilizers don't help. In fact they make it worse. When I am sleepy it is more difficult for me to "cope."

When you're done with chores, picking up toys after the kids have unsuccessfully done it, washing their dirt off the walls, working outside the home, plus necessary errands, shopping and yard work to do, where is the time to enjoy your children at their young age?

I would rather have fun with my children, but most of their time is taken up spent creating work for them.

Paint comes out of the garage to be spilled on the sidewalk, crayon marks inside and out. Every conceivable manner of noises and confusion from morning till night.

I keep asking myself "where's the fun" older people (with grown children) tell you about? If I could take a vote, I doubt that most young mothers would honestly say that "there's joy" in raising young children.

We're not rich. I don't have the privilege of having household help. If anyone has any good ideas on how to spend time enjoying the children as they grow, I would love to hear some good suggestions.

— Mrs. A.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Most people take life too seriously. They should keep reminding themselves that they're not meeting out of it alive anyway!

I am 75 years old. It took me a long time to learn this philosophy. I am active for my age and my doctor says I'm in good condition.

I take a small drink of whiskey before lunch and the same before supper every day. What is the safe limit in ounces? My daily total never goes over two ounces.

— Mr. C.

Comment: Your daily intake is within the bounds of good health. Undoubtedly, your doctor agrees. I would be the last to tell you to quit.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I find that many people who complain of being sensitive to noise don't even try the simplest of remedies: ear stoppers. There are various kinds one can find in any large drugstore.

I used to have insomnia but not any more. I keep noise out. A bulldozer under my window wouldn't bother me now.

I've even used ear stoppers in a hospital ward to shut out the roar of traffic outside my window. And I've even slept well in spite of disturbances from another patient who kept everyone else in the ward awake. — Mrs. Mc.

Comment: It's true. Sometimes the simplest and most effective remedies are right there for the asking — and we overlook them. Ear stoppers are not invariably effective, but are simple and inexpensive. Why not try them if you are sensitive to noise?

Worst Rioting in Five Months Fought by Soldiers in Belfast

BELFAST (CP) — The worst rioting in five months rocked Belfast early today spreading over a two-square-mile area of the Northern Ireland capital and leaving 10,000 families under virtual martial law.

British troops used tear gas to quell mobs for the first time since the grave days of last October.

Rioters threw up makeshift barriers across six streets as 1,800 soldiers fought to bring mobs of more than 600 Roman Catholics and Protestants under control.

Unofficial reports said 20 soldiers were wounded—five were taken to hospital—in bombardments of flaming gasoline bombs, bottles, rocks, bricks and other debris.

There was no immediate estimate of civilian casualties from the two emergency first aid centres hurriedly organized, but one youth was seen ablaze—a victim of his own bomb.

The rioting raged continuously for six hours.

At its height, the street fighting covered an area of two square miles and 10,000 families spent the night under virtual martial law as soldiers sealed off the area.

The trouble started after a weekend of easter parades which were marred by incidents in the capital and three other towns.

The army said a crowd of about 400 Catholics gathered outside a pub in the Springfield Road section, a few hundred yards from where 25 soldiers were injured in clashes Tuesday night.

The mob advanced on troops, waving Irish Republican flags. At the same time, rival throngs of Protestants began moving down from their new Barnsley housing estate.

About 20 shots in several bursts—believed from a 22-calibre rifle—rang out, and the incident rapidly escalated and spread. Civilians with rifles were seen in several streets, but no shots were reported fired at the soldiers.

The British troops, wearing steel helmets and carrying nightsticks and riot shields, ordered civilian police out of the area and moved in between the rival factions. The unarmed police later bolstered the soldiers.

Armored cars repeatedly charged the mobs in a vain bid to break up the attack.

After repeated warnings to the mobs to calm down, grenades of CS riot gas were fired from an army personnel carrier.

The gas induces coughing, weeping and vomiting—and the army's assault succeeded in breaking up the massed mobs. But the rioters then split into roving gangs, striking both at soldiers and opposing religious groups.

One reporter saw a youth set fire to himself when he misdandled a gasoline bomb. He ran with clothing blazing down a side street and disappeared, helped by fellow-rioters.

Six barricades—hallmarks of the October battles—which took three lives sprang up, manned by missile-hurling jeering youths. Troops again used tear gas to drive off their defenders.

All the barriers were later removed "by mutual consent," said an army spokesman.

One resident blamed the outbreak on a Tuesday parade of junior members of the ultra-Protestant Orange Order "heating their drums as loud as possible."

"This upset the Catholics and some of the younger ones were looking for trouble."

French Gunmen Free Last Hostage

VILLEFRANCHE-SUR-MER (Reuters) — Four gunmen who fled a luxury hotel after keeping police at bay for a day freed their last hostage today as part of a deal which allowed them to escape.

Police immediately launched a massive manhunt.

The gunmen left the French Riviera resort Hotel Versailles this morning unarmed but with the male hostage while 100 heavily armed policemen stood by without interfering. They bundled the hostage, Jacques Lespagnon, into a waiting car and sped off east toward Nice. He telephoned later saying he was in the Marseille area, another 125 miles away.

Police said they made a midnight deal with the four under which they handed over their guns in return for an hour's head start and provided that one of two men they were holding in a third-floor hotel room drove them to Nice.

Investment Clubs

Liquidity Avoided By Active Fund

By KEN MANT

Liquidity is about as unpopular around The Analysts' Fund as a pocketful of phosphates would be at a water pollution convention.

To both groups, the subjects are too costly — in terms of what they do and don't do for you — and esthetically displeasing.

At a time when many investors are sidelined and taking advantage of comfortable eight per cent interest rates, the Analysts are tackling the stock market storm head-on — and enjoying modest success.

There's no no guarantee that the overbearing buoyancy will soon abate, though we've already been through some of the worst months. But the Analysts continue to stay right on course.

The mini - fund's 25 members include secretaries and school teachers, engineers and advertising executives, even housewives. A small number of pension consultants form the nucleus of the group.

South — These compilaies must have a reasonably small number of shares outstanding.

East — There must be room for more growth.

West — The shares must still be "undiscovered" by the market.

That means people like you and me—and the big mutual funds.

When I last looked at the Analysts' Fund in December, the value of a $10 share was $10.01. It was started on June 1, 1969 — "before the stock market crash" — and had touched a low of $8.20 at one point. Total assets amounted to $11,302.16.

Mr. Miller pointed out that this was a better performance than most mutual funds enjoyed over the same period.

By March 1, the value of a share had risen to $10.67 and total assets had grown to $13,-280.02.

Mr. Miller has some nonsense opinion about investing. For instance, he told members on January 1:

"In deciding whether to invest in the stock market, the future is of no importance. What people think this future is going to be, as reflected in the stock market, is also of no importance. The only important factor is whether there is a difference between the two and if and when this difference is going to disappear.

"In our opinion, the stock market now reflects the opinion that there is going to be a recession, lasting about one year, and of moderate depth. We do not believe that the recession will last this long. Therefore, we should be fully invested.

"We believe that the Canadian economy is sounder than the U.S. economy, so that at least part of the excess of price-earnings ratios in Toronto over those in New York is justified. For this and other reasons, all of our investments should be in Canadian stocks."

On February 1, members learned they'd bought 100 Oil Patch, a company in the business of selling, renting and servicing oil-field equipment in Western Canada and Alaska. The buying price was $5⅛.

"As was true with Kaps Transport, investors seem to have overlooked this service company, while being perhaps overly excited about the oil producers. Once they do notice the stock, the name will make it difficult to forget," Mr. Miller said.

"There is a good chance that the stock will be listed on the TSE in the next two months. (In fact, it was listed.) Earnings per share have increased by about 250 per cent over the last five years, with 1969 earnings being 33 cents.

"When the 1970 Israeli-Arab War breaks out, both Kaps and Oil Patch should benefit."

On March 1, Mr. Miller reported the Analysts had sold 100 Kaps Transport at $13.375 and bought Columbia Cellulose Pfd. at $18.50.

"Although Kaps Transport should increase in price over the next year, it was our fifth choice of the five stocks in our portfolio. . .Consequently, we replaced it with the convertible preferred stock of Columbia Cellulose, which we think should be more profitable than Kaps."

Township Opposes Parkhill Festival

PARKHILL, Ont. (CP) — McGillivray Township council voted early this morning to oppose Karma Productions Ltd., of Toronto in its bid to hold a rock music festival near this community, said township clerk William Amos.

After a meeting with the promoters Wednesday night, council went into debate over the proposed festival tentatively scheduled for the July 4 holiday weekend for this community, 20 miles northwest of London.

Karma predicts between 250,000 and 500,000 persons from the United States and Canada would pay $15 each to attend the event.

Karma Productions called the meeting to present their plan for the festival. Besides the McGillivray council and Karma representatives, the meeting was attended by municipal officials from East and West Williams Township and the town of Parkhill.

Adrian Ansems, mayor of Parkhill, produced statistics at the meeting that he had requested from the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation which showed property damage and drug incidents at last summers rock festival in Woodstock, N.Y.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Karma Productions Ltd. of Toronto could make more than $3,000,000 on the proposed rock music festival at Parkhill 20 miles northwest of here, but could also face financial catastrophe, the firm's director of operations said Wednesday.

"This is a very risky business," Mel Lawrence said in a television interview. "You can never tell about these things until everything is over."

Monorail Planned

If the Ontario government approves, the city of Niagara Falls could have the longest — six miles — commercial monorail in the western hemisphere, from its downtown area to suburban Chippawa. At a cost of $12,000,000, it would serve the tourist area around the falls and provide public transportation for the city's residents.

Time Asked for 'Full Story'

TORONTO (CP) — Responsible citizens' groups should be given free television time to comment on what they consider to be misleading advertisements, says a brief filed with the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

The brief, issued Wednesday by a students' committee on the media at Osgoode Hall law school, notes that advertising is intended to sell a product, "not really to inform the public of dangerous aspects of the product or possible detrimental effects which the product might have on society."

To protect the public interest, the Broadcasting Act should be amended to allow concerned groups access to television "to give the public the full story on all goods and services advertised on that medium."

Organ Transplant Program Starts

OTTAWA (CP)—The University of Alberta and the Medical Research Council will sponsor a major research effort in organ transplantation involving a scientific team backed by more than $1,200,000.

A team of top scientists is being assembled from Canadian and Australian medical centres to work at the faculty of medicine at Edmonton investigating the body's immunity to transplanted tissue and making clinic studies centring on kidney transplants but probably to be extended later to other body organs.

Dr. John B. Dossetor, 44, a leading Canadian authority on kidney transplant whose work in he field has gained him an international reputation, and Dr. Erwin Diener, 38, an eminent Swiss radiobiologist working in Australia, will head the research team.

Dr. Diener will move to Edmonton from Australia this summer, bringing with him two members of his Melbourne research team. Dr. Dossetor recently moved to Edmonton from Montreal.

An associate member of their team will be Dr. W. D. Armstrong, a graduate in medicine from University of Manitoba who worked with Dr. Diener at Melbourne on an MRC fellowship.

Dr. W. T. Howson and Dr. B. K. Mookerjee, former colleagues at McGill University of Dr. Dossetor, and Dr. N. E. Kraft, a former colleague of Dr. Diener, will join the team as professional assistants.

The transplant team also will include a protein chemist working in the field of isolating antigens, substances which spark the body's production of antibodies when foreign tissue is introduced into it. The antibodies are part of the body's natural defence against foreign tissue and hence play a part in rejection of transplants.

An expert in the field of compatibility of body tissues also will join the group.

MRC will make $1,200,000 available to the project over a five-year period. The program will be closely linked with the current kidney transplant program now under way at Edmonton under Dr. C. M. Couves, Dr. H. Hyde, Dr. W. H. Lakey and Dr. P. Salmon who will be part-time associate members of the team.

The MRC money will cover salaries of two principal investigators and professional and technical assistants and stipends of a number of postdoctoral fellows and graduate students.

In addition, in the first year, MRC will provide about $100,000 for research equipment, materials and supplies.

The university has made available 7,000 square feet of laboratory space and $150,000 for renovation and capital equipment for laboratories for the group's directors. It also is to provide a further $150,000 for equipment.

A joint announcement by the university and the council said the breadth and depth of the research program is unique and success could set a pattern for other centres.

MRC is sponsoring the first nationwide trials in the world of antilymphocyte serum in kidney transplants and the new research program is a natural out-growth of that. Dr. Dossetor has been associated with these trials from the start of planning a year ago.

Dr. Dossetor is a graduate in medicine of Oxford University who took a PhD degree at McGill i 1961. For the last eight years he had been director of renal and urological research at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

Dr. Diener, Swiss-born graduate of the University of Zurich, has been senior research officer for the last three years at Walter and Eliza Hall Institute of Medical Research in Melbourne. He takes up his Edmonton post-

Plane Leaves Seoul

SEOUL, South Korea (CP) — A Japanese airliner hijacked Tuesday by a band of sword-carrying Japanese radical students apparently landed in North Korea tonight on a flight from Seoul after a deal was worked out that led to the release of 103 passengers and crew who had been held hostages for nearly 79 hours.

The Japanese self-defence agency said in Tokyo that the airliner being tracked by U.S. radar disappeared from the screen while over North Korea and apparently had landed there.

All but one of the hostages later returned by air to Fukuoka in southern Japan after their release earlier today at Seoul airport.

North Korea's next move was in doubt. Radio Pyongyang accused the Japanese of a plot to "create the impression that we want to take in the so-called Trotskyites or criminals," meaning the hijackers.

The broadcast said the North Koreans did not want to become involved in the case and would not "play the role of the Japanese police" in doing what Pyongyang said the Japanese authorities should have done—arrest the hijackers.

North Korea had promised earlier to have the passengers flown back to Japan as soon as possible, but the situation had changed now that the passengers were free, the broadcast said.

On board the Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 were a crew of three, nine armed fanatical student hijackers and their voluntary hostage, Vice Transport Minister Shinjiro Yamamura of Japan.

Four hours earlier the hijackers released 99 passengers and four stewardesses in exchange for Yamamura after holding them hostage for the longest period in aviation history.

Charge Is Laid As Baby Taken

TORONTO (CP) — A charge has been laid against persons who took a newborn baby from a Kingston hospital so that the parents and the child can be legally brought before the courts, the Ontario legislature was told today.

Social and Family Services Minister John Yaremko said the child has not yet been found, but the charge was laid in the hope that a question of custody can be clarified in the courts.

He told Liberal Leader Robert Nixon the Kingston Children's Aid Society had started the procedure to gain custody of the child according to provincial legislation, but the application had been delayed by "doubts in the mind of a local judge."

Toronto lawyer W. Glen How, general counsel for the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect of which the mother is a member, said the baby was told by "a competent, medically-trained person" that the baby is doing well.

But Dr. D. J. Delahaye, who was treating the child for haemolytic disease of the newborn, said he believed she urgently required a blood transfusion and could die or suffer permanent brain damage if not treated by early Saturday.

The baby was born Wednesday in Smiths Falls, 35 miles north of here, to Mrs. Antonius Dewaal, 22, and later was transferred to Kingston General Hospital for treatment after being signed by the father into the temporary custody of the Chil-

Guatemala Won't Free Prisoners

GUATEMALA CITY (Reuters) — The Guatemalan government, in a get-tough move against kidnappers of diplomats, refused Thursday night to accede to the demands of kidnappers of the West German ambassador and declared a national state of emergency.

In a surprise statement, the government said it would not meet the demands of the kidnappers of Count Karl von Spreti and release 17 political prisoners. A presidential decree announced soon afterwards suspended all civil rights and handed over power to the military for 30 days.

Air Traffic Directors Ignoring Plea of Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Working under an agreement with the U.S. government, union leaders tried to get air traffic controllers back on the job today and end a strike that has crippled air travel for more than a week.

Early reports, however, indicated no significant back-to-work movement on today's first shift.

In New York, a focal point in the strike, 40 of 57 controllers scheduled to work reported sick at the air route centre which controls traffic in several Eastern states.

The number of controllers staying off the job remained about the same at Kansas City and Minneapolis. In Chicago, all 10 controllers at the O'Hare tower reported for duty but the nearby Aurora control centre declined to give out numbers on strikers.

Leaders of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization agreed Thursday to order their men back to work by the weekend.

Judge George L. Hart Jr. of the U.S. district court then dismissed contempt proceedings against PATCO Executive Director F. Lee Bailey and two other union leaders.

Later, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman confirmed that three controllers who had been ordered from Baton Rouge, La., to new posts and who had not reported to their new assignments were in the early stages of dismissal proceedings.

Change by Cabinet Called Impermissible

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court judge Thursday declared null and void, at least in B.C., the federal law making breath tests compulsory for motorists suspected of impaired driving.

Federal and provincial authorities promptly drew up notice of appeal, to be filed here today. Meanwhile, police in B.C. were directed not to charge drivers who refuse to take a breath analysis.

Most Provinces Won't End Tests

By The Canadian Press

A British Columbia Supreme Court ruling Thursday which voided the new federal breath test legislation in that province seems unlikely to stop the laying of breath test charges in other provinces.

Provincial and urban legal officials across Canada polled by The Canadian Press Thursday night generally adopted a keep-going-for-now attitude.

Leslie Peterson, B.C. attorney-general, said an appeal to the B.C. court of Appeal has prepared for filing today.

Inspector Fred Blocher, head of the Ontario Provincial Police public information department, said: "We will comply with the section as it is legislated until we're told otherwise."

The appeal will go before the B.C. Court of Appeal. In Ottawa, Justice Minister John Turner said the federal government will defend the law in the Supreme Court of Canada, if necessary.

Technically, the landmark ruling of Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe is effective only in B.C. but, as Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart of Alberta put it, it will have a "persuasive effect" elsewhere.

In other words, if defence lawyers in other provinces cite the judgment, selling fast here at $1.20 a copy, judges would consider it, although they would not be bound by it.

It's still an offence to drive while impaired but authorities have say that if the driver refuses a test, the Crown in B.C. can no longer charge him with violating the law through his refusal.

In addition, the automatic impairment level set in the legislation—a blood-alcohol reading of .08 per cent—would not apply, leaving courts to use discretion if a level is cited in evidence.

Stewart McMorran, Vancouver's chief prosecutor, said the ruling means the Crowni reverts to prior legislation. Motorists can still take breath tests if they want to.

Mr. Turner said officials in the provinces agreed there should be an appeal.

Mr. Justice Munroe overturned the legislation on grounds the federal cabinet substantially altered it when it proclaimed the date on which the

British Soldiers Get Tough

BELFAST (AP) — British soldiers again scattered mobs of rioters with tear gas and baton charges early today as they took tougher steps to bring volatile Belfast under control.

Squads of soldiers with nightsticks and shields broke up one crowd of about 150 Roman Catholics under a haze of CS riot gas and arrested 21.

Three soldiers were slightly injured as demonstrators pelted the military with blazing gasoline bombs, rocks, bottles and other debris.

It was the third straight night that the Springfield Road area —a dividing line between Catholic and Protestant housing estates—had erupted in violence, and the army wasted no time in using gas for the second night running.

On Thursday, the gas which induces coughing, weeping and vomiting, was used as a last resort. But today shells burst in the street soon after the three hour battle began.

Mail Trucks Raided

MONTREAL (CP) — One man was injured and six rented trucks and an escorting security car were attacked Thursday afternoon when violence erupted again in the Montreal mail dispute.

The other vehicles attacked had windows broken. Two had tires slashed.

All but one of the attacks took place in downtown Montreal. The other was in a suburban Dorval parking lot.

The 437 Lapalme drivers have been unemployed since Wednesday when the postal department took over pickup and delivery of mail of the city's mail substations.

The drivers met again Thursday to map out strategy to protect the government takeover but no plans of proposed tactics were revealed.

About 75 trucks rented by the post office took over trucking operations Wednesday but the limited scale of operations did little to stave the huge backlog of mail accumulated since the Lapalme drivers began work slowdowns Feb. 2.

About 250 trucks normally handle the job of mail deliveries in the city but the post office has no access to trucks owned by Lapalme.

Striking Truckers Return

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of striking truck drivers went back to work today under a tentative agreement increasing their average wage by more than $1 an hour during a three-year contract.

Frank Fitzsimmons, acting president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, asked the strikers to return to their jobs pending a mail vote by the 425,000 workers covered by the tentative agreement announced Thursday.

Most of the 425,000 drivers had stayed on the job after the old contract expired midnight Tuesday night but wildcat strikes in dozens of cities added up to the biggest trucking walkout in U.S. history.

West of City Limits

Sidney Township May Have New Heavy Industry in the Offing

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
(Staff Reporter)

Possible location of an unidentified heavy industry in Sidney township last week of Belleville city limits had caused Sidney township to ask Belleville and Suburban Planning Board to draft plans for an industrial park in the township.

The proposed industry would locate on a 90-acre lot adjacent to the western city limits, south of an extension of Hanna St., and north of the present Ontario Hydro power line.

Planning director Bert Kenny last night revealed that the township of Sidney had asked planning staff to draw up a plan for a future industrial park surrounding the site in the second concession of Sidney, between the CN railway track and Highway 401, and extending west from Belleville city limits to Wallbridge Rd.

The planning staff was directed to prepare a zoning bylaw to cover the block, and submit it for approval at the next board meeting.

The tentative plan for the area, outlined by the planning director, calls for a residential zone of 580 acres in the southeast corner of the 1,500 acre block, adjacent to the present Westpark Village and Glen Arden subdivisions.

The 90-acre site of the proposed heavy industry would be zoned for that use, and a buffer zone surrounding the site and extending along Highway 401 and Wallbridge Rd. would be zoned for light industry.

"It would be premature to create a zoning bylaw which would cover all the land since much of it can not be serviced at the present time," noted Mr. Kenny.

He recommended that the heavy industry site be zoned for that use, and the land north and south of it, fronting Highway 401 and the Hydro easement, be zoned for light industry at this time.

The remaining land in the block, bounded by the city limits, Highway 401, Wallbridge Rd. and the CN right-of-way will be designated agricultural for the purpose of creating a holding zone for future development.

Reeve Jack Bush of Sidney told the board that the township staff's draft of a land use plan for the block "creates no problems" when the township wants."

Although no one was willing to reveal any details about the proposed industry, planning board was told it would require a rail siding running north from the CN main line to the southern boundary of its 90 acre property.

Mr. Kenny said that "at some future date an overpass would be required at the intersection of College St. to cross the proposed siding.

Parks Board Estimates Set At $230,000

The Belleville Parks Board of Management will ask city council to include an amount of $30,000 in its current budget this year to provide funds for the purpose of property acquisition.

The amount asked will not show in the board's 1970 budget and if granted will be shown as a city expense.

Parks board members at their regular meeting yesterday approved budget estimated for the year calling for expenditures of $230,534. After deducting revenues of approximately $35,000, the budget calls for a levy of 1-7/10 mills to raise $195,500.

Last year the board spent $200,000 with $177,000 being raised through a levy of 1 2/10 mills.

The parks board budget will now go to the city manager and the budget advisory committee before going to city council for consideration in its current budget discussions.

The city parks board had been negotiating through the Moira River Conservation Authority for the purchase of the Lightfoot property north of College Street and west of the Moira River. However, the board was told no agreement on price had been reached.

Parks superintendent Lloyd Syer told the board that the Lightfoot property would have potential as a city parks area. He said the Lightfoot building could be used for many years as a parks service building.

In other business the board drew a line on the parks superintendent acting as instructor for the proposed pre-summer vacation gardening course to be operated this year by the Belleville YMCA.

The proposal is that registration in the course be limited to 12 and will be open to both Y members and the public. The course would run from April 29 to June 3 with six one hour sessions to be held on Wednesday afternoons.

Board approval of Mr. Syer acting as the course instructor was tabled with the suggestion that efforts be made to secure volunteer instructors.

The board approved the recommendation of a special committee favoring the old Lott domicile as the location for a proposed ice control dam in the Moira River.

City council will be advised of the board approval.

Approval was given for the Belleville Federation of Musicians to use Zwicks Island Park again this year for their Sunday afternoon series of "Concerts in the Park". A request for the concert series to run from June 7 to September 26.

dren's Aid Society.

Dr. Delahaye said the child was born into the care of the mother's custody because of the mother's "unwillingness to have her receive a blood transfusion."

Mrs. Dewsnal and four unidentified men entered the hospital here at about 2 p.m. Thursday and took the baby after what Dr. Delahaye termed a "fairly vicious fight" between himself and two of the men.

Despite these events, police stressed that removal of the child from the hospital was not illegal. The Crown attorney's office here said no action was planned to force the child's return.

An official of the Ontario department of social and family services said the child had not been made a legal ward of the Children's Aid Society and the mother had the right to take her own child although the Dewsnals were granted a divorce Wednesday—only hours after the baby's birth.

"But she might also die and there is a strong likelihood that she will suffer permanent brain damage if she isn't treated within 48 hours (by early Saturday.)

"Every hour that passes increases the risk of brain damage," he said.

IN MEMORIAM

GENDREAU — In loving memory of Mrs. Mary Gendreau who passed away April 3, 1967.
Our hearts are filled with sadness,
And secret tears still flow,
What it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
They say time heals all sorrow,
But that is not true,
For time so far has only proved,
That I miss you more and more,
And love so severely to feel it,
That you're gone from my sight,
But memory keeps you dearer,
So one will ever know
How we miss you and lonely,
And everything goes wrong,
A shadow has fallen across our home,
A sorrow we never knew,
Each time we see your picture,
We kiss and tell you,
"Don't cry, I'm only sleeping,"
Is what you always told us,
And we remember you said,
But perhaps it's just as well,
That you did not say goodbye.
Inserted by
Your husband and loved as well,
Daughter Mary Ann always remembered by daughter-in-law and grandson Freddie.

'Stop-gap' Zoning For Foster Ward

"Stop-gap" rezoning to protect residential property in a major portion of Foster Ward was approved last night by Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

City council chambers was filled with members of the ward's ratepayers' association as assistant planner Frank Stokmans outlined amendments to a proposed bylaw introduced two weeks ago and sent back to the board's staff for further study.

Most ratepayers left satisfied with the rezoning bylaws provision for the ward, now zoned for industrial use only.

But Mayor J. Russell Scott warned the ratepayers that planning board's approval was only a first step in implementing the bylaw, and after city council passed it in two weeks' time it had still to go before the municipal board and minister of municipal affairs.

The rezoning was sought by the ratepayers to prevent further industrial encroachment of the residential core of the ward.

Under the new bylaws, all single family detached and double houses will be conforming uses, and if destroyed by fire may be rebuilt on the old foundations. Existing dwellings may be extended or enlarged, provided yards existing at the time the bylaw is enacted are not reduced and the area of the dwelling does not exceed 35 per cent of the lot area.

New construction, on vacant lots or new lots created by land splits, would be required to have a 40 foot frontage — and be 4,000 square feet in area.

Ald. E. A. Orr, in moving that the recommended bylaw be approved by the board, noted that "if we got this much of the ward locked after now we might consider residential zoning later".

"We are trying to get the majority of the land in Foster ward removed from industrial to residential," remarked Mayor Scott. "We have had to settle for a little less than the 100 per cent coverage we want in order to get protection for most of the residents of the ward."

Fire Service Still Problem At Tyendinaga

By HARRY HULBALL
Staff Reporter

Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve now is entering its second month without any large-scale formal fire protection for its estimated 600 householders.

Official sources still are casting about for a solution to the dilemma — which, as yet, has been without serious sequel.

Wednesday, a house burned down on the reserve's Slash Road. However, it was empty, reports Chief Earl Hill, and no alarm was turned in.

It was the only blaze of consequence since March 4, when the neighboring town of Deseronto served notice it was forced by economics to end a years-old voluntary agreement to answer reserve fire alarms.

At present, the Mohawks are awaiting possible solutions on two government levels.

The Department of Indian affairs now is contemplating purchase of a suitable truck for the reserve.

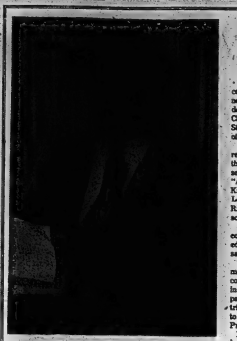
The situation is not new to the Quinte district. But, for the reserve it poses a more complicated solution. Tyendinaga, Thurlow and Sidneiblabury townships have formed — or reinforced — volunteer fire departments in the past year due to proposed increased fee schedules for Belleville-based fire protection.

Tyendinaga township, which abuts the reserve's northern limits, now is pondering a similar problem. Deseronto, which protected the township's eastern concessions, is withdrawing its service in August — for the same reasons that earlier involved the Mohawk reserve.

Deseronto's main piece of fire equipment is a truck now about 15 years old.

If the vehicle is called out of town, the only equipment left for Deseronto's protection is a vehicle dating from about 1927. Because of its age, maintenance is now a problem.



Indian Affairs are seeking a fire truck for the reserve, and the result could be a volunteer brigade, says Chief Hill. In such an event, a training program would be submitted.

If the unit became a reality — a tank — truck — perhaps a second — herd oil or gasoline carrier — might be needed as a mobile water reserve.

Meantime, formal fire protection on the historic Mohawk holdings is being furnished by fire extinguishers.

These were purchased by the reserve council and spotted strategically around the area while a solution is being sought.

With such equipment in the event of fire "we would fight it the best way we could," says Chief Hill.

Charles Duesberry

The Bay: He Knows What's to Know

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Former Quinte area commercial fisherman and now one of the city's most dedicated conservationists, Charles Duesberry, 133 Albert Street is wearing a semblance of a smile these days.

After years of research and repeated warnings against the dangers of pollution, he is seeing his 90-page manuscript "Authentic Facts You Should Know About the Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario and the Trent River" made available in school libraries of the district.

"The most effective way of combatting pollution is through education," Mr. Duesberry says, "It is our only hope."

The manuscript, which deals mainly with the decline of the commercial fishing industry in this part of Ontario and particularly in the Quinte district, is being made available to schools in Hastings and Prince Edward.

In his manuscript Mr. Duesberry blames pollution for the disappearance of fish and Eric Ressorove, director of education for the Hastings County School Board, said Mr. Duesberry's articles on pollution were "good first level resource material" for school students.

Mimeographed copies of the manuscript will be placed in all county secondary schools and in senior elementary schools.

"We like to get as many original source documents as possible," he said, adding that some students might find it worthwhile to personally interview Mr. Duesberry regarding his personal experiences and observations.

R. A. L. Thomas, science and curriculum consultant, Ontario department of education in a letter to Mr. Duesberry said the manuscript should have relevance to students in the field of local history and conservation.

"Your documentation of the increasing effects of water pollution is particularly vivid and timely," Mr. Thomas wrote.

Mr. Thomas said he was making the manuscript available to W. F. Coste, regional director of education at Kingston, and to education directors in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

The manuscript is also being used at Loyalist College for conservation studies.

And at least one local high school student has already found Mr. Duesberry to be a valuable source for personal interviews on pollution.

John Marino, a Belleville "Mayor of the Week" this year has interviewed Mr. Duesberry on several occasions for a paper he is preparing on pollution.

Mr. Duesberry first noticed the decline in the numbers of fish in the late 1930s.

A few years later he saw the handwriting on the wall and gave up commercial fishing.

"Catches (of fish) fell off because the fish weren't reproducing," he said.

Algae caused by pollution clogged the fish nets and robbed the lake of oxygen which in turn killed the micro organisms on which young fish fry depended for life.

Mr. Duesberry feels that it was pollution not lamprey eels, which spelled the decline of the commercial fishing industry.

Even if the eels were eliminated the fish could not return until pollution was also controlled.

Mr. Duesberry agrees that pollution of rivers and lakes has risen sharply, keeping all the way from phosphates and fertilizer pesticides, plastic and chemical wastes from industrial plants.

Action to combat pollution should have been taken years ago, according to the local anti - pollution who feels that even now may be too late.

"Only time and nature can remedy the problem — after we control pollution."

He feels that to control pollution progress has to be interfered with.

If it isn't interfered with "progress will destroy us," he says.

Syrup, Syrup, Syrup

TWEED — Visitors are being attracted in droves to see the maple syrup making, demonstrations sponsored by the Moira River Conservation Authority on the farm of William Collins, Moira-Stirling road, a short distance west of Highway No. 37.

The demonstrations include sap collecting, boiling down and the finishing touch of the syrup. Added attractions are the wagon rides to the bush and pancake and ham dinners served by the members of Crescent Rebekah Lodge (Chanceryford) on Saturday and Sunday, April 4 and 5.

Trent Level Normal For Season

TRENTON — Water levels on the Trent Canal system between here and Hastings are normal for this time of year Horace Chant the department of transport's superintendent for the area reported today.

Levels around the reaches north of here appear down because the canal authority is keeping them at a minimum purposely in the event the spring freshets build up to more than two feet, he disclosed.

Whether there is flooding will depend on the amount of the run-off in the next few weeks. Heavy rains in the north could change the outlook because snowfall in the bush in Haliburton and Hastings counties was above average this year.

Snowfall At Tweed 7 Inches

TWEED (Special) — Old Man Winter is hanging on with a vengeance in the Tweed area and last night got in another final kick to delay the spring.

Wednesday night and Thursday three inches of snow fell in the area and last night another four inches of the white stuff and more than a third of an inch of rain was received.

Normal snowfall for all April is about 2.4 inches.

Total precipitation in terms of rain was 1.65 inch.

Mutual Life Marks Its Centennial

As part of the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the Mutual Life of Canada, a centennial dinner was held in Belleville on Thursday, in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte. About 100 agents, branch office employees, pensioners and their wives, associated with the company's Kingston, Peterborough and Belleville branch offices were in attendance.

The dinner is one of 30 being held across Canada during March and April to mark the 100th anniversary of the issue of Mutual Life's first policies on March 1, 1876.

The principal speaker was J. H. Pansbeker, executive vice-president.

In addition to being a time for nostalgia, the company's centennial, said Mr. Pansbaker, is a time "for setting new objectives, new directions and new standards. The challenges we face today can hardly be greater than the challenges already faced and surmounted by the people who built The Mutual Life of Canada during its first century."

During the dinner recognition was given to Don Roughton, former Kingston branch manager, who has been connected with the company since June 1923, C. L. Pacific-Guire, former Belleville branch manager, who came with the Company in December 1927, and C. H. Burr of Wellington, whose employment dates from September 1928.

Credit Merger Proposed

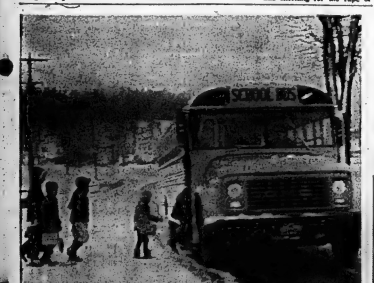
Glenn Raycroft, assistant general manager of the Ontario Credit Union League, told 30 representatives of area credit unions Wednesday night that the league must merge with the Ontario Co-operative Society in the best interests of credit unions across the province.

Addressing the Quinte Chapter of the credit union's quarterly dinner meeting at Belleville, Mr. Raycroft stressed there was the duplication of many of the services provided by the two organizations.

In addition, he said there were actual instances of the two groups working against each other although trying to achieve the same ends.

He cited two major obstacles which must be surmounted before a merger could be realized. These were the failure of the Ontario government to respond to requests for changes in the credit union act, and differences in the charters of the two organizations.

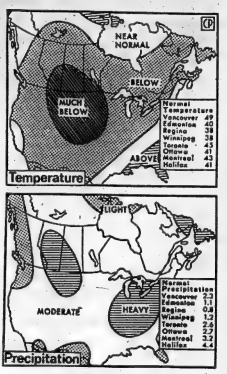
Switching to the national scene, Mr. Raycroft suggested that members of the Quebec credit unions have refused to join the national association because they feel they may lose individual freedom.



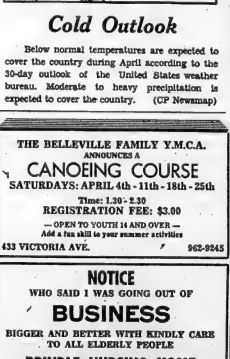
Sentence: Six Years

Carl Timothy Scott, 23, of R.R. 1 Trenton, was sentenced to six years in penitentiary this morning for the rape of a 15 - year - old Middleton Park girl last Aug. 18.

"We can't allow our cities to become jungles, unsafe for women after dark," remarked Mr. Justice W. D. Parker of the Supreme Court of Ontario in passing sentence at the spring assizes, one week after Scott's conviction on the charge.



"I must think of the public first, before thinking of you," he told the prisoner. "The community is entitled to be protected from you and others of similar intent."



Scott was convicted after the jury heard evidence that the girl was abducted while waiting on a public street in Middleton Park.

Bus Schedules Not Disrupted

The wet snow turned all roads to and from the city into soggy routes and some hydro and telephone services were disrupted. But school bus drivers managed to reach their destinations on time. Children on their way to classes trudged through the mess to catch their rides.

Cold Outlook

Below normal temperatures are expected to cover the country during April according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau. Moderate to heavy precipitation is expected to cover the country. (CP Newsmap)

High-Rise Fire Risk

Belleville, for all its current economic progress, is not yet a "high-rise" city, but it is worth noting the updating of fire regulations for buildings of this type.

The associate committee on the National Building Code of Canada points out that a delay in issuing the fifth edition of the code has been due to consideration of appropriate regulations in connection with the possibility of fires in multi-storey buildings.

New requirements stipulate that there must be a communication system serving every floor from a central control point on the street floor, to be controlled by the building superintendent or fire department so occupants of any floor can be advised of an emergency.

A new sub-section of the code contains the following note: "Experience with high buildings has shown that the time required for complete evacuation can exceed that which is considered necessary for the safe egress of all occupants. Studies of the 'chimney effect' and observations of smoke movement in actual fires have shown that present measures for containing a fire on any one storey will not normally prevent the movement of smoke through vertical shafts to the upper floors of a high building. This situation may make the operation of elevators unsafe in a fire emergency."

The committee notes that various design techniques to modify air flow patterns in order to reduce smoke movement are being investigated. These include injection of air into major shafts and the venting of others, the use of ventilated or pressurized lobbies to elevators and stairshafts, and total building pressurization with venting of the fire floor.

The investigations are being carried out by the National Research Council in Ottawa. These are two main problems: computer-assisted studies have indicated that normal air flows in a high building in winter could, following the outbreak of, fire, result in early fouling of stair and elevator shafts with smoke and later, widespread contamination. In the second place, a series of false alarms in a tall building in eastern Canada made it apparent that even in the absence of smoke, the emergency evacuation of a high building "poses very serious problems."

"In these particular cases, the elevators were not used and the whole population of the building attempted to use two stairwells. The resulting overcrowding was so excessive that movement almost completely stopped."

Obviously, these are matters of urgency for the public at a time when high-rise buildings are on the increase. Building codes of necessity must be very strict to ensure the safety of residents and workers, and the work of the National Research Council and building code people in this regard is of prime interest.

Campbellford Strike

Better wages, fringe benefits and working conditions generally are being sought by strikers at the Campbellford Cloth Company.

It is a shutdown with a difference. According to reports, both management and union — the Textile Workers' Union of America, Local 743 — regret the strike. So far it has been orderly and has attracted considerable sympathy for the strikers.

There have been donations of coffee, sandwiches, a refrigerator, a stove, clothing etc. to union headquarters by businessmen and citizens. Mayor Morley Tanner was one of several citizens who made cash donations to the union to be used in any way it wished.

Mayor Tanner expressed sympathy for the jobless workers, particularly in view of the rising cost of living and noted that "rents have increased more rapidly than rates at the mill."

As for employee wages, interviews with four of the strikers indicated that their take-home pay ranged between $48 and $60 a week.

Mayor Tanner expressed the sentiments of most when he said he hoped that the Cloth Company would "think of these very important items" and "negotiate a deal that is satisfactory to the workers."

Afrikaners and English Close Ranks

A Pre-election Victory for Apartheid in S. Africa

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The coming general election in South Africa may signal a final armistice in the lingering hostility between Afrikaner and English-speaking South Africans that has lasted since the Anglo-Boer War of 1899-1902.

But as the two white groups draw closer together, the result could be a weakening of what little opposition now exists to the policy of apartheid for the country's majority black population.

Premier John Vorster has called the April 22 election a year early to crush an extreme-right breakaway group within the ruling Nationalist party known as the "verkramptes" —an Afrikaner word meaning "closed minds."

Since the verkrampites are fanatically anti-British and want to establish Afrikaans as the official language instead of the present bilingual status, Vorster is for the first time joining the campaign on a "national unity" theme aimed directly at wooing the English-speaking vote.

The signs are that the Nationalists will profit handsomely. Already one former opposition United party member from the predominantly-English province of Natal has crossed the floor of Parliament to join the Nationalists.

Traditionally, in South Africa's all-white party system the Nationalists are 90 per cent Afrikaner while the United party with its somewhat watered-down approach to racial separation is divided 50-50 between Boer and Briton. As South Africa has become more isolated in a hostile world, however, the lines have blurred and in the 1966 election Vorster's massive majority owed an estimated one-third of its votes to the English-speaking community.

The Afrikaner-English ratio is about 60 to 40 in the white population of 4,000,000, which is outnumbered four to one by blacks.

Led by Dr. Albert Hertzog, son of a famous Boer War general, the verkrampites, who call themselves the Reconstituted National party, are fighting for 30 of the 180 parliamentary seats.

As well as their anti-British pitch—which includes opposing the introduction of television, a likely election issue —the rebels claim Vorster has become too "liberal" in permitting diplomatic exchanges with black African and other racial rapprochements.

The revolt within the hitherto monolithic Nationalists broke surface a year ago when Vorster sacked Hertzog from his cabinet post as minister of posts and telecommunications.

Three other Nationalist MPs publicly declared their allegiance to Hertzog and many private fortune is largely financing his splinter party. The extent of their popular support is not known, but observers do not expect them to pick up more than a handful of seats in the election.

If their emergence drives the English into Vorster's arms, however, it would have a demoralizing effect on the United party, perhaps weakening it fatally. The anti-apartheid Progressive party, which only has one MP, is so ineffectual politically that parliamentary opposition to the Nationalists may virtually wither away.

Goderich Seeks 401 Link To Counteract Decline

Elchester - Waterloo Record

Up at the end of Highway 8, 72 miles from Kitchener, the civic leaders of Goderich have come to a history-making decision. They are turning their backs to Lake Huron and looking inland for their future.

Goderich town council, by unanimous vote, has resolved to ask for a four-lane highway to connect to Highway 401. Councillor Paul Carroll apparently spoke for all when he said that the economic flow of Perth and Huron counties is stagnating because of the inadequacy of narrow old No. 8 as a connection to 401.

Goderich would not exist if it had not been chosen by the Canada Company as the logical place to be the business centre for the 1,000,000-acre Huron Tract.

The site was chosen, nearly 150 years ago, because it was obvious then that no place could prosper unless it was a port. Waterways were the only routes for major commerce.

Goderich has clung to faith in its destiny as a lake port. No one could count the delegations and resolutions that have gone to Ottawa pleading for harbor improvements at Goderich.

With the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway, the dream finally began to fade. A route for ocean-going ships through the upper Great Lakes did not help Goderich. It hurt. The big grain carriers could go on through to Montreal instead of trans-shipping to rail at a Lake Huron port.

The growth of communities along the 401 corridor has been the Ontario phenomenon of the 1960s. Preston for example, has grown from 8,000 to 22,000 while Goderich has been growing from 5,000 to 8,000.

Premier Roberts' plan for the future, unfolded in his recent Jarvis speech, may have been the clincher in turning Goderich thinking inland, and away from the shipping routes.

Mr. Roberts sketched the outline for development of industry through the 1970s along 401 line, from Windsor through London and Kitchener to Toronto. If that is to be the main stream of growth, Goderich wants to join.

The newly-launched campaign has implications for the string of towns along the route: Clinton, Seaforth, Mitchell, Stratford, New Hamburg. It is human for all of them to want to grow: they may have to learn the hard way, as the Kitchener-Waterloo area is learning, that bursts of growth bring new and different problems.

A 13-year-old Looks At That Generation Gap

Letter to the Hamilton Spectator

I am 13 years old. I'm writing a reply to an article which concerns Spotlight on Youth: "We've had it so easy", says a girl of 16.

I fail to understand why the advancement of mankind in entertainment and the ability of having your prescriptions delivered to your door, contributes to the generation gap.

She says, "Our parents were brought up in a kind of dark society when there were so many questions, and now the majority of those questions are solved."

If the questions are solved then there is no problem. It's the generation before us which should have had the big problem with the generation gap. But it didn't have the problem. The problem is with the older generation and the younger generation of today.

In my opinion the generation gap has nothing to do with the advancement of knowledge. Instead, it is the lack of understanding and communication between the two generations.

I agree with Debra, when she says that many of the teens today are taking drugs out of curiosity. But there is also a great number of teens taking drugs to escape reality.

Many teens are troubled with school, so-called friends, a rich parents. Again the generation gap. When life gets too tough teens have to escape, so they turn to drugs.

Again I have to agree with Debra when she says that the teens of today regard sex as something which has little importance. To the majority of youth today when you mention love they automatically think of sex. They do not think of love as an emotion which two people share.

I too am a Roman Catholic just like Debra. She says, "As far as I'm concerned the church has been a complete farce". I always thought that the church was the congregation and God. Does that mean that the people who go to church are fake? And that God is fake?

Debra asks, "How can the Roman Catholic church be the one true church?" The answer is simple. Roman Catholic believe their religion is the true one, just like Anglicans, Baptists and Jews believe their religion is the true one.

Everybody has the right to their own beliefs. But many people cannot practise them.

Mitchell Sharp in Paris

Relations with Quebec Key to Accord with France

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian diplomatic observers suggest the key to restoration of enduring relations between Canada and France may lie more in Quebec than in Paris.

They see some of the steps taken by French authorities in welcome External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp to the French capital as an attempt to soften a previous hard attitude favoring Quebec independence.

But they also conclude the French government may have some distance to go before the rupture caused by Gen. de Gaulle's "Vive le Quebec libre" remark in 1967 are completely healed.

As trained observers, diplomats are sensitive to subtle differences in mood and presentation. They note that when Quebec leaders, or their representatives, go to Paris, it is usually in response to an official French government invitation.

Quebec Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand received such an invitation. He was prevented by illness from accepting but sent Education Minister Jean-Paul Cardinal in his place.

Sharp is being welcomed by sharp is being welcomed by French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann but the external affairs minister's trip to Paris is not at the official invitation of the French administration.

Diplomats draw a distinction between this form of reception and the one that will follow in Bonn where Sharp has been invited by the West German government.

Sharp's trip to the French capital is to open a Canadian cultural centre, and the course of his visit will lunch with Schumann; and entertain at least two French cultural ministers at a Canadian embassy dinner.

There will be plenty of opportunity during these events to discuss ways of improving Franco-Canadian relations. One intriguing possibility is that the French authories might become receptive to the idea of a future meeting between Prime Minister Trudeau and President Georges Pompidou.

But those close to the issue dismiss such speculation as premature, and they believe Pompidou will agree to such a meeting. In fact they do not see the French government backing away from continuing strong support of Quebec in its arguments with Ottawa.

They conclude that only when the rift between the federal government and the province is ended will the situation develop where confidence and goodwill between Ottawa and Paris can be completely restored.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Sino-Soviet border talks in Peking are dragging into their sixth month with few signs of progress and doubts are growing in diplomatic circles here whether they can continue in their present form.

Informed sources close to both sides describe the talks as virtually deadlocked since they began Oct. 20. The main reason for their continuation seems to be a mutual desire by both feuding Communist giants to restrain passions and avoid a possible outbreak of large-scale hostilities.

How much longer the Kremlin's top trouble-shooting negotiator, Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov, will remain in Peking is a question being asked frequently in East European and Western embassies.

Kuznetsov has now been in Peking at the head of an eight-man negotiating team since October, save month after the dramatic three-day meeting between Premiers Chou En-lai and Alexei Kosygin. That brief summit led to the current attempt to scale down the tension between the two countries.

For some time, both Chinese and Soviet sources have conceded that little progress is being made at the talks, which involve only one or two formal sessions a week.

The Chinese are insisting that the two countries should agree on mutual troop withdrawals at trouble spots along the 4,000-mile common border before serious negotiations begin on demarcating the disputed boundary itself.

But the Russians have declared they need some evidence of Chinese good faith and willingness to settle the boundary and other disputes before withdrawing from potential flashpoints—particularly since many areas are much more heavily populated on the Chinese side than on the Soviet side.

But there remains a second major stumbling block: China insists the Kremlin admit the present borders were forced on weak Chinese emperors by Russian czars in the last century.

After such a Soviet admission, the Chinese say they would not insist on claiming huge slabs of territory involved but would be prepared to ratify the existing boundary more or less in its present form.

The Kremlin, however, adamantly refuses to make such an admission, since it suspects that the Chinese might use it for their own purposes at a later stage when they have become militarily stronger.

Some observers here believe the main purpose of the talks is to find how to achieve a degree of coexistence after the long ideological feud of the 1960s.

But both sides deny this.

BC Judge Gives Ruling

Breath Tests Illegal

The judge said that by dropping a section of the law, the cabinet went beyond its powers because Parliament, which approved the legislation, had not given the cabinet authority to change it.

"Parliament . . . did not intend to delegate to the privy council any power beyond the power to fix the time when the legislation should become effective," his written judgment said.

His ruling came as he allowed an appeal by David Story of Vancouver, charged with impaired driving here Jan. 13 and convicted March 26. He had not been sentenced. The conviction is quashed.

Story appealed a ruling by provincial Judge Maurice Mulligan who had rejected defence lawyer Richard F. Anderson's contention that the law had been improperly proclaimed.

Mr. Justice Munroe ruled that the legislation had indeed been improperly proclaimed because the cabinet, without power to do so, scratched a "safeguard" section that Parliament had approved.

The section gave an accused driver the right to a sample of his breath, to be provided by police, the idea being that he could then have it independently tested if he so desired.

Mr. McMorran said the cabinet mistakenly ditched this clause because "science has never been able to design a container that will retain an air sample."

Sooner or later, the breath contained in it would disappear or at least become mixed with air from the outside.

Prior to Thursday's precedent-setting judgment, a driver with a blood-alcohol reading of 30 per cent or more was automatically ruled impaired, provided the court agreed the test was properly given.

Now, said Mr. McMorran, the Crown is back where it was before Dec. 1. Police would have to go back to giving such evidence about a driver as the smell of alcohol on his breath, slurred speech, unsteady gait, and so on.

Rap Brown Vanishes--Is He Victim of Foes or in Hiding?

The militant black power leader has been missing 36 days. He was last seen March 5 by his wife when he left here for a Bel Air, Md., court appearance, says his lawyer, William Kunstler.

"It's incomprehensible why we haven't heard from him," Kunstler says. Brown's wife could not be reached. The FBI says it does not know Brown's whereabouts.

Brown was to stand trial on charges of arson and incitement to riot resulting from a 1967 disturbance in Cambridge, Md. The trial has been reset for April 20 in Elliott City.

William R. Yates Jr., Dorchester County state's attorney, prosecutor in the case, said, "I have nothing to base any conjecture on, but I think he'll appear for trial."

Yates said the additional seven-year penalty for not showing might be some incentive for Brown to appear.

On March 9 a car blew up just south of Bel Air on the road to Baltimore. In the wreckage were the bodies of two friends of Brown—Ralph E. Fatherstone and William H. Payne.

"There are three possibilities," Kunstler said recently.

"One, that he was taken out of the blown-up car before it was blown up and has been kept somewhere — kidnapped — or murdered. That's the theory that worries Mrs. Brown the most.

"Two, the theory of the authorities: that the two men blew themselves up while carrying a device with some nefarious purpose—perhaps to bomb the nearby state troopers' barracks —and that Rap was not involved.

"Or three, that he's underground, in or out of the U.S." Kunstler said he was inclined to doubt the third theory. Brown "could have split although it's not likely in my mind," he said.

Brown, 26, is appealing a five-year prison sentence for violating the federal firearms act. He was convicted in 1968 in New Orleans. The terms of his bail limited his travel to New York, except for trial appearances.

Irish Fashions

Peasant or Gypsy Look Invades Fashion Field

DUBLIN (CP) — The luck of the Irish has moved into the fashion field this year with the success of the peasant or gypsy look.

Nothing could be more tailored to the talents of Dublin designers, who are making great play with the peasant theme in the seventh Irish Fashion Fair, opening here Saturday, April 11, for buyers from Europe and North America.

It's a somewhat ironic development in the story of Irish fashion, which has performed a meteoric rise from cottage industry to multi-million-dollar world trade in little more than 10 years.

Designers who once strove to shed the Irish-whimsy look in favor of an international sophistication now find the Paris and London fashion mood in tune with fringed shawls, swirling gypsy skirts in hand-woven tweed and rich country dyes.

Fashion writers who gathered in Dublin for a preview of the 1970 fair were predicting that this would bring about the most successful season yet for Irish designs in the world market.

Plenty of the traditional touch was in evidence at the slickly presented press show in Dublin's rebuilt Abbey Theatre. Gypsy styles featuring tweed maxiskirts with shawls and boleros tops in vivid purple, amber and flame-red shades vied with medieval-style evening dresses in fine crochet wool and silk, sometimes teamed with hooded cloaks of contrasting color.

Dublin's designers went heavily for the midi hemline, favoring a below-knee level for suit skirts—worn with belted jackets —and also for the top halves of trouser suits.

But Dublin girls, wearing noticeably brighter and better-made clothes than a few years ago, still seem wedded to the miniskirt. Some stores on smart Grafton Street are even selling see-through microskirts of woven leather—something that once would have scandalized Ireland's convent-educated colleens.

Much of the credit for the booming Irish fashion industry, now running at £16,000,000 ($41,600,000) a year, compared with £5,000,000 ($7,000,000) in 1960, goes to the republican government's thrusting export board.

As well as mounting this colorful annual promotion on behalf of 50 local designers and manufacturers, it also provides them with marketing expertise and sales springboards through its offices in Britain, Europe, Canada and the United States.

Staid Soviet Fashion Scene May Be Changed

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A mini-revolution may soon nudge the staid Soviet fashion scene in the 1970s.

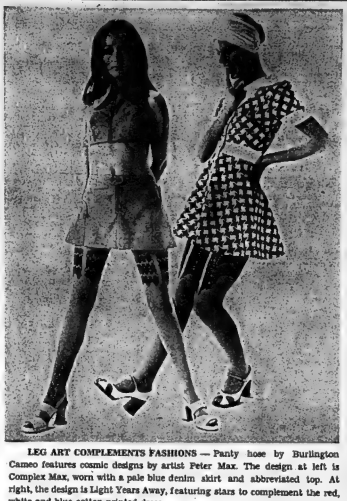
But there is a campaign to provide Russian teen-agers with their own fashion shops.

This innovation was recommended by fashion designer Alla Levashova in a recent article in the Soviet youth newspaper, Komsomolskaya Pravda.

Miss Levashova, who in the past has planned official boutiques for the drabness of women's clothing in Russia and called for more creative freedom for designers, had some harsh things to say about the fashion scene in her country.



She deplored titillating women's fashion models by modelling—on television and in magazines—items which were beyond the reach of ordinary shoppers. Such things as "high boots with laces, flowered trousers, sheepskin coats for winter —just try and get them," she wrote.

Young people don't want to wear home-made clothes, so there should be a colorful selection available at a price to suit the teen-agers' pocket, she said.

Young people want to be eye-catching in their clothes, she said, and to be the first to wear something new before. "This is the easiest way to attract attention and there is of course nothing immoral about that," she added.

Despite Miss Levashova's confidence, there are bound to be many older Russian women who will disagree with her.

Stories abound in Moscow of female Western residents, and foreign tourists who have gone out in modest miniskirts or slacks and received incensed lectures from outraged, maternal citizens, although the men tend to stare approvingly, as in any other world capital.

Kindergarten Teachers Make Valid Predictions

TORONTO (CP) — A Montreal psychologist says kindergarten teachers make better predictions about children's school progress than the tests of professional research team.

Dr. Sam Rabinovitch, director of Montreal Children's Hospital's learning centre, said Wednesday there is too much talk about "diagnosis of children's problems."

Speaking at a news conference of the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, he said he has learned more about the learning future of children "from listening to parents, teachers and children than from professional tests and from my colleagues."

He said a research project, which followed the progress of a group of children from kindergarten to Grade 2, came to the conclusion that the most "valid predictions about their progress in school was made by the kindergarten teachers."

"The research . . . showed this fact: that at less cost the teachers made more correct diagnoses than the research team with its battery of tests."

The Human Touch Expresses Concern

By DORIS CLARK

"The British are emotional people afraid of showing emotion. Instead of relieving their feelings they keep them inside, bolstering up tension which eventually comes out in the form of aggression." So says a Canadian writer about British reserve. He considers that people who are tense, frustrated or unloved need human contact to help release their emotions. They need to be touched. But he is no faith healer or sex maniac.

"It is simply a way of showing sympathy and concern. Touching should not be indiscriminate or promiscuous, but selective. If you feel somebody needs help, touch him."

And he adds, "If everyone could massage someone else every day, there would be less violence in the world."

Dear Doris: Our Home and School always provides a very nice graduation banquet for the village high school, featuring a speaker and toasts, then the presentation of awards.

In the past it has always been the custom for the girls to wear long gowns. However, four graduating girls have decided that they will wear pant dresses to the ceremony, and for the dance in the evening they will whip off these pants and wear the mini dresses.

I would like to know whether or not such attire would be considered in good taste? If it is, my daughter, the graduating graduate, will go along with the girls in spite of the fact that she does not agree.

Their vice-principal has told them she does not consider pant dresses suitable, but they are quite determined to go ahead. They all say they have their parents' approval. They say that pant dresses are worn at weddings — and everywhere. — What Is Suitable?

Dear Suitable: What, indeed? At the risk of being dubbed square, I'm holding out for dresses with skirts on them. On a solemn, traditional occasion, feminine clothing is a good tradition to observe.

Don't let's eliminate graduation from the diminishing list of gracious opportunities for showing our girls at their feminine best. I think your daughter should "do her own thing" in this.

No-knead White Bread Recipe

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Is it possible to make good bread without kneading? I now have a heart condition but would like making bread again. Thank you. — Hattie S.

ANSWER: Yes it is Hattie. There are many readers who for other reasons do not make bread because it has to be kneaded so I am pleased to give you this

NO - KNEAD WHITE BREAD
(Repeated from August 1961 — courtesy Janis P.)

One page, grandier yeast, dissolved in 1¼ cups warm tap water, 2 tbsps. white sugar plus 1 tsp, 2 tsps. salt, 2 tbsps. shortening or butter or margarine or oil, about 3 cups all-purpose flour. I prefer the oil as 1 tbsps. of cooking oil is sufficient, also for its low cholesterol content. (If shortening is used, it can be softened in hot water using ½ cup of the liquid, the remaining amount (¾ cup) to be used with the yeast and the 1 tsp. sugar. Let mixture of shortening and water cool to lukewarm). Add dissolved yeast (after standing 10 mins.) to oil (or shortening and water) and salt and sugar. Add 1¼ cups of flour and stir until nearly smooth. Rest of flour is added gradually as final dough can be handled and not be sticky. Using some of flour, sprinkle generously over pastry cloth or clean dish towel. Scrape bread dough from bowl and work flour in until it can be picked up in the hands gently and placed into a bowl that's shaping into a ball. Cover with clean cloth and let rise in just warm place until double in bulk. Using the floured cloth, shape into one large loaf or use two pans for rolls. Let rise again and bake in 350-deg. Fahr. oven approximately 25 min. Rub crusts of butter over hot baked bread and remove from pan immediately. (Bread will sweat if not removed.) I often double the recipe but use just the one package of yeast for double amount. The bread is quick rising and can be easily ready for lunch. Half the fun of baking is id send some of the finished product to someone who has not found the time or energy to bake for herself.

FOR REAL

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — "Dinkum" in Aussie means genuine, the real thing, so officers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals cause a running when a clothing store advertised the arrival of a "dinkum kangaroo." What they found, amply cared for and well fed, was an Australian girl named Janice — with measurements 36-25-36, as advertised.

Ann Landers

Bachelor Worries Over Wearing Toupee

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Now that men's hairpieces are becoming more popular, I'm sure you'll be getting this problem from a good many male readers.

I'm a bachelor with a fairly active social life. I wear a toupee. Problem One: When a woman starts to run her fingers through my hair, what do I say?

Second Problem: Most women prefer to skip the preliminaries and go straight to bed. What should I do? My toupee is well fastened to my head but I would not risk sleeping in it. I wasn't interested in the night while sleeping alone and awakened to find my hairpiece under my pillow.

How does a man tell a woman that the hair she has been admiring is not his own? — URBANA.

DEAR URB: Do you really need a hairpiece? You sound as if you need a bodyguard.

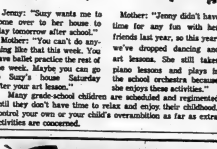
Have you heard of the new type toupee that stays on during hurricanes? The hair is embedded in a plastic shield and held to the head by adhesive pads rather than glue.

I am not selling hairpieces this season so please don't ask me the brand name or where it can be obtained. And this goes for all readers who are interested.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A midnight phone call informed me that my sister lay near death in a hospital. Her husband had taken her there after she began to hemorrhage following a botched abortion by a barber. I write this letter after a second call five days later saying, "She will make it."

My sister was an unwed mother. She is 31 and has three children. Her husband approved of the abortion. Their three youngsters are under six years of age. Illness and unemployment will begin in a bad financial bind. They just couldn't see having a fourth child at this time. The barber had performed hundreds of successful abortions, according to their information, but this time something went wrong.



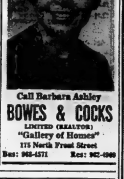
How many times must this tragic story be repeated before we can get some humane laws passed in this country? Why do American women have to go to Japan and Sweden and Mexico and London? Why must this be a matter for the government? What could be more personal than the decision to have a child or not to have one?

I hope you will take a stand on this issue immediately. — SISTER'S CHAMPION.

DEAR CHAMPION: I have taken a stand. Twice. I've gone on record in favor of the sharp revision of existing abortion laws. The laws in most states are highly unrealistic and cruelly discriminatory against the poor. Moreover, the bad laws force physicians to make false statements resulting in dangers which might result from the birth of a child. Public sentiment is slowly but surely turning in this direction and I say it's about time. Congratulations to Hawaii. They've recently passed the best abortion legislation of all. How lovely that the last should be first!

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Jenny: "Suzy wants me to come over to her house to play tomorrow after school."

Mother: "You can't do anything like that this week. You have ballet practice the rest of the week. Maybe you can go to Suzy's house Saturday after your art lesson."

Many grade-school children are scheduled and regimented until they don't have time to relax and enjoy their childhood. Control your own and your child's overambition as far as extra activities are concerned.

Mother: "Jenny didn't have time for any fun with her friends last year, so this year, we've dropped dancing and art lessons. She still takes piano lessons and plays in the school orchestra because she enjoys these activities."

Phosphates: Issue Is Causing Little Change in Purchasing

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A survey of five grocery store chain outlets in Trenton has revealed little change in consumer demand for soaps, detergents or washing compounds since it became public knowledge that high phosphate content products were contributors to water pollution.

All five stores contacted had posted or made available in the form of leaflets the phosphate analysis of soaps, detergents and washing compounds as determined by Pollution Probe, the University of Toronto's research group.

There is no count available to determine how many consumers have read the posted lists in the Dundas street, A and P store or the IGA on Front Street.

In the case of the leaflets, there is a marked contrast between consumer reaction at the two Loblaws stores on Dundas Street East and Dundas Street West.

Approximately 700 leaflets were picked up by consumers at the bottled items section of display at the Dundas Street East store, but very few leaflets were picked up at the downtown store.

The Dundas Street East store reports a slight increase in the sale of low phosphate content products, but great shift in volume, while at other Loblaws store sinces there has been no marked change in sales.

The A and P reports that consumer demand is very stable with no change in the sales pattern. A spokesman for the IGA store said: "The high phosphate content products are selling every bit as good as before."

Biggest and only definite sign, of a shift in consumer demand so far was noted by the Dominion Store on Dundas Street East. Sales of low phosphate content detergents have doubled there, with a corresponding decrease in sales of high phosphate content products.

Views of the spokesmen for the five stores varied.

One spokesman said he expected sales of low phosphate content products to increase, but another thought there would be no great change in the buying pattern unless a government ban was announced, as the case of cyclamates.

A third spokesman said it would take more time to assess consumer reaction to the phosphate level in the products. A fourth spokesman conceived, suggesting that perhaps many consumers have not yet used up their present supplies.

It was suggested by one source that residents of metropolitan areas, plagued with air pollution, would be more aware of the pollution problem and might express their reaction by the purchase of low phosphate content products, more so than residents of less affected areas such as Trenton.

In a similar vein it was suggested that pollution of lakes and waters in the summer months might cause a change in consumer demand.

However the spokesman agreed that their companies are letting the consumer choose between low and high phosphate content products. Removal of any product from their stores is a head office decision, they said.

Phosphate Facts and Data

Mrs. Robert Pudden takes advantage of a leaflet in the Trenton Loblaws store which enables the shopper to read the phosphate level of consumer products.

The Aircushions Are Coming!

Recreation: New Dimensions Are Coming to Quinte District

BRIGHTON — A new product in the recreational travel field will go on the retail market in the Quinte area next week.

It's an aircushion vehicle — aptly named Spectra 1 — manufactured by MHV Industries of Ottawa which acquired the North American patent rights from the government - owned hovercraft company in Britain.

Emile Spehar, manager of Intervilla Distributors, the company marketing the hovercraft in Ontario, said that the name Spectra was derived from the word spectrum because of the broad spectrum of leisure time usage available in Ontario and the scope which the machine has.

"It's a new dimension in the leisure - time products field," Emile explained. "People have been outdoors for 50 years with boats and five years with snowmobiles, so the market has already been created."

He cited as an advantage of his product its ability to travel over varied terrain — land, water, snow and ice — at speeds up to 45-miles per hour; and its all-season usage capability.

Spehar, who was here Thursday to give a demonstration and to bring Rollie's Marine into the fold as the seventh dealer-in-Ontario, noted that 110 units had been sold so far and expressed the hope that the dealership network which he is now constructing in the province will grow to 24 members by the end of 1970.

Unlike the "Aquaterra" which is being constructed by Rotnar Engineering Ltd. of Trenton, Spectra 1 is a straddle-seated two man vehicle not unlike a snowmobile in design.

The 450 - pound production model is 19 feet long, six feet wide and four feet high with a competition - orange - colored moulded fibreglass, reinforced plastic body.

It is powered by two gasoline engines — one a 25-horsepower engine in the back for thrust and the other a 20 - horsepower engine in the front for lift.

Noting that the hovercraft originated in England and that the greatest number so far were large cargo and passenger - carrying models, Mr. Spehar expressed confidence that his product "will find its niche" in the leisure - time products field.

He explained that MVH and Intervilla, which have a total investment of $1,250,000, had adopted a long - term approach feeling that if the initial product was good there would be repeat sales plus others from demonstrations and exposure of Spectra 1.

In addition he estimated that the hovercraft was at the stage the snowmobile was seven or eight years ago and predicted that two full - season (meaning (summer and winter) would be required to bring about a boom.

He predicted that the "thrill factor, the newness and the retail price of $1,845 will enhance the marketability."

Rollie Brimacs, the proprietor of Rollie's Marine who saw the hovercraft for the first time Thursday and has acquired the dealership for the area between Cobourg and the Frontenac County line, said: "It's quite a machine— I'm all for them and I think it'll catch on after a little exposure."

A Top Laboratory Team In Major Transplant Effort

The pioneering program will be undertaken at the University of Alberta medical school over the next five years with more than $1,500,000 from the Medical Research Council of Canada.

It links up with another major kidney transplant effort — national tests financed by the Medical Research Council on antilymphocyte serum, the first attempt by any country at large-scale study of whether the serum helps lengthen the "life" of a grafted organ.

Dr. John B. Dossetor, 44, a leading kidney transplant authority from Montreal, and Dr. Erwin Diener, 38, a radiobiologist working in Australia will head the team.

Dr. G. Malcolm Brown, president of the Medical Research Council, signed the agreement to head the University of Alberta program at a news conference attended by Dr. W. G. MacKenzie, Alberta's dean of medicine.

Dr. MacKenzie said Dr. Diener's research at Melbourne has already showed promising results in inducing living organisms to tolerate foreign tissue.

He said Dr. Diener has been able to induce tolerance in test tubes and in animals, though not yet in humans, by exposing the recipient tissue accustomed to the donor's antigens, a protein substance that is a kind of fingerprint of each individual's living tissue.

The Edmonton group will begin work with the emphasis on developing tolerance in transplants rather than in suppressing the recipient's tissue's normal efforts to reject a donor tissue.

In Edmonton, a medical team working on the problem of the body's immunity to transplant tissue hopes to achieve a major breakthrough within five years.

Dr. John B. Dossetor, 44, head of the research team of top scientists ready to begin work at the University of Alberta, said Thursday he hopes for "clinical application of the induction of immunological tolerance" by 1975.

This would mean a person could be rendered to receive an organ transplant, such as a kidney or heart, from a specific donor without the rejection reaction, as is now the case.

New Features for Jumbo Coming

MONTREAL (CP) — Experience being gained from the operation of the new jumbo jets which went into service early this year will result in the introduction of new features by 1972.

The airline business was sent into the jumbo jet age with the inaugural flight last Jan. 21 of the first Boeing 747 superjet from New York to London.

Since then, besides flying the Atlantic, the huge jets which can carry 362 passengers comfortably have been criss-crossing the United States and the Pacific regularly.

Boeing Co. officials have been making studies of the in-flight performance of the 747 to determine potential improvements and are passing this information to airlines that have placed orders for the superjets.

Malcolm T. Stamper, a Boeing vice-president in charge of commercial airplane programs, said some new features will be introduced in the interior of the 747 by 1972 as a result of experience gathered in the last couple of months.

The features will be aimed at greater marketability of the aircraft and will include special requirements for different airlines to meet their own particular needs.

New features may include such conveniences as a lounge for economy-class passengers—only first-class lounges now exist—and lockers for suitcases where businessmen can store part of their luggage without having to check it through the baggage department.

Mr. Stamper and other Boeing officials were in Montreal to brief Air Canada on the performance of the new superjets so far and to pass along experience gained since the introduction of the 747.

Belleville's Community Concerts: Yet Another Season Is Over

By EUGENE LANG

The 1969-70 series of programs by the local Community Concert Association was concluded on Wednesday evening at BCI auditorium before a large crowd present to hear Jeffry and Ronald Marlowe, duo pianists in their initial performance in this city.

These identical twin brothers have made an enviable reputation for themselves during the past few years in a field of music that is at present not overcrowded — that of the art of two pianos. They have appeared widely on this continent, both in solo work and with orchestra, besides being guest stars on numerous television shows. Philadelphians by birth and residence they are proteges of the well known duo piano team of Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Nemenoff.

Throughout the entire recital they demonstrated a complete unanimity of style in co-ordinated controls that bespoke of one keyboard, if one was wont to close orb and open sarticle. It wasn't only precision of playing, but an unbelieving rapport that existed between the brothers that turned enthralled listeners into bewildered ones.

They opened with an appealing arrangement (their own) of a delightful aria from the Magnificat in D of J. S. Bach. The 'Exurientes' (an original also solo) was played in a tasteful transcription of lolling and hulling tranquility to which a singing charm was elicited from the two concert grands.

Handel was represented by a stately Passacaglia arranged by Pierre Luboshutz, one of the teachers of this young duo. A regal pomp was injected into the opening theme following which the many variations were skillfully wrought in a profound performance that mixed solemn sonority with technical fluency.

And sparkling of technical brilliancy the next number had it in profusion. This was the Suite No. 2 Op. 17 by stately every idiosyncratic as Sergei Rachmaninoff, a composer-pianist who knew intimacy of the keyboard and wrote to bring out its finest features in tone, texture, technique and timbre. This is one of two suites written for the two piano combination and could be considered the outstanding item of the program. The Marlowes turned in an excellent performance and became rugged vitality in the opening movement, filigree of figurations in the quick spirited waltz, lavish embellishment decorating the heady phrases of the slow section and twice 10 fingers scurrying wildly in frenzied and frenetic Tarentella Finale. Superb is the word we will choose for the Marlowes in the Rachmaninoff Suite.

An older contemporary of Rachmaninoff was Anton Arensky who also left, to the world of duo pianos four full length suites, pathetically seldom heard today. The Marlowes resurrected the well known Waltz from his Op. 15 Suite and traversed its lilting measures with delicate shadings immersed in florid ornamentation. In essence then: delightfully paced — tenderly traced.

The Sonata for Two Pianos by modern Frenchman Francis Poulenc was written in 1953 and is one of the major contributions to this literature in the past two decades. The Marlowes, according to the printed program notes, favor Poulenc and we favor the Marlowes, but we don't overly favor Poulenc, especially in this work. From a brutal opening the music hopelessly fills four movements in emotional stirrings from delicious impotence, regardless of pages of forte bashings, to abandonment of all melody (save two small seedlings that never grew). Again, with eyes closed, portions of the score would fill in decidely as background music to a Boris Karloff thriller. The Sonata musically speaking is very difficult to play, demands first rate technical reserve, and the executants are fit be lauded for playing it — but, in serious reality what does it all add up to? Too bad Poulenc hadn't thought of a discernible melody!

To conclude the concert the Marlowes introduced their own versions of five popular songs from the pens of Lennon and McCartney (The Beatles) as the old masters would perhaps have treated them, Hey Jude (Bach), Yesterday (Beethoven), Eleanor Rigby (Chopin) Here, There and Everywhere (Debussy) and Michelle (Tschaikowsky) were all cleverly contrived and pleasingly, projected in the idiom of the selected composer, although the so-called Mozartian Sonata style of Yesterday did get enmeshed in Bach's First Prelude instead — the boys got their accentuations slightly askew. These five selections assured hearty applause from the audience, bringing an evening of fine duo piano music durably and yet spectacularly played by the Marlowes to an end.

Two encores, The Brasileira from Scaramouche by Milhaud, and the novel piano rap on wood rhythms of Arthur Benjamin's Rumba Santa Domingo were handed out as applause appeasers. In retrospect — a salutary sequel to a sound series.

Following the recital the twin pianists and members of the executive of the Association were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Lenox, Bleecker Avenue.

Takes Six Games for Marlies to Oust Lowly Knights

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Toronto Marlboros gained a berth in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" final by defeating London Knights 4-2 before a crowd of 3,221 Thursday night.

Going into Thursday's game, Toronto led the series with seven points on two wins and three tie games. London had accumulated only three points for the tie games.

The Toronto-Montreal final is tentatively scheduled to begin Sunday night in Montreal. The Junior Canadiens, who ousted St. Catharines Black Hawks in semi-final play, are defending league and Memorial Cup champions.

The Marlies, unbeaten in 11 straight playoff games, scored two third period goals to break a 2-2 deadlock for the win.

Gord Brooks and Dennis Giannini were the London marksmen.

This year was the first that the London team had advanced past league quarter-final competition in its five years in the league.

Detroit Point Away From Playoff Berth

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Red Wings have one stumbling block remaining in their bid to make the Stanley Cup playoffs for the first time in four years.

The Wings dumped the last-place Toronto Maple Leafs 4-2 Thursday night to move into third place in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division, one point ahead of Montreal Canadiens, who were idle.

With two games remaining for all teams in the East, all the Wings now have to do is tie a game with New York Rangers in their home-and-home series this weekend.

New York must win both games to get past the Red Wings, who lead the Rangers by three points. A tie would give the Wings 94 points and a playoff berth over the Rangers because of their better win record, cause of their better win record.

While the Red Wings strengthened their playoff hopes in the East, Philadelphia Flyers suffered a setback in their bid for a playoff spot in the Western Division by losing 1-0 to first-place St. Louis Blues.

The loss left the Flyers still in third place with 58 points, two ahead of Oakland Seals and Minnesota North Stars, but they have one game remaining in the regular schedule compared with two for both the Seals and North Stars.

About six minutes later Gary Bergman sent a screened slicer past Toronto goalie Bruce Gamble from 45 feet out.

Norm Ullman put Toronto back in the game in the second period on a power-play goal but Howe and Mahovlich scored two quick goals to defeate the Leafs, winless in their last five games.

The Leafs held the Wings scoreless in the third period during which Toronto picked up its second goal as Bob Pulford tipped in a shot by Dave Keon.

Philadelphia's loss was a heart-breaker to the 16th consecutive sellout crowd of 14,606 in the Spectrum. The Flyers were bombing St. Louis goalie Ernie Wakely with shots from all points when Jim Roberts stole the puck and skated in alone for his 13th goal of the season, through the legs of Flyers' goalie Bernie Parent.

Wakely's shutout was his fourth of the season as he turned back 34 Philadelphia shots.

In a game tonight that could determine one of the two remaining spots in the Western Division, Los Angeles Kings meet the Seals at Oakland.

The playoff battle continues Saturday and Sunday—wind up of the regular season—with only Boston Bruin and Chicago Black Hawks assured of playoff berths in the East and St. Louis and Pittsburgh Penguins in the West.

Final positions in the East—except for last-place Toronto—depend on home-and-home series' this weekend. Boston and Chicago, tied for first, play Toronto and Montreal respectively twice this weekend.

Playoffs 'Crossed' In 70-71

Canadian Press Sports Editor

The 12 teams in the National Hockey League haven't finished with this season yet, but the year who plan ahead are already busy setting up for the 1971 Stanley Cup playoffs.

This year's playoff begins with the quarter-finals which open Wednesday; the semi-finals are set to go April 21 and the finals May 3.

It will be the last playoff in which the East and West divisions play separately right up to the finals when the best in the East meets its Western counterpart for the Cup.

Ron Andrews, NHL publicity director, says that next year—when the league will have expanded to 14 teams—East will take on West in a cross-over series beginning at the semi-final level.

"The cross-over will come in the semi-final next year," Andrews says, "but the form the cross-over will take has not yet been decided."

"Next year will be a full interlocking season with each team playing each other team six times—three at home and three away, making for a 78-game season," Andrews says.

Buffalo Sabres and Vancouver Canucks join the league next season, moving into the Eastern Division with Boston, Red Wings, New York Rangers, Boston Bruins, Toronto Maple Leafs ad Montreal Canadiens.

Chicago Black Hawks move west next season, linking up with St. Louis Blues, Oakland Seals, Minnesota North Stars, Pittsburgh Penguins, Philadelphia Flyers, and Los Angeles Kings.

Merchant Defence Only Needed One Goal

Downtown Merchants used outstanding defence and good goaltending by parlay Jim Woodcock's first - period goal into the Gas House League Championship last night.

The winners of the regular - season pennant took a 1-0 verdict from the Mustangs to win the best of seven series 4-1, with one game tied.

Woodcock scored his goal early in the game, as he circled the Mustang defence and beat netminder Paul Smith for an unassisted tally.

Bob Harrison, in the Merchant nets, notched his third shutout of the six - game series, giving him a stingy goals-against average of 1.66 for the finals. Some fine defensive work by rearguards Bob Dafoe, Wayne Woods and Frank Wiles kept the Mustangs at long range for most of the game.

At the other end of the ice, sensatic shooting by the Merchant forwards and some clutch goaltending by Smith combined to limit the winners to one goal.

Brian Smith played a strong two - way game for the new league champions and narrowly missed adding a second Merchant counter in a goal mouth scramble. Winger Fred Goodfellow was another of the Winners' most dangerous forwards, skating well and showing some fancy stick - work.

Bob Mulvihill missed tying the game in the third period as when he was left uncovered in front of the Merchant net, but Harrison smothered his shot. Gary Reid and defenceman Pat Auciolaine were best men in a losing effort.

Referees Jean - Paul Lamirande and John Emerson handed out a total of eight penalties, with six of them going to the Merchants.

Mustangs Collared

Merchant rearguard Bob Dafoe beats Mustang centre Bob Mulvihill to the puck as the Merchants blanked the opposition 1-0 to capture the Gas House League championship. Dafoe and his cohorts played a strong game in front of goalie Bob Harrison, who recorded his third shutout of the season.

The series resumes Monday in Hamilton with the sixth game set for Kingston Wednesday.

The winner will meet Brantford Braves or Dixie Beehives for the OHA championship.

Trap Club Open Sunday

The club which meets at its home base on the Wallbridge road will begin operations at 10.30 Sunday morning.

Peewees Open Shrine Tourney With Picton

Belleville Rollins Peewee players appear to have overcome some management problems and will send a rapidly improving club into the Belleville Shrine Peewee Tournament this weekend.

The team, which underwent a change of managers part way through the season, has performed well at recent tourneys in Orillia and Napanee, despite the fact that they've enjoyed less ice time than some of their counterparts in the Belleville system.

"Teams in the Toronto area have a big advantage because they get a lot more ice time than we do," claims present Rollins manager Ray Barbeau.

However clubs like the Kinsmen bantams have overcome the problem of limited practice sessions by scheduling a number of exhibition matches and tournament appearances. The Kinsmen management has managed to hustle up no less than 47 matches this season.

Coach Terry Flynn is highly pleased with the program that his charges have shown this season in spite of their lesser number of appearances. "You can't really give the credit to either Ray Barbeau or myself," says Flynn, "I think it's a case of the boys beginning to mature as hockey players." Despite disclaiming any credit for the Belleville success, Flynn appears to have brought his charges to first rate form late in the season.

If their narrow 4-3 loss to a tough Toronto club at Orillia is any indication, the Rollins crew should fare quite well in their opening match with Picton at 6 p.m. this evening.

Play in the 16-entry Shrine Tournament continues Saturday, winding up with a 4.30 p.m. 'A' championship game Sunday.

Trail Islanders 2-1

Ottawa Rangers Get One Back

HULL, Que. (CP) — Ottawa M and W Rangers shaved to a 4-3 victory over Charlottetown Islanders in the third game of their best-of-seven Memorial Cup quarter-final series Thursday.

Islanders won the two opening games in Charlottetown.

The winning goal in the third period was scored by Brian Bonner at the 7.22 mark when he deflected Don Sellar's pass from behind the Charlottetown goal.

Early in the period, Allan Dunsmuir, picked up from the Brockville Braves for this series, tied the game for the Rangers with just over two minutes gone. Trueman's Gerry Teeple was also picked up by Ottawa from Brockville for the series.

Charlottetown opened the scoring in the first period with a goal by Bob MacMillan. Angus Beck and Dave Murnaghan scored in the second period to give Islanders a 3-2 lead at the end of the second period.

A relatively small crowd of 2,380 fans watched the game played during one of the worst snowstorms to hit the area this year.

Aluminum Star defenceman Bob Chappel hitches a on-the-sly ride from Belvedere forward Doug Hallam. Hallam and his teammates overlook retribution for the undetected infraction in the form of a 5-2 win over the Stars. The win evened the Quinte League final series at one game apiece.

Belvedere 'Body English' Evens Quinte League Final

Belvedere Hotel used a little body English" last night to stop the high-flying Aluminum Stars 5-2 and square their Quinte League final series at one game apiece.

Rusty after a 14-day lay-off in the first contest, the league pennant-winners were outskated badly by Aluminum Star, who trounced them 6-2. It was a different story last night, however as Belvedere had the Stars seeing stars. Heavy hitting showed up the speedy Star forwards and was one of the reasons for the three-goal victory margin.

Goalie Dave Hicks was another major factor in the Belvederes win, penning brilliantly in the winners-nets. Penalty-killers Doug Hallam and Elmer Cain both came through with outstanding efforts as the Hotelmen were hit with seven of the game's ten penalties.

Belvedere opened the scoring as Gerry Cole banged in a pessout from Bill Nolan early in the first period. Jim Mule's tally from a scramble in front of Hicks knotted the contest at 1-1, before three consecutive goals by the Hotelmen broke the match open.

Paul Brown's marker in the second period proved to be the winner as he backhanded the puck past Star goaltender Vern Fraser. The losers narrowed the margin to 4-3 when Ron Pointer connected on a pretty play with five minutes remaining in the game. Pointer collected a pass from centre Bill McGuire and slashed the Belvedere defence before firing a high shot past Hicks.

Bill Nolan killed any hopes of an Aluminum Star comeback as he beat Fraser with a backhand shot along the ice with the netminder screened by his defence.

Next game in the best of seven series is scheduled for Tuesday night at 8.15 p.m.

Red Sox Could Give Orioles Best Run

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — If anybody is going to beat Baltimore Orioles in the American League's Eastern Division, it will be Boston Red Sox. If anybody is going to top Minnesota Twins in the West, it will be the Oakland Athletics.

It says here the Red Sox will do the job on the Orioles, although they finished third, 22 games back, in 1969, but Minnesota will stagger past Oakland in the West only to be smashed by the Red Sox in th pennant playoff.

Each division shapes up as a two-team race. Detroit Tigers appear demeralized by the Denny McLain affair, Washington Senators can cause trouble, New York Yankees still lack long ball punch and Cleveland Indians just don't have it. Behind Minnesota and Oakland in the West, Kansas City Royals, Chicago White Sox and California Angels figure to scramble for the crumbs with Seattle Pilots and Milwaukee Brewers in the rear.

In the two-division system, each team plays each of the other five teams in its division 18 times and each of the six in the other division 12 times. The Twins fattened up on the West last season and should do it again.

East—1. Boston; 2. Baltimore; 3. Washington; 4. Detroit; 5. New York; 6. Cleveland.

West—1. Minnesota; 2. Oakland; 3. Kansas City; 4. Chicago; 5. California; 6. Seattle-Milwaukee.

The Orioles have a solid lineup from top to bottom with fine power in Boog Powell, Frank Robinson, Brooks Robinson and Paul Blair. Mike Cuellar, Dave McNally, Jim Palmer and Tom Phoebus are tough pitchers to crack. A rookie has to be a new Ty Cobb to break into the starting lineup. But this same awesome array of talent fell before New York Mets in the World Series last October. It could happen again.

Boston is hungry. With a new manager, Eddie Kasko, at the helm to create a new spirit of togetherness on a club that feuded with Dick Williams last year, they could recapture the spark of 1967.

Bev Boys Plunges To 7th

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (CP-AP) — Cynthia Potter of the University of Indiana jumped from sixth place after the first round to capture the women's three-metre springboard championship in the United States Amateur Athletic Union indoor diving championships here Thursday night. Angela's Record All Wet

WINNIPEG (CP) — Angela Coughlan and Sue Smith established two Canadian records Thursday, the opening day of the Canadian Interior winter nationals and Commonwealth Games swimming trials.

Miss Coughlan, of Burlington, Ont., holder of the mark at two minutes, 13.2 seconds in the 200-metre freestyle, left seven other girls in her wake as she won in 2:11.8.

Miss Smith, of Edmonton, beat Jeanne Warren for the second time as she cut two-tenths of a second off the Vancouver swimmer's Canadian record in the 400-metre individual medley. Miss Smith's time was 5:24.5.

Six finals were held Thursday night with favorites winning all but one.

Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C., won the 200-metre freestyle in 1:58.1; George Smith of Edmonton the 400-metre individual medley with a time of 4:52.2; Bill Mahood of London, Ont., took the 100-metre backstroke in 1:02.3; and Donna Marie Gurr of Vancouver won the women's 100-metre backstroke in 1:09.4.

Adds Four Hits

Aaron 'Springs' to .500

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia's Chris Short and Detroit Tigers convened spring training comebacks Thursday. Short pitching six shutout innings in the Phillies' 5-0 exhibition baseball victory over Kansas City Royals and the Tigers pounding Washington 11-3 for their third successive triumph.

Short limited the Royals to two hits while posting his third spring victory without a loss.

The big left-hander has allowed just two earned runs in 22 innings of work. The win sticks by John Briggs and Sam Parrilla paced the Philadelphia attack.

The Tigers, bringing their pre-exhibition mark to 18-16, lagged the Senators' Casey Cox for all their runs in a three-inning span. Bill Freehan's three-run homer, Willie Horton's two-run shot and a bases-empty blast by Dalton Jones were the key blows.

Minnesota Twins built an early lead on home runs by Harmon Killebrew and Bryant Alyea, then weathered Boston homers by Carl Yastrzemski and rookie Luis Alvarado for a 5-4 and over the Red Sox.

Henry Aaron

Hank Aaron banged out four hits, bringing his spring average to .500 as Atlanta whipped Cleveland Indians 6-3. Phil Niekro went eight innings for the Braves, scattering six hits. Sam McDowell struck out 12 Braves in seven innings but was tagged for six runs and 13 hits.

Reggie Jackson and Bert Campaneris homered in Oakland Athletics' 11-4 romp over Milwaukee Braves, while San Francisco Giants thumped San Diego Padres 8-3 as Ken Henderson and Jack Hiatt connected for homers.

Home runs by Deron Johnson and Byron Browne carried Philadelphia's B team to an 8-4 verdict over Cincinnati Reds.

In night games, New York Mets shaded Pittsburgh Pirates; New York Yankees met Montreal Expos; Houston Astros took on Baltimore Orioles; and Chicago Cubs clashed with Chicago White Sox.

St. Louis traded infielder Steve Huntz to San Diego for southpaw pitcher Billy McCool Thursday, while Washington gave infielder Zoilo Versalles, the American League's Most Valuable Player five years ago, his unconditional release.

MONTREAL (CP) — April Fool's Day came 24 hours late for Lou Martin, director of operations for Montreal Expos of baseball's National League.

The Expos are scheduled to play their second home opener in major league baseball next Wednesday after taking part in the league's season opener at Cincinnati against the Reds Monday.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (CP) — Jim Lynch of Hamilton and his wife Nancy were crushed by the luck of the draw in the United States national open badminton tournament here Thursday.

Jim went down 15-3, 15-1 to Stan Hales of California, who captured the U.S. national men's singles championship in a closed tourney Wednesday.

And Nancy ran up against Etsuko Takenake of Japan the world women's singles champion and the top-seeded woman in this competition, Mrs. Lynch lost 11-1, 11-0.

Pilots Pass Into History

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle Pilots became a thing of the past Thursday when a bankruptcy reference affixed his signature to an order allowing the American League team's sale to Milwaukee Brewers Inc.

William Dwyer, special assistant state attorney general, said an $82,000,000 antitrust suit against the league and the owners of the defunct Seattle baseball franchise probably will come up in court in about a year.

Kerr Calls Polluting Industries 'Thieves' in Special Debate

TORONTO (CP) — The pollution of Ontario waterways by escaping mercury from industrial plants sparked an emergency debate in the legislature and a strong government attack against offending industries Thursday.

The debate was initiated by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon who described mercury pollution as a matter of urgent public importance. Speaker Fred Cass agreed and approved the motion for debate, the first in 15 years.

The government attack on industries responsible for the pollution came when George Kerr, energy and resources minister, called them thieves, and referred to his government as the policeman.

The minister said industry is the polluter and should accept the responsibility for the effects of their pollution.

In the last two weeks, sale of fish from Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie has been banned by federal authorities after tests showed dangerous levels of mercury poisoning in pickerel and perch taken from the two waterways.

During the debate Rene Brunelle, lands and forest minister, informed the house that fish samples from southern Lake Huron also have revealed mercury concentrations above the .05 parts per million standard set by the World Health Organization.

The blame for the mercury content in the Lake St. Clair system has been placed on Dow Chemical of Canada's Sarnia plant, while the polluting of Lake Erie by mercury secwe has been connected with the Wyandotte, Mich., plant of Wyandotte Chemicals Co.

Mr. Kerr accused industry of knowing that Lake St. Clair has been polluted for 20 years, "and if industry has any conscience at all, it will start cleaning it up."

"Personally, I'm sick and tired of trying to be a Sherlock Holmes. We will continue to play the detective, but we would like to know we are working with responsible people."

Earlier this week, the minister ordered Dow and four other Ontario industrial plants to eliminate all mercury loss by April 15 or be shut down. The same deadline was given to five pulp and paper plants in the province to discontinue the highly-poisonous heavy metal.

During Thursday's debate Mr. Kerr was criticized by an opposition member for suggesting that fishermen, deprived of their livelihood by the federal government action, take legal action against polluters.

James Bullbrook, Liberal member for Sarnia, said Mr. Kerr, as a lawyer, knows that the onus of proof would lie on the fishermen, and accused the minister of sloughing off his responsibilities to protect the people and to recompense those who suffer from water pollution.

Both Mr. Kerr and Mr. Brunelle assured the house that Ontario would do all it could to ensure compensation to the 3,000 fishermen affected by Ottawa's export ban on fish taken from lakes St. Clair and Erie, with Mr. Kerr indicating he expected the federal government to pay the compensation as it was Ottawa that declared the ban.

A meeting between Ontario and federal officials scheduled for Thursday had to be cancelled because of weather conditions and has been rescheduled for today in Ottawa.

Mr. Kerr also said that a result of today's meeting might be the province's placing a ban on commercial fishing in Lake Erie.

In the meantime, however, commercial fishermen are pulling their nets in Lake Erie and most fishing is expected to be halted by the end of the day.

A spokesman for the industry said Thursday there wasn't much point in spending $3,000 a day to pack fish when they would be confiscated without any payment.

Mr. Brunelle told the house it is an undesirable condition for Lake St. Clair fishermen to still have their nets out.

Fish in nets should be released or utilized, he said.

"The fish, as they now sit, are merely mostly contaminated as the ones we have examined. If the lake is cleaned up they will be clean when another season comes."

Mr. Brunelle said that once the lake water is clean "the fish will clear themselves of mercury in 17 to 20 weeks."

The minister said dredging all bottom areas affected by mercury is being contemplated.

Answering criticisms of government "foot-dragging" and "dereliction of duty," Mr. Kerr said government investigators discovered the mercury pollution in the two lakes during a routine survey of those waters.

He said a check in May, 1969, produced spot samples of sediment on the bottom of the St. Clair River which contained mercury. By August, tests proved conclusively that high mercury levels were polluting the river.

An Ontario Water Resources Commission team located the source of the mercury pollution, the Dow plant at Sarnia, Mr. Kerr said.

He said the spercury presence as indicated in the early analysis was not alarmingly high, but more samples were sent to California and Winnipeg in January.

Last month, the report on the California tests showed the fish had a mercury level of seven parts per million. This precipitated the ban on sale of fish from Lake St. Clair.

Bernard Newman, Liberal member for Windsor-Walkerville, urged creation of a special committee made up of legislature members from both Ontario and U.S. states bordering the Great Lakes which could meet regularly to discuss and act on common problems.

He said an OWRC sub-office should be established in Amherstburg near Windsor to check industrial waste in the Detroit River on a regular basis.

"The fact that we have in have an espergency debate on this issue certainly speaks of lack of action on the part of the government," Mr. Newman said.

Premier John Robarts had said at the opening of the house he was considering the merits of holding a high-level conference in Toronto on Great Lakes pollution, bringing together government leaders from Ottawa, Ostario and the U.S.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Stop worrying. EVERYTHING'S going up these days."

Action Is Sought

'Pollution Probe' Lists Variety of Demands

TORONTO (CP) — Pollution Probe, a University of Toronto-based group, has given Premier Robarts a list of demands for government action on pollution control.

In an introductory letter, Dr. Donald Chant of the university's zoology department says the demands are not "radical or startling," simply prerequisites to any continuing program to prevent further degredation of the environment.

The demands include:

—Existing legislation on pollution uniformly and rigidly enforced by 1971 and fines for violations raised to a minimum of $5,000 a day and jail sentences imposed on company officials who refuse to comply.

—Anti-pollution devices fitted to all motor vehicles by 1971.

—Primary sewage treatment facilities for all communities of 10,000 or more by 1973 and secondary treatment facilities by 1975.

—Phosphate levels in detergents limited to a maximum of 20 per cent by August.

—The budget of the department of energy and resources tripled immediately.

—An environmental council charged with protection of the environment against all pollution.

—Removal of provincial taxes on pollution control equipment.

—Maximum permissible levels of sulphur in coal and fuel oil be reduced to 1.5 per cent immediately and to 0.5 per cent by 1972.

College Acquitted

Kerr Denies Pollution Law Needs Changing

TORONTO (CP) — Dismissal of a charge of pollution against Lakefield College north of Peterborough does not indicate the need for amendments to provincial legislation, the Ontario legislature was told Thursday.

Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr said the Ontario Water Resources Commission Act is adequate to win convictions if the proper facts are adequately presented to a court.

To see that this is done, he said, he will recommend that where grounds for prosecution seem sufficient, the evidence should be presented by a Crown attorney, rather than by the lawyer for a private complainant.

The charge against Lakefield College was laid by the Peterborough branch of Pollution Probe, a University of Toronto-based group, using as evidence an OWRC report which was dismissed by the judge as lacking continuity to prove pollution from college sewers and septic systems.

Housing Act Assailed

TORONTO (CP) — A one-time assistant to former transport minister Paul Hellyer suggested Thursday that Canada's housing problems should be tackled the way countries tackle foreign aid.

Lloyd Axworthy, director of urban studies at the University of Winnipeg, told the annual meeting of Toronto's Urban Development Institute that "the National Housing Act should be totally torn apart."

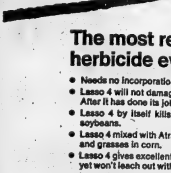
"It's too constricting and limiting," he said.

Robarts Says Pensioners in Rooms to Get Aid

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts indicated Thursday that if needy pensioners living in rooming houses have been excluded from government tax-relief measures, the measures will be changed to include them.

Mr. Robarts, intervening in questions directed at John Yaremko social and family services minister, told the Ontario legislature he has asked for an investigation into needy pensioners who do not own property or rent apartments.

The $10,000,000 provided in the 1970-71 budget to relieve needy pensioners from property taxes "will be spent" and the government will find ways to see that all the needy are covered.



The budget included relief from property taxes up to $700 a year for pensioners over 65 receiving welfare supplements to their old-age pension and owning or renting homes and apartments.

The program was immediately criticized by welfare agencies because it excluded thousands of the most needy pensioners who live alone in single rooms but still pay towards taxes through their rent.

The premier indicated that if the $10,000,000 provided is not enough, that, too, can be changed.

All Worst Elements of Winter Combined in Thursday's Storm

TORONTO (CP) — A storm Thursday that combined all the worst elements of winter—snow, rain, sleet and wind—swept across Ontario and parts of Quebec leaving in its wake power failures, hundreds of accidents, blocked highways, stalled trains and delayed planes.

The storm, which moved in from the United States late Wednesday night, dropped six to eight inches of snow in the Georgian Bay and Haliburton areas of Ontario, where winds gusted up to 60 miles an hour.

Drifts three feet deep were reported in the Owen Sound area where four snowplows and several sanders had to work continuously to keep Highway 10 open. A CPR daytime heading for Toronto from Owen Sound was stopped by drifts for two hours at Dundalk, 42 miles southeast of Owen Sound, until a second unit came to free it.

Ice on wires caused minor power failures in Alliston, Bracebridge, Midland, Orillia, Collingwood and Parry Sound, while a power blackout in Waterloo lasted five hours. The southwestern Ontario communities of Preston, Elmira, St. Clements, St. Jacobs, Stratford and Peterborough were without power for up to six hours.

Winds up to 45 miles an hour swept through the Toronto area and poor visibility at Sarnia airport resulted in the cancellation of a flight to Toronto.

The whole of Lambton County was hit by snow, sleet and two inches of rain in what was termed the worst storm of the year.

Three inches of snow and gusty winds left roads slippery and visibility poor in the Ottawa area, while hundreds of near accidents as well as airline delays and cancellations were reported in Montreal.

Thomas Moyer of the department of transport said Thursday there hasn't been a temperature as high as 59 degrees in Toronto since November.

"I haven't heard of such a thing before Take January. The high was 46 degrees. In January, 1957, we had 6 C. February was worse. The high was 45. In 1954 we had a 57.

"One would think better of March, but no, the high was 68. . . . Why, on March 30, 1946, we had an 88."

Mr. Moyer said, however, that it didn't seem excessively cold at any one time this year and there was a lot more sunshine this winter than usual—172 hours in March compared with an average of 138.

Outlook for today is cloudy and cool.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

$32,000 in Coffee Stolen at Cobourg

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Police are searching for persons who stole a truck Wednesday from the Toronto-Peterborough Transport Co. here and took 150 cases of coffee out of it.

A company spokesman said thieves struck in the early hours, before a watchman was to come on duty.

The truck contained coffee worth more than $32,444. Merchandise thieves was valued at $4,600.

Cobourg is about 30 miles south of Peterborough.

Senate Backs Student Sit-in

SUDBURY (CP) — A student sit-in continued at Laurentian University Thursday night with the support of the university senate, which threatened suspension of all academic activities if the board of governors does not agree to a joint meeting by 5 p.m. today.

The students, who have expressed a lack of confidence in administration policies, started the sit-in Wednesday in the university's main dining room and social centre. Between 70 and 100 students are participating.

The senate approved resolutions Thursday supporting the sit-in and endorsing any expansion of the demonstration as long as it remains non-violent. Student leaders were considering the occupation of other campus buildings should the governors refuse to meet with the senate.

The senate received support from students and the university's faculty association in a no-confidence vote last March 18 levelled at the board of governors and university president Stanley G. Mullins.

The senate maintains Mr. Mullins will not support faculty positions on long-range university planning. It also accused the board of governors' executive committee of "alienation" from campus affairs.

Fulbright Worried

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator J. William Fulbright came out I steadfast opposition to the namization policy Thursday and expressed fears that the United States will be drawn into a wider war in Southeast Asia.

In a major senate speech, the chairman of the foreign relations committee said that handling over the war to South Vietnamese forces is unsound.

"I am apprehensive of our ability to stay out of war in Laos and Cambodia as long as we remain at war in Vietnam," Fulbright also declared in renewing his consistent stand against Asian involvement by the U.S.

The Arkansas Democrat said that the issue of who rules Indochina is of little importance to U.S. security.

U.S. Railway Seeks Canadian Subsidy

OTTAWA (CP) — Penn Central Railroad of the United States has asked the Canadian transport commission for a ruling on whether passenger trains on its line through southwestern Ontario might qualify for federal government subsidies on operating losses.

The U.S. line has asked the commission to determine whether its passenger service, originating and terminating at U.S. points but running through Ontario between Port Erie and Windsor, is a "passenger train service" under terms of the National Transportation Act.

The commission announced Thursday it will investigate the use of the Penn Central service by Canadian local traffic and will consider representations on the question.

Wanted as Killer, Man Suicides

TORONTO (CP) — A police search for a 25-year-old man sought for a double murder ended violently Thursday night as the man shot himself to death moments before police were able to arrest him.

The search for Douglas Stewart of Toronto, wanted on a charge of non-capital murder, ended in the Ontario Hospital where Stewart had previously been a patient, police said.

The charge against Stewart was laid following the discovery Wednesday night of the bodies of Anne Quance, 54, a landlady in Stewart's rooming house, and George Ryder, 65, another resident in the house. Both had been stabbed.

A hospital spokesman said Stewart, who had been receiving outpatient treatment since his release last October, apparently came to the hospital Thursday to visit a doctor-friend, but that no appointments were listed and no doctor saw him.

Stewart was first discovered in a hospital hallway by a cleaning lady who said he was lying on the floor holding a gun. She notified a hospital guard who then phoned the police.

Stewart shot himself in the head just before police discovered him.

Ford, Chrysler Work Six Days

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ford of Canada Ltd. and Chrysler Canada Ltd. each will have a passenger car assembly plant working six-day weeks this month in moves which could mark the end of the winter sales slump.

A spokesman for General Motors in Oshawa said the firm plans to continue to operate on a two-shift 40-hour week basis.

Chrysler's Windsor car assembly plant will be working a two-shift 48-hour week, and the Ford car assembly plant at St. Thomas, Ont., will also be on overtime.

A spokesman for Chrysler said the move to overtime was to meet demand in the market for compact cars. About 5,100 men work at the Chrysler plant which builds the firms' line of compact cars.

Chrysler's production will be 1,040 cars a day, which they point out is an all-time record in the Canadian car industry.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm in a dilemma, my family's in a dilemma and my doctors are in a dilemma.

What to do? One doctor says I have tuberculosis in my left lung and not to submit to operation. Another, equally good, says it's possible I have lung cancer, s- I he'd better go in and have an "look-see." The X rays don't seem to be definite.

What's a fellow to do? Between the doctors, my family and my own feelings, I'm being torn apart emotionally. It's indecision with a big "I." — Mr. W.

Comment: I know what you mean. It's like sitting on a picket fence and at last becoming so uncomfortable that you have to jump off — one way or another.

Diagnosis is not always simple. Many's the case of tuberculosis that has been mistaken for lung cancer — and vice versa. But under some circumstances, it seems that operation is the safer course to follow. Especially when the patient is over 40 and the X-ray findings and other tests are inconclusive. If a patient over 40 has a moderately positive tuberculin reaction and a suggestive history of tuberculosis but when cultures of sputum and the bronchial secretions are made, they may be negative. No, tubercule bacilia are present.

This type of lung cancer may occur in those who have not been heavy smokers. If there isn't positive bacterial proof, such indeterminate lung shadows must be assumed to be due to cancer rather than to tuberculosis.

If the suspicion is strong that tuberculosis may indeed be present, it makes good sense to use antituberculosis drug therapy — streptomycin and isoniazid in full doses for seven to 10 days before operation.

I don't know, Mr. W., whether or not I have heightened your dilemma or not. At least you have a few more facts which will help you make up your mind. Incidentally, why not get the opinion of a third chest specialist? He may resolve your indecision.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm laughing with tears in my eyes when I hear and see on TV all the warnings against cancer. All this talk about having routine physical checkups.

If I ever get cancer I'll die of it simply because no doctors seem to have the time to give me a complete examination. All they do after a cursory examination is give me a good, natural smile, tell me I've got nothing to worry about — and I'm out of the office not satisfied they've done a thorough job, and Mrs. V.

Comment: Get a list of doctors from your local medical society or hospital, who are especially interested in preventive medicine. There are many. I'm sure there's among one around who'll give you the complete examination you want — and need.

• • •

For Mr. T.: Don't blame it all on former President John F. Kennedy. I understand he thought up the 36-mile walks as a private joke. Maybe he's still men who huffed and puffed their way along the 30 miles.

As I recall, Pierre Salinger refused to take them. At the time I admired his courage in refusing to be coerced. Incidentally, how's your jogging coming along?

• • •

For Mrs. Y.: You have reason to be suspicious of anyone who says he is "sure" he can cure you — whatever you have. Personally, I have never told my patient I was "sure." I could cure a scratch.

• • •

For Mrs. P.: Incubation period simply means the time it takes for a disease to develop. For example, some forms of hepatitis take about 30 days to develop; others, two or three months.

Doctors Disagree On Lung Ailment

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 4

Your birthday today: The next year or two witnesses development of your largely unconscious psychic nature. Many times the mood of the moment will take you into solitude, meditation. Learn to follow the deepening intuition promised at this return of the Sun to the degree it held at your birth. Understanding of the people around, you'll improve along with your own self-assurance. Today's natives are usually interested in speed, timing, physical events, sports competitions, races, and are often very good swimmers.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You now run into petty resistance, unplanned distractions. Keep your mind on details so that you miss nothing important. Your patience prevails as the day progresses so that much can be accomplished toward your goals.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): In the early hours everybody seeks excuses for differences. Stay clear of them until the mood passes in midmorning. Research into hidden or obscure conditions brings unusual discoveries.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 21): Ask for co-operation from your friends. Your initiative is the main factor, with your intuition showing you the way.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Relatives slow down in their assistance. Take on more of the work load yourself; concentrate on its aesthetically pleasing aspects.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Restless speculative urges beset you. And the latter expressed if you channel them into creative work or self-improvement programs.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Attend any formal or legal obligations early. Confer with family and close associates, then restate the deal in your own original terms.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your work is a bit too strenuous for comfort early in the day but levels out by midmorning. Teamwork brings rather good results, but it seems to be mostly your doing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Begin the day with some praise and compliments for your friends and associates. Add imaginative touches to your routines.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Family life, emotional involvements fill up your time and attention. Remember that you can't always cover every angle; make some arrangement. Others leaving you free to attend to the things most important to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your natural sense of order runs contrary to what you find today. Do what you can to bring order to affairs more into balance with changing circumstances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your own ideas run ahead of those of your associates. Give them time to catch up.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Differences of opinion are the normal order of the day. The more you care for someone, the more apt you are to encounter stress.

Pollution Worries Provinces

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pollution of air and water was discussed in four Canadian legislatures Thursday.

The most detailed discussion came at Toronto where Rene Brunelle, lands and forests minister, disclosed that mercury pollution has poisoned fish in parts of Lake Huron as well as Lakes Erie and St. Clair.

Similar mercury contamination of the Saskatchewan River was reported from Winnipeg.

Resources Minister Sidney Green told the legislature the river's pollution affected fish in northern Manitoba lakes and rivers. He said it was discovered last November and that during the winter season the federal government has been buying contaminated lake fish and destroying them.

At Regina Woodrow Lloyd, leader of Saskatchewan's New Democratic Party, proposed establishment of a Prairie institute on environmental problems. He said the Prairie provinces could give financial support to a pollution study centre with research help from universities.

In Fredericton Resources Minister W. R. Duffie said that New Brunswick pulp and paper companies have received leniency in a government ruling that they must have primary sewage treatment facilities in operation by Dec. 31, 1971.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Laymen's Science Outdated

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

At the recent convention of the American Physical Society in Chicago, two researchers from the University of Maryland and Cal Tech shook up the august gathering with reports of "intense gravity waves" coming to earth from the core of the Milky Way.

These gravity waves — which are impossible to believe and impossible to reject — contradict our whole present body of knowledge in physics, and fly in the face of our current theories about the universe.

They indicate that astonishing amounts of energy exist at the centre of the galaxy — far more than anyone had believed possible, if our modern cosmological theories are anywhere near correct. More important, they bring into question whether "nature" really operates in the whole cosmos the way we think it does.

What has happened in physical science the last 50 years has been a tremendous breakthrough from knowledge to ignorance. As we have learned more and more, we have been plunged into contradiction, paradox and enigma. As we have learned the causes of "substance," it turns into something else — something not substantial at all, but simply mathematical, statistical, and quite "immaterial."

Because of he customary cultural lag associated with such matters, the public has not yet caught up with these developments. And the laymen who pride themselves on having a "scientific" outlook are at least a half-century behind the times.

They are mechanistic and materialistic. They still think in terms of "objects" and "forces" and "laws" of cause and effect. But the new world of subatomic physics operates in a wholly different dimension. When we get to the core of "thingness," it seems to disappear, or turns into a "wholeness."

The net result of modern physics has been to upset to the roots the traditional "scientific" view of the universe. "Perhaps," said the Cal Tech researcher who recorded the gravity waves, "we are really very ignorant." This humility in this approach to science, is what differentiates the true scientist from the counterfeit dogmatist, who defends the "materialism" of the universe more religiously than the theologians he despises defend the Incarnation.

The deeper we go into the atom, and the farther we penetrate into the universe, both the microcosm and the macrocosm display mysteries that defy rational, logical explanations. We are still like pigmies exploring the tissues of God's bee-nail, and only the pseudo-scientific bigot imagines we have begun to grasp even the whole foot.

House Eyes Film Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Film Board seems due for unprecedented Parliamentary attention in the next few months.

The NFB, now in the process of reducing its staff by 81 as part of the government's austerity program, has already received more-than-casual attention in the current session.

Opposition MPs have charged that the government's money-saving measures are destroying the creative potential of the board. Reports of sagging NFB morale—associated with austerity—are said to be filtering into MPs' offices.

The board recently went through a two-month period when all film production was suspended.

Within the last two months there has been a long series of questions about the state of affairs at the NFB, many of them directed at State Secretary Gerard Pelletier by J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley). David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg north) (PC—Fleet, Royal). Party sources say there will be even more in the weeks ahead.

Most opposition complaints against the government have involved the argument that the creative talents at the NFB are far too valuable to tamper with in relation to the dollars being saved. One Creditiste MP even suggested that all CBC film work be turned over to the film board.

Some of the methods being used in the money-saving drive also expected to come under increasing attack, as did the decision to impose user charges on NFB films beginning last Jan. 1. Mr. Pelletier announced March 4 that the charges were being withdrawn.

Conservative sources say that Mr. Nowlan is expected to mount heavy criticism against the method used by the NFB in turning over film distribution rights to private companies in various regions of Canada.

Mr. Nowlan was informed by Mr. Pelletier a few weeks ago that the Ontario distribution rights were given to a firm made up of three former NFB employees, including Grant McLean, who acting government film commissioner in 1967.

No tenders were called on the contract.

In his reply, Mr. Pelletier said: "National Film Board personnel in offices across Canada were asked to approach and-or submit names of companies which were worthy of consideration." Thirty-five Ontario distributors were considered.

At least one film distribution firm has complained to some opposition MPs about the methods used in selecting a distributor.

Parkhill Festival Blocked

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Chances that a rock music festival might be held near Parkhill, 30 miles northwest of London, died Thursday with the festival promotor commenting bitterly against the people and politicians of McGillivray Township.

"I wouldn't want to expose the kind of people who'd enjoy a festival to the kind of people living in Parkhill," John Brower, president of Karma Productions Ltd., said in a telephone interview in Toronto.

One farmer, he said, told him a vigilante group had been organized and that because of this he was afraid to speak out in favor of the festival.

A bylaw regulating land use, passed by the McGillivray Township council early Thursday would have made it difficult for the promotors to get permission for the peace festival which was proposed for the July 4 weekend at a site near Parkhill.

"We could fight them in court but we won't," Mr. Brower said. "I'm not interested in fighting to get permission for a peace festival," which he said would attract between 250,000 and 500,000 persons.

He said his firm still plans to hold a peace festival in Ontario on the holiday weekend, but "we're not telling anybody what sites we'll be looking at next until we have the local councils involved sailed down."

East-end Plaza Fire Damage Is $200,000

Flames Sweep Four Stores

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

A massive early morning blaze at the east end Belleville Shopping Plaza has destroyed four businesses and caused damage assessed at approximately $200,000.

A general alarm issued by Belleville Fire Chief Leo Culhane sent members of the Belleville Fire Department racing to the scene where they found flames bursting from both ends of a walkway, on the eastern section of the plaza.

Fireman battled the fire for a little more than half an hour before they got it under control, but stayed at the scene all night, mopping up and ensuring that the blaze did not break out again.

Fire Chief Culhane described it as just a precautionary measure and said that the fire was completely out when daylight arrived.

Destroyed in the fire was the Shopette, a combination gift shop and restaurant and a storeroom belonging to the store across the walkway.

Also gutted were a barber shop, a laundromat and a beauty salon.

Also damaged, due to smoke, were Cheney's Furniture World and The Pet Shop. Family Fair, a department store, suffered minor smoke damages.

Several birds and animals in The Pet Shop — canaries, mice, hamsters and a monkey — were killed by the heavy smoke while police attempted to gain entrance to the store.

Finally officers dismantled the lock and, with the assistance of a number of citizens, evacuated the victims. Some were rescued in time.

Chief Culhane said the fire broke out in the Shopette some time after its owner, Keith Allister, locked up at 11 p.m.

A youth going down the walkway over an hour later spotted the flames and phoned in the alarm.

A few minutes later, as police and firefighting in the area arrived, the glass in the stores along the sidewalk shattered from their foundations as the fire began to spread along a roof joining both sides.

Police at the scene said that the whole plaza seemed to be going up on the east side when firemen arrived, but the fire department kept the flames from spreading.

Hijacked Airliner Flies Home

TOKYO (CP) — North Korea announced the hijacked Japanese plane that flew to Pyongyang Friday with three crew members and a Japanese official as hostages took off for home Saturday night, Japan Broadcasting Corp. reported.

The broadcast said North Korea's notification was passed to United Nations command officials at the Korean truce village of Panmunjom.

The North Koreans had announced earlier the Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 and the hostages would be sent back but that the nine radical leftist student hijackers who seized the plane Tuesday over Japan would remain in North Korea.

The radio, monitored in Tokyo, said the hijackers, who throughout the four-day hijacking had been armed with swords, knives and home-made bombs, wished to stay. The North Korean authorities will investigate them and take appropriate measures.

No Charge Is Laid In Taking of Baby

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the department of social and family services said Friday a search warrant has been issued in Perth, Ont., for the newborn baby girl who was taken from Kingston General Hospital shortly before she was to have a blood transfusion Thursday.

John Yaremko, Ontario minister of family and social services, had told the legislature earlier that a charge had been laid against persons who took the child from the hospital.

The spokesman said Mr. Yaremko discovered he had received erroneous information and that the justice of the peace for Perth, Ivan Penfold, had issued a search warrant.

Police stressed that removal of the child from the hospital was not illegal. The Crown Attorney's office said no action was planned to force the child's return.

Shoot-to-kill Warning Fails to Stop Bombers

BELFAST (CP) — Terrorists exploded three bombs in the heart of Belfast today injuring at least two persons, despite a British Army warning that troops may shoot to kill when they encounter bomb-throwers in the streets. The bombs went off over a span of 10 hours.

The scene of the bombing was only a few hundred yards away from Royal Avenue, where an early morning blast destroyed a large store occupied by a tailoring firm.

Scores of windows in stores and offices were blown out in the Donegall Street blast, which was heard for miles. Ambulances hurried to the area, which was cordoned off by police and troops.

Experts and bomb-disposal officers were among the first to arrive on the scene and open investigations.

On being informed of the earlier explosion in Royal Avenue, Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark said "Those responsible for such an outrage showed a complete and callous disregard for human life and property."

The first of the trio of explosions occurred just after midnight at a store owned by the lord mayor of Belfast, Alderman Joseph Cairns, on the predominantly-Protestant Shankill road. Damage was not serious.

The prompt arrival of troops and police quickly checked a dangerous situation as Roman Catholics and Protestants faced each other.

A crowd of about 200 shuffled away grumbling. The bomb blasts were seen in some quarters as a deliberate attempt to provoke the Protestants, who had kept clear of street battles during the last three nights between Catholics and troops.

Otherwise, the Northern Ireland capital, scene of rioting pitting Roman Catholics and Protestants against hundreds of troops, was quiet.

Separatism Attacked

Quebec Liberals Promise to Create 100,000 More Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Liberals Friday promised to create 100,000 jobs within one year if elected in this province where almost 200,000 Quebecers now are without work.

The Opposition party's promise of prosperity was coupled with a harsh frontal attack on René Levesque's separatist Parti Quebecois, arguing that separatism would mean more unemployment.

Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa opened his campaign for the general election April 29 with a non-nationalist program to spur economic growth.

The 36-year-old successor to former premier Jean Lesage said the Union Nationale lacked launching the campaign slogan "Quebec: Au travail (Quebec: to Work)."

At a news conference, the new Liberal leader outlined steps a Liberal government would take in its first six months in office in an effort to drive down the unemployment rate, now at 8.7 per cent.

At a packed rally of about 700 persons in his working-class riding of Mercier Friday night, Mr. Bourassa said workers would be the first victims of separatism, which would scare capital away from Quebec.

"We already have 60 per cent of Canada's unemployed. Isn't that enough?"

The under attack at the rally was the governing Union Nationale party, criticized by Mr. Bourassa as a group of political opportunists characterized by incompetence, patronage and corruption.

He said Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand's party is "conducting its election on the backs of Quebecers" by refusing to take a clear-cut stand for or against separatism or federalism.

"The Union Nationale is not a separatist party. It is not a federalist party. What is it? It is the party of electoral opportunism. It's running the election on Ottawa's back, on the Parti Quebecois' back and on our backs."

Mr. Bourassa, a lawyer-economist, said at the press conference that a Liberal government would embark on a special six-month program, making the job question "a genuine collective project, like Expo 67."

He said the program would not be done by economist-supporters' Jacques Parizeau of the separatist Parti Quebecois, Liberal Senator Robert Bourassa or event himself.

"The people will decide in a referendum. It is you who will decide ... the future of Quebec."

He drew a roar of approval from the Chateauguay crowd when he said:

"If we take Quebec out of Canada, what will happen to Canada?"

Bertrand Assails Ottawa

MONTREAL (CP) — The reception got warmer as the evening wore on Friday when Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand took some verbal shots at the federal government—a prelude to officially opening his campaign for the April 29 Quebec general election.

Mr. Bertrand, who holds a policy meeting tonight before hitting the hustings Sunday, attacked Ottawa on its anti-inflation policies and what he considered its rigid constitutional stand.

In a rapid-fire tour of three ridings west of Montreal, the Union Nationale premier was first greeted by about 300 persons—remarkably few of them young—in a small Vaudreuil schoolhouse, had supper with a handful of party faithful at a posh golf club and drew a rousing reception in Valleyfield.

He also headed for Chateauguay.

On the question of Quebec separating from Canada, Mr. Bertrand said in Vaudreuil this would not be done by economist-supporter Jacques Parizeau of the separatist Parti Quebecois, Liberal Senator Robert Bourassa or event himself.

"The people will decide in a referendum. It is you who will decide ... the future of Quebec."

He drew a roar of approval from the Chateauguay crowd when he said:

"If we take Quebec out of Canada, what will happen to Canada?"

Investors Advised to Flee

MONTREAL (CP) — The man whose comments were cited by a Montreal investment firm in advising its clients to take their securities outside of Quebec said Friday the provincial government will investigate the firm.

Mario Beaulieu, Quebec's finance minister, announced the investigation at a news conference after publication of a confidential news letter by Lafferty, Harwood and Co. Ltd. sent to its clients last March 18.

Referring to a speech made by Mr. Beaulieu March 16, the firm advised between 200 and 300 clients to remove "physically securities and liquid assets from the province of Quebec—at least until the election (Quebec general election) April 29 is over."

In his speech March 16, Mr. Beaulieu said the 1970s will be a decade of economic revolution in Quebec.

Without altering its encouragement for private enterprise, he said, the "Quebec state" should make every effort to assure full employment for its population.

He said the state should be the central motivating force in the economic revolution. It should be involved everywhere that collective welfare demanded, either by itself or as a partner with private enterprise.

The newsletter said the philosophy outlined by the minister "is unworkable within the economic framework of the North American environment."

Police Dog Kemo Tracks Escapees from Warkworth

Kemo, the tracker dog stationed with provincial police in Belleville, joined the search for three young men who escaped Warkworth Penal Institution at 7.15 p.m.

With his handler, OPP Constable Ted Arthurs, he tracked the escapees across surrounding countryside for nearly three hours, ending the hunt in a barn three miles southwest of the medium-security jail.

Police say Wayne Powers, 19, and James Wyse, 18, both of Hamilton and Paul Olbrenath, 19, of Toronto, surrendered peacefully to OPP officers who were called to the barn by Const. Arthurs.

Their surrender ended a manhunt which involved provincial police from the Brighton, Belleville, Peterborough and Campbellford detachments as well as security guards from the institution.

In all, more than 30 men took part in the search during which numerous roadblocks were set up and the area cordoned off.

The escape occurred when the three men "saw a chance to go and took it" by climbing a 14 foot fence at a recreation period, assistant warden G. Burnett said.

It was the second breakout since the Warkworth Institution became fully-operative in September, 1967. The other escape occurred in May, 1968.

Const. Arthurs said that Kemo, one of seven dogs now serving with provincial police detachments in Ontario, worked "beautifully" on his eighth and longest mission since he began active duty last fall.

Arriving on the scene at 4.30 p.m., the man-and-dog team started off through a swamp and then across open and plowed fields and wooded areas, as Kemo tracked the fresh scent of the escapees.

"Man couldn't have followed the unarmed escapees' tracks because some areas were snow-free and you don't know where you're going," constable Arthurs said, "But the dog knows where he's going and he goes considerably faster."

"They had an hour's headstart, but one escapee was still puffing when they surrendered, so we must have gained on them from the start," Constable Arthurs claimed.

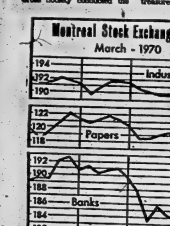
Homemaker Costs Debated

Mrs. J. E. Marsh, president, Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Society conducted the regular meeting held March 31. Mr. Newton Thompson, treasurer reported disbursements of $1,985.55. Mrs. A. H. Ketchaver stated that February required the services of 15 homemakers. The matter of fees was discussed.



The projected cost of Homemaker Service in Belleville compiled by the Ontario Division for 1970 is $11.50 per day. This covers supervisor's salary, transportation, telephone services and office expenses.

For Homemakers salary, uniforms, transportation and equipped utility bags the maximum fee in Belleville is $9.50 for this service. However in cases where this fee causes a financial hardship this fee is reduced according to circumstances.

The cost of this service to Red Cross is in the area of $5,000 annually which is met by contributions to the United Community Services appeal.

A motion to increase the $9.50 fee to $10 was defeated.

Murray Workman, water safety chairman has plans for April 27 when 500 awards will be given, 1970 is the 25th anniversary of Red Cross Water Safety in Canada. Approximately 750,000 Canadians successfully completed courses last year.

Indices Mixed

Indices on the Montreal Stock Exchange were up during March except for Banks. Industrials jumped from 191.27 March 2 to close at 193.67. Utilities were up 1.26 to 135.52. Banks were down to 181.88 from 189.66. Papers were up from 119.28 to 120.96.

Archdeacon W. J. Robinson

Former City Clergyman Elected Bishop of Ottawa

A former Belleville clergyman has been elected bishop of an Ontario Anglican diocese.

He is the second Anglican churchman with a former Belleville charge, to be elected a bishop within the week.

Monday in Kingston, Ven. J. B. Creeggan, who served 12 years as rector of Christ Church, was created Bishop of Ontario.

His wife is the former Isobel Morton of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. and the late Rev. S. E. Morton, and a sister to Mrs. MacDonald Smith and Ralph and Stanley Morton, all residents in Belleville.

In the Quinte area, the new bishop also served at churches in Madoc, Tweed and Napanee. He was a rector in Orillia from 1955 to 1963.

He won the Ottawa election on the fourth ballot. The nearest challengers were Archdeacon W. D. McL. Christie, program director for the Ottawa diocese, and Rev. Clarke Raymond, director of the division of parish and diocesan services at the national office of the Anglican Church in Toronto.

He obtained 50 of the 97 clergy votes and 133 of the 227 eligible lay ballots. He needed a majority in both the clergy and lay sections to be elected.

The election must still be approved by the provincials synod in Barrie, next week. Consecration will follow, probably in mid-May.

He will succeed Bishop R. S. Reed, who died in Ottawa Feb. 28.

In a telephone interview later, Archdeacon Robinson said: "I knew my name was in but I didn't think anything would happen. It shook me rather hard when I heard I was elected."

He said he was out parish visiting in Guelph while the election was under way in Christ Church Cathedral in Ottawa. The Anglican Metropolitan of Ontario, Archbishop William Wright of Algoma, reached him by telephone at his home an hour and a half after the election ended.

Reporting Archdeacon Robinson's first words, Archbishop Wright told the Ottawa synod the bishop-elect said: "I feel very humble about it and I just wonder if I can discharge those duties the way I should."

Speaking of his role as bishop, Archdeacon Robinson said: "I still think the most important part of it is being father-in-God to the clergy, and wives and families in the diocese and to all the people."

He said he would try and stay away from diocesan administration and visit the parishes in the diocese. "I have always felt I was a parish man. I would like to remain that."

He said he is interested in ecumenism. "I don't think we can be honest and be divided."

Archdeacon Robinson was born in Kemptville, about 30 miles south of Ottawa. The Robinsons have four children: Thomas, 22, a student at Waterloo University; Marcus, 20, studying physiotherapy in Toronto; Elizabeth, 18, in Trent University student; and Margaret, 11, in Grade 7.

Kidney Transplant Made in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The kidneys of a Toronto girl were transplanted today into a young, married Hamilton woman and a 25-year-old Winnipeg man flown to Toronto for the operation.

The operations were performed in Toronto Western Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton, after Carol Lee Robinson, 17, died of a brain hemorrhage Friday night in Wellesley Hospital, Toronto.

At 10.30 p.m. the girl's kidneys were removed; one was rushed to Toronto Western and the other to Hamilton in a police car.

By 1 a.m. today, the kidneys were transplanted and the recipients reported in satisfactory condition.

Names of the recipients were not disclosed.

The hospitals involved are part of a pool of southern Ontario, New York state and Western Canada hospitals formed to facilitate kidney transplants. The pool matches donors' kidneys to those of recipients throughout the three areas.

Charles Bode, 23, a native of San Antonio, Texas who travelled under the stage name of William Charles Caldwell of Charlotte, North Carolina, suffered a fractured pelvis and fractured leg and was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital. A blood clot is believed to have caused his death, provincial police said today.

Bode was employed by Philip Morris of Charlotte, North Carolina. His act included two French poodles unhurt in the mishap and now being cared for until claimed at a city veterinary hospital.

Crisis Centre Proposed For Teenage Addicts

TORONTO (CP — After hearing three long - haired teenagers, a Toronto school trustees committee decided Friday to back a proposal for a teen-run drug crisis-centre.

Trustee Robert Orr asked what age group the centre would serve. John Walker, 18, replied mainly between 13 and 18.

"Is it much of a problem?" asked Mr. Orr.

"It's an epidemic," said Douglas Edwards, 18.

"They are the ones who are starting to experiment with different drugs," said James Stevenson, 19.

The three outlined the plan for the centre in a rooming house. The workers would be helped by neighborhood volunteers. Workers would be trained at the downtown Toronto drug drop-in centre operated by the YMCA and the Addiction Research Foundation. A doctor and nurse would be on call.

Fire Loss $200,000 at Shopping Plaza

Firemen were forced to mount the roof of the plaza to chop through it, keeping the flames from running along the buildings' tops.

Finally the blaze began to die down as the roof of the Shopette caved in, helping to stop the flames from spreading.

Police expressed concern about the fact that natural gas was used in the Shopette. However, Chief Culhane described the danger of the gas-heated building exploding as minimal.

No cause for the fire has yet been discovered but Paul McKerracher, a fire inspector with the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office, and Belleville Fire Inspectors Paul Stephenson and Reginald Christopher are at present at the scene trying to find the source of the fire.

Mr. Culhane said he expected the cause would be discovered some time today.

The fire is the first to have occurred at the Shopping Plaza since its construction approximately eight years ago.

Arts Festival Being Assembled

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Arts Festival '70 is less than two weeks away and ticket sales are speeding up as Belleville citizens prepare to view cultural aspects of their community from Apr. 15 to May 2.

Spokesman for the festival, Mrs. Diana Aitken, said this morning that tickets seemed easier to sell this year and that ticket sellers were increasing their sales over past years.

Increased ticket sales from four main outlets — members of participating groups, the Medical Wives Association, Dorothy Clarke Stadium and the Plain Shoppette — came in the wake of increased activity by Arts Festival '70 workers.

Mrs. Aitken explained that the facilities of Centennial Secondary School, where most of the festival activities will be held, were at present being inspected.

Phillips Faulkner, just recently made a member of the Ontario Art Society, will be guest artist at the visual arts display beginning Apr. 15.

Belleville Theatre Guild resident artistic director, Roy Higgins, has been signed as technical director for the entire festival.

Sponsored and co - ordinated by the Quinte Arts Council, the purpose of the festival is to present a varied program of the visual and performing arts to Belleville.

The Quinte Arts Council was formed in 1967 with the aim of co - ordinating and encouraging cultural development and creativity in the Quinte area.

Past projects of the arts council have been a presentation of "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris", co - sponsoring Canadian Opera Company, the Youth Music Development Committee, and youth art workshops. It also is assisting in the development of the Mott Program concepts in the community.

This year Arts Festival '70 will open April 15 with a presentation at Centennial Secondary School by Belleville Choral Society conducted by Murray Irwin.

Guest artist will be Quinte Stratton, a Rotary Music Festival winner for two years and a violinist with the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra.

He is concert master and assistant conductor with the Inter-Provincial Concert Orchestra. He also has conducted an 18-piece chamber ensemble in Parry Sound and hopes to major in conducting at McGill next year.

The Belleville Art Association, the Belleville Arts and Crafts Club and the Belleville Camera Club will integrate for a visual arts display at the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte from April 15 to April 17.

Centennial Secondary School will be the site of a concert by the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra conducted by Stephen Choma, April 22.

Guest artists will be the Picton Hand-Bell Choir, a group of 10 young people under the direction of A. A. Bennie. Their selections range from light classics to musical comedy.

The Belleville Theatre Guild moves into Centennial Apr. 29 to May 2 for a lively play, Boeing Boeing, directed by Roy Higgins.

The play is the story of a bandsome playboy and his romantic entanglements with three airline hostesses.

Subscription tickets for the whole series of events have been priced at $4.50 for adults, $2.50 for students. Single events, save for the visual arts display will cost adults $2 and students 75 cents. The visual arts display admission is 50 cents.

Mayors and Reeves Together

Contact Good with Province Local Mayors, Reeves Are Told

Communication is at its best to date between Ontario's local and provincial governments, a regional meeting of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves was told in Belleville last night.

The comment came from Mississauga mayor Robert Speck, president of the association, as he led off discussions at the meeting at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel.

Almost 100 elected and appointed municipal officials from Hastings and Prince Edward counties assembled to discuss common issues — including education regional government, assessment and finances, in a debate presided over by Stirling reeve Donald Rodgers.

Mayor Speck told the officials that basically all problems with municipalities involved a shortage of money.

He said the association, through continuance of its liaison committee with three other similar organizations had the objective of unifying its purpose to assist municipalities in discussing problems with the provincial government.

"The government would welcome such a move," he said. "It would make us a much stronger group. When we go asked to the cabinet they will listen."

"I think we have the greatest communication lines with the government that we've ever had."

He suggested improvements in the government's new policy of re-assessing the province at property market value. The new shift in re-assessment should take three to four years to allow for corrections as opposed to the proposed one-year time period, he said.

Government should pay 80 per cent of education taxes and "get it off the backs of our taxpayers claimed Mayor Speck.

"We should pay for it as a progressive tax, not a regressive tax," he said.

In return for the government's 80 per cent takeover, the municipalities would take over payment of 20 per cent of all other taxes and the government would only pay for 40 per cent.

"We have to take a responsible position," he said.

Concerning regional government, he said he agreed with it but that many areas were not ready for it.

"We can revise representation on municipal councils without a complete change to regional government."

Reeve Rodgers told the association that municipalities were not accepting all of their responsibilities.

"We keep yelling for more money, yet we're not becoming proficient in handling the responsibilities of it."

However one municipal official had a different view of co-operating with the provincial government.

"I think all of us here should see that our voice is heard whatever we do. We put the minister (Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough) there. He's got to listen to us. We should tell him what to do, not him tell us."

He said that he saw the wearing away of county autonomity and the rise of county planning boards.

"I think we have the experience to run our own county," he said.

Mayor Russell Scott, complained to the association of the practices of the Ontario Municipal Board which he described as a "kangaroo court."

He explained that an application for rezoning was heard by two members of the OMB and then the evidence was weighed in Toronto before the entire board where it was all too often overruled by OMB members who had not seen the evidence.

Grievants produced by the meeting will be collected into recommendations to present to the Ontario Government. This was the third association meeting and there are to be more to assess the total situation for a brief to the government.

School Capital Spending Up

BLOOMFIELD — The 1970 budget of Prince Edward County school trustees includes a capital expenditures allowance of $97,000.

This figure marks an increase of $59,900 over last year's allotment of $37,100. A financial statement from financial statement from 1969 shows that $11,098 was spent leaving a surplus of $16,002. In an explanation of capital expenditures a budget release states, "Expenditures under this heading vary considerably from year to year depending upon requirements and therefore cannot be subjected to comparison on any reasonable basis. Items covered by capital expenditures include acquisition costs of major capital items such as land, buildings and equipment.

A marked decrease in purchasing expenses is responsible in part for a budget drop of $9,835 in business administration this year. In 1969 trustees budgeted $47,-235 for these expenses. This year's budget allots $37,400.

Remarked county board chairman Edward Rutter, "Through better board organization there has been a decrease in costs in many areas, purchasing in particular. There has been a tremendous savings in this area." He referred specifically to the $118,302 decrease in the 1970 municipal tax levies. Mr. Rutter added that through these savings the Prince Edward County board of education is able to examine areas of educational expansion in Prince Edward in a more equalized manner.

Tuition Fees Increased

BLOOMFIELD — Included in the Prince Edward County board of education's 1970 budget is a $194,500 increase in tuition fees payable to the Hastings County board of education.

In 1969 Prince Edward County trustees budgeted $181-500 for tuition of 355 Amelasburg township secondary students attending schools operated by the Hastings board.

Last year's financial statement for tuition fees demanded an expenditure of $323,150 by the Prince Edward County board, a figure exceeding the 1969 budget by $140,650. Board members termed this deficit a serious underestimation of the cost per student to be charged by the Hastings County board of education. The 1970 budget has allotted $376,000 for tuition fees, an increase of $52,850 over 1969's financial statement.

Since when does a big house mean less housework?

"Since we switched to electric heating!"

says Mrs. James S. Loynes of Belleville, Ontario.

"There's absolutely less housework," says Mrs. Loynes. "I find I don't have that film over everything that I had from the old furnace, and I don't find as many cobwebs as I used to. I also like the even flow of heat and the temperature control in the various rooms."

Dr. and Mrs. Loynes first discovered the comfort of electric heating when they remodelled their attic. And they were so impressed with the economy and the ease of installation that when their old gravity air furnace system needed replacing they decided to convert the whole house to electric heating.

"We found that by installing electric baseboard units we didn't have to rip the house apart to replace our old ductwork," says Dr. Loynes, "and that saved us redecorating costs, too."

Dr. Loynes enjoys the room-by-room temperature control as much as his wife does. "I've got a thermostat right at the head of the bed. It's kind of nice to be able to warm up the room before you jump out in the morning. And something else, we're able to live in parts of our home we couldn't use before, like the sun porch."

Mrs. Loynes agrees. "That sun porch was always cold because it's right over the fruit cellar. We used to shiver in there, but now it's great for watching TV in the evenings."

Another thing the Loynes have gained from electric heating is peace of mind. They no longer have the worry they used to have about their old heating system when they were away on weekends. Before they got electric heating, the Loynes had lived with all three of the ordinary fuels.

"There's just no comparison," says Dr. Loynes. "I would hate to go back to the other systems." "It suits our way of living," adds Mrs. Loynes, "and it's less work."

Call a qualified electric heating contractor or your Hydro to find out how easy it is for you to enjoy the living warmth of electric heating. They'll give you details of the Hydro Finance Plan, too.

War on Pollution

Pollution — and this cannot be emphasized too strongly — is a cancer that is strangling our environment. Every day the air we breathe and the water we need for such a wide variety of needs become more heavily contaminated.

That authorities are alert to the problem we know, but unless the fight is won experts predict that our civilization could be gravely threatened in as little as ten years ahead.

It is encouraging however, to note that strong measures are being taken now. For example, Ontario Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr has announced introduction of air pollution ratings in Metropolitan Toronto. He noted that during the most hazardous periods all industry in the city could be ordered to close. Motorists, too, could be asked to keep their cars at home because of exhaust pollution, if the index were 100 or more.

Mr. Kerr also has had some hard words for industry. Speaking of mercury levels in Lake Erie and Lake St. Clair, he said the latter body of water had been polluted for 20 years. "Industry," he added, has known about it, and if industry has any conscience at all, it will start cleaning up. . ."

Another move is the announcement that Ontario and Quebec will meet with authorities from five American states to discuss this dangerous threat to the environment. Pollution will never be conquered entirely but it must be brought down to reasonable levels. We all have a role to play, by avoiding any action that contributes further to the problem, whether with litter or by discharge of sewage from boats or whatever, and by creating increased public awareness of anti-pollution measures. The schools, we are happy to note, are playing their part; certainly the future of this generation is at stake because of pollution.

Passengers' Ordeal

Being cooped up in an airliner on the ground, with the air-conditioning shut off, for the ten or 15 minutes it takes to discharge passengers in normal circumstances, can be an ordeal.

Imagine then the terrible experience of the passengers and crew of the Japanese airliner held by a dozen student hijackers seeking flight to communist North Korea.

The temperature in the cabin was reported at more than 100 degrees, there were sanitation problems and hostility, a shortage of food. Such lunacy is difficult to believe and we can only wonder how much more of this sort of thing must the world's airlines tolerate.

If it continues, the only way to prevent it will be by rigorous pre-flight checks of all passengers, and the use of security guards on board planes flying in the vicinity of Communist territory.

Hellyer, Sen. O'Leary, Rap the Civil Service

Is P.M. Simply Replacing Bureaucracy with His Own?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It had to be sheer coincidence that two such eminent parliamentarians, so opposite in their political views, should kick it — in tandem — to the huge and ever-expanding bureaucracy.

That it was coincidental, and that two such diverse political viewpoints should come into a focus of agreement, is served only to add to the significance of the warning that Ottawa's bureaucracy has become so powerful as to be actually "dangerous."

There, speaking in the Senate, was the voice of 60 years as a Parliament viewer, Senator M. Grattan O'Leary, a Conservative, cautioning that the mandarins — the deputy ministers and their deputies — now pack such political clout as to be a threat to the public interest.

And there, speaking as a veteran of three federal cabinets, and nearly two decades in the Commons, was Paul Hellyer, a Liberal, worrying that the bureaucrats have become so supreme as to manipulate everyone — including the Prime Minister and Cabinet — like "puppets" on a string.

The statistical facts are easy to establish.

They are there for the examining, in Finance Minister Edgar Benson's federal Estimates.

Cost: Last year, $2,195,856,368. This year, $2,539,096,000. Next year, $2,686,810,000.

Up, up, up. Size and cost. More each year.

And that is just the payroll report for the classified, or the "regular" Civil Service in the federal departments.

To get the full statistical picture, you add comparable figures for the federal Crown Corporations.

It is an empire, more than 400,000 strong.

Big, yes, and getting bigger regardless of the "restraints" and "cutbacks" the Prime Minister has imposed on it. Increasingly costly, too. Approaching $4 billion in overhead alone.

But how powerful?

Strong enough, former Transport Minister Hellyer has revealed since leaving the Trudeau Cabinet, to break him.

He fought and usually won his battles with the bureaucrats as a member of the St. Laurent and Pearson Cabinets.

He fought, and lost, his last battle with the bureaucracy as Deputy Prime Minister in the Trudeau Cabinet over the government's housing policy.

He personally, and not the Civil Service monolith, put together that policy, he has related, and so in again demonstrate who was the supreme power, they destroyed him.

The admirals, the generals, and the air marshals had fought him as Defence Minister on Armed Forces unification.

He had been able to sack them, and so was the winner.

He was not able to sack the Civil Service deputies in the housing fight, and so was the loser.

Simple as that.

But while he was beaten by them, he was not intimidated.

And he again has sounded his warning — beware the power of the bureaucracy — it can hold you helpless captive.

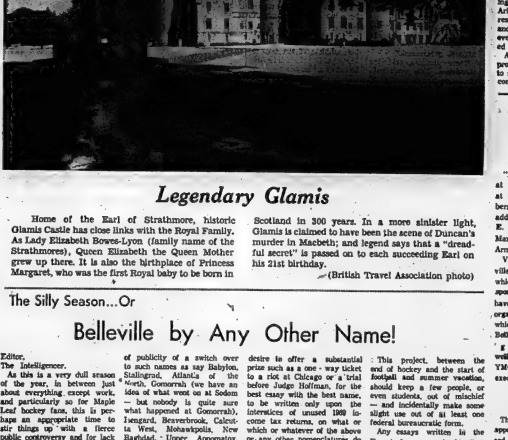
In his own hand he has written a biting if brief indictment of the White Paper or Taxation.

He charges that the senior civil servants began drafting it as long as three years ago.

They "acted as lawyers and the Cabinet, and having "bought" it, then wrapped from the resident socialists of the bureaucracy, the government is stuck with it. Any backtracking than lose face by admitting it was "had," the Trudeau administration is desperately trying to "sell" I to the taxpayers.

The basic fear raised by this Manipulation - to High - Places warns Paul Hellyer, is the chilling prospect that with the White Paper, the transfer of "real" power has gone so far that the taxpayers and Parliament, including the Cabinet, may have "no real say in their own affairs, and have become mere puppets in the hands of the gigantic bureaucracy."

Now hear Senator O'Leary, who has been an eye-witness of every government since Prime Minister Wilfrid Laurier's.



Prime Ministers and governments come and go, he relates, but the bureaucracy, unchanged and unchanging, goes on growing and gathering power.

There are mandarins in High Places who have been there for 25 years through the regimes of Prime Ministers King, St. Laurent, Diefenbaker, Pearson and Trudeau.

Many of them are such Liberal partisans, he reveals, that when Mackenzie King and St. Laurent from power, they holded on the Conservatives as "occupying troops" to be driven from power by obstruction, and sometimes even sabotage.

A life-long loyal Tory, Senator O'Leary was politically objective enough to give Liberal Prime Minister Trudeau [illegible] marks for well - knowing that the mandarins "can be dangerously wrong," and taking defensive measures. To protect himself from their often destructive power, the Prime Minister, disclosed the Senator, was setting up a Cabinet secretariat, his own, a small, elite and enormously talented Palace Guard. It would look back. Its creating oligarchy of the mandarins. O'Leary and Hellyer, Conservative and Liberal, have it all sound like feudalism, updated from the Middle Ages.

And maybe it is.

Legendary Glamis

Home of the Earl of Strathmore, historic Glamis Castle has close links with the Royal Family. As Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon (family name of the Strathmores), Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother grew up there. It is also the birthplace of Princess Margaret, who was the first Royal baby to be born in Scotland in 300 years. In a more sinister light, Glamis is claimed to have been the scene of Duncan's murder in Macbeth; and legend says that a "dreadful secret" is passed on to each succeeding Earl on his 21st birthday.

Winnipeg Says 'No' To Curfew Proposal

Winnipeg Free Press

Winnipeg city council sensibly did not support Alderman Joseph Cropo's attempt to impose a curfew law on Winnipeg's youngsters. Less sensibly, the aldermen decided to shelve the matter until the special committee on juvenile crime prevention does some more studying about curfews in other cities.

The committee would be better advised to do some studying of human nature instead. Arbitrary and unreasonable restrictions invite defiance — and not merely by children; everyone resents, and is tempted to flout, what seems unfair.

Ald. Cropo's defence of the proposal, that all he wants is to see to it "that we get better communication between parents and children," is meaningless. No curfew law in the world will be legislate parents into closer communication with their children, or into more responsible attitudes as parents. However, by a curfew law — which, to be enforceable, would have to restrict the child attending a school play, for example, right along with the youngster intent on stealing hubcaps — he could foster massive resentment among parents and children alike.

The special committee need waste no further time on this notion. Its job is to seek out ways of helping to prevent juvenile delinquency. Creating additional categories of delinquency is assuredly not going to accomplish that job.

Political Animals

"Man is a political animal," said Aristotle — and that is why homo sapiens is inclined to be such a monumental bore, and why we may be excused for a sense of frustration and weariness over Vietnam, the Middle East, student riots, campus dissent; and closer to home, white papers, regional government, budgets, education and all the rest of it.

Canadians need to expand their interests, in the manner of the British and as a study of the "personal" and "letters to the editor" columns of a journal like The Times reveals. Here we have real "involvement," with readers sounding off on everything from cruelty to animals to whether the Shetland Islands would be better off administered by Denmark.

But there we are again in the realm of politics. Perhaps there is hope for us all in consideration of the letter from Mr. Rose on this page today. It points the way to an enlargement of our interests and is a reminder that there is more to this world than the perennial topics mentioned above.

Slip of the Tongue

Did Princess Anne deliver herself of an old-fashioned — and quite respectable — expletive in Sydney the other day? Attending an outdoor show with the Queen and other members of the Royal Family, the princess was quoted as saying, "I can't see in this bloody wind." Now it could have been just "ruddy" which is a slightly more ladylike version of the same thing. In any event it is vintage British, or Australian for that matter; and if it was in fact expressed by the Queen's daughter it surely have added a piquant touch to the proceedings.

The Silly Season...Or

Belleville by Any Other Name!

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As this is a very dull season of the year, in between just about everything except work, and particularly so for Maple Leaf hockey fans, this is perhaps an appropriate time to air things up with a fierce public controversy and for lack of anything better (or perhaps much worse), this might be a good time to start arguing about changing our city's name from Belleville to a properly pronounced by most of our local citizens — to something more exciting.

Consider the results in terms of publicity of a switch over to such names as say Babylon, Stalingrad, Atlanta of the North, Gomorrah (we have an idea of what went on at Sodom but nobody is quite sure what happened at Gomorrah), Issegard, Beaverbrook, Calcutta West, Mohawkopolis, New Baghdad, Upper Appomax, Needhamchester, Martin Luther Kingston, (names such as MacKenzie Kingston will be sternly rejected), or perhaps to lend a suitable loyalist and British flavor — Little Muddle on the Moire.

The writer feels that your respected journal will perhaps desire to offer a substantial prize such as a one - way ticket to a riot at Chicago or a trial before Judge Hoffman, for the best essay with the best name, to be written only upon the interlocks of unused 1969 income tax returns, on what or whatever of the above or any other nomenclatures do most fittingly, (and if possible not unstatistically), describe, and surround with an appropriate parboula of civic virtues, our commonly held civics mores, customs, history, aspirations and perhaps to include as well the mysterious miasma of our mouldering hockey rink.

This project, between the end of hockey and the start of football and summer vacation, should keep a few people, or even students, out of mischief — and incidentally make some slight use out of at least one federal bureaucratic form.

Any essays written in the French language should have to be submitted to the Bilingualism and Biculturalism Commission who will no doubt report back with a further $1,000,000.00 account in 5 years.

Community College Graduates Can Be in Jobs and Earning Three Years Beyond Grade 12

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It is said that you shall know a tree by its fruits. Evidently, society at large is now recognizing the fruits of the community college tree, and by the value employers place on them. A report recently released by the Federal Pay Service Bureau, on "Anticipated Recruiting Rates for 1970 University and College Graduates" states that the mean pay for a university Pass Arts graduate this spring will be $549 per month, while the mean pay for a community college Technology graduate will be $545 per month.

However, the university Pass Arts student in Ontario takes four years beyond Grade 12 to graduate, while the community college student takes only three years beyond Grade 12. Despite the one year less time taken, the community college student still receives more total hours of scheduled instruction beyond Grade 12 than does the Pass Arts person. This, of course, is one reason he is now worth as much to society as the university graduate. For the same reason, job placement is relatively strong for the community college graduate this year, even though general unemployment is rising. In the year saved, the community college graduate is working as a productive member of society has earned $9,540. In paying taxes, and has ceased to be an educational burden on the taxpayer. Fruits such as these are indeed worthy of recognition.

"Army Day" was observed at the Elwanis Club luncheon at the Centre when the members listened to an instructive address by Colonel E. E. Rodgers, C.B.E. Quarter - Master General of the Canadian Army.

Visions of a brand-new Belleville sports and social centre, which will embrace indoor sports [illegible] and yachting have matured into reality. Total organization of the new centre which will be known as the Belleville Racquet and Yacht[illegible] g Club was completed at a well attended meeting in the YMCA Heading the new club's executive is T. A. Carruthers.

Thirty-six hundred apples or approximately 11 barrels passed from the cold storage hands of Boy Scout Troop members at their annual Apple Day which netted the Scouts roughly $150.

Employees of the Frontenac Construction Co. started the demolition of the south half of the property occupied by the Canadian Department Stores. The north half of the building now in use will be razed and the new one completed before the end of the year erected. This activity marks the beginning of the end for a business block which has been under its former owners, the Ritchie Co. Ltd.

Twenty-two members of the Toronto Rotary Club visited the newly-formed Belleville Rotary Club and presented to it the charter which completes the organization of the club. A banquet was served at Hotel Quinte at which W. B. Deacon presided in the absence of the president, E. Gus Porter. Mayor W. H. Ellis extended the freedom of the city to the visitors and presented them with a key of masonic proportions which was made by the Belleville Hardware and Lock Co., Alderman Jamieson Bone, president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Chamber. Secretary W. L. Doyle read a number of letters from distant Rotary Clubs congratulating the Belleville Rotary Club into the magic circle of good fellowship and useful service.

God Alive on Yonge Street Amidst Garish Neon Jumble

TORONTO (CP) — God is alive on Toronto's Yonge Street, amid that garish jumble of neon lights, bowling music, taverns, stores and restricted movies, says Rev. Joseph MacDonald.

He is always where the action is, adds the 32-year-old Cappella priest. If a proper meeting place is available.

To provide that meeting place, where people can escape the hustle and bustle of the downtown street for a while, Father MacDonald recently opened a Shopper's Drop-in and chapel just east of the street.

"We aren't pushing coffee and doctrine," he says. "It's where people can be easy-talk, meet others, visit the chapel only when they want to."

He said in an interview there should be more drop-in centres — not missions where food is exchanged for a sermon but places where "there is a feeling of community, even when people are on the move."

"We should have the unofficial church in the lobby of apartment buildings, shopping malls."

There is a small sign on the door's glass window to guide shoppers, the curious and the religious to the second floor.

The sign, saying simply Shoppers Drop-In, may be impersonal, but the atmosphere at the top of the stairs is as homey as in an old-fashioned kitchen.

There is a brightly lit big room with yellow cupboards and a serving bar; adjoining it is the chapel.

Before visitors have a chance to catch their breath there is a volunteer guiding them to a table and a cup of coffee.

Before long, the visitor will find himself caught up in conversation with other persons — maybe with the man who comes to daily to eat his lunch; or the salesman from the shoe store below; or a high school girl.

What do visitors talk about?

Volunteer Catherine Cady said they can talk about anything because there are no age barriers. "They can sit down with anybody — there is a free feeling. Women don't feel that they will be misunderstood if they talk to a man — that they are looking for a pickup."

Because of the chapel corner or later the talk turns to religion, says Father MacDonald, but there is no design to bring in doctrine.

"It's a humanistic thing, a meaningful thing. Just sharing Christianity over a cup of coffee," he adds.

Fight for Men's Minds Subsides

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (Reuters) — The great battle for men's minds which raged across Eastern Europe in the late 1940s and the 1950s between Roman Catholic and Communist leaders has given way to a relatively tranquil coexistence.

Only in tiny Albania—proud to call itself the first atheist state of Europe—are priests still subject to harassment, and churches, as well as mosques, converted into movie theatres or potato warehouses.

Elsewhere in the Communist states of Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania and Yugoslavia, church bells peal out on Sundays and feast days and believers worship without incurring more than a moderate leg of disapproval.

In some of these countries a man may even be both a card-carrying Communist party member and a Catholic, although both organizations may frown upon this practice. The continuing church-state truce is even being bolstered by elaborate acts of state reconciliation.

The Vatican is preparing, quietly but optimistically, for the first visit ever to be made by a Pope to a Communist country—Poland, where 25,000,000 population includes 24,000,000 Roman Catholics. The visit is expected to take place either late this year or in 1971.

Yugoslavia, with 6,300,000 Catholics, is even planning to put its relations with the Vatican on an official footing by opening diplomatic relations. This would make it the first Communist state in the post-war period to reach this stage of "religious tolerance."

In other areas of the former Communist - versus - Catholic battle, private agreements and relaxations have taken the place of mutual recrimination.

An impartial survey of the ideological battleground after this prolonged clash of ideas between Rome and Moscow shows that despite heavy setbacks in some countries—notably in Romania and Czechoslovakia—the Roman Catholic Church has survived as a formidable force.

But the Communist siege was not only lifted when the ideological thrust of Stalin's post-war drive into Europe had become largely a spent force—some time in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

During the struggle, priests, bishops and cardinals were imprisoned or driven into exile and countless members of men and women suffered for their beliefs.

On the basis of Vatican assessments, there still are more than 45,000,000 Catholics in Eastern Europe, excluding the Soviet Union where the Orthodox Church has always been the largest religious organization.

Not only has communism been unable to eliminate Catholicism, but in traditionally Catholic countries such as Poland the church has actually increased its adherents—from 22,000,000 to 34,000,000 since the end of the Second World War.

Still in sanctuary in the United States embassy in Budapest is Hungary's Josef Cardinal Mindszenty.

The cardinal was tried for treason in 1946 and given a life sentence. During the 1956 Budapest uprising he was released by freedom fighters and sought sanctuary in the U.S. legation.

Once a controversial figure in the Cold War era, the cardinal has been largely forgotten in his own country, and he remains a source of embarrassment to the Vatican and to the United States. Both would prefer him to leave the embassy and retire to Rome.

But Mindszenty, adling yet still stubborn as he approaches his 78th birthday, is holding out for total rehabilitation by the Hungarian government. He also has refused to keep silent in Rome should he be given free passage out of Hungary.

A MARCH HOLIDAY

"Columbus put in at the Canary Islands on his first voyage and it was from them that his ships finally set sail on their great adventure across the uncharted ocean." — Travel Notes.

* * *

Should you enquire about the main tourist city of Tenerife Island, which is the largest of the seven Canary Islands (a Spanish possession since the 15th century), the answer is: a place about half the size of Belleville, named Puerto de la Cruz.

It originally was a small fishing village, on the island's north side, where waves of the Atlantic playfully splash, as if wishing to join in the fun with holidaying tourists from all over the world; who live and stay now in the swiftly growing number of sea-side, cliff-clinging, high-rise hotels and apartments, the year round.

Fascination lies everywhere. We explored narrow, crooked streets, packed with chic, tiny shops and boutiques, snapped camera shots of such scenes, people and places as the interior of a shoe store whose owner claims he has the last footwear on rare antique pieces of furniture and implements, ranging from an old beautiful Spanish desk to a wine press used in local vineyards in the early days. "No, those are not made in Italy, but in Majorca. Shoes from there are fantastical. . ." a tiny sales girl says of a pair we buy.

Or the exclusive jewelry filled with beautifully wrought shop filled with beautifully wrought Spanish gold and silver pieces, and browsing customers are served red wine, compliments of the house;

Or of the English lady, owner of a dress shop, saying: "I have a son in Vancouver, a daughter in Edmonton, whom I visited while in Canada. But — I love it here. I have my own apartment, a little car. I taught myself Spanish by talking with the local people sitting in the park, just across from here. I'd like to stay, but one needs money. There is no pension — as in Canada, for those of us who grow older. . .".

Or on a street that joins the Atlantic (surely one of the most romantic in all the world), as the curve of colorful Arab bazaars follow its line; the blue sky for a roof, the ocean nearly daring to flow over one side.

One evening we motored to the capital, Santa Cruz (125,000) on the Island's south shore for a Chopin recital by the famed concert pianist Nieland. "born 105 years later is a small village, birthplace of the great composer;" says Mr. Leon Zuckert, one of Canada's leading violinists, composer and conductor, who with his wife Ella was a member of our Canadian party.

"It was at Santa Cruz a visiting prima donna was showered with rose petals until she stood ankle-deep in them after her recital," we once read. This was the first time we had heard of the Canary Islands. Now as we entered this seaport, "a small seabell headed with a dusty glow, dusk-like and uncertain," it seemed more than a coincidence. It was a right-down, happy, thrilling miracle.

Canadian Styles Gain Popularity

SASKATOON (CP) — Canadian women are wearing clothes by Canadian designers—and that's a relatively new phenomenon.

Marielle Fleury, a Montreal designer who was in Saskatoon to show a collection of all-weather coats, said that a few years ago all Canadian manufacturers used to buy New York styles.

But now many of them have their own designers and they are bringing a new viewpoint to the fashion scene, she said.

Marielle, who attended Montreal's School of Fine Arts, originally intended to go into advertising. However, she was interested in fashion, so two university years' training at a Montreal fashion school and later went to work as a designer for a fashion house.

About eight years ago she opened her own fashion boutique and began using hand-woven fabrics. There were so successful she took her collection to Europe one year, showing it in London, Paris and Milan.

For this spring she predicts the Wet Look as most important is rainwear. It results from plastic izing a cotton fabric.

Square Grand Piano Has Now Disappeared

Pianos were advertised in Canada as long ago as the late 1780s. Organ manufacture was established first about 1820 and also made pianos. Piano manufacturing did not become an important industry until the latter half of the century.

Extremes of Canadian climate play havoc with imported pianos. Canadian cabinet woods are dried to a much more rigorous standard than is necessary in Europe. Nowhere is this more apparent than in the sounding board of a piano which in most early imported models, cracked, producing an unpleasant vibrato. This tendency to crack provided a considerable inducement to making pianos on this side of the Atlantic.

By the 1840s there were a number of piano manufacturers listed in Montreal but by the '90s Toronto eclipsed that city as a centre. In 1857 Theodore Heintzman made his first Canadian piano there after emigrating from Germany via Buffalo, New York.

Heintzman worked in New York as an apprentice to Heinrich Steinway, a young man who had been a bugler in the Prussian army under Wellington at Waterloo. Steinway established his name in Steinway and his company continues to flourish in the United States.

Abraham and Samuel Nordheimer started a music business in 1840 at Kingston, Ontario, later moving to Toronto. They established other branches in Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton and London. In the 1880s they were bought up by Heintzman.

Mason and Risch started in the 1870s and continue to manufacture. John Fox was an important piano maker in the last century. He was taken over by Weber and Co. A. P. Willis started a piano factory at Ste. Therese, Quebec in the same period. Two other early firms, Sherlock-Manning, began in 1875 and Les Pianos Lesage, began in 1881, continue to manufacture.

It is reported that purchase of a piano was the stipulation of many brides moving to the west at the turn of the century. Pianos were shipped in the most unlikely ways and turned up in the most unlikely places in gold-rush days. Eastern manufacturers were quick to set up western branches and promote sales. Catalogue and mail order sales prospered under a protective tariff that made U.S. prices prohibitive.

Piano styles had evolved to their present shapes by mid-19th century. Early uprights had very high cases, frequently with doors or drapes. One style, the square grand, has disappeared. It was unfashionable by 1860 but may still be found. Heintzman made a number with a cast iron frame-stamped "Heintzman and Co. Toronto Pat Dec '73", pictured here from a catalogue of the '70's.

Early pianos usually have cracked sounding boards and are almost impossible to tune. They are sometimes valuable because of their cases. In the period before 1850 frequently only the top of the key was finished in ivory.

Square grands sometimes have experimental keyboards larger than average keys, or more than 88 keys. Reportedly a few have elliptical keyboards and some have rounded cases. They require a special tuning hammer and usually new strings. Size, 9 feet by 4 feet and weight, usually about 1,000 lbs. pose additional problems. Their massive size make old pianos unsuitable for most modern living areas.

One Gets Used to the Hairy Look

By DORIS CLARK

Hair — Hair — Hair! The controversy rages. Don't look now, mother, but I think the new 'look' is wigging.

The other day my good friend, a mother of three boys, said her middle boy (a college student) has now removed his beard but added a long fancy sideburns and a droopy moustache to the picture. She is getting used to him and his pals, and their luxuriant locks.

Then her eldest, married son came to see her and was clean shaven, short haired, and as short-looking that she felt like saying to him, "Don't you think you should let your hair grow just a little bit longer?"

We had a good laugh over that one!

* * *

Dear Doris: A reader was asking what happened to the Crystal Palace.

Until three years ago our address was "Crystal Palace, London," but it was just a postal area. The palace was built on the top of a hill, and burnt to the ground. All that was left were the impressive wide garden steps leading from one level of a lawn to another, with each side guarded by some sort of majestic creature in concrete and stone.

In the lower part of the grounds there is now a racing circuit. In one part is an ornamental garden with shrubs and flowers and strange statue of prehistoric monsters concealed amongst the trees and foliage.

There were plans to build a sports stadium and another for indoor bicycle track racing. — Old Londoner.

* * *

Dear Doris: As a child, just before the second world war, we always watched the Friday night fireworks from the Crystal Palace from our bedroom window. Then one Friday evening there was one big fireworks, with a red glow in the sky until daylight.

All that remained of the famous palace were the twin towers. These were removed during the war, because they were considered a landmark for enemy planes. The palace was never rebuilt. — Pat-ricia.

Dear OLD London and Pat-ricia: Thank you. Mother Shipton predicted the fire but neglected to mention what the spot would become next, besides a postal area.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a widow and I live with my daughter who is concerned and has a little girl. I work but my daughter has mother's allowance. My daughter is a hairdresser and it is a sin for this to go to waste.

What I want is to find a house where we can have a beauty shop attached, but this is not possible without cash. Is there any organization that would help her achieve this, on a loan basis, of course? — Just Molly.

Dear Molly: Without security it isn't easy to borrow money. But you could discuss your daughter's plan with your bank manager.

As an alternative, your daughter might:

(1) Clear a few yards of space right where you are for a chair and other equipment, to get started; and offer to go into homes to do hairdressing for those who can't get out. Or,

(2) Get a job in a hairdressing salon, temporarily.

Either way, this would help you save up for that necessary down payment for a house.

(There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Ann Landers
Teen-ager Becomes Prematurely Gray

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I realize the chances that you will print my letter are one in a million but it's worth the try. I'm a 15-year-old girl whose hair is turning gray. Premature gray runs in our family and there's nothing I can do about it.

The kids at school have begun to notice and I get teased a little. Although I laugh it off, it bothers me.

Can you suggest a rinse that will not look artificial? My natural hair color is dark brown. Thank you. — QLD BEFORE MY TIME

ANN LANDERS

DEAR O.B.: You can go to a beauty shop and get some professional counsel. The decision should be made by an operator who can look at your hair and advise you on the basis of color, texture and style.

If I were you, though, I'd leave it alone. A high school girl with prematurely gray hair would be a standout in any crowd.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to say something to that big mouth who is obviously a man-hater from way back. True, girls don't get themselves pregnant but most of them know what causes pregnancy and it is their responsibility to avoid it.

The letter made it plain that the boy did his darndest to get rid of the girl but she chased him shamelessly and finally wore him down. I know how predatory females operate because a certain sex-bomb has been chasing me all over the campus for two years.

I've never asked her for a date. I've never given her a phone call, in fact, I don't give her the time of day. But she turns up where I happen to be, grabs my arm and kisses, slobbers all over my face, and I can't get rid of her. Once she was waiting for me outside the men's john.

Not all females are strong, Ann. I can understand how a guy can be taken advantage of if he doesn't have good sense and will power. Just sign me — HATE AGGRESSIVE FEMALES.

* * *

DEAR H.A.F.: What do you have that's so special? My readers will surely be asking me. What shall I tell them? I've never heard of a man being raped by a woman but if you don't reduce the animal magnetism you might be the first. Have you considered a chastity belt?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How can I get rid of a creep who won't give up? I'm a 16-year-old girl who knows lots of answers but not this one. To make matters worse my mom thinks this kid is great.

Whenever he calls on the phone Mom is so friendly it encourages him. Every time Mom and I get into a discussion about this pest we end up in a fight. She keeps wanting to know why I don't like him. I tell her it is because he is so sweet and attentive he makes me sick to my stomach. She says this is a crazy reason. Do you know what I mean? Please put it into words for me. I'm — STYMIED.

* * *

DEAR STY: Yeah, I know what you mean. No challenge. Some girls can't stand a guy who is decent and considerate. They find life much more exciting when they are kicked around. I hope for your sake that you change your tune.

Points for Parents

Mother: "I want everybody to pitch in and help me clean the house every Saturday, and you must all help, keep it that way during the week. I won't have as much time to do housework now that I'm going to the office every day."

Mother: "If you will each take care of your own room and help with tots or three other chores, I think we can keep the house looking nice. I've listed the things that have to be done so you can choose what you would like to be responsible for this week."

A working mother has to organize a housework plan if the necessary chores are to be done without confusion. Schedule definite jobs each week, so each family member will know what to do to help.

On The Job

ALBION, N.Y. (AP) — Mayor William Monacelli hired his second cousin's wife, Janice Monacelli, as a meter maid in the western New York village. When Mrs. Monacelli began her new job, the first car she tagged was the mayor's. "I'm pleased she's on the job," the mayor said, "even though it cost me a buck to find out."

Kitchen Tested Recipes
Congress Squares

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I think I've been reading your column as long as you have been writing it and have enjoyed them all. The local bakery makes Washington Squares and hinting goes me nowhere. Would you happen to have the recipe? — Mrs. Charles G.

ANSWER: The closest I can come at the moment is Congress Squares. Anyway we are in the right city!

CONGRESS SQUARES

Line a 13 x 9" pan with rich plain pastry rolled ⅛" thick, lining sides to height of 1".

FILLING:
2 eggs beaten
2 cups raisins (see notes)
2 cups brown sugar
1 tbsp. melted butter
2 tbsp. flour
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
½ cup chopped pecans (or walnuts)
1½ cups shredded coconut

Turn into pastry-lined pan and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 18-20 min. having pan at exact centre of oven. Cut into 1½" or 2" squares when cold.

NOTES: 1) This filling is reminiscent of a thick butter tart filling which accounts for its popularity, especially since the whole business is done in one fell swoop.

2) Currents or dates may be substituted for the raisins or a combination of raisins, currants and chopped dates may be used.

3) If desired, these could be cut into 2" squares while warm and served as dessert with a little whipped cream or ice cream or while cream cheese.

Sit-ins Staged in Ontario Universities Over Diverse Issues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four Ontario universities have been hit by student sit-ins in the last 11 days, protesting such diverse issues as administration planning policies, teacher firings, funds for a children day-care centre and the quality of campus food.

Sit-ins continued today at McMaster University in Hamilton and at Laurentian University in Sudbury, while disputes have been resolved at the University of Toronto and Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

The most serious of the two continuing demonstrations is at Laurentian, where the university senate suspended all academic activities Friday after the board of governors refused to meet a demand for a joint meeting to discuss administration policies.

The McMaster protest took on a comic aspect Friday when about 30 student protesters occupied the president's office and carried on a debate on food services for 30 minutes before recognizing a man sitting beside the president's desk as acting president Dr. A. N. Bourns.

A 22-hour sit-in by day-care supporters and student activists at the U of T ended March 28 after university president Dr. Claude Bissell promised to find a source for $2,000 needed to renovate the day-care centre. The latter told the centre to go ahead with renovations because the money had been guaranteed by a private donor.

A sit-in begun Wednesday by about 70 students at Ryerson ended Thursday when college president D. L. Mordell called a general student meeting and received overwhelming support in deciding with a dispute over the firing of five teachers hired on probationary contracts.

At Laurentian, a rally of about 500 students decided Friday to extend to other campus buildings the continuing, semi-supported sit-in by 50 to 100 students begun Wednesday in the main dining hall and social centre.

For some months now, students, faculty and the senate—comprising mainly faculty members but including some students and administrators—have been at loggerheads with the governors and Laurentian President Stanley G. Mullins.

The senate, backed by students and faculty, earlier adopted a motion of no-confidence in Mr. Mullins, saying he refused to support faculty positions on long-range planning. The senate also accused the governors of "alienation" from campus affairs.

The dispute resulted in a senate motion Thursday setting a 5 p.m. Friday deadline for a meeting with the board on the issues. When the deadline passed and board announced only that there would be a night meeting of the board's executive committee, a senate-imposed suspension of academic activities went into effect automatically.

Although the suspension will have no practical effect during the weekend, it cancels all lectures and exams—as is the senate's right under Ontario law—for Laurentian's 1,700 students.

The senate is considering means by which final marks can be granted on the basis of the year's work, or on the basis of exams given as the result of agreement between individual students and professors.

Man Is Returning to Work With His Transplanted Heart

MONTREAL (CP) — John Parkinson, 54, who 17 months ago underwent heart transplant surgery, and is Canada's longest-surviving patient, announced Friday he's going back to work May 1.

"Can you imagine, after two years off the job, I'm going back," he said in an interview.

"Hey, it's 17 months ago today since I got my new heart."

The Montreal sales manager received his replacement heart Nov. 3, 1968, in an operation performed by a team of surgeons at Montreal's Royal Victoria Hospital.

Dr. Anthony Dobell said Mr. Parkinson is unique in that he also had a permanent pacemaker implanted post-operatively.

When Mr. Parkinson received his replacement heart it was beating at a low rate of 60 times a minute during the day and dropped to 40 beats a minute at night."

A rate of about 80 is considered normal.

Mr. Parkinson admits with a touch of modesty that he is "pretty good physical shape."

"My God, the doctors say they have rarely seen a man of my age with such a healthy body. I've got the exercise bike at home you know and do about four or five miles a day.

"But now I've got my driver's licence and I'm in the car and zooming around town every chance I get. I drive to the hospital twice a week where I undergo an examination and a program of physiotherapy."

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY.

The local employment picture during the bulgy weeks of spring reflects a decreasing labor demand from a number of sectors of the community's economy.

The decreased requirement applies both to men and to men seeking either full - time or temporary work.

In recent weeks a number of former residents have returned to the area seeking work. Augmenting this influx is the number of persons attracted to the lovely Bay of Quinte area who are also in the labor market for suitable jobs. Illustrating this situation is the fact that the manpower counsellors of this office had 3,007 more client interviews for the fiscal year 1969 than in the fiscal year 1968.

Therefore, competition for employment is very keen in view of the fact that in the industrial complex there has been some reduction in the labor force, together with less activity as yet than anticipated in the construction field.

The labor demand from the services field has remained fairly constant and the demand will show a sharp increase as the tourist season approaches. There will also be the seasonal requirements from local farmers.

It will be of interest to note that new names have been chosen for the Federal Government's manpower programs. These new names will more closely identify the programs with the Federal Government's role in manpower training and with the Canada wide Canada Manpower Centres.

The OTA program, which many people still call Program 5 is now the Canada Manpower Training Program. The other new titles include: Canada Manpower Mobility Program, Canada Manpower Consultative Service and Canada Manpower Services to Industry. Other new manpower programs, as they are developed, will be associated with the Canada Manpower theme.

At the present time, there are a considerable number of persons, both female and male, registered at the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre available for and seeking work. These persons have skills and potential for various types of employment. The large majority of them, are of course, seeking permanent full-time work, others are looking only for part-time or temporary employment.

Employers who have a labor requirement are invited to list their needs with the manpower counsellor who is responsible for the particular type of worker required.

Student Censured

KINGSTON (CP) — Queen's University senate censured graduate student Charles Edwards at a special meeting Friday but decided to permit him to reapply to the university when his present term ends May 31.

The senate did not support a motion from Dean David Slater of graduate studies that Mr. Edwards be suspended.

In December, Mr. Edwards accused his doctoral supervisor, Dr. Henry Becker, of political repression, claiming that Dr. Becker told him to choose between continuing his studies for a PhD in chemical engineering or continuing his radical political activity. He is a member of the Free Socialist Movement.

Student Injured At Lenin Banquet

TORONTO (CP) — One man was injured by broken glass when a fight broke out Friday night at a banquet celebrating the 100th anniversary of the birth of Lenin.

Police said Bill MacPherson, 24, of Barrie, a university student, fell on some glass and suffered cuts to his back. A spokesman at Sunnybrook Hospital said MacPherson was in satisfactory condition.

Earlier reports had said the student had been stabbed during a melee which broke out in the North Toronto Memorial Gardens when members of the right-wing Edmund Burke Society refused to rise for a toast to Lenin.

Banquet guests earlier had been spat upon and pelted with eggs by about 500 members of various ethnic groups who surrounded the building and staged an anti-Communist protest.

Police said one smoke bomb was thrown during the demonstration by a crowd composed of children, juveniles and adults. About 70 policemen were called to the scene, but no arrests were made and no charges are contemplated.

Meantime, a fight broke out inside the hall between guests and about 40 members of the Edmund Burke Society who had purchased tickets to the dinner with the avowed purpose of staging an anti-Communist protest.

What's new?

You won't hear that question bandied about too often in a Volkswagen showroom.
People have come to think that a Volkswagen is a Volkswagen is a Volkswagen.
Which is a pity. Because over the past 3 years, we've made over 75 improvements.
To the engine. Suspension. Interior.
Behind it all is our old fashioned notion that it makes a lot more sense to work on the way a car works every year, than to play around with the way it looks.
So we devote our time to making parts that were good, better; things that were near perfect, perfect.
And that's the reason we don't have a lot of big, fantastic changes to shout about every year.
No news is good news.

Rollins Pee Wees Match Supporters In Tourney Success

By ERIC EMERSON
(Staff Reporter)

"Someone stole my kids," reports Belleville resident Ron Lupunette—And as an avid supporter of the city's minor league hockey program, he couldn't be happier.

Despite appearances, Lupunette's delight didn't stem from the abduction of pesky siblings, but rather an out-of-town "family" that he intended to adopt for the duration of the Belleville Shrine Pee Wee Tournament this weekend.

Perhaps even more encouraging to minor hockey officials than Belleville's 7-2 win over Picton in the opening game, was the enthusiasm shown by local residents in connection with the tournament.

Reports one official, "We thought we we're going to have trouble locating billets for all the players at first, but the response has been fantastic. One man was back three times offering to put up visiting players."

Typical of the spirit shown by many people is Bob Dawson of RR 1 Belleville. Even though he has no kid competing in the tournament, the Dawson farm is currently housing four visiting players.

Rollins Pewees matched the success of their fans yesterday by dashing to an impressive 7-2 win against Picton. Despite the win by Belleville, pint-sized Picton goalie Steve Struthers who was the game's standout. It was largely due to Struthers's brilliant puck-stopping that the home towners kept from reaching the double figures as they were in command throughout the contest.

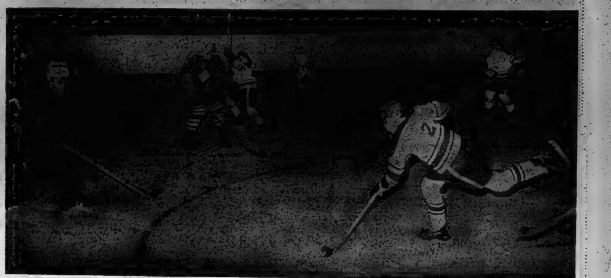
The Price edDward team tied the match as Curt Storey's shot from centre got past netminder Rick Hutchinson. The rather soft goal was the only mistake that the Belleville goalie made, handling relatively few shots on-goal.

Peter Coates fired in a rebound to make it 2-1 and Ross McLeod backed a shot off the goal post for what proved to be the winning goal.



John Vlasblerard narrowed the lead to one goal as his rebound bounced over Hutchinson, who had made the initial stop.

Four consecutive goals by Rollins put the game beyond reach as Coates, Rick Barbeau, Tony Meagher and Gary Thompson all scored.

Belleville's line of McLeod, Barbeau and Coates came through with a strong offensive showing as they notched four of the seven goals for the winners. Other players who played exceptionally well, were centre Tony Meagher and defenceman Peter McBride, who played a strong game on the Belleville blue line.

In other games last night, Napanee edged Trenton 3-1, Peterborough blasted Cobourg 8-0 and Kingston pulled out a 2-1 overtime win against Bowmanville.

Tournament play continues today and tomorrow with the "A" finals at 4.30 p.m. Sunday.

All Out Effort

Belleville peewee, Mike Crawford, puts everything behind a shot as Picton captain John Woodward and goalie Steve Stutherd prepare to block the scoring attempt. Belleville won the opening match of the Shrine peewee Tournament 7-2. Tournament officials were delighted at the enthusiastic support given by city residents in billeting the visiting players.

NHL Old Boys Show Skill In 8-6 Win

PICTON (Staff) — Ten members of the NHL oldtimers team last night skated to an 8 to 6 victory over the Picton Merchants in a game played in Picton's County Centre.

Performing with the style that won them recognition during their years of competition in the NHL, the oldtimers were cheered by a capacity crowd of fans.

Featured event of the evening was a draw for a wristwatch and cash prizes. A draw followed the old-timers victory in the County Centre.

Quinte Dragsters Hope Weatherman Plays 'Never On Sunday' This Summer

While Quinte Dragway officials aren't hoping for a repeat of this summer, they'd like to re-vamp the rainfall schedule to "never on a Sunday", Says Bill Lawson, "We were rained out seven or eight times last summer and I just hope we don't have a repeat performance this year."

Despite the latest precipitation problem — an April snow storm — the dragway will begin operations at Desoronto this Sunday.

Over 400 competitors from as far away as Ottawa, will be competing for the—$1500 prize money that makes the strip the most lucrative stop in Ontario for the drivers.

Last year's opening day crowd was estimated at about 4,000 and officials are hoping for an equivalent turnout this season. Because the races are made up of post entries, it is not known just which drivers will be competing, but a number of "big names" are expected. The bulk of the racing contingents hail from other Ottawa or Oshawa.

Quinte meets, which are sanctioned by America's number one racing body, the National Hot Rod Association, draw an average of about 2,000 fans in the Deseronto strip throughout the summer, to watch machines that occasionally breach speeds of over 200 mph in the quarter-mile.

A favorite feature of the meets is the lady eliminator competition, which began last year as an impromptu affair with six or seven entrants, the event is now one of the major attractions with a special trophy awarded for the event.

Trenton Walkathon for Better Track

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Many Trenton High School students will be walking Saturday, April 11, so that they can help in the future.

If they are successful in their bid to raise sufficient funds their 25 - mile April 11 walkathon, the students will have taken a big stride towards replacing the school's present cinder track.

In fact, they'll have half the cost of an all - weather rubberized track — the first in the Central Ontario Secondary School Association.

Coach Peter Howe of the Trenton High School track club which is sponsoring the walkathon said the objective is $8,000.

When added to the $8,200 raised by last year's walkathon, over $15,000 — almost half of the $31,000 cost of the proposed Permatrac track — will be raised, he explained.

"We hope the rest of the money will be forthcoming," coach Howe noted. A request to the Hastings County Board of Education for the additional money will be reviewed by the trustees during budget debates.

The track club says that a new track is needed because the present track has scarcely any cinders left and the wooden curbs — which are supposed to hold the almost non - existent cinders in place—are rotting. In the summer months the track resembles hard - baked soil.

Perennial champion Trenton High School has played host to the annual Bay of Quinte track and field championships for the past decade and coach Howe boasts the relatively poor times turned in at these meets on the track.

He cites as examples the facts that no sprint records have been tied or broken on the track in the past five years and that Bay of Quinte competitors frequently perform better in meets on other tracks, including the Quinte Secondary School track where a pre-Bay of Quinte meet is held each year.

Advantages of the rubberized track, which has two layers of asphalt underneath, are year-round use regardless of the weather and a financial saving because no maintenance or fencing is required.

The six-lane rubberized track accounts for $28,000 of the $31,000 price tag with the remainder covering the installation of double runways for all jump pits, the high jump, pole vault and all throwing areas.

At present spring rains hamper the staging of and performance in the field events, but Trenton High School is currently the only one in the county with sufficient space and facilities to house a meet the size of the annual Bay of Quinte competition.

Other improvements offered by the proposed facility include changing of the track to metric distance and realtuning of the chute to the west side, allowing all races to finish with the wind rather than against, Mr. Howe said.

Coach Howe explained that the present 440-yard cinder track — which is actually 443 yards long — will be converted to 400 metres. The Canadian Amateur Track and Field Association has adopted metric measurements for both Canadian and Ontario championships commencing this year, so the conversion to metric distances is a logical one, he added.

However, Mr. Howe feels other important benefits would accrue from the new facility. He believes that it would attract more track and field enthusiasts to the area, improve the quality of local performances and provide a suitable site for the staging of Ontario, Eastern Canada and even Canadian championships.

"This new facility would be a benefit to the whole area, Peter Howe emphasized. "I hope that it would bring about a union of the Belleville and Trenton track clubs to create a strong Bay of Quinte track club along the lines of the Uplands Harriers in Ottawa."

This year's 25-mile walkathon will commence Saturday, April 11, at 8.30 a.m. from Trenton High School, proceed west on Hwy. 2 to the Wooler Road, north to Wooler, east to Stockdale and Frankford then south on Hwy. 33 back to the High school where refreshments will be provided.

The 10-member track club walkathon committee headed by chairman Duncan Rogerson is following the procedures established last year under the direction of Lee Street. These include the setting up of 10 or 11 check points and the recruiting of six or eight girls to act as secretaries on walkathon day.

An age restriction of 11 and over has been set and track club members have visited Trenton's senior elementary schools to recruit walkers and promote the walkathon. An added incentive to the walkers will be provided in the form of cash and other prizes.

Mr. Howe, who will walk the distance himself, said: "The enthusiasm seems to be very high this year and the outlook optimistic — I'm hopeful of 600 walkers participating."

Sponsor sheets have been distributed throughout Trenton, but as a protective measure, Mr. Howe cautions residents not to let walker unless the Trenton High School seal — in the form of a paper impression — appears on his sponsor sheet.

New Track in Offing

Henry Sonneveld, Doug Grady, Roy Walt, Bob Canuel and Jim Steevie of Trenton High School are among the students attempting to raise money for a new all-weather track. Trenton coach Peter Howe, whose charges perennially dominate the local track scenes, feels that the new track would greatly improve Bay of Quinte track records and enable the school to host major meets.

Rollins Pee Wees Match Supporters In Tourney Success

"Someone stole my kids."

Sports Belleville resident Ron Lapensée—And as an avid supporter of the city's minor league hockey programs, he couldn't be happier.

Despite appearances, Lapensée's delight didn't stem from the abduction of pesky siblings, but rather an out-of-town "family" that he intended to adopt for the duration of the Belleville Shrine Pee Wee Tournament this weekend.

Perhaps even more encouraging to minor hockey officials than Belleville's 7-3 win over Picton in the opening game, was the enthusiasm shown by local residents in connection with the tournament.

Reports one official, "We thought we we're going to have trouble locating billets for all the players at first, but the response has been fantastic. One man was back three times offering to put up visiting players."

Peters' String Ended

Expos Edge Oriole Ace in Ninth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston's Gary Peters yielded his first run of the spring Friday—an unearned eighth-inning tally—before the Red Sox rallied for three runs in the ninth and a 3-1 exhibition baseball victory over Cincinnati Reds.

The Reds, held to two hits by the former Chicago White Sox' pitching ace, ended his scoreless string at 21 2-3 innings on a throwing error, by rookie third baseman Luis Alvarado.

Boston, which had managed only one hit off rookie Wayne Simpson through the first seven innings, then struck back in the ninth, scoring the tying and winning runs on Tony Conigliaro's double and a wild throw to the plate by Reds' second baseman Darrel Chaney.

While Peters, who will open the season for the Red Sox at New York Tuesday, continued to shine in sunny Florida, St. Louis Cardinals whipped Eddie Stanky's South Alabama college team 8-2 at Mobile, Ala.

In other exhibition games, Atlanta Braves downed Oakland Athletics 4-2, Montreal Expos nipped Baltimore Orioles 3-2, Chicago Cubs outslugged Chicago White Sox 13-12, Pittsburgh Pirates blanked their Columbus International League farm club 5-0 and Cleveland Indians bowed to their Wichita American Association affiliate 7-5.

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — John Boccabella scored on Bob Bailey's squeeze bunt in the ninth inning to give Montreal Expos a 3-2 exhibition baseball victory over Baltimore Orioles Friday.

DAVE McNALLY

Boccabella led off the inning with a double and moved to third when pinch-hitter Mack Jones grounded out.

John Bateman's two-run single in the second inning gave Montreal a 2-0 lead against lefty Davey McNally, who pitched three strong innings. Both runs were unearned, the result of the first of three errors by shortstop Mark Belanger.

McNally, Baltimore's probable opening-day pitcher Tuesday in Cleveland, allowed only three hits, struck out eight and didn't issue a walk.

Later-Day Loyalist Leads Record Assault

WINNIPEG (CP) — Byron MacDonald, a 18-year-old from Chicago who decided he would rather swim for Canada than the United States, led the assault on the record book during the second day of the Canadian indoor winter nationals and Commonwealth Games trials.

MacDonald set one of four records Friday and stole the spotlight as he also bettered the existing

'Arnie' Charges to First-Round Lead at Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Arnold Palmer is 40 years old but he is still the greatest attraction golf has known and he still gets the job done.

The game's all-time leading money winner fashioned a sparkling first-round 64, seven under par, and was tied for the top spot with Tommy Aaron going into today's second round in the $180,000 Greater Greensboro open golf tournament.

Palmer drew a galloping herd of fans from the huge gallery of about 15,000 and responded to their urging of "Go, Arnie, go" with a brilliant effort.

Palmer and Aaron, who has finished second nine times and scored his only victory last year in the then-unofficial Canadian Open, held a single-stroke lead over R. H. Sikes.

Winnipeg's Wilf Homenuk, with a 39-38—69, led the Canadian contingent. Al Balding of Toronto was another stroke back at 23-47—70 and George Knudson of Toronto withdrew after shooting 37-41—78.

"I was hitting my irons pretty good," Palmer said. "But I've been hitting them pretty good for a while. Actually, it was getting a couple of putts to drop that kind of got me going.

"I had about a 25-footer on the second, and, well, you might say I charged it a little. I ran it about 15 feet past and made it coming back.

"On the next one, it was about 20 feet and I played just a little cautious. I left it 30 feet short, then made it. That kind of helped."

He birdied the next three holes, putting a seven from four feet from the flag, canning an eight footer and two-putting a par five that he reached in two.

He also ran in a 25-footer, reached another par five in two and had irons shots that left him birds of two, one and 2½ feet. He went over par once when he missed the green on the 18th.

'Lord Can't Help Leafs' Says Coach

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If the mood of Toronto Maple Leafs players is anything like that of their coach, Boston Bruins tonight should have an easy time eliminating their 47th year-old Toronto jinx.

The Bruins haven't won a National Hockey League regular season game at Maple Leaf Gardens since Nov. 27, 1963. But with their hopes for the East Division title depending on a sweep of their weekend home-and-home series with the Leafs, the Bruins aren't likely to let old records dampen their desire.

And judging from coach Johnny McLellan's mood, the Leafs will be hard-pressed to stop the Boston squad, either tonight or Sunday in Boston.

After supervising the Leafs' last season practice Friday, McLellan admitted he had taken on an impossible task trying to make a contender of the team that will finish last, some 20 or more points out of the playoffs.

"There's no way to win with this team, not even with God as coach," said McLellan.

But even with victories in both weekend games, the Bruins are not guaranteed of finishing first, any more than Oakland Seals are sure of gaining a playoff berth in the West.

The Seals scored a 4-1 victory over last-place Los Angeles Kings to break out of a tie with Minnesota North Stars and into another tie with Philadelphia Flyers. The North Stars, with a game tonight at Philadelphia and another Sunday at Pittsburgh against the Penguins, could still pull ahead of both the Flyers and Seals who each have only one game remaining.

But the Seals would have to lose their last game tonight at Los Angeles, the Flyers and North Stars would have to tie their game and Minnesota would have to win at Pittsburgh to eliminate Oakland from the playoff picture.

The second-place Penguins visit the first-place St. Louis Blues tonight in the other remaining West Division action.

JOHN McLELLAN

home series against Montreal Canadiens, starting tonight in The Bruins' hopes for the East title also rest on a loss or tie by Chicago Black Hawks who wind up with a home-and-

Montreal. The Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings also are within range of the top spot.

The Leafs are tied with Bruins at 25 points, followed by Detroit at 23, Montreal at 22 and New York Rangers at 20. Detroit and New York face off in the other home-and-home series starting tonight in Detroit.

The tight East race contains 125 different possibilities for the final standings after Sunday's games, according to a computer study made by the NHL New York office. The only constant in all 125 possible endings is that Toronto will be last, the computer reported.

It was the 53rd loss of the season for the Kings, breaking Chicago's losing record of 51 set in the 1953-54 season.

Ted Green Fit

OTTAWA (CP) — Defenceman Ted Green of Boston Bruins will stand trial next Tuesday on a charge of common assault arising from an exhibition National Hockey League game played here last September.

The charge arises from a stick-duel between Green and Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues. The incident put Green on the sidelines for all of the 1969-70 NHL season.

A charge of assault causing bodily harm against Maki was dismissed last month by Judge Edward Carter who found that Maki acted in self-defence in using his stick against Green.

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Green, Boston Bruins defenceman injured in a pre-season game against St. Louis Blues, has been pronounced medically fit to play hockey, the National Hockey League club said Friday.

The Bruins said Green, who suffered a fractured skull in a stick-swinging duel with Wayne Maki of the Blues, was given the go-ahead to play Wednesday by Dr. Robert G. Ojemann, head neurologist at Massachusetts General Hospital.

As a result, the Bruins said they believed Green began serving his 13-game suspension for his part in the fracas as of, Wednesday.

The official decision on when Green began or begins serving the suspension, however, must come from Clarence S. Campbell, National Hockey League president, who said previously that he would accept the word of a qualified doctor on when Green would be fit to play.

The suspension was not to begin until Green was physically capable of playing hockey.

Terriers Win

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Power-play goals played a major role in the first game of the Allan Cup quarter-final Friday night as Orillia Terriers shaded Sault Ste. Marie Canadians 6-5.

The Canadians rebounded from the Terriers' fifth goal at 4:18 of the first overtime with a tying goal by Jim Booth. It came during an interference penalty to Orillia's Carl Hiemers.

The winning goal was scored at 2:36 of the second overtime period when Mike Draper tipped Clare Alexander's shot into the Canadians' net. Canadians' Anthony Cascaden was sitting out an interference penalty.

Second game of the best-of-seven series is scheduled here Sunday.

Interest Cut Still Pushes Stocks Higher

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets moved ahead moderately this week, riding the waves of last week's prime lending rate reductions in the United States.

Markets rose sharply late last week after word began circulating Canadian financial institutions cut their prime rates to eight per cent from 8½.

A drop in prime rates—the interest charged to a bank's best customers—could mark the ceasing of tight monetary conditions that have depressed markets since last June.

Canadian markets were strong Tuesday following a move of a temporary restriction on the outflow of short-term Canadian funds imposed last July and effective January.

Louis Rasminsky, central bank governor, said Monday the bank was withdrawing a special request made last July to Canadian financial institutions, limiting the volume of funds being lent abroad in form of swapped deposits.

Swapped deposits are funds converted into foreign currency, usually U.S. dollars, which have been placed on term deposit with a bank and which the bank has undertaken through a forward contract to convert back into Canadian dollars at maturity.

The swapped deposit technique becomes attractive when foreign interest is high, providing a better return than that of a domestic instrument.

When the temporary ceiling was imposed effective as announced last July, the Bank of Canada bank rate was increased one half point to a record eight per cent at the same time.

There was no mention of a reduction in the bank rate this week, but some observers expect a reduction some time within a few months.

A Bank of Canada bank rate cut would be followed by a prime rate reduction and would loosen the federal government's stranglehold on monetary conditions, imposed to fight inflation.

Canadian stocks advanced for three consecutive sessions after the removal of the temporary shroud of restrictions before dropping back Friday.

Statistically, on index at the Toronto Stock Exchange, the industrial index rose 1.18 to 185.33, golds 14.73 to 172.98, base metals 4.68 to 117.51 and western oils 1.83 to 195.58.

Volume was 11,386,000 shares compared with 10,202,000 last week. Gains outnumbered losses 436 to 211 with 343 issues unchanged.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index was up 2.36 to 183.36. Combined volume was 7,364,000 shares compared with 8,111,000 last week.

Gains outnumbered losses 182 to 167 with 182 issues unchanged.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Like everyone else, I am worried about cancer — but even more so. Lately I have noticed a change in my bowel habits. Instead of daily regularity I have become quite constipated. Then I'll have a few days of diarrhea and constipation again. I haven't noticed any blood in the stools. Is it possible I may have serious trouble? Is it something important enough for investigation? — Mr. H.

Comment: Unconsciously, perhaps, you remember one of the seven warnings of the American Cancer Society, when you speak of a change in bowel habits. The fact that you haven't noticed any blood isn't proof it isn't there. Special tests often show its presence when not suspected. Therefore, it's evident that I believe it's time for a medical investigation.

Now, what does that mean? Not just a rectal examination with forefinger. For complete investigation of the lower bowel you will need to have a sigmoidoscopic examination. This is direct look at the bowel walls through a long, lighted tube. Your doctor will also undoubtedly order special X rays of the lower bowel (a barium enema).

It's possible, of course, that your bowel has just got lazy, Mr. N. But if you don't have a checkup you'll only be guessing. Time is of the essence. If the trouble is due to cancer (whether of the rectum or the lower bowel) an operation can be quite effective. If you receive a "not guilty" verdict then you can breathe the proverbial sigh of relief.

If o n e t h i n g h a s e v e r b e e n p r o v e d in making the rounds of the true diagnosis. Blood in the stools and constipation is often blamed on them; and no thought given to possible trouble "further up."

I believe a good rule is this: Whenever there is a persisting change in bowel habits — especially in the presence of apparently bleeding hemorrhoids — the time for examination is soon rather than later.

Dear Mrs. H.: Sometimes acute appendicitis can be overlooked — especially in the very young and in the elderly. Pain does not always begin on the lower right side of the abdomen. Usually, it spreads all over and localizes there later. Most patients have some nausea and vomiting and fever. But I have seen many patients without these symptoms and signs, yet operation revealed a "red hot appendix."

• • •

For Mr. G.: It is interesting that you rely so much on your dog for first aid. Letting him lick a wound or infection because you think his saliva has some curative powers has no scientific basis for truth, as far as I know. Personally, although I'd appreciate Fido's willingness to help, I'll put my faith in antibiotics rather than in food licks of my dog's tongue.

• • •

For Mrs. Z.: You say that your husband has given up smoking cigarettes because he has trouble with his leg circulation. But turning to chewing tobacco all day long is certainly not a helpful substitute. He' only rationalizing. Many throw their chests out in pride because they have given up smoking — then with equanimity and smug satisfaction, take on some other bad habit.

Change in Habits May Be Warning

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For April 5

Your birthday today: Your present efforts at personal improvement now start to reap rewards. Luck in material matters runs strong and positive in ratio with the direction and drive you put into your ventures. There is also a premium on being the first to get an early lead on competition. You may have to neglect hobbies and social matters somewhat in this year's turmoil.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): An early impulse to extravagance has to be redirected. Your finale has a few things to say, as well. Prepare by switch plans and schedules without quibble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): People are inclined to be agreeable but limited in what they can afford and the distance they can travel. Close friends have projects in mind that sidetrack some of your schemes.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): This Sunday do what is expected of you by your community in gracious manner. The opportunity exists for making important new social connections if you keep matters very simple.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Social activities, particularly where politics or business interests are concerned, vaguely connected, run into unwanted expense without desired results.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Other, more strenuous people seem bound to overde pleasure-seeking and spending. Matters at home get complicated enough to force changes of plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This Sunday mind your manners, make all the graceful moves quickly, and watch closely what everyone else does. You learn a great deal if you can refrain from getting involved in easy disagreements or squabbles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Now is the time to join forces with friends and neighbors; alike views and tastes to work out a better understanding of your situation and common interests.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your temptation this Sunday is to use it for thinking out business or commercial plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Be alert for the needs and hopes of your loved ones today. Alienate — seeking newcomers, distractive outside interests should not be allowed to upset your home life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your social life now slows down a bit with the tide of the times and keep everything simple.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): The division between intellectual interests and strictly family emotional sharing is quite always today. It is better to let aside solitary pursuits like puzzle-working and letterwriting in favor of togetherness.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Relatives and their expensive ideas can be quite expensive in time as well as money. Leave commercial and business deals out of your schedule today — after all it is Sunday.

For April 6

Your birthday today: What ever your past up until the present has been, it serves only as an introduction to your future. You have about a year in which to get rid of useless or outdated possessions and bad habits. By now you should have a glimpse of the seemingly improbably events and situations which will come to pass in another couple of years.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Travel or correspondence will add to your useful knowledge today. Talk to visitors, strangers; ask for a variety of questions for a difference of viewpoint.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Investigate matters which have been obscure or confused. Get your facts straight; start wh neglected or incomplete pr jects. Clear off as much work as you can, then take a complete change of pace for relaxation. Settle any home issues quickly and firmly.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): New friends are all around you today. Make interesting developments known so all can share and bring support for your projects. Useful deals are handy.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your regular work and business affairs should be very interesting today. There is room for shortcuts, revised methods. Look for new skills and fresh perspectives.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Get out early and make the rounds of your neighborhood, renew acquaintances. Friends and relatives have interesting information. Partnerships go well, especially if you must be sure to spell out exactly what each partner is supposed to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Detailed care is essential with communication today, particularly with financial matters are amenable to simplification. Add to your savings accounts.

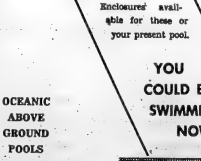
LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Continue the good co-operation of recent days, bring in more people to help. Public relations and the spread of information are strongly favored and produce unusual results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Now is the time for all kinds of new starts; the beginning of diet regimens and preventive medical care, breaking of bad habits, study of metaphysical and occult subjects.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Young people demand advice, loans, co-operation. Seek expert counsel for any technical problems. Medical diagnosis is more direct and effective now but must be done by qualified, licensed doctors. Begin a health-care program.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Appeal to the reason of all concerned in your home and working place. What you know today is more important than mere physical effort.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Intellectual activities thrive. Attend conferences, compare notes and discussions, communications and exchanges. Study in the evening should include review of your progress and current situation.



PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Without going to extremes, make full use of all opportunities today. Most things fall into place smoothly. Avoid dawdling and get as many details covered as the hours available permit.

Financier Brought Back

Million-dollar Fraud Charged in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — A. G. Duncan Crux, extradited from the Bahamas to face fraud and theft charges involving about $1,000,000, was brought back here by RCMP Friday night and booked into a city police cell.

The 63-year-old lawyer-financier, former president of the now-liquidated Commonwealth Trust Co., was brought to provincial court today. The Crown planned to seek a remand to April 6.

Crux was brought here by commercial jet after losing a 10-month battle in Bahamian courts against a Canadian extradition bid. His last-ditch appeal to the Bahamian governor was rejected this week.

He thus became the second former officer of the B.C.-based Commonwealth financial empire to be brought here to face charges. Cornelius Polvliet, 59, arrested in California last Oct. 1, is in custody here.

Also facing charges is Margaret Harling, 55, Crux's former law partner, free on $15,000 bail. Prosecutor Ken Fawcus said he hoped to bring them all together in court April 20. Mrs. Harling's next court date.

The Commonwealth investors Action Group, representing investors, currently is seeking B.C. government compensation for losses the group puts at $1,562,477. Several say they lost their life savings.

Last year, after months of tortuous investigation, one weary investigator said the extent of dealings in the Commonwealth financial group may never be brought fully to light.

At the time of the RCMP raids, assets of five major companies in the group were frozen by court order. The proceedings didn't apply to the trust company, which went into liquidation last December.

A. D. Peter Stanley of Vancouver, then receiver-manager, said the raid-freeze action was taken because of fears that $50,000,000 to $80,000,000 could be lost through misuse.

A total of 21 charges of theft and fraud involving about $1,000,000 were filed against Crux in Vancouver and Nassau.

Polvliet, brought here from Bakersfield, Calif., March 24 after waiving extradition proceedings, was remanded in custody Friday to April 9 on 17 counts of fraud and theft involving more than $80,000.

Mrs. Harling was charged last June with nine counts of fraud and theft involving about $715,000. Some charges were laid jointly against two of the three, some against all three.

One count alleged Crux and Mrs. Harling defrauded two firms of securities valued at about $715,000 in causing the firms to provide the securities to Commonwealth Investors Syndicate Ltd.

A string of civil suits, brought by investors in Commonwealth group companies and other persons, rage in the United States, are at various stages of progress in B.C. courts.

Spy Boat Is Sunk

SEOUL, Korea (AP — A speedboat believed carrying North Korean spies to South Korea was sunk in a four-hour battle early today, the South Korean defence ministry announced.

It was the third sinking of a North Korean infiltration craft since last September.

The defence ministry said all 15 crew members of the 50-ton speedboat were drowned. The South Koreans suffered no casualties and the three ships which took part in the battle against the North Korean craft were not damaged, the announcement said.

A defence ministry official said the incident was similar to two previous sea battles in the same area in which a 72-ton North Korean infiltration boat was sunk last Oct. 14 and another similar to the one in today's battle was sent to the bottom last Sept. 24.

Emergency Cabinet Meeting Discusses Montreal Mail Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — Amid rumors of an impending resignation—which were later denied—the cabinet held an emergency session Friday to discuss the Montreal postal dispute, but after the eight-hour meeting there was no indication of what decisions, if any, were reached.

Prime Minister Trudeau emerged from the meeting about 6:30 p.m. and declined to give any details of what went on inside.

"We do you fellows wait around here?" he asked reporters, who had been standing outside the cabinet room for several hours.

"We're not going to have press conferences here," he said.

Earlier, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, rumored to be on the verge of submitting his resignation, said there was no truth in the reports.

"None at all," he said. "None at all." He called it "an unfortunate rumor."

At the end of the session, he laughed at the repeated question and said: "When I go, I'll go in style."

He then said he was off on a vacation to do some swimming in the Azores. He later went into Mr. Trudeau's office, but said he was merely discussing departmental business that may come up during his absence.

Mr. Trudeau declined to give any details of what went on at the long cabinet meeting, called shortly after he returned from...n British Columbia skiing holiday.

The meeting was believed to have been called to give further consideration to the recommendation of mediator H. Carl Goldenberg that Montreal mail truck drivers be incorporated into the public service.

Rifle Bullet Fired Through Mail Truck's Windshield

MONTREAL (CP) — An emergency federal cabinet meeting in Ottawa discussed Montreal's mail dispute, a rifle...in Montreal fired into the windshield of a rented postal truck Friday.

Rejean Masse, an A. F. Ballargeon Express driver who was driving his vehicle in the downtown CNR- Bonaventure terminal yards at the time of the incident, said he heard two shots but did not see the culprit. He continued his mail delivery afterwards.

Postal officials said a 22-calibre rifle was used in the shooting.

Meanwhile two other Ballargeon trucks, not hired to carry mail were damaged by vandals Friday. There were no injuries.

Eighty-five rented trucks made deliveries in Montreal's 33 postal substations as the city's former mail truck drivers, unemployed since the government takeover of city mail transportation Wednesday, met for the third day to discuss strategy.

A post office spokesman said Friday attempts to obtain trucks, drivers and mechanics were being made in the hope of improving service next Monday.

The spokesman said 200 applications for drivers' jobs had been received when a special employment office closed at noon Friday. None was from former Lapalme employees.

With most of the rental trucks occupied with deliveries of first-and-third-class mail, the parcel backlog was estimated at about 80,000 pieces.

Six rented trucks and an escorting security car were attacked Thursday. Windows were broken, and, in two instances, tires were slashed.

Breath Test Status Confused

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A British Columbia Supreme Court decision nullifying the federal law on compulsory breath analysis tests caused confusion in at least one Canadian courthouse Friday, but judges generally were in favor of maintaining the status quo on the results of an appeal are known.

Justice Minister John Turner said the B.C. Court of Appeal has been asked to deal as early as possible with an appeal lodged by the B.C. attorney-general's department against the ruling by Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe.

Mr. Turner said the judgment Thursday by the B.C. justice is not "technically binding" in other provinces. He also said the federal justice department "will be involved" in the appeal by B.C. Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

No date has been announced for hearing the appeal.

The situation caused some confusion in Toronto courts.

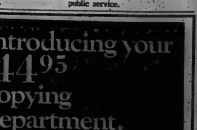
Another judge, Norman Glasell, accepted guilty pleas from seven men charged with driving with a blood alcohol level greater than the permitted amount of .08 per cent. The defendants were fined $120 to $200 each.



But in Victoria, Judge William Oatley advised a defendant to reverse his plea of guilty. John M. Sloan of Victoria took the advice and the charge was dismissed.

Officials of the Metropolitan Toronto police and Ontario Provincial Police said the province's forces will continue to abide by the federal law "until we get further instructions."

Bernard Jean, justice minister of New Brunswick, issued a statement Friday saying the B.C. judgment will have no effect on enforcement of the legislation in his province.

Philip P. Weinberg, batonnier of the Montreal Bar, said Quebec courts are "not absolutely bound" by the B.C. court's decision, but a sessions court judge here would have to consider the decision when presiding in such cases.

Some Fish Released for Sale

Analysis Results of Fish Called 'Encouraging'

OTTAWA (CP) — Results of federal government analysis of mercury pollution in Lake Erie and Lake St. Clair fish "are encouraging," a spokesman for Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Friday.

Although further analysis is necessary, he said, some stocks at the Olmstead fish plant, barred from export sale because of pollution warnings, were released Friday on the basis of the preliminary figures.

Officials from Ontario and the federal fisheries department met all day Friday to decide if the meetings were not disclosed.

The federal spokesman said assistance to fishermen was the main topic at Friday's meeting. Some 3,000 fishermen have been affected by the federal government's ban on export sales of fish caught in lakes St. Clair and Erie.

The officials also discussed the standards used in measuring mercury pollution.

The federal government says the danger level is .5 parts of mercury per million parts of fish. A test last month of Lake St. Clair fish showed counts up to 1.3 parts per million.

Federal tests are carried out at fisheries laboratories in Winnipeg. Further results of analysis are expected before Tuesday's meeting.

The blame for mercury contamination of Lake St. Clair has been placed on Dow Chemical of Canada's Sarnia plant. Lake Erie mercury pollution has been attributed to Wyandotte Chemicals Co. of Wyandotte, Mich.

Check Windsor Area Residents for Mercury

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The medical officer of health for Essex County said Friday he will check selected area residents for minute traces of mercury, even though the search may be fruitless.

Dr. Joseph R. Jones, director of the Metro Windsor-Essex County health unit, said the search "is a good idea" for persons who eat quantities of fish because quantities of the poisonous element have been reported in some Great Lakes fish.

Joint Commission Meets

WASHINGTON (CP) — The International Joint Commission Friday wound up what was described by a Canadian spokesman as a "routine" four-day meeting on United States-Canada problems.

The commission, with jurisdiction over mutual problems concerned in the use and regulation of waters forming or crossing the border, meets here and in Ottawa each year.

The spokesman said the commissioners, meeting behind closed doors, heard various reports but declined to be specific about the agenda. He said no statement would be issued.

Meanwhile, a delegation headed by R. Caplice, director of industrial waste of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, also has been in town to discuss pollution problems with U.S. officials.

A spokesman for the federal Water Pollution Control Administration said there was a closed meeting of "about 20 persons, including a number of Canadians" in that office here Thursday.

Later the Ontario group sat in on a session of the IJC meeting.

Shulman Believes Mercury May Cause Mental Illness

TORONTO (CP) — Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) suggested Friday that the mercury pollution of fish in the Great Lakes may provide an opportunity for developing a treatment for some forms of mental disorder.

He said, however, that mercury poisoning may be a cause of severe mental illness.

Dr. Shulman said in a statement the Ontario Department of health should begin an immediate study in mental institutions on the mercury content in the bodies of persons suffering from some disorders, and that an autopsy should be done on the body of every person who dies in a mental hospital.

Dr. Shulman said that in investigating aspects of the mercury poisoning which led to the seizure of fish caught in Lakes Erie and St. Clair, he conferred with doctors doing mercury research for the federal government.

Dr. W. Holworth of the seed agy department, University of Western Ontario, informed him that mercury fed on fish with mercury in their bodies developed a "myelinization" of the nerves.

This is an effect on the myelin, the coating on a nerve, which acts as a short-circuit in the nervous system.

Dr. Shulman said the studies can be "highly important" since human myelin sheaths are the same way as that in other higher animals.

"It is quite conceivable that ingestion of fish containing mercury over a period of time affects human nerves," he said.

Michigan Rules Fish Are Safe for Eating

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan authorities have concluded that there is no health hazard in drinking water or eating fish taken from St. Clair.

That conclusion is part of a report presented to Gov. William G. Milliken Friday by experts in the state departments of agriculture, natural resources and public health following study of reports of contamination from mercury discharge.

The report said the health department found no mercury contamination in Lake St. Clair drinking water and no evidence to suggest Michigan should restrict commercial fishing in Lake Erie.

The natural resources department said it would not curtail sport fishing on either lake. The joint report said: "There is no risk of toxicity or illness in sport fishermen or others who occasionally eat fish from these waters."

At the same time, Wyandotte Chemical Corp. of Wyandotte, Mich., announced it would reduce by a ton a week of mercury discharge into Lake Erie to a maximum of one to two pounds daily by April 15 and hopes to eliminate it entirely within six months.

Fishermen Awaiting Compensation Policy

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Lake St. Clair Commercial Fishermen's Association is waiting for a government policy announcement about compensation for loss of revenue because of the mercury pollution before deciding whether to take any action against Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd. in Sarnia an association spokesman said Friday.

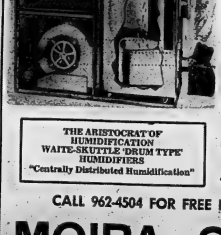
Leon McPherson, lawyer for the association, said compensation to the fishermen would have to include the loss of revenue from the fish that have been seized by the government, the loss of money from the fish that have already been caught and released back into the lake and the cost of compensating for the total length of time the ban will be in effect.

However, he said, before any action can be planned the association must know what action the two governments plan for compensation to the fishermen.

Eddy Won't Allow Checks

OTTAWA (CP) — The E. B. Eddy Co. paper plant has refused an Ottawa city council request for unencumbered spot checks on the effluent the mill dumps into the Ottawa River.

In a letter to council, released Friday, W. C. R. Jones, company president, described the request for unannounced sampling by independent inspectors as unnecessary. Mr. Jones noted he had already stated earlier that the plant does not use mercury in its industrial processes.



Mr. Jones admitted the company previously used mercury in its manufacturing process but had been able to replace it with other compounds.

Consul Evades Hail of Shots

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil (AP) — The U.S. consul in Porto Alegre was recovering today from a slight wound suffered in thwarting a kidnap attempt. He used his car to run down one of the kidnappers, and they let loose a hail of bullets as he escaped.

Curtis C. Cutter, a 41-year-old Korean War veteran, became the first diplomat in Latin America to personally defy a kidnap attempt since the wave of political abductions started last September. There have been eight previous kidnappings or attempted kidnappings in Latin American countries.

Cutter was driving home late Saturday night with his wife, Catherine, and a former state department official, Hoyer Clark, when a gang in a car in-

U.S. Camp Near Laos Besieged

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops from Laos have laid siege to a frontier Special Forces camp and shot down three American transports trying to drop emergency supplies, killing all nine American crew members, military spokesmen reported today.

The heaviest action of the six-day-old guerrilla offensive continued along the Laotian and Cambodian borders and the demilitarized zone. But fighting also was reported in the Central Highlands and the central coastal plain.

Communiques reported 203 more North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers killed in a dozen fights, three of them just outside the besieged Dak Seang Special Forces camp eight miles from the Laotian border and 277 miles northeast of Saigon.

Eleven Americans were reported killed and 20 wounded in the ground fighting and in 41 rocket and mortar attacks during the night.

'Fair Tax' Body Asks For Delay

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Council for Fair Taxation today called on the federal government to delay implementation of its white paper taxation change proposals to allow time for further study.

The council's 10,000-word brief to the government released today makes 46 suggestions for major changes. The council describes itself as a "national, non-profit organization of Canadians from all walks of life concerned about the increasing role of government in our lives, and the tax burden this places on its citizens."

The brief says the government "should announce immediately that no attempt will be made to rush through the proposals by Jan. 1, 1971" to allow time for discussion and analysis of the actual legislation.

It called for more information from the government on how various proposals would work, and what the government plans to do with the additional revenue which would result from the proposals.

Kidnapped Man Is Murdered

GUATEMALA CITY (Reuters) — The body of West German Ambassador Count Karl von Spreti, kidnapped by terrorists Tuesday, was found Sunday night on the muddy floor of a derelict shack on the northern outskirts of Guatemala City.

An anonymous telephone call late Sunday night sent police and troops hurrying to the spot.

"There is a corpse on Kilometre 17 on the road to San Pedro," the caller said.

The 62-year-old German ambassador's body lay on the floor of the roofless cottage, still warm and with a small trickle of blood oozing from a bullet wound in the temple.

The count, father of three children, was still wearing a crumpled blue suit he had on when he was kidnapped and was clenching his rimless glasses in one hand.

At his feet lay his dark sunglasses. All his small personal belongings, including a golden family signet ring, were scattered around him.

Police investigators said the kidnappers took the count to the shack and shot him in the left temple. Then they arranged his belongings around him.

There was no sign that the place had been used as a hideout during the last five days.

The count is believed to have been executed about 7 p.m. (9 p.m. EST) by a leader of the left-wing Rebel Armed Forces (FAR) who snatched him from his chauffeur-driven car Tuesday and demanded $700,000 and the release of 25 political prisoners as the price for his life.

The Guatemalan government consistently refused to meet the demands.

The Associated Press quoted Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany as saying during a visit to El Paso, Tex., that his government was willing to pay the ransom "but unfortunately all this was to no avail."

A long cortege of soldiers with machine-guns and police with automatic weapons escorted the ambassador's body to the centre of Guatemala.

It is expected to be flown home today after an official post-mortem here.

Countess Helene von Spreti, wife of the murdered envoy, was told of the death of her husband just after she arrived back here from a cruise off the coast of Africa.

She arrived by air from Rio de Janeiro almost exactly at the minute her husband is believed to have been shot.

The papal delegate here, Magr. Gerolamo Prigione, who was acting as mediator in the negotiations over the kidnapped ambassador, said: "It was a useless, useless crime."

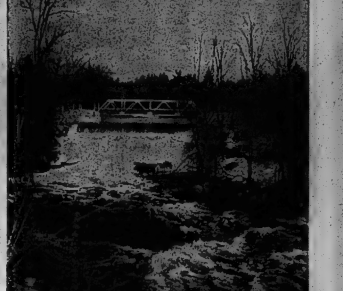
Diplomatic officials here wept and embraced when they heard the news of their colleague's death.

"He was one of the most sincere men in the diplomatic corps here," a European embassy official said.

Germany Withdraws Diplomats

BONN (Reuters) — West Germany will withdraw its charge d'affaires and other embassy staff from Guatemala following the murder of its ambassador Count Karl von Spreti, Foreign Minister Walter Scheel announced today.

The minister told a news conference the government reserved the right to take further steps as soon as it had received a detailed report from its special envoy, Hans Wilhelm Haefs, sent to Guatemala to negotiate the release of the ambassador.



He said: "The Guatemalan government is apparently not able to guarantee the protection of the representative of the federal republic under the norms of international law."

Earlier, sources said it had been suggested to the Guatemalan ambassador in Bonn, Felipe Antonio Gandara, that he leave West Germany. An anonymous caller at the Guatemalan consulate in Hannover today told officials over the phone: "The building will be blown up today because of the beastliness in Guatemala."

Gandara was summoned to the foreign ministry this morning for a meeting with State Secretary Georg Ferdinand Duckwitz and for an afternoon meeting with Scheel.

California Freeway Patrol Squad Slain

SAGUS, Calif. (AP) — Four young California highway patrol officers were shot to death late Sunday night as they checked the car of two men who had been driving along a mountain freeway pointing guns at motorists.

Sheriff's deputies searching for the assailants surrounded a small house about five hours later and were engaged in a gun battle with persons inside, believed to be the assailants.

Officers said one suspect was believed severely wounded in the original shootout. With two patrolmen dead and one mortally wounded, the last officer had held off the two gunmen alone for five minutes until he was hit by a shot in the face, a witness said.

The men fled in their red, late-model sedan as 40 customers in a nearby coffee house huddled on the floor. A car of that description was found about 10 minutes later on a dead-end street about a block from the shooting scene.

About 40 customers were in the all-night coffee shop, including some 30 young church group members taking a breather from a charter bus trip.

"I just heard the shots and saw some guys running around the cars in the parking lot," said manager Al Sims, 49.

"I told everyone to lay on the floor next to the counter. They were real cooperative."

While crouched behind the counter, he said, he called the Highway Patrol, which sent more cars immediately.

Sims said he heard "dozens of shots fired."

'March for Victory' Held

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever other purpose it may have served, the March for Victory gave thousands of middle-aged and conservatively dressed Americans a chance to be heard.

"This is our day," said Rev. Carl McIntire, the fundamentalist preacher and chief organizer of the event, who led the march Saturday down Pennsylvania Avenue to the Washington Monument. There, a loudspeaker blared:

Crowd estimates varied. Washington Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson set the number at 10,000 to 15,000. Federal Park Police estimated about 40,000, while McIntire said 50,000 persons marched. About 250,000 persons were estimated to have walked the same route in the November Moratorium Day protest against the Vietnam war.

Unlike last fall's youthful demonstrators with their long hair and unorthodox clothes, the weekend crowd was mostly over 30, had shoya-the-war hair cuts, and wore their Sunday-best outfits. Some held Bibles and American and Confederate flags. They sang hymns, America, Dixie and God Bless America.

The event was billed by McIntire as a demonstration for military victory in Vietnam — an answer to last fall's anti-war marches.

At the rally, speaker after speaker called for military triumps in Vietnam as a "holy war against communism."

tercepted them. Several men wearing dark glasses and carrying machine-guns jumped out and headed toward Cutter's station wagon.

The consul stepped on the gas and pulled around the car blocking his path, hitting one of the men and dragging him on the bumper for several yards. The other kidnappers opened fire, wounding the consul slightly in the back, but he was able to drive to his home a few blocks away.

Police said the assailants were members of the leftist Armed Revolutionary Vanguard. They picked up their injured comrade and escaped.

Guards were put on Cutter's hospital room, his house and the homes of other diplomats.

Appeals were broadcast over radio stations in the area for all doctors to report any cases of auto injuries they treat. Police said they found the car used by the attackers. They said it had been stolen last month.

Cutter joined the foreign service in 1957. He served in Phnom Penh, Cambodia, Lima, Peru, and Washington before coming to Porto Alegre last November. The Cutters have six children.

"This latest act of terrorism heightens our concern for the safety of our diplomatic personnel," U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick said in Rio de Janeiro Elbrick himself was kidnapped last Sept. 4 and was released after the government freed 15 political prisoners.

Elbrick now is constantly accompanied by Brazilian security police. Other security measures taken by U.S. diplomats in Brazil have not been made public but it is known at least some have been given the choice of carrying guns.

'March for Victory' Held

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever other purpose it may have served, the March for Victory gave thousands of middle-aged and conservatively dressed Americans a chance to be heard.

"This is our day," said Rev. Carl McIntire, the fundamentalist preacher and chief organizer of the event, who led the march Saturday down Pennsylvania Avenue to the Washington Monument. There, a loudspeaker blared:

Crowd estimates varied. Washington Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson set the number at 18,000 to 15,000. Federal Park Police estimated about 40,000, while McIntire said 50,000 persons marched. About 250,000 persons were estimated to have walked the same route in the November Moratorium Day protest against the Vietnam war.

Unlike last fall's youthful demonstrators with their long hair and unorthodox clothes, the weekend crowd was mostly over 30, had above-the-ear hair cuts, and wore their Sunday-best outfits. Some held Bibles and American and Confederate flags. They sang hymns, America, Dixie and God Bless America.

The event was billed by McIntire as a demonstration for military victory in Vietnam — an answer to last fall's anti-war marches.

At the rally, speaker after speaker called for military triumps in Vietnam as a "rally war against communism."

Police Seek Youth in Trenton Stabbing

TRENTON — Local police today were continuing the search for a youth following a stabbing incident in Zeller's Dundas Street West store Saturday at 12.15 p.m.

Trenton Police Chief R. J. Rutherford described the youth as approximately 18 years old, between five foot three and five foot six inches in height, with dark hair and medium complexion. He is believed to be sixty, weighing approximately 140 pounds.

The incident occured when the youth, wearing dark trousers and a navy or black hip-length pile coat, stabbed Robert Richard Thivierge, the store's assistant manager, following a confrontation near the front entrance of the store, Chief Rutherford explained.

A spokesman - for Zeller's said that Mr. Thivierge, 22, asked the youth "to come and see the manager because it was obvious he was trying to leave the store with some merchandise".

"Then the youth just turned around and stabbed Mr. Thivierge in the stomach," the spokesman added.

"I can't remember something like this ever happening in any store — it's just ridiculous," said the spokesman.

Mr. Thivierge, in Trenton just one week, is in "satisfactory" condition today in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Chief Rutherford has requested that anyone with any information pertaining to the stabbing contact police as soon as possible.

Police so far have been unsuccessful in their attempts to apprehend the youth who disappeared in the crowd of Saturday - afternoon shoppers on Trenton's main thoroughfare.

Surplus in 1969, Planning Board Budget Higher

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board ended 1969 with a $4,121 surplus.

Underspending on board member's allowances was the main reason for the surplus. Fewer meetings were held last year than planned when the budget estimates were made.

However, the board's budget will be up this year by $12,-249. The total estimated budget for 1970 is $71,404. The actual expenditures in 1969 were $53,125.

Salaries account for the budget increase. In addition to annual increments, the board is now paying the equivalent of two additional full salaries. It has hired a third planner for the staff, and two employees who worked half-time for the board are half-time for the committee of adjustment last year are now on staff full time. They are the secretary-treasurer and his stenographer.

The board's revenue comes from municipal levies in Belleville, Thurlow and Sidney, from application fees, and map sales.

In 1970 Belleville will contribute 62.19 per cent of the budget or $45,138. Thurlow's share is 11.74 per cent or $7,876 and Sidney's, above 1.07 per cent or $4,872.

Fan Motor Believed Plaza Fire Cause

A faulty exhaust motor has been blamed for a $200,000 fire at the eastern Belleville Shopping Plaza early Saturday morning.

Belleville Fire Department chief Leo Culhane said this morning that an exhaust motor in the ceiling of the Shoppette at the Plaza apparently ceased stopping the exhaust fan. However, the engine kept running and the resulting heat ignited and caused the fire.

Mr. Culhane said that there was no way the Shoppette operator, Keith Allison, could have noticed that the exhaust motor trouble when he locked the store at 11 p.m. The motor is hidden between the ceiling, and the roof of the combination gift store and restaurant.

The flashings were reported late Saturday afternoon following investigation by Detective Fire Marshal's inspector Paul McKerracher, and fire department inspectors, Paul Stephenson and Reginald Cartwright.

The fire broke out shortly after midnight Saturday morning, destroying the Shoppette and damaging a beauty salon, laundromat and barber shop as well as causing smoke damage to three other businesses on the east side of the Shopping Plaza mall.

It's Time To Glide

With the return of spring - like weather, glider activities are on the rise at the Belleville Flying Club east of the city.

Sunday, under what was described as "perfect" conditions, two of the silent soaring machines circled about the sky as pilots sought out lifting thermals to extend their stay aloft.

Then he became interested in powerless flight.

"I think it's great — it's a wonderful experience," said Mr. Jourard as he waited Sunday for his turn at the glider controls.

The Belleville Flying Club has graduated about a dozen glider pilots since it commenced training in powerless flight.

Six-million-dollar Resort Development Planned Near Marmora

Believed one of the largest year - round resort developments ever undertaken in Canada, a Peterborough real estate firm has commenced a $6,000,000 land development in Lake township, 25 miles northwest of Madoc.

The Peterborough firm of Bowes and Cocks will develop 1,600 acres of lakefront property on four beautiful lakes, Dickey, Perch and Lost Lakes and Lake of Islands.

The development, to be known as Shawnee, is being carried out by Charlotte Properties Ltd. of Peterborough.

During the past winter 25 - man work force has been busy clearing the bush for roads and building sites. This force will shortly be increased to 100 when actual construction begins.

Shawnee is expected to cost about six million dollars by the time it is completed in five years time.

Stage one of the development now underway includes 128 registered lots on the north and east shores of Dickey Lake.

Lorne C. Bateman, special promotional consultant for Bowes and Cocks said, the core of the development would be architect designed vacation homes on wooded lots overlooking the lake.

Hastings county warden John Wilkes, reeve of Marmora and Lake townships said today that the development would mean much for his municipalities.

He said the developers would build all the necessary roadways and have already commenced construction of a three-to-four miles of road.

Entrance to the development will be just west of Murphy's Corners.

The minimum price for a completed cottage and lot will be $18,000, this to provide a five-roomed cottage of British Columbia cedar with planking, water pressure system and heavy duty wiring.

Prices would range up to $35,000 or more for larger lots and custom built homes. Lot sizes are approximately three quarters of an acre with 100 feet lake frontage.

A marina, service centre and trading post will be built and eventually pathways, beaches, camping and picnic areas, woodland trails and ski hills will be provided.

Mr. John M. Bowes of Bowes and Cocks, said one of the principal aims is to preserve the natural wilderness setting of the area while providing good access to the lakes and residential areas.

All buildings will be at a discreet distance from the waterfront.

"Right from the beginning we have been very pollution - conscious," said Mr. Bowes. "We want the lakes to be as clear and pure 10 years from now as they are today."

Warden Wilkes said he understood the first of the lots being offered by the development company went on sale in Toronto last Friday.

Breath Tests

It has been proven that introduction of breathalyzer tests last December has resulted not only in a reduction of alcohol consumption among Canadians but also in fewer impairments among drivers.

It is regrettable then, that for the time being at least, this federal law should have been ruled invalid by a British Columbia Supreme Court judge. This means that in British Columbia, a motorist refusing to take a breath test cannot be charged. Moreover, while the ruling does not apply outside British Columbia, there is evidence that it is having, in the words of Alberta Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart, a "persuasive effect."

That federal government has acted promptly in initiating appeal proceedings and will go to the Supreme Court of Canada if necessary. At the same time officials should move to plug the loophole which Mr. Justice Munroe said rendered the legislation null and void. He said the cabinet, without power to do so, removed a "safeguard" section that Parliament had approved. This section had to do with providing a driver with a sample of his breath, so he could have it independently tested if he so desired. But scientists have not been able to design a container that would preserve such a sample in its original state, so that the safeguard has little practical application.

The result is that a piece of legislation of proven value, which has added greatly to the safety of Canadians and has saved many lives already, is being held to ransom on the strength of a ruling by a provincial judge. Technically, the judge may be correct, but from the point of view of maintenance of safety on the highways, in terms of placing the lives of motorists once again in greater jeopardy, his decision is a mischievous one.

Computer Marvels

Computers are involved today in many functions demanding rapid calculations that would be beyond the ken of the human brain, or at least would take much to long to perform.

Like those studies of the National Research Council into the fire risk in high-rise buildings and into methods of construction that would minimize the risk; as well as in many other phases of creative endeavor, from shipbuilding to the unravelling of the mysteries of an historic civilization.

Romain Wilhelmsen in his recent presentation, "Yucatan Trails," in the Kiwanis Club's travel and adventure series, showed Mayan inscriptions on the wall of a cave and noted that these have thus far defied translation.

According to George St. George's recently-published book on liberty, however, three young scientists in the Soviet Academy town of Akademgorodok, using computers, broke the mystery of the ancient Mayan writings, long considered indecipherable.

St. George however does not go into detail, and just what the scientists came up with apparently has not yet been recorded in the West. Perhaps the Soviets will share the secret, one which for many years has been of consuming interest to archaeologists and scholars around the world.

It is fascinating indeed to contemplate this marvellous world of computer science. In the same vein as the Soviet study of the Mayan symbols, a report from Jerusalem says that computer tests have proved virtually beyond a doubt that two Isaiahs, probably living 200 years apart, wrote the biblical book of the same name.

The tests analyzed stylistic and linguistic details, leading biblical scholar Yehuda Radday to the conclusion that two writers were involved. Chapters 40 to 66 of the prophet's work, he claims, were written by the second Isaiah, a contemporary of the Persian King Cyrus, believed to have lived in the year 530 BC and to have witnessed the rebuilding of the temple.

Later this month similar prodigious feats of analysis will be accomplished as another Apollo mission heads for the moon, and we are reminded once again of the essential orderliness of the laws governing the universe. Only man is the disrupting influence.

U.S. Visitors

The Easter holiday weekend, as we noted the other day, produced a large volume of traffic and it would seem seen the first visitors of the year from the United States driving along Pinnacle Street, studying an Ontario map as they stopped at the Bridge Street lights, was a young couple from New York state. Another vehicle with a lone driver, hailed from California. And there have been others — a car from Connecticut on Highway 14 across the bay, and so on. They represent the beginning of the traditionally big influx from south of the border.

Will News Be 'Managed?'

'Information Canada' Chief's Link with Party in Power

The Globe and Mail

Information Canada was established by simple executive decree. No legislation was drafted. No Act was passed. Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau simply announced that the agency would be created and by providing for it in the estimates recently tabled in the House it was, in fact, created. The appropriations in the estimates for Information Canada have not yet been voted on. If the vote went against the appropriation it would mean the end of the agency. But it is inconceivable that Liberals would bite the party to oppose the agency.

So it's here with us to stay, Mr. Trudeau has said that Robert Stanbury, Minister without Portfolio, will be responsible for it while it is being set up, after which it will be transferred to the Department of Supply and Services. And now the Cabinet has appointed Jean-Louis Gagnon to be director at a salary in the $30,000 to $40,000 range — the same range as deputy ministers receive.

Thus the agency has been created by the Government, its director has been appointed by the Government, both are responsible solely to the Government and can be removed or dismissed by the Government. Yet they are supposed to supply by the public, objective, unbiased and full information.

Immediately there is a conflict of interest. It's difficult for anyone to be unbiased about his employer, especially when his job depends upon nothing more than the decree of his boss. Moreover, Mr. Gagnon's past connection with the Liberal Party as chairman of the Quebec Liberal Party propaganda committee does little to cool apprehensions already aroused by this conflict. Especially when Mr. Gagnon's official biographical sketch by the government with the news of his appointment, contained no mention of his past party service.

Whether or not the director of Information Canada shows favoritism to the party in power he will always be suspected of it because of the nature of their employment relationship. The only way to eliminate this conflict and give citizens some assurance of impartiality is to make the agency and the director responsible to Parliament instead of the Government.

President exists. The Auditor - General, although appointed by the Cabinet, reports directly to the House of Commons and can only be dismissed by a joint resolution of the Senate and Commons. The Representation Commissioner is appointed by the House of Commons and can be dismissed only by vote of the House. Similarly the reports to the Speaker of the House. The Chief Electoral Officer reports to the Representation Commissioner but is appointed and can be dismissed in the same way. These provisions are contained in separate Acts of Parliament and can't be altered without a parliamentary amendment.

The posts and their occupants are treated in this special way because they deal with extremely sensitive matters that are of immense interest to the public and, for the proper functioning of a democratic system, must be free of the taint of partisanship. The same can be said of Information Canada.

Had this kind of procedure been required in the appointment of Mr. Gagnon some related questions could have been asked in the House. For instance, there was the affair of the Montreal reporter who was investigated by the RCMP because she reported the contents of the third report of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism before the report was made public. Officers questioned her and searched her parents' home and the apartment of a friend. They were armed with search warrants claiming that a criminal act had been committed. Mr. Gagnon was co-chairman of the commission. What role did he play in this? Was the police? Did the use of police in this case reflect his views on how news should be controlled?

Mr. Gagnon is jointly responsible for the appointment of a brigade step last December in recommending the establishment of intelligence units throughout the federal civil service. To abandon the bilingual approach in favor of this basically divisive suggestion would be insane. Should the man who made the suggestion be placed in the most powerful position the Government has, after protesting that view?

Questions have been denied the right to be asked on many more questions. We can see no justification for the creation of Information Canada. But the per is being placed upon us and we should at least be entitled to minimal protections.

Some May Not Benefit

Ontario's Supplementary Tax Relief to Pensioners

The Globe and Mail

The most welcome single item in Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton's budget was that which promised up to $100 in supplementary tax relief to elderly pensioners receiving the federal guaranteed income supplement. But the promise is welcome only if it is genuine.

In the Legislature Mr. MacNaughton said, "The Ontario Government will provide up to $100 in supplementary tax relief to all elderly citizens or couples who receive the federal guaranteed income supplement and maintain an independent household. The supplementary tax relief grants will be in addition to the existing basic shelter grants up to the limit of actual property tax liability . . . The supplementary tax relief grants will be available to tenants as well as home owners, but not to pensioners living in institutions or in subsidized senior citizen housing projects."

The supplementary tax relief grants will directly assist almost 200,000 needy pensioners living in their own homes or apartments, at a cost to the province of approximately $10-million per year."

This would seem to commit Mr. MacNaughton to assisting almost 200,000 pensioners at a cost of $10-million, which averages out at $50 apiece.

Outside the Legislature, however, doubts began to arise. The number of pensioners who would be excluded from assistance grew to include those who lived with their families or in rooming houses.

There are in Ontario some 290,000 pensioners who receive the federal supplement. Mr. MacNaughton and his advisers contend that 200,000 of these live in their own or rented housing (that is, in self-contained housing, since he rules out rooming houses). About 115,000 of these, they say, are individuals and the rest couples, so that a total of some 185,000 households (only one grant, it appears, to a household) will be eligible for the new grants. Of these nearly 70,000 are in Metro.

But representatives of six agencies who work with old people say it isn't so. "If you can find anyone who receives the supplement and is paying a normal rent or still owns a house I will be delighted to read about it in your paper," one of them told The Globe and Mail. "Because it's our experience that it just can't be done. How can anyone live in Metro on about $120 a month and not live in subsidized housing or an institution" Or in a rooming house

The only solid figures which Mr. MacNaughton's people produced would suggest that the agencies are right. An existing program permits elderly citizens to defer up to $100 of their annual residential taxes and have them paid out of the eventual sale price of their homes or their estates at death. It has been believed that many pensioners trying to live on from from $111 to $143 a month would fail to take advantage of such a program.

Yet only between 8,000 and 8,500 pensioners have done so, and in the rural areas there will undoubtedly be pensioners clinging to their houses who will be excluded by the new program, and perhaps in the towns and smaller cities. But very few of them will be found in the larger cities or in Metro; the cost of living rules it out. The number benefiting cannot possibly add up to 200,000.

We are therefore left to draw one of two conclusions:

Either Mr. MacNaughton was ignorant of the actual conditions of living which pensioners are compelled to accept.

Or Mr. MacNaughton was making a grandstand play of his election with figures of 200,000 human beings and $10-million.

We shall hope that it was only ignorance. In that case Mr. MacNaughton has $10-million with which he really does intend to alleviate the lot of old-age pensioners.

Certainly help should go to those who have managed to hang onto their homes in spite of the heavy odds, and to those who have been so incredibly lucky as to find an apartment at a price they can afford to pay. Since the program is directed at easing real estate taxes, it would be reasonable to exclude those in institutions and subsidized housing.

But the pensioners most in need of all, and there are many of them, are those who live with a hospitals in a rooming house. These people are often in truly dreadful circumstances, for they must often pay exorbitant rents for inadequate housing and are left with insufficient money for food.

It would be cruel nonsense, moreover, to contend that they do not pay real estate taxes. They not only do, through their rents, but they are denied the existing basic shelter grants which already go to those who are richer.

If Mr. MacNaughton meant what he said, he will get the assistance to this group, by cash grants if necessary.

Recreation Is Vital

Peterborough Examiner

How important is a recreation program to the people of Peterborough? This is a question citizens might well ask following council's recent slashing of the recreation budget from $148,153 to $125,000.

The value of a good recreation program in reducing juvenile delinquency and building healthy young minds and bodies no longer has to be proved. Recreation committees, YMCAs, YWCAs, church workers, Scouts, Guides and others interested in youth have long known the need for good recreation programs.

The recreation committee's work is fragmented with continuing success and without extravagance over the years and contributed significantly to the health and well-being of the community. The severe cutback in its budget is therefore questionable and hardly compatible with the aims of the Duke of Edinburgh awards program in which Peterborough's contribution is among the best in the Commonwealth.

The next left Nauvoo seven years later, after Joe Smith was shot in a riot, and moved across the Great Plains to Utah. The Mormon beliefs were founded on the Book of Mormon, a document Smith claimed to have received on plates of gold, after a series of visions in the 1820s.

Taxes and the Elderly

The Trentonian

That Peterborough private aid to give tax relief to the elderly should become provincial law. At the same time the present law granting tax relief of $1 for $1 placed against the property should be withdrawn; it is a Marxist measure. Peterborough's proposal is simpler. It gives relief up to $100 from education taxes to people 70 or over.

Why not? Why should those who have done their bit, continue to be soaked out of limited retirement incomes? Surely they have a right to the security of life and property in old age. The province should make it a general law.

For German Ambassador

Career of Distinction Was Ended By A Single Terrorist Bullet

LANDSHUT (AP) — Count Karl von Spreti, 63, the West German ambassador found Sunday night dead from a terrorist bullet in Guatemala, was a nobleman who had lived a life as architect, politician and diplomat.

The fruit von Spreti was born at Kerfing Castle near the Bavarian town of Landshut on May 21, 1907, and grew up on its rolling, wooded grounds. His family retained the castle and at his death, his two brothers still lived there.

In 1926, von Spreti attended the technical university in Munich, and after several successes at universities in Ulm and Berlin, he received his architecture degree.

Typical of the attitude of German nobility of the time, von Spreti was sent abroad after his study and worked as an architect in Bombay from 1935 to 1938.

The Second World War brought the bespectacled von Spreti back to Germany and he served in the German army from 1939 to 1945, when he was released to continue his work as an architect. But in 1944 he was recalled into the army and after armistice was signed, he became an American prisoner-of-war.

Politically, von Spreti joined the conservative Bavarian People's party in 1933 and after the war he joined the Christian Social Union, the party that was to dominate post-war politics in Bavaria. The CSU is the Bavarian branch of the Christian Democratic Union.

By 1948, he had gained a seat in the city council of Landshut, 50 miles northeast of Munich. He was elected to the German Bundesrag federal parliament in 1949 and served there until he joined the foreign service in 1956.

During his two terms in the parliament, he was also a delegate to the European Council in Strasbourg.

Von Spreti's first diplomatic assignment was as ambassador to Luxembourg, where he served for three years until his appointment to the top diplomatic post in Havana.

He served in Cuba until West Germany broke off diplomatic relations in 1963. He was then sent to Jordan, where he served until assigned to Guatemala.

Popular among villagers living near Kerpfing Castle, von Spreti would invite local residents to the spacious castle for home movies and color slide presentations of his diplomatic experiences in Jordan and Cuba.

News of his kidnapping last Tuesday came as shock to the Bavarian villagers. Most of them heard the news at a church service.

Von Spreti is survived by his wife, Countess Helene Sabine von Spreti, and three children. The countess was sailing from New York to Europe when news of the kidnapping reached her.

She disembarked from the ship at its first stop in Lisbon and flew to Guatemala City.

Document Assailed

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of Roman Catholic scholars said Sunday a secret Vatican document proposes a basic church code that would bring progress in the church to a standstill.

If implemented, it would cause "a crisis of major proportions," said Rev. William Bassett of Washington, D.C., a canon lawyer of the Catholic University of America.

He said it would mean "a quite serious step backward" and produce consequences that would make the crisis over birth control look like a "Good Humor man" outing.

Existence of the document, recommending over-all provisions for governing the church, was reported at a symposium here sponsored by the Canon Law Society of America.

Participants said the document, prepared by the Vatican's Commission for the Revision of Canon Law, has been circulated confidentially recently among selected bishops for their reaction.

Rev. Hans Kung, noted Catholic theologian of the University of Tubingen, in Germany, said the proposed code would make "legalism of dogma and dogmatics law."

French Vessel Opens Seaway

MONTREAL (CP) — The French cargo vessel Eglantine moved into the St. Lambert lock at noon Saturday, officially opening the 1970 navigation season in the Montreal-Lake Ontario section of the St. Lawrence seaway.

Captain Francois Le Scorcet was presented with the traditional emanuel ashtray bearing the Canadian seaway authority emblem and a souvenir pennant of the U.S. Seaway Development Corp.

Officials attending the lock ceremony included Dr. Pierre Camu, president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and Brendon T. Zoe, assistant head administrator of the U.S. corporation.

Dr. Camu said navigation prospects for 1970 appear to be "very favorable." Indications are that total tonnage may reach the 1967 record of 50,000,000 tons.

The Eglantine, built at Dunkir, France, in 1967, to conform to seaway specifications, is owned by Union Industriel et Maritime of Paris.

The second ship to pass through St. Lambert was the Liana, a Norwegian cargo vessel.

The 18,727-ton Eglantine is carrying 18,000 tons of rolled steel upstream to Detroit and Chicago. It will return to France with a load of general grain.

Federal Farm Policy Denounced

WINNIPEG (CP) — Denunciations of federal agriculture polices and corporation incursion into farm production were accompanied Saturday by a mass march of farmer support for the Canadian wheat board.

Members of the National Farmers Union streamed down Portage Avenue and along Main Street to the Canadian wheat board building where NFU President Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon presented a pitchfork to Commissioner W. C. McNamara.

Mr. Atkinson told him the pitchfork was meant to be used "in defence of an orderly marketing system for our grain."

Mr. McNamara thanked the delegation for supporting the principles of orderly marketing and for the faith it was showing in the board.

The presentation over, the farmers marched back to the Winnipeg auditorium where they resumed a rally which had been interrupted for the show of support.

The rally and march followed similar demonstrations earlier in the week in Edmonton and Regina and drew an attendance of more than 2,000.

The NFU would like to see the wheat board's marketing jurisdiction extended to all grains, including grains sold for feed.

Elected at the assembly were the federal government's wheat acreage reduction program and Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson for not taking time to address any of the NFU assemblies.

Walter Miller, NFU national vice-president from Tara, Ont., said the meeting was being held in the midst of a climate where government was pursuing a policy designed to crowd two-thirds of the farm population off the land.

Publishers Told: Defend Freedom

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (AP) — An American publisher called Sunday on fellow editors and publishers from North and Latin America to seek new weapons to defend freedom of the press from attacks of military regimes in the hemisphere.

James S. Copley, president of the Inter American Press Association, met Sunday with other IAPA directors in advance of the semi-annual association meeting, which opens today. IAPA's freedom of the press committee will study the status of press freedom in the hemisphere for two days, then report to the IAPA board directors, which meets Wednesday and Thursday.

Copley, publisher of Copley newspapers, said in an interview before the convention opened that this year's meeting is one of the most crucial in the history of the association. He said the rise of military governments in Latin America has undermined the press in many Latin republics—particularly in Peru, Brazil and Argentina.

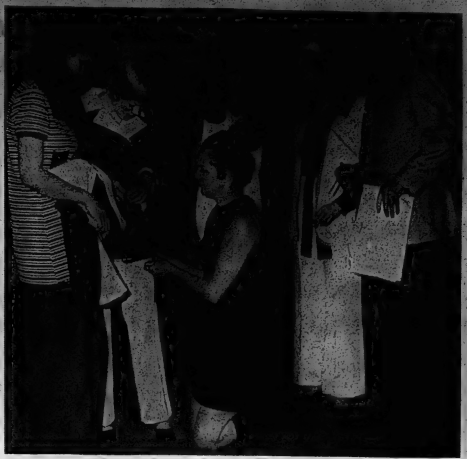
Grade 8 Class Enters World Of Finance

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Investments in penny stocks and individual initiative have led a Grade 8 class here into the world of finance at an early age.

The class at King Edward school took their profits from chocolate bar sales and invested them to earn more money for a class trip to Ottawa in May.

Ninety-three dollars were put in D'Eldora gold mine penny stock. The stock has fallen, but the class is not selling until May.

The remainder of the money was distributed, $1 per student, for them to invest and multiply.



One girl bought baking supplies and made cookies which she sold in packages of six for 39 cents. With these profits she purchased more supplies and made more cookies, ending up with a profit of $18.

Another girl made $12.76 by raffling a cake she made, and one boy netted $7.85 from a school yard candy store.

One budding executive set up a company, sold shares, opened a broker's office and held several shareholders' meetings. However his company ran into difficulties through buying the wrong type of leather for manufacturing and found the workers wanted too high a wage. However, a profit of $23.36 was realized in the end.

The company folded, as did all the others, after one month, with total profits for the class of $100.

Mini Gadgets Now Popular In Paris

PARIS (Reuters) — The mini-gadget is making inroads in France, where the miniskirt seems on the way out.

Even as spring collections of Paris couturiers were showing a big increase in skirt lengths, mini-appliances were given top priority here at the annual home furnishings trade fair, the Salon des Arts Menagers.

Appliances for the kitchen and home are getting progressively small or more compact to meet the increasing lack of storage space in the average French household.

A new portable combination dishwasher and clothes washing machine can be installed in the kitchen sink.

An electric ice-cream blender 10 inches long is a far cry from the cumbersome old-fashioned models that often had to be cranked by hand.

The trend also is toward multi-purpose machines, often measuring less than a foot high, designed to perform a variety of tasks.

Another new appliance making its debut at the salon is an electric window cleaner—a miniscule triangular-shaped wiper fitted with a water cylinder to spray vapor on the glass through the chamois-covered blade. It performs the entire operation in a single sweep.

Ann Landers

'The Broom Brigade' Asks for Assistance

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have come to the defence of waitresses, airline stewardesses, plumbers, postmen and meter readers. How about a good word for the Silent Army of The Broom Brigade — those who clean offices at night?

ANN LANDERS

Our day begins when most people finish. For some of us it's a second job. We've just come from putting in eight hours somewhere else. My message is for secretaries and even executives. Here it is:

You can make our lives easier by locking up the stamps and petty cash. When things turn up missing, we are first on the list of suspects.

Please don't throw food and half-filled cups of coffee and soda pop into the waste basket. It makes a terrible mess. If you will just leave it on the desk we'll take care of it.

Water your own plants, feed your fish, etc. We aren't gardeners or zoo keepers.

Please return the soft drink bottles to the vending machine. It's a long walk for a person who must make several trips an evening.

I'm not even mentioning what supposedly refined and educated people do in office washrooms. You couldn't print it and most people wouldn't believe it. Thanks a million — MIDNIGHT MINNIE.

* * *

DEAR MIN: If nobody mounts this column on the bulletin board of the office where you have the most trouble, I hope you will.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Tell Mrs. Pink Ribbons to leave her ovaries alone. The theory that the left ovary produces girls and the right ovary produces boys is ridiculous. My right ovary was removed by necessity after one year of marriage. I have since given birth to two sons and two daughters with only one ovary — the left one. — LIVING PROOF.

* * *

DEAR LIVING: I told Pinky that the theory was a lot of eyewash but readers have a tendency to listen to other readers rather than to me. Thanks for the documentation.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 23, divorced and have two small boys. I work in a pastry shop from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. I live with my widowed mother and an unmarried brother who is 30.

The only fun I get out of life is dancing. Four evenings a week my brother drives me to a roadside tavern where the music is out of sight. I dance with the guys, have a few drinks and go home by taxi.

The women at work say I shouldn't go to this place because it doesn't look nice. I've tried to explain that all I do with these men is dance. I am a decent girl and plan to stay that way. Do you agree with the women at work? I hope not. Please answer. — BOISE DANCER.

* * *

DEAR BOISE: It may be that all you are looking for is a dancing partner but most men who frequent roadside taverns are interested in something a bit more horizontal. I agree with the women at work.

Young Edmonton Woman Describes Her Job as Book Publishing Editor

EDMONTON (CP) — "The author worries about the soul of his work, the publisher worries about the finances and the editor is caught in the middle and must please both."

Miss Kent, 24, is probably one of the youngest editors in book publishing in Canada. She has been with Hurtig's, one of Western Canada's two major publishers, for 18 months and says her job is "fun."

She had no experience as an editor when she started with Hurtig's, but had worked in Vancouver as a printing company proofreader.

"I learned quite a lot about the different kinds of type and design and layout there," she said. "This has helped.

"And I always had a feeling for grammar and sentence construction."

Miss Kent has a degree from University of Calgary and attended the University of British Columbia for one term.

Usually books are solicited by publishers who get in touch with someone they think might have something to say, and together they discuss whether the project should be undertaken.

Only one of the 15 or so books Hurtig's has published has come unsolicited, she said. This was a manuscript by Esther Fraser on early travels and explorations in the Rocky Mountains.

"The Canadian Rockies was the first book I edited on my own," said the slim, five-foot-six brunette. "I enjoyed doing it and enjoyed working with Esther."

When a writer undertakes a project he usually becomes unconscientious, Miss Kent said.

"We never hear a word. We may write and ask how it is coming or when we might expect the first chapter. But often the author doesn't even answer our letters.

"Then the manuscript arrives—followed immediately by word from the author demanding to know how we like it and when it will be in print."

Dalton Camp, who wrote an introduction to Alliances and Illusions, a recent book on NATO-NORAD question, took months to supply his manuscript, says the attractive editor with a smile.

"It was one of the most delightful pieces I've ever worked on. But we got the manuscript in the morning mail and a telephone call asking how we liked it that afternoon."

If a book is technical, she arranges for another expert in that field to read it and comment on the technical aspects. Then either she or Mr. Hurtig begins the editing, or they tackle it jointly.

She says she tries to approach a book as an intelligent person coming to the subject for the first time.

"So far we haven't done any fiction, so I'm looking for clarity and ease of reading. If it isn't clear and easy to read it has to be changed."

An editor is a kind of intermediary between the writer and the reader, she said. She proposes changes if she thinks the meaning won't be clear. If it is presented in an unusual or involved style or may bring difficulties for the reader.

"If an author is insistent about some item I usually give in, even if I don't agree with the style," she said. "But I try to make him see my point."

Each author is different, she said. With one, an editor may have to discuss each proposed comma change; with another, the editor has carte blanche.

Once the book is edited—or as it is being edited—she works closely with the printer and with a designer for the jacket. She sometimes does the page and chapter layout herself. She decides on the kind of type to be used, the margins, the page size and positions of the page numbers and so on.

"This is creative, too."

Currently she is working with two books: The Prairie Gardener by Bert Harp, the CBC's radio gardening expert, and a History of Western Canada by Edmonton writer Tom Cashman.

Also in the planning stages are a book on Canada's North by Territorial councillor Duncan Pryde and one on economic nationalism by university professor Mel Watkins.

She said she "feels around a little with prose" herself, but she hasn't submitted any for publication. She loves skiing and likes baking—especially bread—for relaxation. She sews most of her own clothes, which are young-looking and med to suit her slender looks, long hair and granny glasses.

She said she makes her own hours, working 12 to 14 hours a day when near a deadline or taking a couple of hours for lunch when she isn't busy.

"But I'm more a jack-of-all-trades than an editor in a big publishing house in the East would be."

She says the best part of her work is meeting the authors. "They are interesting, these creative and famous people. And you can never tell how they'll react to your editing."

Jackie's Barbecued Spareribs Are A Treat

By MARY MOORE

Jackie says she can prepare this meal in one hour and I believe her for she is a pro and what is more is a High School Goddess Teacher with me, children of her own.

It took longer for me to prepare for I make my charcoal ashes as I cook and that adds to the elapsed minutes.

JACKIE'S ONE HOUR DINNER MENU

JACKIE'S BARBECUED SPARERIBS
(serves 4)

NOTES: 1) The barbecue sauce below is too much for these ribs but keeps well in the refrigerator covered and is excellent on chicken, hamburgs, wieners, pork chops, ie. 2) Scrub and trim four medium potatoes and bake at same time as spareribs.

3 pounds spareribs

Barbecue Sauce:
2 tbs. brown sugar
3 tbs. Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup water
2-3 cup catsup
3 tsps. prepared mustard
2 tbs. butter or margarine
½ tsp. MSG (optional).

Cut spareribs into serving size pieces. Arrange on bottom part of broiler pan in one overlapping layer. Roast at 350 deg. Fahr. 50 minutes. (If desired cover with foil. I did not.)

Remove from oven and brush with Barbecue Sauce made by combining all ingredients and bring to boil, stirring and simmer five minutes. Return to oven and raise heat to 400 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes. If desired brush ribs again after five minutes with barbecue sauce and pass under broiler to make them sizzle. Transfer to pre-heated platter and surround with baked potatoes which have been cut open and buttered.

NOTE: Clip this and see tomorrow for Boy Friend's Salad and Pineapple Mallow Whip.

Some Memory Helpers

By DORIS CLARK

You with the can't - remember, guess - I'm - getting - senile problem, don't worry. Here are some memory helps:

1. Jot down what you have to do on a little tear - off pad.

2. Keep pencil and paper beside your telephone. Junior will bless you when he gets his identity.

3. Choose what is really important to you; as for the rest — forget it.

4. Give yourself time to remember. Believe it or not, within minutes, or the next day, the name or date you have grappled for may pop into your head out of the blue.

5. If you can't remember what day it is, buy a three-leaf day calendar and turn it nightly. Or cross off yesterday's date with your ceramic pencil on your kitchen calendar, each morning. Mark brief notes on special dates.

Dear Doris: I am a 16-year-old girl. Right now I have a terrific attitude toward school, but if I keep on having bad experiences with boys, I do not know how it will affect me later life. I am by nature a trusting person, and I find it hard not to believe in anyone I like.

What really hurts is when a seemingly decent guy makes a pass at me. I don't think I have ever had a guy on Tim or Sophia Loren, but I do have trouble controlling boys.

What will happen to me when I start college? — Confused and Lonely

Dear C. and L.: Boys as well as books will call for study when you get to college. Don't discourage too easily. Even nice boys may tend to test the girls they date; and then ditch the ones who are easy marks.

There are still those you can trust and relax with. Fact is, the boys prefer the good girls when it is time to play for keeps.

Lose 10 lbs. in 10 days on Grapefruit diet

HOLLYWOOD Calif. (Special) — This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. Literally thousands upon thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Word of its success has spread like wildfire, because this is the diet that really works. We have testimonials from film starlets on the success of this diet. If you follow it exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. Others tell us to weight! less in the first four days. But you will probably lose 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter you will lose one pound a day until 10th day. Then you will lose 1½ pounds every two days until you get down to your correct weight. After all, this diet has to be a hunger diet. Now certain vitamin-rich foods are added to the diet, such as fish, chicken, eggs, vitamin-A butter, beans (no, not the ones you have been eating), and the very famously "forbidden", soup-a-day. Always combined with fat, meat or fried chicken, rich gravies, potatoes, ice cream, swimming in

Terrorist Bomb Factory Is Discovered

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — An explosion has led to the discovery of a terrorist bomb factory five miles from downtown Buenos Aires and the arrest of 182 persons, including two men wounded in the blast, Argentine police reported Sunday.

Police said they were investigating whether the group, is connected with a left-wing organization that last month kidnapped a Paraguayan diplomat, Waldemar Sanchez. He was released by the kidnappers after the government rejected their demands for the freedom of two jailed organization members.

The explosion ripped through a house in the district of Flores on Saturday night. Seriously injured were Enrique Selcia and Norberto Arrip, both 23. They were taken to a hospital and later placed under arrest.

On Sunday morning police staged a series of raids and arrested another 180 persons, nine of them young women. Police said their names were on lists found in the possession of Selcia and Arrip.

A police spokesman said the hideout, rented by Selcia and Arrip, was used by the group to manufacture and store bombs and explosives.

One bomb apparently exploded by accident, shattering furniture and windows and injuring both men. It was reported Selcia lost his right hand.

Three Seconds to Give Stand on Revolution

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — Six youths coming out of a tavern early Sunday were stopped by a man with a sub-machine-gun.

"This is revolution!" he shouted. "What is your political stand? You get three seconds to answer."

Then he fired, emptying the gun.

All six youths, including a girl, were wounded by the spray from the 36-cartridge magazine of the gun. Another 50 or so persons in the area ducked for cover. Two passing cars were hit.

Three of the youths, aged 20 to 25, were seriously wounded. One youth, with neck and stomach wounds, was in critical condition. The girl and a male also had more than one wound each but were less critically hurt.

Police blocked off the streets, then made a search.

They found a man, identified only as a 26-year-old university student, lying in a snowbank with the empty sub-machine-gun beside him. He surrendered quietly.

Diplomats Face Era of Peril

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many diplomats fear the wave of Latin American kidnappings may be ushering in a new era of personal danger for envoys in many parts of the world.

Well before the kidnap-murder of West Germany's ambassador to Guatemala, Count Karl von Spreti, the U.S. diplomatic corps in the Latin American state was keenly aware of the risks.

Two U.S. military attaches and the U.S. ambassador to Guatemala, John Gordon Main, were slain in separate incidents in 1968. A U.S. labor attache, Sean M. Holly, was kidnaped and released last month.

Terror-ridden Guatemala probably is the most hazardous assignment in Latin America for U.S. diplomats. But there have been kidnappings or attempts against envoys in such other widely separated areas as the Dominican Republic, Argentina and, again Sunday, in Brazil, where U.S. Consul Curtis Cutter failed would-be captors.

What many diplomats will voice privately—but not in public—is concern that the idea of seizing foreign officials may catch on in other areas of the world where political terrorists are active.

The Middle East and parts of South and Southeast Asia are among the places they have in mind.

Under diplomatic practice, the host government has responsibility for the safety of foreign emissaries. But where the local government has insufficient control—in Guatemala the foreign minister himself was kidnaped in February—this protection can become a chancy thing.

And a diplomat may present an especially appealing target for the political terrorist who figures holding an envoy prisoner will bring strong pressure to bear from the hostage's government on the terrorist's No. 1 enemy—the local leadership.

At the least the local regime is embarrassed by the kidnaping of a diplomat. It is embarrassed further if it yields to the kidnapers' demands. In Count Von Spreti's case, Guatemalan-German relations are expected to be further strained by his death after the Guatemalan government's refusal to follow Bonn's plea to meet the terrorists' terms.

U.S. diplomats in Latin America and elsewhere have tightened security precautions because of the kidnappings. Residences have been put under closer guard, daily travel routes varied, and in some places the officials try to avoid going out alone.

But the professional diplomats are a real limit to these security measures. A fundamental part of their job, they say, is to meet various people and to see the country where they are assigned—and this is bound to expose them to risks when terrorists are around.

French Aim To Win Ally In Canada

PARIS (Reuters) — Le Monde says France seems to be seeking in Canada a confident and sovereign partner, independent of the United States.

In an editoria, the newspaper says "Above all, Paris seems to be placing more and more importance on Canada's willingness to 'be by itself' . . . that is to say, affirm its national personality by stressing the things which distinguish it from the United States."

It adds that at a moment when American figures talk of a "trade war" between the U.S. and industrialized nations, "it seems that France has an interest in seeking at Ottawa a confident partner whose sovereignty will be clearly respected."

It says the visit of Canadian External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, during which he had talks with French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann and other French ministers might mark a thaw in Franco-Canadian relations.

Le Monde says that in the past France seemed to encourage separatist tendencies among French-speaking Canadian in Quebec, but Schumann had recently said France does not intend to interfere in Canada's internal problems.

Russians Seek Facts of Canada's Talks With China

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — A Swedish newspaper reports there has been feverish Soviet activity in diplomatic circles here to ascertain the state of the secret talks between Canada and China on mutual diplomatic recognition. The talks have been going on for 11 months.

The newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, says Soviet embassy officials have been constantly "fishing" for news of the talks among other foreign diplomats in Stockholm. It says that while the Canadians have been keeping the United States in touch with developments, the Chinese evidently are not prepared to let Moscow know what is happening.

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — A Swedish newspaper reports there has been feverish Soviet activity in diplomatic circles here to ascertain the state of the secret talks between Canada and China on mutual diplomatic recognition. The talks have been going on for 11 months.

The newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, says Soviet embassy officials have been constantly "fishing" for news of the talks among other foreign diplomats in Stockholm. It says that while the Canadians have been keeping the United States in touch with developments, the Chinese evidently are not prepared to let Moscow know what is happening.

Sunday's Goalie-yanking Far Cry from Imlach's '67 Gamble

By STERLING TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Although many might disagree, the calculated risk that Montreal Canadiens attempted against Chicago Black Hawks Sunday night did not seem to rate with the gamble Punch Imlach took against that club three years earlier.

The Canadiens, trailing 3-2 against the Black Hawks in the final game of the National Hockey League schedule, needed three more goals to clinch the fourth and final playoff berth in the East Division.

Coach Claude Ruel called goaltender Rogatien Vachon to the bench with more than eight minutes remaining and left him there almost entirely through the remainder of the game in hopes of scoring the three goals by the use of six attackers.

Actually, Ruel's move was not a gamble.

But in the spring of 1967, Imlach, who was then coach of Toronto Maple Leafs, pulled off a true gamble that worked and probably put his club back on the road that eventually led to the Stanley Cup.

The Hawks, tied with the NHL regular-season championship in the final year before expansion and their best-of-seven semi-finals against the Leafs was tied 3-3 after four games.

Then, in Chicago for the fifth game, Imlach knew he must give his aging warriors a special lift.

As soon as the Hawks took a penalty early in the game, Imlach sent his goaltender to the bench, sent out six attackers and got the goal that knocked the wind out of the Black Hawks' sails.

"Sure it was a gamble," Imlach said later. "But I had pulled it before, although not in the NHL.

"If it hadn't worked, and the other team scored, I would have looked like an idiot. But you can't think of the consequences. You must think positive."

Ruel's position Sunday night was not nearly so precarious.

The 3-3 lead by Chicago indicated that the Canadiens had already lost the game.

A Montreal victory would have meant a clear two-point lead over New York Rangers for the fourth and final playoff berth. A loss would leave the Canadiens tied with the Rangers for fourth and the team which had scored the most goals over the season would be awarded the playoff spot.

New York had finished the season with 248 goals scored after defeating Detroit Red Wings 8-3 earlier in the day. At the 11-minute mark of the third period in Chicago, Montreal had scored 244 regular-season goals.

Since the game was lost, it did not matter whether Chicago scored 10 goals or 20. The only thing the Canadiens were concerned with was scoring three more goals which would give them one more than New York and the fourth playoff spot.

Unfortunately for Ruel and the Canadiens, the plan did not work and Montreal failed to score while Chicago added five into the open net.

Earlier in the day, the Rangers had attempted the same type while leading 3-2.

If New York and Montreal were tied in points and goals scored after each schedule, first place would go to the team with the least goals scored against it in regular-season play.

With the Rangers sporting 8-3, New York had 187 goals against, while Montreal had 191 against.

Ranger coach Emile Francis wanted more goals and could afford to give up as many as three to the Red Wings in hopes of scoring at least another with the aid of a sixth attacker.

But neither play was a gamble—just good planning.

Rangers Pour on Coal

Habs Skid from Cup to Nowhere!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The wildest scramble in National Hockey League history came to an end Sunday with Chicago Black Hawks claiming the East Division title and eliminating Montreal Canadiens from the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Hawks humiliated the defending champions 10-3 in Chicago Sunday night while Boston Bruins downed Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1 and New York Rangers bombed Detroit Red Wings 9-3.

The Hawks and Bruins finished in a tie for first place in the East but Chicago took the title because it had five more wins during the season. Detroit finished third while New York and Montreal were tied for the last playoff position, each with 82 points and 38 victories.

The Rangers took fourth by virtue of their 246 goals scored while Montreal had only 244.

In the West Division, Minnesota North Stars claimed third place with a 5-1 win over second-place Pittsburgh Penguins in the only other game Sunday. The Hawks meet the defeated Philadelphia Flyers from the playoffs with a 1-0 win Saturday and Oakland finished fourth despite a 4-1 loss to the last-place Los Angeles Kings. St. Louis Blues, the West winners, downed Pittsburgh 3-1 in the only other West game Saturday.

The stage was set Saturday for the decisive battles in the East when Chicago beat Montreal 4-1, Boston defeated Toronto 6-2 and Detroit downed the Rangers 6-2.

The Red Wings at Chicago and the Rangers at Boston open the East Division playoffs beginning Wednesday with the second of the best-of-seven series Thursday. The teams move to Detroit and New York for the third and fourth games Saturday and Sunday.

Minnesota is at St. Louis and Oakland at Pittsburgh for the first two games Wednesday and Thursday in the West with the sites also switching for Saturday and Sunday.

It is the first time since the 1947-48 season that Montreal has failed to make the playoffs. And with Toronto finishing last, it marks the first time in the history of the Stanley Cup that a Canadian team has not competed.

New York's loss at Detroit Saturday set the tone of Sunday's games at New York and Chicago—two of the most explosive contests in regular season play.

The Rangers needed to win Sunday's match to tie Montreal and needed to score at least five goals to pull ahead of the Canadiens who held a 242-237 goals-for advantage after Saturday's games.

And after New York won 8-3 afternoon game 8-5, the Canadiens knew they had to win or tie with Chicago, or if they lost they needed to score at least five goals to regain the advantage in that deciding factor.

But Chicago goalie Tony Esposito, picked up in last summer's draft from Montreal, held the Canadiens to only two goals.

Pit Martin scored three goals to fire the Black Hawks to a 5-2 lead by the midway mark of the third period.

At that point, Montreal coach Claude Ruel decided his team could no longer win and pulled goalie Rogatien Vachon for an extra attacker in an attempt to gain enough goals to move in front of New York.

But Chicago ignored Montreal's extra attacker and continued to dominate play with Bobby Hull scoring his second goal of the night into the empty net. Eric Nesterenko, Cliff Koroll, Dennis Hull and Gerry Pinder also took advantage of Vachon's absence. Jim Pappin got the other Hawks goal in the first period to tie the score at 1-1 after Yvan Cournoyer's 37th season goal for the Canadiens. Jean Beliveau scored his 18th for Montreal.

The Black Hawks, who last won the title in 1960-61, started the season in last place, losing their first five games. Their first season win was a 5-4 decision over Montreal, the first in Esposito's record string of 15 shutouts.

The unorthodox strategy of pulling the goalie was also tried by New York manager-coach Emile Francis with about four minutes remaining in the final match with the Red Wings. But the move didn't work for the Rangers either although the nine goals they already had later proved enough to gain the playoffs ahead of Montreal.

The Rangers pelted Detroit goalie Roger Crozier with 43 shots and their attack through much of the game looked like a perpetual power play. Two of the New York goals did come on power plays while one came while the Rangers were a man short.

Dave Balon led the New York cabaret with three goals while Rod Gilbert, rookie Jack Egers and Ron Stewart each got two before a crowd of 17,250 happy fans.

At Boston, a crowd of 14,835 saw their home team start slowly against the Leafs who took the lead on a first-period goal by Dave Keon. Johnny McKenzie took a pass from Bobby Orr early in the second period and banged the puck behind goalie Marv Edwards to tie the score.

The assist for Orr gave him a season total of 87, and combined with his 33 goals, a final points total of 120 and the scoring title.

Tongue-lashing Paid Off

Martin Finishes the Job

CHICAGO (AP) — Pit Martin, a little guy with the guts to tell it like it was, probably started and ended Chicago Black Hawks' rise from last place to the championship of the National Hockey League's East Division.

Green Unfit to Play?

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, said Saturday he would not declare Ted Green, Boston Bruins defenceman, medically fit until he receives a report from an Ottawa doctor. The Bruins said Friday that a Boston neurologist had given Green the go-ahead last Wednesday to play. Green suffered a fractured skull in a stick-swinging duel with Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues and was to begin a 15-game NHL suspension for his part in the fracas starting on the day he is declared medically fit.

The Hawks, paced by Martin's three-goal night, defeated Montreal Canadiens 10-3 Sunday to win the title.

It marked the first time in NHL history that a team had come from last a year ago to win a championship and knocked the defending champion Canadiens out of a Stanley Cup playoff berth.

Martin, who chastised the Hawks last summer for their star system was being credited with blowing the whistle and forcing the Hawks to play team hockey.

"No, I'm not sorry for what I said," said Martin. "But that had its effect in training camp. I don't think that what I said spurred me to having a good season. It just happened that way, that's all."

Martin finished the season with 32 goals.

"No, I didn't think I'd be traded because of my remarks," said Martin. "What's wrong is expressing the truth?"

Coach Billy Reay attributed his team's fantastic comeback to "tremendous goal tending by Tony Esposito, the great defensive work of rookie Keith Magnuson and the play of the Pit Martin line.

"The word in the league used to be stop the Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita lines and beat the Black Hawks," said Reay during a champagne celebration in the dressing room.

"But Pit Martin, Gerry Pinder and Jim Pappin turned out to be our best line in the last eight weeks of the season and that was the difference."

Orr Adds Assist To Make Even 120

Bobby Orr, the amazing Boston Bruins defenceman, Sunday took the National Hockey League scoring title with 120 points, just six short of the record set last season by teammate Phil Esposito.

Orr scored one assist in the Bruins' final game, a 2-1 win over Toronto Maple Leafs, to give him a total of 87 assists for the season, a record.

His 33rd goal scored in a 4-2 win at Toronto Saturday is a season record for defencemen, as is his total points.

System Beats Habs, No Sense Crying Over Spilled Soup

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

Who says the Canadiens wouldn't have lost 19-3 with Vachon IN the net?

But there's no sense crying over spilled pea soup — let Habs next march.

Yesterday's oddball finale is the closest National Hockey League season-ender there has been yet Montreal in the Stanley Cup bleachers for the first time in 22 years.

It proved, for one thing, that the method of deciding standing ties should be changed. As one armchair Habitant corner post-mortemed this morning: "Look what could have happened with that empty net. Hibbs might have pumped in a dozen goals or passed Orr for the scoring championship. Wouldn't that have been great??? !!!"

Coach Claude Ruel couldn't be faulted for turning last night's Chicago game into the farce it became. The NHL governor's handbook gave him only one out: to try and score as many goals as possible and damn the defensive. But Tiny Emile Francis didn't look as bad pulling the stunt in the afternoon — because the Rangers won.

A sudden-death playoff would have scored a mare dignified, perhaps the highest playoff race in history (only seven points separating pennant and hooky-prize winners) than Sunday's empty-net debacles.

Not that we feel particularly glum over the Canadiens' demise. Playoff berths are earned over a 76-game schedule, so when you leave things til the last minute, you just pays your money and takes your chances.

Sunday's laugh-in also re-emphasized the tragedy of the NHL expansion setup.

Montreal's 92 points would have been good enough to win the eastern division pennant five years ago, but the two-division scheme makes it possible for an eastern club to have a splendid season and still watch from the sidelines as such bedraggled journeymen as Oakland Seals (40 points this winter) pick up the playoff bread.

BILLY REAY
No Welfare Yet

* * *

As the Stanley Cup playoffs now exist, they involve the participation of the league's number 1,2,3,4,7,8,9, and 10 teams. Tough luck for numbers 5 and 6.

Clarence Campbell and his band of Merry Men have rectified this with the cross-over scheme to go into effect next season. This will mean that the finalists could both come from the eastern division. For Boston and Montreal to be playing in last year's semi-final, for example, was like having Canada Clay meet Rocky Marciano in a prelim bout.

However, the NHL Governors may have another problem on their hands in the 1970-71 season. They pushed the panic button after Chicago's rather-fluish last season and moved the Hawks as the eastern entry to be shuffled off to expansionville while newcomers Vancouver and Buffalo will join the senior circuit.

If that shuffle is still carried out, it means the western division pennant will be decided by Christmas, instead of Valentine's Day as it has in the past couple of seasons.

Toronto looms as a more likely candidate for the switch since the league is past the stage of worrying about 2,000-mile road trips.

Chicago's see-ocean transition from doormat to transom has, besides keeping Billy Reay off the welfare rolls, disheartened some misguided patriots who point out that, for the first time in history, no Canadian-based team is involved in the parade to the Stanley Cup champagne shower.

This despite the knowledge that the National Hockey League rank and file is 39 and 29/100 per cent pure Canadian. The Yanks have a far bigger invasion to fear in baseball (Fergy Jenkins, Pete Ward, etc.) than they have ever posed in Canadian dominance of the NHL.

Besides, U.S. network coverage assures Canadian viewers some commentary comedy to ease the playoff tension. Sunday's "Maxerism" of the week came when Alex Delvecchia was identified as Pete Stemkowski. There's only a difference of 12 years and 12,000 grey hairs.

These are the brass tacks: Chicago over Detroit in six games; Boston over the Rangers in five; Boston over the Hawks in at least six.

What about the western division, you say?

Get serious!

Peterborough Peewees Play Up to Billing

Peterborough lived up to their advance notices as they downed Mississauga 5-0 yesterday to capture the Rollins Trophy for the "A" championship of the Belleville Shrine Pee Wee tournament. Trenton scored twice in the final period to stop Whitby 3-1 for the "B" title.

Belleville's Rollins Construction Pee Wees came through with a hustling effort in their 4-2 loss to the "A" winners in the semi-finals, but were outclassed by the big, well-balanced Peterborough Church League team who were All Ontario "AAA" final bets.

Rollins netminder Jeff Merrill was unbelievable at times, as the home team carried a 2-1 lead into the final period, despite the fact that Peterborough held a wide territorial edge throughout the game.

Belleville opened the scoring as Mike Crawford converted a pass from Gary Thompson early in the first period. Dan Eastman knotted the score beating Merrill from close in to make it a 1-1 game.

Crawford restored Belleville ahead with his second goal of the period as he banged in Rick Barbeau's pass from behind the net after Barbeau was robbed by the Peterborough goalie.

Peterborough used their size to good advantage playing a chippy but effective type of game, taking five of the nine penalties assessed.

The second frame was scoreless, thanks to Merrill, who robbed Peterborough of what looked like three certain goals.

Two goals by Barry Boy finished off any hopes of a Belleville upset, as the Peterborough winger fired the winning goal from just outside the goal crease and added an insurance mark on a partial breakaway.

Saturday, the hometowners beat Napanee 4-1 scoring twice in the middle frame with single tallies in each of the other periods.

Ross McLeod opened the scoring for Belleville on a tip-in that fooled Napanee goalie. Rob Perry, Tony Meagher and Rich Barbeau were first-period assists in upsetty - killing role for the winners.

Barbeau, Meagher and Eric Powell scored the other Belleville goals, as they kept the pressure on Perry throughout the contest. The Napanee goalie played particularly well in the third period, stopping Barbeau and Ed Grills on breakaways.

In the yesterday's "B" championship game, for the Shrine Trophy — Trenton's Clark Young and Pat Lawrence scored in the final frame to hand Whitby a 3-1 loss. Bob Thompson had opened the scoring for Trenton with David Allen replying for the losers.

Peterborough survived an early surge by Mississauga in the take the "A" division final game, 5-4. Dan Eastman scored in the first period for the winners with Peter Dettmar adding a second mark for in the middle frame. Barry Boy and Larry Gibson (2) looked after the Peterborough scoring in the last period.

Peterborough beat Belleville 4-2, Cobourg 9-4, and Kingston 3-0 to earn their berth in the final of the 14-team tournament.

Trenton Tracksters Leave Meet in Dust

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Perennial Bay of Quinte champion Trenton High School smashed its own previous meet record in a successful title defence at the annual Bay of Quinte indoor track and field championships held Saturday at CFB Trenton.

Trenton High school used exceptional balance and depth to score 146½ points, far outdistancing Centennial Secondary School which placed second with 115 points, five short of Trenton's previous record.

Cloyne hosted the Ontario School for the Deaf in a two-team battle for the class "A" title totalling 51 points to place third in the overall standings of the six-team meet.

Prince Edward Collegiate took fourth place with 48 points, Quinte Secondary School was fifth with 43 and the CCD host with 39½ points.

Trenton's team dominance cannot be questioned, but their record points total may have been increased by the lack of competition in Saturday's meet and the fact they began training in January.

The annual meet often attracts 19 Bay of Quinte district schools and the presence of some who were absent Saturday (Moira, Centre Hastings, Tweed-Ruggerford, Napanee, Albert College, Nicholson and Belleville Collegiate) would probably have reduced Trenton's point total. If not their margin of victory.

Evidence of Trenton's depth and balance was the school's ability to score totals of between 10 and 20½ points in the four age classes (bantam, midget, junior and senior) of each event with the lone exception of the shotput.

Centennial's total was aided by strong showings in the shotput (20 points), the 40-yard dash (15 points) and the 440-yard dash (13 points).

The scoring system was based on five points for first place in the finals of each event, three for second, two for third and one for fourth.

Distance man Duncan Rogerson paced Trenton in the senior division with a blistering 2:42.6 in the 1,000-yard run, breaking the previous record of 2:44 set by Trenton's Pat Larry in 1968.

Rogerson also placed second in the open 2-mile behind Picton's Paul Corey whose 11:14.2 time was just 1.2 seconds slower than Rogerson's record setting 11:13.0 in 1967.

Frank Johnston of Centennial matched Rogerson's performance with a record-breaking 1:04.5 in the senior 440-yard dash and a second place effort in the long jump.

Trenton's Rick Norman pushed Johnston in the senior record registering 1:04.6 in his runnerup effort while Grant Patterson of Trenton nudged out Johnston in the long jump by 1¼ inches with a 19-foot leap.

Jim Steerie with a 5'6½" high jump and Malcolm Byrne's 2:38.3 personal indoor best in the mile also took first in the senior division for Trenton.

Perhaps the best individual performance of all was put on by Trenton junior Glen Milligan who smashed the 18' 10" long jump record, previously held by Frank Johnston, with a 19' 9½" leap then obliterated the triple jump record with a 41' 5" effort, nearly five feet longer than the record.

Grant Martin contributed to Trenton's point total with a record 3:40.1 time in the midget mile, while Trenton's mile relay team nipped Picton at the tape, though both teams were clocked in the record time of 3:37.2.

Breakaway-Buster

Napanee netminder Rob Perry foils a breakaway attempt by Rick Barbeau of the Rollins Construction Peewees in Shrine tournament action Saturday. Belleville stopped Napanee 4-1 to advance to the semi-finals, where they were beaten 4-2 by the "A" champions from Peterborough.

Midgets Wind Up Season On Unusually Defensive Note

Blake Kerr Imperial midgets closed out their season in a rather unusual manner, for them, at the Golden Horseshoe Tournament in Burlington this weekend. Sporting a potent attack, but shaky defence, for most of the season, Belleville was blanked twice by scores of 3-0 and 2-0.

The Imperials lost to Barrie in the first game, as according to coach Robb Burrowes, "I think that the fact that it was right after the first night out of town made it hard for them to settle down and concentrate on hockey."

The Belleville coach was highly pleased with the team's effort in the second contest, in which Camp Borden scored the record goal into an empty Belleville goal. "I thought we had a big edge in play in the final period," said Burrowes. "We did everything but put the puck in the net."

Centres Rick Meagher and Rob Foster played exceptionally well throughout the tournament for Belleville.

"We've had a pretty successful season," said the coach. "I'd like to thank the sponsor and parents for their co-operation this year. They've been really outstanding."

Team prospects for next season look very promising as all but six of the current team are expected to return and will be augmented by a number of graduates from the Kinsmen Bantams.

Sudbury University Sit-in Is Continuing

SUDBURY (CP) — A student sit-in continued at Laurentian University today as the campus marked time before a meeting Thursday which will attempt to resolve a rift between the senate and the board of governors over financial and planning policies.

The campus crisis, which erupted last month when the senate, backed by students and faculty, approved a motion of non-confidence in Laurentian President Stanley G. Mathieu, eased during the weekend.

The breakthrough came at a Saturday night meeting attended by students, senators and eight of the 34 governors at which it was decided a full-joint meeting of the senate and board would be held Thursday.

First item on the agenda is likely to be the position of Mr. Mathieu, who has submitted to the governors a proposal "regarding possible leave of absence and retirement."

Announcement of the president's proposal was contained in a letter sent to the senate Saturday by William J. Shea, chairman of the board of governors.

The letter said the executive committee of the board, which last month rejected Mr. Mathieu's request for extended sabbatical leave, now is prepared to consider his retirement.

But the most important aspect of Thursday's meeting will centre on the senate's demands for a greater voice in the long-range planning and financial affairs of the 1,700-student university.

The governors' refusal last week to meet with the senate on these issues resulted in a senate suspension Friday of all academic activities on campus, which included the cancellation of final exams.

The New SAFETY '99

A good tire made even better for the 1970's

Nothing stands still these days. That's why we're retiring 'Old Faithful' in favor of a new and better Safety '99'. Wider. Flatter. Stronger.

Heavier than its million or more predecessors. Changes not just for the sake of change — but to meet the heavy demands of today's driving. We like to be a jump ahead. We have to figure what happens to tires at speeds you may not even need. You see, tire failures increase alarmingly as speeds increase. A tire tread driven at the old speed-limit of 60 m.p.h. will run almost twice as far as one now driven at 70. And a tire capable of giving 25,000 service miles at 50 m.p.h. will survive only 6,000 at 80 m.p.h. A sobering thought — back of our determination to make tires safer, longer-lived.

SAFETY '99 — in nylon or polyester — is a leader and we aim to keep it that way. Ride it — and you'll know it. Trade in your old tires — and you'll discover it's still North America's best tire buy.

Bertrand Sets Limit

New Constitution by 1974 or Quebec Votes on Separation

COWANSVILLE, Que. (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand's Union Nationale government opened its campaign for the Quebec general election April 29 by clamping a four-year time limit on Canadian constitutional negotiations.

His party's new policy is that unless agreement on a new constitution is reached by 1974, a referendum would be held at which Quebecers to decide whether or not they want to separate from Canada.

The 1974 policy, ratified by the party's governing body Saturday, is the central element of the Union Nationale's election platform, which also proposed setting up of a presidential system of government in Quebec province.

Mr. Bertrand unveiled the party program at Montreal Saturday and began a riding-by-riding visit of the province Sunday at Cowansville, 45 miles southeast of Montreal, in his Eastern Townships riding of Missisquoi.

About 3,000 people, a full house at Cowansville Arena, attended the 21/2-hour rally in the unheated hockey club.

Mr. Bertrand made a 45-minute speech, punctuated by applause.

In a televised speech to the party's national council at Montreal Saturday, Premier Bertrand bluntly told Prime Minister Trudeau: "Mind your own business during this election."

At a news conference, Mr. Bertrand said his government is taking a firmer constitutional stand in an effort to shake Ottawa out of what he called its "rigid, intolerant and arrogant attitude."

Mr. Bertrand said that if Quebec, the other provinces and Ottawa could not reach agreement on the fundamentals of a new constitution by 1974, a referendum on Quebec's political future would be held.

He said, however, that he is "pretty sure" that a new Canadian constitution will be negotiated by 1974. In any case, the idea of a referendum was "very democratic, logical, reasonable and realistic."

At Cowansville, Mr. Bertrand said it is time that Ottawa and the other provinces make known openly their views on proposals submitted by Quebec so far during constitutional negotiations.

Speaking of his proposed referendum, Mr. Bertrand said:

"It's your decision to make. It's all of you who would be asked to decide whether Quebec should remain in Confederation or whether it should separate."

Mr. Bertrand was asked what he would do personally if the constitutional negotiations did not produce agreement by 1974. He replied: "I never cross the bridge before I get to the river."

Mr. Bertrand also announced that Finance Minister Mario Beaulieu would make a budget speech at a news conference this week, likely Thursday or Friday. An election was called without a 1970-71 budget.

THE PICK OF Punch It Depends on Vote

"The Government and the unions are in disagreement on all points, and there is a complete deadlock by tomorrow morning . . ."

Levesque Would Not Automatically Separate

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, said Sunday night his party would not automatically opt for independence if it came to power on a minority popular vote following the Quebec general election April 29.

Mr. Levesque said in an interview after officially launching his election campaign:

"If we came to power on a minority (popular) vote, we'd have to call a referendum (on independence) to make things clear.

"However, if we gained a 50-per-cent popular vote or more, this would in effect constitute a referendum.

"But if we got less than a majority vote . . . we would have a moral obligation to call the referendum . . . in all decency."

Mr. Levesque had maintained since the foundation of the Parti Quebecois in the fall of 1968 that any form of government led by his party would automatically claim Quebec independence.

Earlier, addressing one of the largest and most enthusiastic gatherings in Quebec political history, Mr. Levesque said "no one can contest our right to break away from the chains of fear that bind us today."

Mr. Levesque, who received a 10-minute standing ovation from a crowd of 12,000 jammed in an east-end arena while 3,000 more were forced to remain outside, said:

"We have the legal right to break away from the bonds that have strapped us for years . . . and we will do it calmly and intelligently."

Horns, drums, tambourines and sirens echoed through the arena prior to Mr. Levesque's entry and burst into an earsplitting roar when the leader stepped onto the speaker's stage.

He said April 29 can be the beginning of a new and normal history for a free Quebec. "And we will do it because we want to make our own rules.

"We do not intend to build a Chinese wall around us. We want liberty, and we will get it freely."

Mr. Levesque also took a swipe at Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, calling him a "professional cry-baby who, after years of promises tried to catch us all unprepared by calling a quick election."

He termed Mr. Bertrand's recent statement that his Union Nationale party would call a referendum on separation by 1974 if no progress is made on constitutional discussions with Ottawa "strictly back political stuff."

Mr. Levesque described Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa as "an economist caught in an electoral panic who has, in effect, become a dreamer."

He also took a shot at Ottawa and accused the Trudeau government "of taking the country apart and trying to humiliate it with its arrogance."

Icebreaker Joins Manhattan

HALIFAX (CP) — The supertanker Manhattan and the Canadian icebreaker Louis S. St. Laurent joined forces early today on their way to lead the pack ice of the Northwest Passage.

The St. Laurent, Canada's newest and biggest icebreaker, made the Manhattan, owned by Humble Oil I&G, of New Jersey, about 75 miles out of Halifax and the two headed for the southwest tip of Newfoundland.

Last summer the 116,000-ton Manhattan attempted to breast the ice packs above the Arctic Circle in company with the Canadian icebreaker John A. Macdonald. The trip then was only partially successful when the Manhattan had to turn from its primary course covered with a solid ice cover to a relatively more open course.

This trip will be against much tougher opposition as it represents the earliest trip ever attempted through the heavy ice of such size.

But the odds are better since the Manhattan crew now have a clearer idea of the problems facing them while the 16,000-ton St. Laurent, which underwent first sea trials only last fall, is 20 per cent more powerful than the Macdonald, producing 24,000 horse power.

Liberal Bourassa Stresses Economics

QUEBEC (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa kept hammering at what he knows best—economics—in campaigning for Quebec's April 29 general election.

The 36-year-old economist pursued his theme of more jobs for Quebecers in a tour that stretched from Sherbrooke in the Eastern Townships to Richmond on the Gaspe Peninsula.

He said that whether Jean-Jacques Bertrand is called premier or president, "it won't create a single new job."

Premier Bertrand has suggested that Quebec set up a presidential system of government.

Mr. Bourassa told 500 persons in the Quebec City riding of Limoilou:

"The Union Nationale is back in its characteristic ways: Either it blames another level of government—the federal government—for its inabity to govern, or else it blames its administrative structures."

He said Finance Minister Mario Beaulieu reached "a summit of irresponsibility" in making an election promise to increase spending.

He described as farfetched the government's plan to present a budget speech this week.

"It's easy for the government, which didn't dare present its budget speech in the national assembly before calling the elections, to pull the wool over the eyes of the public by juggling figures."

And it is "a new electoral fraud," he said, for the Union Nationale to promise a raise in income tax exemptions to $2,500 for single persons and $5,000 for married couples. Exemptions now are $2,000 and $4,000.

Starting his tour Saturday, Mr. Bourassa addressed about 200 persons at a dinner in a Trois-Rivieres curling club.

At Sherbrooke, he visited shopping centres, shaking hands and talking with people.

He told a Trois-Rivieres news conference that if the Liberals form the next government, they will do their utmost to implement medical care insurance by the July 1 target date.

Experts Try to Remedy Fuel Problem on Moon Craft

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Specialists worked on a fuel pressure problem in the moon landing craft today, confident they can solve it without delaying Saturday's launching of Apollo 13, man's third lunar landing mission.

Space agency officials hoped to make a decision today whether to replace the bothersome system, which pressurizes the fuel tank for the engine of the lunar lander. They were concerned because the pressures were higher than normal.

If the system has to be replaced, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration felt certain the job could be done in time to meet the scheduled launch time of 2:13 p.m. EST Saturday.

Launch Director Walter Kapryan ordered the countdown to begin on schedule at 10 p.m. Sunday after experts studied the pressurization problem throughout the day.

Kapryan reported the pressure had started to stabilize and that specialists had requested an additional 12 hours to study the problem.

The three astronauts who are to fly the mission—James A. Lovell Jr., Thomas K. Mattingly II, and Fred W. Haise—were their crew quarters five miles from the launch pad.

Their schedule today called for a thorough examination and several hours in a spaceship simulator, practising launch procedures and possible abort maneuvers in case of rocket trouble.

Lovell and Haise are to attempt a risky landing in the Fra Mauro highlands, from where they hope to find ancient rocks dating back to the creation of the moon. They also plan to deploy a nuclear-powered science station and dig up soil from 16 feet beneath the surface.

The lunar lander problem involved a tank of helium used to pressurize fuel tanks in the descent stage.

The tank is built like a vacuum bottle, with a vacuum layer separating the central tank from the outside insulation layer.

The vacuum is intended to maintain the helium in a slushy condition at a temperature of 452 degrees below zero.

Experts suspect there could be a contaminant such as hydrogen gas in the vacuum area.

Japanese Airliner Flies Home

TOKYO (CP) — The six-day saga of a Japanese airliner hijacked by leftist youths and finally forced to fly to North Korea ended Sunday when the jet returned to Tokyo Airport carrying four men who had been hostages.

Left behind in Pyongyang, capital of North Korea, were the nine radical students who had thrown samurai swords and seized the plane last Tuesday.

Aboard the plane when it returned here were three crew members and Shinjiro Yasumaura, 36, a Japanese deputy minister who became a voluntary hostage aboard the Japan Airlines Boeing 727 in exchange for release of the passengers and stewardesses in South Korea.

The hijacking, first ever of a Japanese plane, spurred government action to outlaw such crimes. Government spokesmen said it is possible laws against serial hijacking will be introduced in the current session of parliament. There is no present law covering the specific offence.

Anyone who causes an airplane to crash is subject to a maximum penalty of death in Japan. Justice Minister Takeji Kobyashi said Saturday that a ministry council had been considering a maximum penalty of five years—at hard labor for serial hijacking but that such a penalty no longer could be considered sufficient.

He told the prime minister that he and the three crewmen received humanitarian treatment in Pyongyang. He was given a three-room suite in a hotel after the arrival there Friday night.

The plane was hijacked Tuesday morning and wound up that afternoon at Kimpo Airport, just outside Seoul, capital of South Korea. Yamamura went with other passengers and officials from Tokyo to Seoul to help negotiate for release of plane and passengers.

When an impasse developed Yamamura offered himself as an official hostage. After an overnight delay, he was identified to the hijackers' satisfaction, the deal was made. Fifty of the remaining 99 passengers and four stewardesses aboard the plane were permitted to get off, and Yamamura boarded the plane. When he was in the hands of the hijackers, the rest of the passengers were permitted to leave.

During the 30-minute flight from Seoul to Pyongyang, the official said, the students offered him coffee and tea and allowed him complete freedom of movement inside the aircraft.

On landing at Pyongyang, he went on the airline pilot, Capt. Shogo Takada, co-pilot Teichi Esaki and flight engineer Toshio Albara were ordered off first. Yamamura and the nine hijackers were kept aboard while the crew members were questioned. About 2 hours after the landing, Yamamura said, he and the others were told to leave the plane. The students surrendered their weapons to North Korean authorities as they went down the ramp.

Spiked Potato Chips Put Party on A Trip

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twenty-seven persons were treated at a hospital Sunday after eating potato chips apparently spiked with a hallucinogenic drug at a "swinging singles" party, sheriff's deputies said.

Two of the victims fell into comas briefly, deputies said, and three women were reported in serious condition. About a dozen others at the party who appeared to be ill refused treatment.

None was aware the chips had been laced with a drug, which is to have been LSD, deputies said.

About 200 persons attended the "going-away" party for a tenant Saturday night in the clubhouse of an apartment house project for unmarried persons in suburban Playa Del Rey, officers said. Deputies were called when a young man became violently ill.

Danger of Mercury When Pure Metal Not Recognized Until Year or So Ago

SARNIA (CP) — The world of pollution has a new villain with the recent announcement of a ban on sale of fish caught in Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie.

The culprit is mercury, the liquid metal used in a number of chemical processes.

Although some of the fish caught in Lake Erie have now been released for sale, the facts of mercury contamination have been solidly established.

Society has known for years that a mercury compound can be dangerous, but as recently as a year or two ago no one suspected mercury metal of being dangerous except for its toxic fumes.

The distinction between mercury and mercury compound has not been made clear enough, is the feeling of John Hacking, vice-president of Dow Chemical of Canada. Dow has been labelled a key factor in the pollution of Lake St. Clair with mercury metal.

Wyandotte Chemicals Ltd. of Wyandotte, Mich., has been identified as the source of mercury metal in Lake Erie.

In an interview, Mr. Hacking said the firm has known for years that there has been some loss of mercury into the St. Clair River from its plants in Sarnia.

But, he said, the company's main concern has always been the cost of the mercury lost because until recently no one realized its danger.

"If we had known the dangers involved we would have acted upon it years ago," he said.

Dow has been using mercury since 1948 in the manufacture of chlorine caustic soda. The manufacturing process involves the electrolysis of brine in a closed cell system.

Some of the brine manages to escape the system and takes mercury with it. The plant's sewers are specially trapped in order to catch the mercury.

Some of the mercury has escaped to the river and Mr. Hacking estimated the loss at 16 to 12 pounds a day.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission has estimated the loss at up to 200 pounds a day.

"At certain peak periods a spot check might reveal such a high loss," Mr. Hacking said, "but if we were really losing that much we would have been out of business years ago for lack of mercury.

The present scare about mercury pollution started last autumn with the discovery of mercury in parts of the South Saskatchewan River system near Saskatoon. Although Dow had nothing to do with that incident, the company immediately began to improve its system for keeping mercury out of its effluents.

That is why the company was able to reduce its mercury loss to near zero within three days of the government announcement about Lake St. Clair fish.

"Zero? It depends upon what you mean by zero," Mr. Hacking said. "For years our best equipment was not capable of measuring less than one part of mercury per million. Now we have equipment that can measure as little as two parts per billion."

Mr. Hacking compared one part per million with a dry martini made with one drop of vermouth in a tank car full of gin.

Mr. Hacking said Dow tries to be a good corporate citizen.

The company builds anti-pollution equipment into all its new plants, and Mr. Hacking says the firm is one of the leading pollution fighters in the United States.

Cleaning Up

This water-borne craft, dubbed a "slick licker", is being used by Canadian Forces personnel to aid in cleaning up bunker oil, spilled into Nova Scotia's Chedabucto Bay by the sunken tanker arrow. A cloth-covered conveyor belt dips into a pool of floating oil and carries the gooey mass back into the body of the craft where it is dumped.

Dow Worker Assails 'Facade of Purity'

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Nothing effective will be done about pollution until "we remove the arrogant attitude of people who say they can pollute and society be damned," a critic of industry said Sunday.

Ivan Hillier, a 20-year employee of Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd., in an interview criticized his employer's "facade of purity" and said Dow must be made to realize it cannot continue on its present path.

Mr. Hillier for 19 years has been an outspoken critic of industry in general and Dow in particular. He is a member of the executive of the Dow local of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union and a former president of the Sarnia labor council.

He contradicted an earlier statement by Dow vice-president John Hacking, who had said it was only recently that people became aware of dangerous pollution by mercury metal, although it had been long realized that mercury compounds were dangerous.

Mr. Hillier said the idea for the closed mercury-cell system Dow uses for chemical manufacturing originated in Germany in the 1920s as a means of pollution from the system was recognized at that time.

Going back further, he said 100 years ago in South America, and what now is Czechoslovakia, only convicts were used as labor in mercury mines because of the danger to workmen.

Mr. Hillier was critical of Dow for lack of safety in the handling of mercury in its Sarnia works.

The company provides regular medical examination and urinalysis for all employees handling mercury, but, Mr. Hillier said, this is not enough.

He handled mercury himself for 17 years before being transferred to a work unit where mercury is not present. The transfer was six months ago but at that time, he said, mercury was left lying in pools on the floor and on benches.

He said the company had taken tests of the level of mercury fumes in various parts of the plant and concealed the results of those tests. He said he has received a copy of one of these reports which shows dangerously high levels of mercury fumes.

Mr. Hacking said the company's main concern has always been the cost of the mercury lost because until recently no one realized its danger.

"If we had known the dangers involved we would have acted upon it years ago," he said.

He said the company builds anti-pollution equipment into all its new plants and employs its own people to develop new anti-pollution techniques.

Mr. Hillier was also critical of the Ontario Water Resources Commission which, he said, knew last year that mercury was being dumped from the Dow plant. Nothing was done.

Sarnia also came under Mr. Hillier's attack for pouring its effluent into the St. Clair River from a primary treatment plant.

Rocks Look Like Coal

Scars of Arrow Disaster May Never Be Erased

ARICHAT, N.S. (CP) — The tanker oil in the tanker Arrow, broken in two nearly two months ago, is expected to be siphoned off within two weeks.

But the scars the marine disaster created may never be erased.

Seen from a distance, the rocks along the shore look like coal. Up to 125 miles of shoreline on Chedabucto Bay where the Arrow went aground Feb. 4 have been blackened from the low tide mark up.

Underneath it is more like tar than oil.

Dr. F. D. McTaggart-Cowan, the executive secretary of the National Science Council appointed to direct the transport department's cleaning operations, says the oil on the rocky beaches will eventually harden into a rock-like coating.

"The oil that is on the bedrock, the cliff edges, is there to stay," he said in an interview. "The facts on the effects on marine life are not all in yet, but data collected so far does not suggest major ecological damage, he said.

"The lobsters are all well and healthy," he said.

Dr. McTaggart-Cowan said that a combination of fishing gear have checked the sea beds and found that oil does not extend past the low tide mark.

The floating oil has fouled fishermen's nets and a problem with sheep in the area has developed.

The sheep feed during the winter on seaweed and scientists are watching closely for any ill effects of the addition of oil to their diets.

The oil is known as bunker C. Dr. McTaggart-Cowan said it takes a temperature of about 400 degrees to burn bunker C and about 1,000 degrees to burn the bunker C emulsion.

The most successful cleanup device tested so far is mechanical. Basically it is a conveyer belt with toweling attached. The towels sweep up the oil from the water's surface and the oil falls off and into a barge. But the machine, which workers call a "slick licker," can only be used on water. For real success a spill must be reached before it spreads to the beaches.

Dr. Harold Sheffer of Ottawa, vice-chairman of the Defence Research Board and one of several scientists studying the Arrow spill, said the canvas conveyer can fill a 45-gallon drum in about one minute. One machine is in operation and two more are to be built.

Up to 200,000 gallons of oil are still in the forward section of the Arrow, lodged on Cherbeau Rock, and up to 600,000 gallons are in the stern section, submerged in 80 feet of water, said Capt. Michael Martin, Navy deputy chief of staff, combat readiness, Maritime Command, Halifax.

About 800,000 gallons have been pumped from the tanker and the remainder, more than 1,000,000 gallons, spilled into the bay.

The location of the stern section is marked by buoys connected to valves that had to be installed by divers equipped with special drilling equipment. The Arrow had only hatch covers over her cargo tanks and valves had to be attached underwater to connect pump hoses. Using steam jets and surface pumps, bunker oil is forced up hoses to a collection barge.

Dr. McTaggart-Cowan said he is sure his report to Transport Minister Don Jamieson will include a recommendation that valves for hose attachments be fitted to "any tanker that comes near Canada."

One of the demands made by Mr. Jamieson before Canadian co-operation was extended for the St. Lawrence Seaway, was that such valves be installed.

Canada's Expo Show Called Masterpiece

NEW YORK (CP) — The Canadian pavilion at Expo '70 portrays a wonderful country in an absolute masterpiece of nicknonsensical presentation, art critic John Canaday of the New York Times writes in a dispatch from Osaka, Japan.

Canaday says: "Far and away the most successful of the national pavilions in a weekend jog portrait of a wonderful land inhabited by a wonderful people, is Canada."

Describing a theme movie, he says that "for perhaps 20 minutes which I wished would not end, scores of Canadian wilderness, from plains and forests to deserts, I didn't know existed and frozen seas of planetary dimensions, were projected on an enormous triangular screen to a score that I can only describe as musical but non-melodic and frequently onomatopoetic. . . ."

"Until last week, I have never really thought of Canada as a marvelous country. Admirable and all that, but a bit dull. I don't feel that way anymore."

U.S. Commerce Chamber Opposes Income Floor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Chamber of Commerce has intensified its opposition to President Nixon's welfare program, asserting that his proposal for putting a floor under family income would be unfair and damaging to recipients.

Another businessmen's organization, the Council of State Chambers of Commerce, released during the weekend a study in which it condemns the Nixon proposals.

Both organizations aim their fire on the president's plan to provide a family of four a minimum income of $1,600 in cash, plus food stamps. It would apply to those who have jobs bringing them less than this sum, as well as to families without earned income.

Some other critics of Nixon's plans have argued that the $1,600 floor is grossly inadequate, falling far short of the U.S. government's own definition of the income—about $3,600—needed to keep an urban family of four out of poverty.

The advertisements argue that employed fathers who are trying to help themselves do not want supplemental help, saying:

"In fact it is unfair. It would weaken his incentive. It would lock him into welfare as a way of life. A way of life he and his family would rather not live."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Patients Deserve To Be Smoke-free

Patients are becoming more vocable against smoking in hospital rooms. Until recently they used to lie there and take it without complaint. Now they are bitter about people who smoke. . . .

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Scientists are not smart enough to send man to the moon but they can dare shibboret to keep smokers out of the sick patient's room.

I realize, in a free society, we can't force people to stop smoking to save them from emphysema, lung cancer, heart disease and all the rest, but I think it's the duty of hospital administrators and doctors to enforce no-smoking rules in rooms where the sick be helpless.

Some people are intensely allergic to smoke. I have just returned from a hospital stay after gall-bladder surgery. I assure you I suffered more pain and discomfort from my roommate's complete disregard for my feelings than I did from anesthesia and the surgery itself.

I'm one of those unfortunates who is allergic to tobacco smoke. I am not a professional. My eyes get red and inflamed, I coughed, couldn't sleep. I was completely miserable.

When I complained to my doctor about it, he shrugged his shoulders and said, "There are no regulations here about smoking. I can't tell another doctor's patient he can't smoke. What I'll try to do is get you home as soon as I can."

In reading this you may consider me a chronic complainer, a joy-killer. I assure you I'm not and at the world. But don't you agree that I have more than one leg to stand on? — Mr. G.

Comment: I'm on your side. Too many of us doctors and hospital administrators have stood by unfeelingly, and watched patients allergic to tobacco smoke suffer unnecessarily.

It is true that some hospitals are beginning to make some restrictions against tobacco. But walk into most institutions, and you can still buy a pack of cigarettes in the hospital lobby or in the coffee shop.

As you do, I believe in live and let live. Those who insist on smoking in spite of continual warnings of danger, have a right to make their own choices. But, they should be made to consider the comfort of others.

I believe that no hospital should dispense cigarettes.

I believe that just as there are smoking and no smoking cars on railroad passenger trains, so should there by restrictions to patients' smoking. On admission they should be asked if they smoke. Those who do should be put together in smoking rooms.

All hospital visitors should know that smoking is prohibited. If they can't refrain from smoking for half an hour, then they should not visit longer than one-half hour. The time has come, I believe, for a blanket rule that will cover all hospitals: 1. No sale of cigarettes. 2. Visitors prohibited from smoking. 3. Segregation of smokers and nonsmokers who are in-patients.

It's about time we brought all possible comfort to the helpless patient, who lies on his back, too weak to run from the reach of his smoke.

I predict, Mr. G., that the time is not far off when patients allergic to smoke will not have to bear this added burden to their pain and discomfort. Notoriously, old customs resist change. But I assure you: change is right around the corner.

Your Car

Shop for Good Dealer

By RAY STAPLEY

When buying a used car, shopping for a good dealer is even more important than in buying a good car. You can buy from a franchised dealer's used car lot, or from an independent dealer who handles only used cars. You can buy from a private party through the classified newspaper ads.

Beware of doing business with a close friend. Regardless of how perfect the vehicle may be, it is still a piece of machinery that can suddenly fail and require expensive surgery. Many lifelong friendships have terminated abruptly when the "little jewel" that one friend sold to the other wound up needing major repairs.

No matter where you buy it, you can't expect a used car to be as trouble-free as a new one. Some people feel that the best bet would be to buy a new car before offering it for sale, but still sell at rock-bottom prices. This is unreasonable, and for the dealer very unlikely because it is unprofitable. The buyer pays for the repairs either in the purchase price or later.

Be careful when a car is offered on an "as is" basis and priced well below the going rate for that particular year and model. A mechanic may find in the other wound up needing major repairs.

No matter where you buy it, you can't expect a used car to be as trouble-free as a new one. Some people feel that the best bet would be to buy a new car before offering it for sale, but still sell at rock-bottom prices. This is unreasonable, and for the dealer very unlikely because it is unprofitable. The buyer pays for the repairs either in the purchase price or later.

Be careful when a car is offered on an "as is" basis and priced well below the going rate for that particular year and model. A mechanic may have money on this kind of deal; but it is too big a gamble for the uninitiated.

Keep in mind that the purchase price, plus immediate necessary repairs, equals the true buying price. If for example, a car can be had for $200 less than the going rate needs $300 worth of repairs, you actually lose $300 on the deal.

A used car is often one that someone else down the road, and unless the dealer can give a written guarantee that the car is in good condition, repairs can be expected. A reputable dealer is quite willing to let your mechanic check a car, since he realizes that if the car is good, the mechanic will give a favorable report that likely will clinch the sale.

If you cannot get a reasonable guarantee, don't make a down payment or sign forms until the car of your choice has been thoroughly road-tested — in the city and on the highway —and checked by your mechanic. When checking cars for would-be purchasers I have found as much as $1,500 worth of work needed and many of them were not worth restoring. If the dealer will not go along with such a check, don't buy a car from him.

Mileage is not the chief criterion. I would prefer a highway - driven car with 40,000 miles on the clock, rather than one with 20,000 miles put on only by short city runs.

But you don't have to be a mechanic to detect certain points of wear. Badly worn draft cards around the doors indicate constant use. Frayed or badly ragged upholstery on the driver's seat, extensive wear on the arm rests, brake pedal and steering wheel are all clues to high mileage.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Truth-telling Penalized

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend of mine, the head of a large manufacturing company whose stock took a terrible tumble this winter, blamed a part of it on the market and business conditions generally — but also blamed himself for not telling the facts, and thus misleading the firm's quarterly report on earnings.

"I gave the facts as they were," he said ruefully at lunch not long ago, "without any double-talk or excuses, because I thought our stockholders and the public would appreciate honesty. But apparently I was wrong."

Shortly after, I read a New York Times story in which the Chrysler Corp. explained its deficit for the final quarter of 1969 thusly:

"A shift in consumer demand early in the year resulted in a less favorable product mix and rises in selling costs of special merchandising programs undertaken to sustain a balanced level of sales."

The Times' financial reporter felt it was necessary to translate this corporate gobbledegook, and added: "This means that prices, low profit cars sold better, and the company had to give incentives — free gasoline or boost advertising and such — to sell its bigger cars. This of course means less profit per sale."

Why didn't the company say so, in plain unequivocal English? For the same reason that a general issues a communique that calls a retreat an "strategic withdrawal and redispersal of forces," or a Congressional committee describes a depression as a "downward adjustment of the economy to correct inventory tendencies."

Chrysler spo-rously goofed in fudging and many big cars at a time when the public was turning to smaller ones; but the real refreshing it would be to have the company say so, instead of hiding behind the verbiage of "a less favorable product mix," which merely attempts to conceal its miscalculation from the public.

But my friend got severely burned for his honest report in admitting his firm's mistakes. In the prevailing atmosphere of lofty double-talk, his clear candor was regarded as a frightful admission of culpability, and the stock plummeted far more than it deserved to.

We are like insensitive parents who feel they want their children to tell the truth, no matter what the costs, and then heavily punish the child who is naive and trusting enough to take us at our word. So, eventually, the child learns to be wary, and tells us what we would like to hear, rather than the unvarnished facts. As Disher so trenchantly put it: "It takes two to partake of the truth — one to speak it, and one to listen."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 7

Your birthday today: Consolidation, adjustment, thrift are the keywords for the coming year. If you are to retain what you have, time and effort is to be devoted to the uses you intend to make of your possessions and resources both material and spiritual. Others must be consulted, brought into fuller co-operation for the highest results.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your financial judgment, spending habits are not likely to be prudent today. Discipline yourself while you genuinely attempt to break out of recent habits.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Everything you try to do now runs into resistance or some disagreement. Money and financial arrangements are of great concern. Seek competent advice.

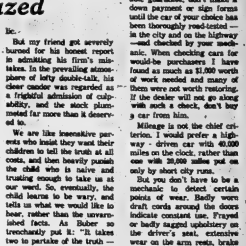
GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your temptation today is toward haste and impatience. It is up to you to avoid embarrassment — nobody is going to help you now.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Money deals with friends could set up future difficulties. Promises are much easier made than kept. Arguments are much too easy to start today.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your tendency now toward stubborn behavior shows and may bring you some personal conflict. Your energy is better channelled into routine matters for the moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Tact and forbearance become essential today particularly with relatives and in-laws. Intellectual pursuits are most favorable now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 23): Your intuition and clear perspects look much better than they really are. A bit of skepticism is in order. Associates tend to differ on group finances.



SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Most of the resistance you meet is generated by the pressure you bring to bear; people can be as contrary as you are forceful. The more intimate the association, the more stressful the incident. You can alleviate most of the problem by a sweetness approach.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 20): Over-confidence and lack of caution possible circumstances. Double-check your facts and figures as the day progresses. Your personal charm can enter into any arrangements and should have a powerful influence.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 21 — Jan. 19): Your best course is to select the most difficult of your regular work chores involving creative talents and attend to them industriously and thoroughly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): There is no point in getting upset over domestic matters — just look after whatever needs attention without squabbling.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Relatives and their concerns tend to hinder business arrangements. Money and commitments for future payments require very careful thought.

CIRCULATION DEPT.

TO THE CATHOLIC TAXPAYERS OF HASTINGS and PRINCE EDWARD COUNTIES

In answer to the Board's letter sent to you individually, the teachers wish to state their case.

(1) The Board's letter states:

The current dissatisfaction circles around a supposed "gentleman's agreement" arising out of Addendum No. 2. This addendum was translated to imply that this Board had automatically agreed to accept a report which would be presented to it . . . . . by a joint Trustee-Teacher Committee.

The Teachers answer that by saying:

The whole purpose of the mediation meeting which drew up Appendum No. 2 was to find a solution to the problem of the teachers' mass resignation in November 1969, over the unsatisfactory definition of levels. To postpone the solution till next year negates the purpose of the mediation meeting.

At no time during the mediation meeting was it proposed to leave the matter until 1970-71. Indeed, discussion of specific cases showed that the Board was anxious to safeguard the salaries this year of those personnel which might be adversely affected by any new definition of levels. To postpone the solution till next year destroys the intent of the mediation meeting.

It was agreed to refer the matter to a Teacher-Trustee Committee for its recommendation. This Committee made unanimous recommendations on the main definitions of levels. It did not recommend postponement of the new definition of levels until next year.

To postpone the solution till next year exceeds the recommendations of the Teacher-Trustee Committee. Although the recommendations were much less than they had hoped for, the teachers felt morally obliged to accept them. This moral obligation they maintain, is also imposed upon the Board. To postpone the solution till next year can only destroy the confidence, trust and good faith which must exist between the two parties.

(2) The Board's letter states:

Upon receipt of this report (i.e. the Teacher-Trustee Committee's recommendation) it became obvious that greater study . . . . . was most essential.

The Teachers' reply to that is:

No matter what reasons the Board might find afterwards for not implementing the Teacher-Trustee Committee's recommendation, it is bound to its commitments. The teachers believe that any person who gives a moral commitment to another is not entitled to unilaterally break that commitment.

Furthermore, the reason given by the Board, viz. that greater study is essential, is not, in the teachers' opinion an adequate one. And for these reasons:

The teachers have been pressing for an expanded definitions of levels since March 1969. This has given the Board adequate time for greater study.

These expanded definitions of levels are commonplace throughout the Province and have been for some years. It is not something new that has been sprung on the trustees.

The local Hastings Public School Board has an expanded definition of levels which encourages its teachers to better their qualifications, encourages their well-qualified teachers to remain with them and attracts well-qualified teachers to their system. The separate school trustees cannot be unaware of such definition of levels.

(3) The Board's letter states:

It was obvious that any retroactive implementation of levels would have no beneficial value to the system.

The Teachers reply:

That it would have the immediate beneficial value of restoring the trust and confidence of the teachers in the Board.

That it would have the immediate beneficial value of dissuading many of the teachers from seeking positions elsewhere.

(4) The Board's letter states:

In justice to all the Board has refused to implement a policy of additional levels prior to the 1970-71 year.

The Teachers believe:

That in justice to all the Board should carry out the recommendations of the Teacher-Trustee Committee.

(5) Finally, the Board states:

That is does not consider its own teacher employees responsible for the calibre of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers (Toronto) campaign to date.

The Teachers reply:

That all actions taken in the present campaign have been requested by, or endorsed by, the teaching body as a whole, or by the local representatives of the local teaching body.

Control Big Firms By Pact: Stanfield

Counterweight To U.S. Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Canada should form international alliances to control multi-national corporations and also should try to form a trading group similar to the European Common Market to avoid complete economic domination by the United States, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Monday night.

Mr. Stanfield told the Senior Board of Trade Club that Canada and other interested countries should agree on the extra-territorial application of the law of the country where a multi-national corporation has its head office.

The problem of national control of foreign subsidiaries arises when multi-national companies are able "in a crunch, and without much cost, to cut back, to pull out or otherwise frustrate the Canadian attempts to enforce Canadian law or policy."

On the subject of a possible trading group, Mr. Stanfield said:

"Canada is one of the few industrialized nations which enjoys neither a large domestic

Emergency Debate Set On Ulster

LONDON (Reuters) — Parliament will hold an emergency debate today on the worsening situation in Northern Ireland following more bomb explosions in Belfast Monday night.

The leading speaker in the House of Commons debate will be Home Secretary James Callaghan, who will assess the situation for members.

Pounder said the seriousness of the situation had been underlined by a statement from Defence Minister Denis Healey Monday that more British troops may soon be sent to reinforce the 6,000 already stationed in Northern Ireland.

Two, bomb blasts shattered the comparative calm of Belfast late Monday night only hours after the Northern Ireland government put a £10,000 ($26,000) price on the heads of those responsible.

The reward for information leading to the arrest of the culprits previously had been £5,000.

The two explosions, within minutes of each other, occurred in a gardening shop and a bar in a religiously mixed area of the city. There were no reports of injuries.

market nor access to a special free trade area, and we must question how long that can continue."

"If we do not soon choose new trading partners as a counterweight to continentalism, we will lose the chance to choose and drift into an even closer integration with the economy of the U.S."

The Conservative leader said it "would be naive" for Canadians to ignore the mounting evidence that the United States will exert a squeeze to achieve access to Canadian energy resources.

But the U.S. need "can be an opportunity for Canada, not a threat, if we are tough and long-sighted in our bargaining."

Unless the government pulls the tax proposals back for drastic revision, Mr. Stanfield said his party would "contest the white paper from first, reading to closure and to continue the struggle . . . next be, through the next election, and to undo the damages after that."

Mr. Stanfield described the tax-change proposals as probably the "most important issue" for Canadian voters in the next four years.

"... It is an issue which forces all Canadians to take sides. It is time to decide, time to speak up, for the issue will never be clearer and the opportunity may not come again."

Mr. Stanfield said the government keeps saying that the white paper is open to changes but the harsh fact remains that, in five months of debate, the government has not produced a single change of substance."

"... Only massive and sustained public opposition will persuade the government to make necessary changes."

As it stands, Mr. Stanfield said, the white paper is "an unfair, dangerous and deceptive document."

Rail Workers Urged To Defy Government

TORONTO (CP) — A senior Canadiel railway union official has called on railway workers to defy the federal government in the next round of contract negotiations.

D. N. Secord, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, recently told delegates to the union's Western Ontario district education council that a head-on collision is inevitable.

In his remarks, reported in the current issue of the union's publication, Canadian Transport, Mr. Secord said the government is going to hand railway workers and employees of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority a take-it-or-leave-it proposition—maximum wage increases of six per cent a year.

He added that current wage demands at regional meetings of the union are averaging more than three times the government's six per cent guideline.

In October, C. M. Drury, treasury board president, told the federal government a "very generous" final offer will expire April 15.

He told a news conference the post office will hire 230 former Lapalme employees, 45 of them as part-time employees.

Selected on the basis of seniority, the full-time employees would be paid their Lapalme pay rates of $3.25 an hour, 25 cents an hour more than regular post office employees in the same classification.

For three months, they would also retain seniority rights held at Lapalme for purposes of job choice and vacations but after that period would only obtain three months seniority as postal employees.

Last week, the same drivers rejected a government offer to hire 235 of their number as post office employees paid $3 an hour.

In both offers, the government has argued it cannot guarantee continued affiliation with the CNTU which in recent years has raised their wages from about $1 an hour to $3.35.

Elizabeth Taylor Plans To Bedazzle Oscar Show

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor plans to bedazzle tonight's Academy Awards audience by wearing her million-dollar diamond, newly transplanted into a shimmering necklace.

For the privilege of doing so, she will pay three Australian insurance companies a premium of $2,500.

A description of Miss Taylor's gown and jewels for the Academy Awards presentation was provided by designer Edith Head, who has created a periwinkle blue chiffon gown and coat for Miss Taylor.

The Cartier diamond, a $1,050,000 gift from Miss Taylor's husband, actor Richard Burton, was previously set in a ring.

The gown which will show off the necklace has a plunging neckline, and, as Miss Head describes it: "It is designed to show off Elizabeth's new, thin figure. It's a soft, floaty, romantic chiffon. Over it she has a soft, stole-cape to the floor in chiffon with a hood."

Montreal Mail Drivers Turn Down New Offer

MONTREAL (CP) — About 450 unemployed Montreal mail truck drivers today unanimously rejected a new federal government offer to hire them.

As the post office moved mail to substations in about 65 rented trucks, former employees of G. Lapalme Inc. turned down the offer with a show of hands.

Guy Beaudoin, a director of the confederation of National Trade Unions with which their union is affiliated, advised the men to reject any offer which did not guarantee them job security.

The existing post office unions claim the truck drivers should join them as members and the government has said union certification is to be decided by the Public Service Staff Relations Board.

Meanwhile, a post office spokesman in Montreal said it was waiting approval to hire more mail delivery drivers and buy more trucks. Mail was delivered from the main post office to substations and relay boxes Monday without incident by rented trucks escorted by security guards.

When a special employment office to hire new drivers closed at noon Friday, 380 applications for jobs had been received, some from Lapalme drivers.

Rail Unions Fight For Passenger Runs

TORONTO (CP) — A national campaign to try to block abandonment of passenger service by CP Rail and Canadian National Railways has been launched by Canada's railway unions, representing 100,000 employees.

A memorandum circulated Monday among railway workers by the Canadian Railway Labor Association recommends that they advise their locals to form joint action committees in communities where hearings on applications for abandonment are being held by the Canadian transport commission.

CP Rail and the CNR have submitted 31 applications for discontinuance of inter-city and regional passenger services in various parts of the country.

The railways claimed losses of more than $30,000,000 on these services last year.

Cypriot Talks Resume in Atmosphere of Deepening Crisis

LONDON (Reuters) — Talks between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots have resumed in Nicosia against a background of continuing crisis on the Mediterranean island.

Although talks have been going on for 20 months, they have not yet produced any significant achievements.

Greeks and Turks generally have been on opposite sides of the fence in the last two decades, during which there was a terrorist campaign against the British and bitter inter-communal strife.

But the assassination attempt earlier this month on President Makarios and the murder shortly afterward of former interior minister Polycarpos Georgadis threw into sharp focus another aspect of Cypriot life—the struggle of Greek against Greek in shaping the island's destiny.

The motive for the attempt on the life of the 56-year-old bearded archbishop, leader of the Greek Orthodox Church in Cyprus as well as head of state, appeared to be opposition to his policy of independence for the 630,000 Cypriots. The Greeks outnumber the Turks by about four to one on the island.

Opponents of this policy want Enosis—the union of Cyprus with Greece—which has been a rallying call of Greek Cypriots since the island was annexed to Britain in 1914.

The archbishop supported the Enosis demand during the troubled 1950s under British rule, when Greeks and Turks were bitterly divided. But he has come to reject it as a solution to the island's problems.

For the last year, his administration has battled to control extremists campaigning for a return to the Enosis policy, and in August it banned the pro-Enosis National Front Organization for using terrorist tactics in its campaign.

Last month, Turkish Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil warned that a coup against the Cyprus government was imminent.

He said Turkey would be faced with a fait accompli after a successful coup in Cyprus and a declaration of Enosis with Greece. He warned that Turkey would use all the resources at his disposal to oppose the attempt.

The talks have been in progress since June, 1968, to try to reach agreement on reuniting the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot communities under a single government after six years of separation.

While they remain divided, the mere fact that they are talking is one of the more promising signs for peace on the troubled island.

New Limit Set For Parking In Downtown

A two-hour parking limitation on streets in Belleville's downtown area will go into effect as result of a bylaw amendment passed at yesterday's meeting of city council.

The bylaw was given all three readings and will now go to the Ontario Department of Transport for approval before being put into effect. This is expected to be effective within the next three week period.

The two hour parking limit will be on Front Street from Station to Dundas, on Victoria from Front to Pinnacle, Bridge Street East from Front to Pinnacle and on the South side of Campbell Street.

Also yesterday council amended its traffic bylaw to eliminate parking on the west side of Sidney Street from Bridge Street to Our Lady of Fatima school between the hours of 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. except Sunday.

The above amendment was passed to clear up a parking problem which city police said was resulting in a traffic hazard for the area. This bylaw also has to be approved by the Transport Department.

Also, yesterday council passed a bylaw appointing a lottery licensing officer for the city. The officer named is Gary Reid of the city treasurer's department.

Two weeks ago council received the report of a special committee named to investigate lotteries which asked that the provincial bylaw on lotteries be adopted and a local licensing officer be named.

A pond, up to six feet in depth, is the result of melting snow and spring rains just north of Bridge Street East between Parrott Drive and the Haig Road. City council last night was told water is posing flooding threat to residents of Parrott Drive area, since it has not drained away this year because of the construction of homes on Bridge Street East.

Council Action Sought

East End Flood Water Worries Residents

A flooded swamp area north of Bridge Street East, between Parrott Drive and Haig Road, is causing both the worry and complaints of neighborhood residents.

Area parents are worried because of the danger threat to their children while Parrott Drive residents are unhappy that their backyards are flooded.

Council was told that yesterday an area boy almost drowned in the flooded swamp when he fell from a raft.

In a letter to city council, Mr. R. Reade, 305 Parrott Dr., said the swamp area drained naturally until new houses were constructed along the north side of Bridge Street. Since then raised lawns at the recently - built houses prevents the water from draining away through a culvert across Bridge Street.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell told council that the flooding was not a city responsibility. He said it was up to the assessed owner of the property to drain it satisfactorily.

But because of enforcement problems, the city engineer admitted the city by-law was useless.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey asked "Without enforcement we are passing a lot of junk."

Ald. Fred Rollo replied to the city manager and city solicitor to make it "workable" and also that they look into the hiring of a bylaw enforcement officer.

"Bylaws are no good unless they are enforced," she said. "Without enforcement we are passing a lot of junk."

New Veterans' Group

The Veterans of Belleville Committee has now been officially formed, it was announced this morning.

Although in operation for the past three years, solely for the purpose of sponsoring the Remembrance Day banquet, the newly-formed committee will be responsible for the co-ordinating all veterans activities.

Each of the four veteran groups in Belleville — the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201 ANAF, Branch 99 Royal Canadian Legion, 413 Wing RCAF Association and Col Tony Wills Branch 97, Ex-Servicewomen Royal Canadian Legion — will have two representatives on the committee.

Elected to office for the coming year were Howard Kolesh, chairman, Tom Purdy, Stuart Hoard, Ina Rollins, Janet MacDonald, Henry Ford, Sidney Scott and Edward Karlbeck.

An advisory committee of J. C. Lundberg, R. G. Burns, Jack Rashotte and G. Madden was also appointed.

The first task confronting the newly - elected committee was the completion of plans for a drumhead service to be held Sunday, May 3 on the Armory lawn.

Tribute Is Sought For Richard Ellis

Requests from three different city organizations for consideration in naming a suitable recreational facility in honor of the late Richard Ellis, have been received by city councils.

The requests were from the Belleville Minor Sports Association, the Belleville Minor Hockey Association and the Quinte Home Builders.

Mr. Ellis, a city councillor elected in 1967, died March 16. He had an unmatched record of active support for city sports and youth activities.

The letters from the three associations were referred to the city recreation committee and the parks board for consideration.

The requests asked that their recreational facility in the city be built or renamed to bear the name of Mr. Ellis in recognition of his contributions in both time and money toward the promotion of the recreational welfare of the city's youth.

Recipient Objects to Murray Welfare Rates

WOOLER — A township resident voiced strong objections both to the amount of his welfare payments and clerk-treasurer Angus Gunter, the township's welfare officer at Monday night's regular session of Murray township council.

The resident, Lyndon Terrill, 28, who lives on the English Settlement Road, told council that he wasn't receiving enough money to feed his wife and two children and that he was unable to pay his rent, now due.

In addition, Mr. Terrill accused Mr. Gunter of pulling a switch blade knife on him one day last week at the township municipal offices during a discussion of his request for increased welfare.

However, Mr. Gunter said that Mr. Terrill came into the office at closing time and refused to leave when requested to do so.

Mr. Gunter said that he then picked up a letter opener for self-defence and in response to Mr. Terrill's threats, while Mr. Terrill picked up a steel chair.

At this point, said Mr. Gunter, seven township road employees entered the municipal office and escorted Mr. Terrill from the building.

"I don't pretend to be a bar bouncer and I've never owned a switch blade in my life."

Mr. Gunter asserted this morning.

Council agreed to give Mr. Terrill a $25 food voucher for the first portion of April and supply the man with a department of family and social services grievance form to allow him to appeal his case.

Councillor Stanley Down noted that it was township policy not to pay rent in advance, while Reeve Harry Lafferty said that the township could only pay what the government allows, but would investigate the matter.

Mr. Gunter told council that the Terrill family had received $180 in March, since moving to the township early that month.

He explained that Mr. Terrill twice came to his home in February requesting welfare assistance before moving to Murray township from Amherstburg. Mr. Terrill still had a cheque coming from Prince Edward county at the time, Mr. Gunter said. Mr. Terrill used his Prince Edward county cheque to pay the first month's rent on his Murray township residence, Mr. Gunter added.

Hire Clerk

Welfare Workload to Ease

WOOLER — Murray township council voted Monday night to hire a clerk to lighten the heavy workload of the present clerk-treasurer, Angus Gunter.

The township will advertise the position in Municipal World and other publications. Mr. Gunter, who has been clerk-treasurer of Murray township since 1945, will continue his duties as treasurer and welfare officer.

The hiring of a clerk went hand-in-hand with council's passage of a by-law providing for interim tax billing in 1970.

Council decided to send out the first bill before the mill rate has been established.

The switch to interim tax billing will eliminate the cost of borrowing to cover the township's quarterly education levy.

Murray township's first quarterly bill, received last night, amounted to over $67,000, and education is the major tax expense for township residents.

The rate is set, at the rate of 56 per cent of the previous year's taxes, with the second bill covering the remainder of 1970's taxes after the mill rate has been established.

City 'Moving Fast' Says Brown, Predicts 4,000 Population Hike

"When I first came to Belleville, an analysis of the city showed that it fell sick," said Ray Brown, Belleville Industrial Commissioner.

He was speaking last night at the monthly meeting of the Area Rehabilitation Council at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

Mr. Brown explained this statement as the attitude towards change he felt was shown by the citizens of Belleville. By approaching all aspects of community life, it was his goal to increase job opportunities, curtail obsolescence by new development, and above all, put Belleville on the map.

"I would say from the progress the city has made that the 'patient' could do with a prescription to lower high blood pressure, we're moving so fast," he added.

From the original 60 businesses on file, Mr. Brown reported an increase of last year to 546 visits to the city by industrialists, 89 personal contacts, and 40 successful business placements. From this increase, Belleville realized more than 700 job increases, development of more than 500,000 square feet of property, and an increase of 10 million dollars in community revenues.

Computerized information gathered over the past few years is being catalogued by the industrial commission's new research assistant. From program reports comes a growth estimation for the next two years, he said.

"We estimate an increase of over 4,000 people; 1,600 new dwellings; 1,600 retail stores; 2,500 telephones; and over six million dollars in increased retail sales, a figure which is already under-estimated".

Mr. Brown said that only by breaking down the walls of tradition, custom and habit can advancement be made. The good that these values accomplished were not to be forgotten or cast aside, but a change in community thinking is necessary before a community can grow.

A question was asked concerning the housing problem in relation to the willingness of company employees to locate here. To this Mr. Brown explained that the market value of homes is determined by what people are willing to pay.

He explained that attempts are being made to solve this problem, and that only by the co-operation of people could this be accomplished. One company is even considering building accommodations for employees and putting the homes towards a trust and pension fund in an attempt to combat the housing and inflation problem.

Mr. Brown said Belleville gives better use to the money received from the Ontario Development Corporation, than do most other communities, and we hope to continue receiving this assistance".

This was just another example of the needs of a city that would grow, he said.

"The 'patient' is doing very well indeed," he concluded.

Kingston Man Is President

For the first time in Belleville, the monthly meeting of the Area Rehabilitation Council was held last night at the Sun Valley Motor Inn at 7:15 p.m.

Related agencies in the ARC aid and support each other in helping emotionally and physically handicapped persons adjust towards returning to both jobs and society. As yet, 31 members from Belleville and Kingston belong to the organization.

Last night's election saw Pat Brady of Queen's Addiction Studies, Kingston Psychiatric Hospital acclaimed president. Also elected by acclamation was Mrs. Marie Fraser of Social and Family Services who will serve as Secretary.

Elected vice-president was Ken Weston of the Vocational Unit of the Kingston General Hospital.

Although most of the members are from Kingston, many Belleville agencies have been associated with the Council since its inception and more are joining. Foremost among the local agencies is the Canada Manpower Centre and the Hastings County Board of Education.

It was pointed out by guest speaker Ray Brown, Industrial Commissioner for Belleville, that local industry has far surpassed Kingston in the hiring of patients from the centre.

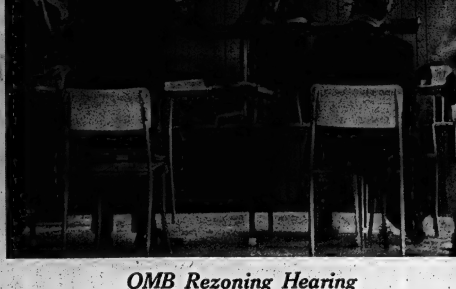
Kingston's two workshops employ 40 in their retarded workshop and 11 in their high-pressure retraining shop. If the production output does not reach 85 per cent capacity, they are not considered a full-rated industry.

The members of the ARC are the Kingston Psychiatric Hospital Rehabilitation Branch; Canada Manpower Centre (Belleville); John Dixon, Superintendent for the Hastings County Board of Education; the John Howard Society; the Canadian Society for Crippled Children: St. Lawrence College of Applied Arts and Science; the Canadian Institute for the Blind; the Frontenac County Board of Education; Kingston Adult Training Centre; Department of Social and Family Services, Rehabilitation Branch, and the Kingston General Hospital Rehabilitation Centre.

In Ontario there are 11 rehabilitation workshops which accept contracted jobs from industry. Physically or emotionally handicapped patients are hired by the workshops which are run by community or hospital organizations. Here the workers can adjust before undertaking jobs in competitive industry.

Belleville's rehabilitation centre is situated in the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street East, and employs physically handicapped men.

Rotary Readies Science Fair



An applied science section will be among new displays in this year's Rotary science fair and hobby show at the city armoury.

Bill McPherson, chairman of the event, told Rotarians yesterday that the section has been introduced to encourage exhibits from vocational technical schools "who to some extent have been excluded in favor of academic students."

There was a small entry in this category, said Mr. McPherson, and there were also more entries this year from Grade 7 and 8 students in public schools.

The winners will attend the Canada-wide Science Fair in Hamilton.

Mr. McPherson noted that expenses this year would be considerably less because of the proximity of Hamilton and because the armory rental has been reduced.

OMB Rezoning Hearing

F. G. Blake presided yesterday at the Ontario Municipal Board hearing of the township of Ameliasburg's application to authorize the remaining part of Pete's Point for summer cottage development. Township clerk William Nightingale was on the stand under examination for information as to the official plan and zoning regulations.

OMB Reserves Ameliasburg Decision

AMELIASBURG — The decision was reserved on this township's application to rezone a portion of Pete's Point from agricultural to summer cottage use at the conclusion of an Ontario Municipal Board hearing in the township hall here yesterday.

Hearing chairman F. G. Blake said his ruling on the matter would be available in not later than three weeks.

Support for the application came from Jack Allin of Belleville, intending to develop a cottage sub-division on the Point.

Opposed to re-zoning was Belleville dentist Dr. John M. Clarke who planned to build a permanent residence on the Point and was refused a building permit under the zoning bylaw in effect.

Only other opposition to the township's re-zoning application was Mrs. Kenneth Bilford who lives in a permanent home on the Point.

All of Pete's Point was designated for cottage use in the township's official plan.

Approval was given for re-zoning parts of it for summer cottage use while the part covered in the application being considered by the OMB remained agricultural.

McFarland: Puzzled By Official Silence to Critic

PICTON — Addressing members of town council last night Mayor H. J. McFarland voiced confusion concerning criticism levelled at him in the legislature by Gilford Pilkey, NDP member for Oshawa concerning a delay in the sale of the homes of the former Camp Picton.

Mr. Pilkey suggested that Mayor McFarland, who owns a number of wood homes in Picton, was attempting to freeze the sale of camp properties in his personal interests.

"That," emphasized Mayor McFarland, "is absolutely untrue in any way shape or form. It puzzles me that the minister did not answer Mr. Pilkey's questions."

Mayor McFarland added that he began to work with the provincial and federal governments toward the conversion of Camp Picton to a hospital for the aged and mentally ill "eight or nine months ago."

"I've had ministers here for a visit to Camp Picton and they studied all its facilities. They are familiar with it all and I'm at a loss for words to know why someone didn't know what it was all about.

Noting the housing situation in Picton, Mayor McFarland observed: "They have spent $300,000 to $400,000 for low-rental houses that you can't get into now for mud. The contractor has been released from the job." How another $200,000 to $300,000 will be spent for senior citizens' housing. There is housing accommodation already 'on the Hill' (Camp Picton). As far as my tenant houses in Picton are concerned I am tempted to give them away. I'm only interested in a hospital or retarded children underway in the proper manner. A staff of from 600 to 650 more local women would be employed and the provincial government is moving toward this goal. The federal government also is doing all it can.

"I hope these criticisms stop shortly," remarked the mayor referring to Pilkey's allegations which recently appeared in Hansard.

The mayor observed that he felt proud to make the pages of Hansard — something he had never dreamed of as a schoolboy in Roblin.

"But," said Mayor McFarland, "I would like to have the opportunity of putting the minister straight — one way or the other."

Camp Housing Again Debated

PICTON — "I don't think the right hand of government knows what the left hand is doing," stated councillor Margaret Ackerman describing the housing plight of 85 Clinton, Ont., families.

She explained that these families must move to Kingston since the air force base in Clinton is being phased out. Because of high rental costs and home shortages, many of these persons are without living quarters. Many have discovered that a four-bedroom room home rents for about $225 a month.

"Could the houses on the hill be made available to them?" asked councillor Ackerman.

(More than 200 houses are vacant on the now vacant Camp Picton.)

Replied Mayor McFarland: "I think every home there will be occupied. I can't tell you when, what hour — it's up to the governments. Those people should go to Ottawa right away for a chance at the houses," he added.

Mrs. Ackerman remarked that houses are being built for the former Clinton residents, but cannot be ready for occupancy in less than six months time.

Foreman Now Works Chief

PICTON — Picton town foreman Carl McConnell has been appointed superintendent of public works at an annual salary of $7,052.

Replacing him as foreman of public works is James Cory who will receive an annual salary of $6,040. Sewage disposal works foreman is George Diegman who will be paid a salary of $5,200 a year and a car allowance of $500.

Health Costs At $33,600

The city's share of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit costs for 1975 has been estimated at $33,627, according to a report received by council from the unit's secretary treasurer Carl E. Bateman.

The amount will be reduced to $29,895 as result of a city surplus of $3,741 in last year's operations.

The health unit budget was referred to the city council budget committee for consideration.

Students Seeking Canoes

The second annual canoe race run by Loyalist College students down the Moira River this Sunday has sent the participants on a search for canoes from private individuals and local sporting stores.

Loyalist student Mary Barrett says he hopes some canoeists or canoe dealers would lend their craft tested in the annual Loyalist run.

"Come hell or high water the students at Loyalist are going to make their canoe run down the Moira River on Apr. 12," he said.

Mr. Barrett explained that the canoe run starts off the year's Outward Bound activities for the students. Outward Bound is an adventure group of Loyalist students.

Already the run has been postponed twice due to low water in the river. It was originally scheduled for Easter Sunday, the same day that the students made their run last year.

No less than 13 canoes will be making the trip in the student-organized event. There will be two persons per canoe, and this year, two girls will make the trip — Vicki Bateman and Diane Harver.

The canoeists will leave Corbyville just below the dam at 1.30 p.m. and will travel for approximately one hour through the rapids until they finish at Victoria Park.

They will portage around the Canniffton Dam but will shoot Lazier's Dam enroute.

Hospital Progress

The need for a hospital development plan covering the next decade is envisaged by Belleville General Hospital administrator Philip Rickard, but there seems to be some mystery as to how such a plan may evolve.

Mr. Rickard, in his annual report, views such an initiative as forming part of a master health services development plan for the district. Well and good — but what are we to make of Mayor Dr. Russell Scott's opposition to such a survey being undertaken by Friesen International, the U.S. hospital consultant firm whose concepts form the basis of the design of Belleville's new hospital building?

The hospital is one of the most modern in Canada. It has drawn praise from Mr. Peter Ring, the British surgeon who came here to demonstrate the latest methods of orthopaedic surgery, and attracted medical men and hospital officials from other centres.

Mr. Rickard is quoted as saying that as far as the hospital staff is concerned the Friesen system has "resulted in one of the finest hospitals in Canada."

Dr. Scott on the other hand, without specifying any criticism, says he is merely projecting objections he has received "from all walks of life." The Mayor made this statement at a regular board meeting prior to the annual meeting of the Board of Governors when Mr. Rickard presented his report.

What are the objections to which Dr. Scott refers? Unless they are made public, how can a proper assessment of their merits, or otherwise be made?

This is a public hospital and the board of governors and staff are accountable to the citizens of Belleville and surrounding area whom they serve. Thus for the Mayor to reveal that there have been objections and then fail to elaborate is not good enough, particularly when we are faced with the contrary statement of the administrator, to the effect that the Friesen system has merit.

If debate on this issue is premature, as Hastings County administrator Carl Bateman suggested, it should nevertheless not be lost sight of. Mr. Bateman moreover, was right in calling for cost estimates from various consultants, including Friesen.

Meanwhile it is interesting to note Mr. Rickard's statement that the emergency department is one of the busiest areas in the hospital. Its workload has increased dramatically in recent years, and the administrator has called for careful consideration of this fact and of future requirements.

The emergency department of a hospital of necessity must be one which operates at the highest degree of efficiency. The fact that 25,533 visits were recorded at emergency last year, compared with 13,380 in 1945, speaks for itself. The increasing pace of modern life, the vast growth of motor traffic and of heart disease has contributed to this. The emergency department may be regarded as a key symbol of a hospital's effectiveness in maintaining life and limb.

Belleville General Hospital today is not found wanting in this or any other sphere of its activities. It is clear however that its activities are expanding; hence the importance of the current preliminary deliberations on its future needs. A continuing obstacle for example is a shortage of medical and surgical beds.

A Hardy Breed

To a North American Indian, an Eskimo is "an eater of raw meat." For his own part an Eskimo sees himself as one of the "inuvik," or people. So ran part of the narrative in a British-produced television program, seen by Canadian audiences recently. It traced the life of an Eskimo hunter and his family in East Greenland, through the long polar night and the brief but beautiful summer, with its profusion of wild flowers. Amid the vast silence of his realm the Eskimo hunts for the seals, keeping a sharp eye on the treacherous ice floes and, hopefully, his sanity in face of the dizziness and hallucinations that go with "kayak madness," an Arctic phenomenon. The womenfolk skin the seal skin that provides the Eskimo not only with food but clothing and many other needs; and the handsome children cut ice for water and perform other necessary tasks. Their life is hard, their pleasures simple yet rewarding. Self-reliance and toughness, qualities often lacking among our own youth, are part of their very being. From these native people, so long a part of the far northern scene, on this continent, in Greenland and in Siberia, we can learn much.

Stand Up," P.M. Snaps, and Minister Obeys

Pierre Trudeau Exerts Awesome Control Over Cabinet

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Think of an old-time railroad show, with "the Interlocutor" in charge, backed by a line of straight - men all waiting for their cues.

Or think of the offensive team of a football club, lined up, balanced on their toes for the charge, tensely set for the quarterback to call the signals.

Think of either, and you'll have a mental picture of how Prime Minister Trudeau bosses his Cabinet team.

In the House of Commons, or out on the public platform.

He gives each member of the team his cue, and the response by all but a relaxed few is almost athletic in its sudden, frantic motion.

An electric leap to the feet and a startled spider of words.

The whip - cracking discipline the Prime Minister imposes on the team was there for all to see and admire the other day when the Cabinet met Organized Labor.

Until Pierre Trudeau came along, the approved Cabinet posture in any confrontation with union leaders was appeasement, frequently smarmy.

"Diplomacy" — the word that former Prime Minister Lester Pearson, always more of an international diplomat than a political leader, had for it.

It simply wasn't good form to talk back to Organized Labor when its leaders came to Parliament Hill to make their "submissions" — often more like "stand - and - deliver" demands — to the federal Cabinet.

The Prime Minister almost deferentially stood up when making his remarks politely to these labor representatives.

But not our new, swinging bachelor Prime Minister.

He remains seated. The labor leaders stand.

They nag him. He naps back. Soft answers and sweet talk were for another day and another Prime Minister.

He gives as much — maybe an edge more — than he takes. Perhaps it's fact - diplomatic, nor even prime ministerial.

But all concerned know everybody's position.

And it's great action, rousing entertainment.

Never better than when the Prime Minister is calling his Cabinet colleagues.

He speaks his pleas, often hard words to the labor delegations and other groups who bring their submissions and petitions to Parliament Hill — and then he barks calls on his Cabinet Ministers to respond.

"Now," he said the other day in just such a drill, "we'll hear from the Minister of Manpower and Immigration, Mr. MacEachen."

And seemingly surprised by the cue, Allan MacEachen, slouching, scrunched down in his chair, starts mumbling. Inaudibly, in his confusion.

Very obviously irritated, the Prime Minister runs over glances sharply down the line of the Cabinet at the long table and snaps:

"Stand up, Allan, we can't hear you sitting down."

It is plain to see that on this team — and all this confrontation — only the Prime Minister sits.

As if shot from a cannon, Allan MacEachen lunges to his feet, sputtering:

"The Prime Minister told me to stand up," he blurts, "so I stand up, I stood!"

A titter ripples through the huge, over - crowded Railway Committee Room.

Allan MacEachen reddens.

And if they weren't quite so graphically aware of it before everyone of the nearly 200 people in the cavernous hall knows now who is boss. And no fooling!

The Manpower and Immigration Minister slashes, slumps back down into his seat and the Prime Minister leans over the table again, calling another command.

"Benson," he snaps, announcing that the Finance Minister is to have the floor, and anticipating the cue, with roof aplomb, up climbs "Budget Ben."

It is the same drill in the Commons during the Daily Question Period. The Prime Minister listens to the question, answers it himself, then fingers over the Cabinet roster, making a pat - on - your - head gesture over a Cabinet member he cuts to take it.

He almost never has to signal Benson, for instance, for the Finance Minister almost always is a good performer. Nor does he crack the whip at Trade Minister Pepin, Transport Minister Jamieson, Works Minister Lahr, Defence Minister Cardin, or Fisheries Minister Davis.

But when the Prime Minister snaps his fingers or raises an eyebrow, any other 18 members of the Cabinet team jump. Through hoops.

This kind of super tight control of things must turn Conservative Leader Stanfield green.

Taxes, Government and Assessment

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

"Politicians make odd bedfellows." Each politician is forever striving to gain support for his platform.

The Liberals have instigated and presented the White Paper on Taxation to the Canadian people for constructive criticism. Even though most of us agree that parts of the White Paper must be changed, we must give recognition to the Liberals for giving us a chance to express our observations within our democratic process as well as praise Pierre Trudeau's public recognition that the White Paper will be changed to better satisfy the needs of the Canadian People.

On the other hand, the Conservative government of Ontario is thrusting upon us equalized assessment where we will be assessed and taxed to help maintain government educational facilities and other government services in the cities; Sub - division Controls where we will be forced to ask and receive permission from government bodies in order to sell or give away our land as we see fit; Centralization where it appears that favored areas receive all government service industries, i.e. OPP stations, schools, courts, health units, etc., and we as private citizens haven't a chance to change these policies as they are set down by the Ontario Conservative Party at Queen's Park.

It appears that equalized assessment, sub-division controls, centralization, fishing licenses, etc. will inevitably drive us off our country property. Also, the families living in large apartments in the cities are proceeding to the point where a gigantic thrust from these annual-like conditions to the open country-side is also inevitable. At this point, the Conservative government and informed people will have plenty of land for sale in the country.

Is it possible that the OPP fortuneous at Sharbot Lake and Stoneybeat Ontario are a deliberate attempt by the Conservative government to further aggravate this trend as well as provide a deterrent to a population should the common, hard-working people of the country-side realize what is going on?

Newspaper's Responsibility

By NORMAN SMITH
In The Ottawa Journal

May I, as Editor of The Journal, discuss personally a little item that came over the wires recently from Boise, Idaho, telling that the Idaho Senate has approved a bill requiring newspaper editorials to be signed by the writer or identified by his initials?

If the people of Idaho think this will bring them more responsible journalism I think they are mistaken. It will bring them more personal journalism, but that's something else again.

I know some Canadians feel that writers of unsigned editorials are gutless; I'm occasionally told this over the phone or in the mail, often anonymously. But The Journal's editorials, being the voice of The Journal, will remain unsigned. Let me explain why.

Though our editorials are unsigned the editor accepts personal responsibility for all of them. If your favorite theory, person or ideal is wronged in a Journal editorial I cannot tell you off by saying: "Oh, that was written by our man Joe Blow or Syd Cynic."

If an editorial is at fault the public has the right to blame The Journal and its editor, not just one of its writers. A newspaper's great capacity to wound and to mislead means that it should be held accountable at the highest level, obliged to earn and re-earn its reputation every day.

A Castle In W. Germany Anyone?

Regina Leader-Post

Talk about castles in Spain! The Castle Association, which counts about 1,000 castle enthusiasts around the world as members, reports that the area which today is the Federal Republic of Germany — West Germany — once had as many as 18,000 castles and palaces.

Surprisingly, 15,000 of these edifices are still there. Of the original number, 2,900 have disappeared entirely and 8,500 are ruins of varying degrees of condition. But 3,000 are still inhabited and 3,000, while unused, are habitable and available.

The association says that many of these castles change hands with regularity, generally because the initial enthusiasm at so romantic a possession is soon followed by discouragement "at the high cost of upkeep."

Castles in the air are cheaper — and perhaps more practical for many people — than those either in Spain or West Germany.

White Paper Anomaly

Montreal Gazette

Mr. Benson proposes to tax the capital gains from the sale of private homes but in a way which will exclude most gains altogether. Why, then, tax at all? Mr. Benson underminded his case when he told the Ontario Real Estate Board that the idea behind the tax, in the domain of private homes, is really to block off an evasion of quick, speculative profit.

The tax dodge Mr. Benson fears is that of a private individual buying a house in a residential district and subsequently reselling it to a developer for a handsome profit when the district is rezoned for commercial building. How the capital gains from the sale of private homes but in a way which will exclude most gains altogether. Why, then, tax at all? Mr. Benson undermined his case when he told the Ontario Real Estate Board that the idea behind the tax, in the domain of private homes, is really to block off an evasion of quick, speculative profit.

The tax dodge Mr. Benson fears is that of a private individual buying a house in a residential district and subsequently reselling it to a developer for a handsome profit when the district is rezoned for commercial building. How can capital gains "actually happen? Not often enough to justify making all home-owners liable to the gains tax.

There is relatively little rezoning of residential districts for commercial building except in the slum areas of large cities, where most of the land is in corporate rather than individual hands.

It all sounds too much as if Mr. Benson is too preoccupied with catching a few successful speculators at the expense of the many who buy homes primarily for the purpose of living in them.

Police Uniforms

Hamilton Spectator

Ontario police chiefs are (adopting proposals for a distinctive new police uniform that, they hope, will become standard across the province. The first item probably will be a scarlet bathcoat.

The chiefs rightly are concerned about the similarity between various police uniforms and those worn by men in other lines of work — firefighters, gas station attendants, bus drivers, milkmen (but not the hotel doormen, who dress more gloriously than Gilbert and Sullivan admirals).

Police should have distinctive, quickly recognizable uniforms. Police presence on the streets is the most important single factor in keeping public order.

And people should be able to tell whether the man in uniform is upholding the law or delivering milk.

Backup Astronaut Ill

German Measles May Wreck Scheduled Voyage to Moon

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Medical specialists hurried blood tests on the Apollo 13 astronauts today to determine whether their exposure to German measles is going to delay a $375,000,000 shot to the moon.

James Lovell, Thomas Mattingly and Fred Haise have been exposed to what is usually a childhood ailment but now is carried by one of their backup pilots, astronaut Charles Duke.

If tests show the immunity of any of the three is low, their doctor probably will recommend that they not be launched in the moon on Saturday as scheduled.

Even if their immunity is high, doctors will be faced with a tough decision.

There is no medical experience in the progress of such a disease in a space environment.

Dr. Charles Berry, medical director for Houston's Manned Spacecraft Centre, said: "We certainly would be concerned about launching them if there was a possibility they could develop the disease during the mission. It certainly could disable them during the flight."

If the launching is postponed, Lovell, Mattingly and Haise would have to wait a month for their next trip. Saturday is the only favorable launch day in April for their intended landing area in the Fra Mauro Highlands. The next opportunity is May 9.

Delay would be costly. When the Apollo 9 launch was postponed three days last year because of astronaut colds, the space agency estimated the extra cost of the mission at $300,000.

Disclosure that Duke had German measles, known medically as rubella, was made Monday. He had reported his condition to medical authorities Sunday night.

Officials said it was not known how or when Duke was exposed.

Berry said Lovell, Haise and Mattingly had been in close contact with Duke for several days, as had the other two backup pilots, John Young and John Swigert, while the crews were segregated at their Cape Kennedy headquarters.

But the prime crew continued to practise in capsule simulators, following a schedule that assumes a launching Saturday.

Doctors hope to determine by Wednesday how immune the spacemen are to German measles.

Lovell, through his four-year-old son Jeffrey, also was expected last week to the mere infectious red measles. Immunity tests also were being made for this variety.

Russians Blamed for Haddock's Disappearance

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Russians have been blamed for the disappearance of haddock from the Grand Banks continental shelf off Newfoundland.

Fish stocks "are being cut from under us," T. Alex Hickman (PC-Burin,) a former Liberal fisheries minister who crossed the floor to join the Progressive Conservative party, told the Newfoundland legislature Monday.

He said 70 per cent of the trawler catch in 1964-68 was haddock but "to all intents and purposes, haddock has disappeared."

"What happened was that the Russians got onto the southern Grand Banks in July and August and destroyed the spawn."

Fishermen Promised Help

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Officials of the Ontario and federal governments meet in Ottawa today to discuss details of compensation for fishermen threatened by a ban to be imposed on two Ontario water systems affected by mercury contamination of fish.

Rene Brunelle, Ontario's minister of lands and forests, announced in the legislature Monday the federal government will impose the ban on the St. Clair Lake system and a system in northwestern Ontario at the request of the province.

At the same time, Ontario Health Minister Thomas Wells said his department has begun a crash program of testing humans for possible poisoning from eating mercury-contaminated fish.

In Parliament, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis promised compensation will be provided for commercial fishermen affected by mercury pollution in Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie.

He said the "precise formula will be finalized" at today's meeting with Mr. Brunelle and Resources Minister George Kerr.

The two governments would share in the costs.

He said compensation possibly will take the form of loans to be repaid following court action by the fishermen against companies responsible for the mercury contamination.

Legal Principles Said Sacrificed

Anti-hate Bill Under Fire in House

OTTAWA (CP) — The bill to outlaw the advocacy of genocide was denounced on both sides of the Commons Monday as a sacrifice of legal principles by the government in an effort to obtain ethnic votes in Quebec.

The action failed to modify the bill during the report stage — second-last step to Commons approval — but it revealed concern about the effect of the measure among some Liberal back-benchers as well as among opposition MPs.

Douglas Hogarth (L—New Westminster), leading off the debate as the Commons turned from a 15-day Easter recess, said that "what we are doing here is passing criminal legislation which is politically motivated to get political support from ethnic groups."

Mr. Hogarth challenged Justice Minister John Turner with an amendment which intended to restrict application of the proposed law to "public" advocacy of genocide, therefore excluding private advocacy.

Mr. Hogarth said he was not opposed to making a crime of public statements which incite racial hatreds or advocate the destruction of a race.

But, he suggested there is no real need in "our criminal law to so restrict our freedom of speech that we have to go into private conversations in the home and make it an offence punishable by five years imprisonment merely because somebody is the best of an argument, possibly after a few drinks, all worked up or perhaps a little obsessed, makes a statement so reprehensible as to advocate genocide."

Mr. Hogarth's amendment was defeated in a voice vote. His arguments were picked up later by Conservative Elder Woollams (Calgary North) as he presented a motion to delete sections of the bill including one dealing with the public incitement of hatred.

"Surely we don't need to use dynamite when what we need is insect powder," he said. "This is just a vote-getting device that threatens freedom of speech and freedom of the press in this country."

He repeated warnings that the bill could be used against the leaders of racial minorities, and newspapers reporting their speeches, if it was felt they had incited hatred against a majority ruling group.

Justice Minister John Turner offered as the primary defence of the bill a belief that advocacy of genocide is "so heinous and abhorrent to civilized men and women in Canada that the sanction ought to apply no matter where the crime is advocated or promoted."

In opposition to Mr. Hogarth's position, he insisted the application of the law would cover only "deliberate, preconceived conduct toward the elimination of a race or of a people of certain color."

Nixon Wants New Start On Tax Relief for Old

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Nixon urged the province Monday not to proceed with a $28,000,000 tax relief program for needy pensioners which he said does not give "real help to these people."

The whole program should be thrown out and new beginnings made—this time with care and with consideration and with the reforms in mind," Mr. Nixon said in the budget speech debate.

The program, under which about 200,000 old age pensioners would be helped to meet property tax bills through up to $100 annually in supplementary tax relief, was announced in the budget last Tuesday by Treasurer Charles MacNaughton.

Mr. Nixon wound up his hour-long speech by moving a vote of non-confidence in the government on the grounds it has failed to provide adequate programs for housing, pensions, pollution control, medical insurance and tax reform. The motion will be voted on at the close of the debate.

Car Crash Sparked Slayings

SAUGUS, Calif. (AP) — Police said today a minor car collision led to 12 hours of gunfire which left four highway patrolmen and another man shot to death.

Recovering in hospital from a pistol wound in the chest was a 32-year-old man identified by police as one of the two principals in the lengthy shootout. The second man was dead, of an apparently self-inflicted shotgun blast in the head.

The wounded man was booked for investigation of murder under the name Russell Lowell Talbert, 28, of Winston-Salem, N.C., the name on identification paper he had on his person.

Winston-Salem police said, however, that a man of the same name in that city had reported his identification papers stolen in a burglary at his home. The FBI was asked to check the wounded man's fingerprints.

One man, identified by police as Jack W. Twining, 35, of Winston-Salem, took refuge in the home of Glenn S. Hoag but released him unharmed after a five-hour police siege. When police charged the house with tear gas grenades a shotgun blast rang out and the man fell dead —he "blew his head off," one deputy said.

Circular Ponchos Now Back in Fashion

NEW YORK (CP) — A high-fashion bit of a few seasons back was the circular poncho which emerged in a flurry of Mexican motifs but died out when the hippies adopted them as part of their far-out costumes.

This spring, however, the poncho is back again, along with-the fringed shawl which designers have been flicking with for several seasons.

The poncho has been endorsed, even if not overwhelmingly shown in collections, by such trend-setters as Pierre Cardin with his hooded poncho to wear with a skirt or over a coat; Models of New York with a series of fringed ponchos, and Emanuel, with a pink silk poncho lined in coral and worn over pink silk pants for evening.

In Canada, Ellis Leathers introduces a pastel blue fringed mesh poncho and matching straight pants. It's an elegant evening look. And in New York, even the men are interested in leather ponchos for country wear.

Sterling of Winnipeg is showing for spring a beige-and-white-check fringed poncho over a wrap-style dress. Lov of Montreal has combined the fashion interest in patchwork with a fringed poncho and matching pants in acetate knit.

Ponchos are usually circular flin-cos with a hole for the head. They are worn by Mexican men in the country-side for warmth and protection; instead of a jacket. In South America the descendants of the Incas in Peru wear a poncho version, especially in towns like the old Inca capital of Cuzco high in the Andes. Big Steel of Toronto has Peruvian poncho styles in hand-knitted alpaca, with Peruvian motifs including a band of llamas.

On the pampas of Argentina and Uruguay, the poncho is an essential part of the cloth-ing of the cowboy, the South American cowboy.

In the feminine take-over the poncho has become elegant for evening or casual street wear or country. Fringed and colorful, it is ex-cellent with the jump suits that are the latest fashion push for both day and evening.

However, many designers still prefer the traditional cape instead of the more pon-cho poncho. Fraidies Tripper invariably includes several in all her collections. Norell added little cape tops to coats and dresses. In Montreal Robichaud instituted a knee-length navy cape lined in red. And Irish Sybil Connolly likes a full lined-cape worn over a shift dress.

Another fashion that has been trying to break through for several seasons is the shawl. Probably fashion's avid interest in the past has given it the needed shove forward, for it the late 1920s the deep-fringed Spanish shawl with its embroidered floral designs was much in use as an evening wrap.

In recent years the stole—fabric or fur—became important. Then the fur stole was dropped and long matching satin or chiffon stoles became part of an evening formal. Last season it was a deluge of scarves, short and long.

The shawl is mostly confined to evening although Lanvin of Paris introduced long tubular shirts always worn with a fringed triangular shawl. Many designers have edged their large evening shawls with feathers, fringes or flower petals.

Sarmi topped a floor-length printed formal with a printed shawl edged in pink feathers. Donald Brooks likes giant shawls that fall to within 12 inches of the floor. One in silk organza has giant poppies as an edging. Oscar de la Renta showed not only colorful and dramatic flamenco (Spanish dancer) shawls but also the traditional Irish black shawl.

PONCHO RETURNS — The circular poncho (right) is transformed into a huge square and the fringed shawl becomes a daytime addition to a checked dress as the poncho returns to the world of women's fashion. A high-fashion hit a few seasons ago, the poncho died when hippies adopted it as part of their costume. Designers are bringing it back for spring 1970. (CP Photo)

Stewardess Treats Soldiers

HONOLULU (AP) — The soldiers on the long flight to Vietnam were nervous and frightened. They didn't talk much. So stewardess Peggy Cope decided to do something.

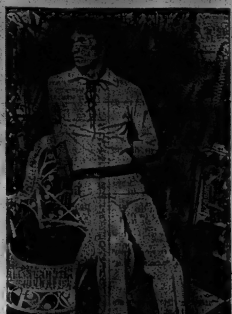
On her next military flight she brought two suitcases crammed with cookies and candy.

Unknown to her employer, American Airlines, Peggy had been making cookies and holiday treats at home for her uniformed passengers since she took her first Vietnam flight as a volunteer last October.

"I just like to do something extra for them," she says. Peggy, 24, based in Dallas, Tex., said U.S. servicemen munched 600 of her home-made brownies in one month.

"They ask for one and snitch two more," she said. "It makes you feel like a good cook."

At Christmas, it took four suitcases and two shopping bags to carry the 185 holiday stockings, which she stitched up and stuffed with gifts and goodies.



A veteran of 14 years with American Airlines, Peggy bakes during all her home layovers in preparation of her military flights.

In an interview, Peggy recalled that her first trip to Vietnam was a sad experience.

"The men began to cry and frightened," she said. "It's a long, long flight and they just got more nervous. It was difficult to get them to talk."

So she brought the cookies and candy on the next flight and pretty soon, she said, lines began forming around the galley. The men began to talk and relax.

"I've been making cookies every flight since," Peggy said.

JUMPSUIT FOR GENERAL WEAR — Spring 1970 is revealing interesting new trends in men's fashions, one of them the emergence of the jumpsuit for general wear. This two-piece suit is in beige cotton double-knit. It can be worn plain or double belted, and is by Leo Chevalier, designer for Manhattan Robe of Montreal. (CP Photo)

Successful Living

Planning Is Necessary Before Retirement

By DORIS CLARK

Retirement for some people can be quite a shock . . . Bored and unhappy: they begin to discover that this new "freedom" isn't what they expected at all. No one seems to need them.

But think of the oldsters who made you exclaim, "Why she's over 70! How does she do it?" or, "It's simply amazing the things he gets done!" Well, how do they do it? Isn't it really their keen interest in the world and the people around them? Or some hobby they've absorbed in?

Some people have jobs which lend themselves to the later years. Carpenters and others who do things with their hands already have adaptable skills.

Others are less fortunate. Unless they already have hobbies and creative interests they will be less apt to pick them up later on. Now is the time to get busy and plan. — "Leisure In The Later Years," Department of National Health and Welfare.

Dear Doris: Everything our three children get they destroy. Toys from Christmas are already broken.

I stopped them, then we put the strap away and tried talking — about children who have no toys or even food. We took TV time away. Nothing sank in.

We don't shower the children with presents; yet they have enough to keep any child happy. They help with the dishes at supper and keep their rooms fair. We love our children but cannot understand how to handle them. — A Great Fan of Yours.

Dear Fan: Take your pick:

1. A youngster who tries to do things beyond his ability may start banging around. Give him toys suited to their ages?

2. Are the toys too infantile for them? Or are they all playing with the same level of toys? What a child works and plays with should be a challenge, but one he can meet.

3. Too many restrictions may cause angry destruction of anything within reach. Be sure that you are not overstrict.

Don't rush to replace what they damage. Let the toys get scarce. Mend torn clothing, and teach them how to repair things. They can learn to make, as well as break.

Dear Doris: Would you have an old poem: "We are Seven?" I knew it all about 63 years ago, but can't remember it now. — Born in Ninety-Eight.

Dear Born: This is a nostalgic little gem about a little girl who insists that she is one of a family of seven sisters and brothers, in spite of the fact that, in the case of two of them, "their spirits are in heaven".

One of my correspondents, who loves just such a challenge, insisted it up for us and copied out all 13 verses for Doris reserves the right to ignore anonymous letters. If you have a legitimate beef, sign your name to your note about it. All names are kept confidential.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Pineapple Mallow Whip Recipe

By MARY MOORE

Yesterday I listed Jackie's one hour dinner menu and gave you the recipe for her Barbecued Spareribs promising her Boy Friend's Salad (Highly recommended!) and Pineapple Mallow Whip today. The reason these two are coupled is that one can of cubed or chilled pineapple serves to add to the list of ingredients in both.

Make the dessert first for it has to chill.

PINEAPPLE MALLOW WHIP
(serves 4 or 5)

2½ cups (½ lb. miniature) (or cut up large) marshmallows one 19-oz. can pineapple cubes or tidbits Less 1-3 cup of drained solids (for salad see below)
½ cup 35 per cent (whipping) cream

Reserve the 1-3 cup drained pineapple and the remainder, juice and all into a pot. Add the marshmallows and stir over heat until marshmallows are dissolved. Chill until it just shows signs of setting. Beat hard until creamy and foamy. Whip cream and fold in smoothly and spoon into stemmed glasses and chill. By the time dessert time arrives they are softly set.

BOY FRIEND'S SALAD
(popular and recommended; serves 4 to 6)

1 cello package shredded cole slaw
¼ cup grills
1 chopped banana
1-3 cup drained cubed or tidbit pineapple (reserved from making Pineapple Mallow Whip above)
1-3 to 1-3 cup miracle whip

On the cello bag of cole slaw you are directed to rinse once in cold water. Do not do this for this salad. Since it is dry the milk soaks into the cabbage and is the secret of the success of this salad. Add remaining ingredients, combine, turn into salad bowl and chill if you have time.

If you too are a career girl try to tie Jackie's record of preparing the meal given today and yesterday in one hour.

Alternatives: Jackie says that you may substitute one small unpared chopped red apple or ½ cup drained, canned mandarin oranges for the banana, if desired, but she recommends the banana.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "The children rush off to school without breakfast. They insist they're not hungry in the morning."

Neighbor: "Mine are the same way. I can't get them to eat a thing. I know they're hungry before lunchtime."

Don't let children start poor eating habits and you won't have to worry about changing them. Breakfast is an important meal after a long night's fast and mothers should make every effort to see that children take time to eat.

Mother: "We all get up early enough so we can have breakfast together and I try to have something extra good, like mixing muffins for tomorrow so all I'll have to do is heat them while I cook the bacon."

Ann Landers' Rolls Royce Horn Has Some Effect

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in your reply to the Michigan reader who asked about the effectiveness of powdered deer horns as an aphrodisiac. You advised him to try fog horns, bass horns, shoe horns, pointing out that the results would be the same — zero.

May I tell you about a horn that really works? And you don't have to go to the trouble of powdering it. I refer to the Rolls Royce horn. No woman can resist it. It turns them on every time! — LANSING LOVER.

DEAR LOVER: By the time most guys get to the point in life where they can afford a Rolls Royce, nothing else works. Thanks for the suggestion.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I got out of prison last July after five terrible years. It seemed like one hundred. Some of my friends kept in touch with me but my wife and two daughters did not. I wrote them seven letters and didn't get an answer. Then I wrote to my brother and asked him to find out if my wife and girls received my letters. Within a week I got an answer. My wife and daughters didn't want to have anything more to do with me. One month later my wife sued me for divorce.

Yesterday I received a letter from my oldest daughter. She is being married in June and wants me to give her away at the wedding. I think they only want me there for appearances. Oh yes, I ought to tell you I've made a nice comeback and have a good job and a bright future. What should I do? — DEEPLY HURT.

DEAR D.H.: A man with your background should know the importance of building bridges instead of walls. Your family has extended a hand of friendship. Accept it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do you have a solution to a problem that irritates me to the point that I actually feel my blood pressure go up? I am referring to people who are forever bumming cigarettes. Thank you very much. — I BUY MINE.

DEAR I: Have an extra full pack handy and sell it to the chiseler.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here's a message from a dirty old man — age 22. I'm a college senior and the point of view I express here reflects the thinking of a lot of guys.

There is nothing so hilarious as a chick in a thigh-high mini, sitting on a chair or sofa, tugging at her skirt, trying to pull it down to cover her status of respectability. She blushes ten shades of red and asks with eyes big as saucers, "Am I sitting all right?" Or, "Is anything showing?"

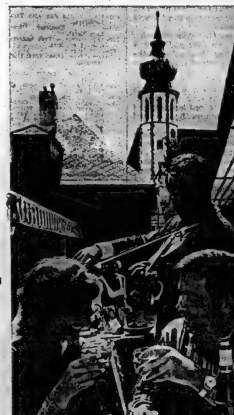
If they don't want anything to show why don't they buy a skirt with some material in it? More than once I've gotten a dirty look because I was caught popping an eyeball.

Please tell the Great Pretenders who feign insult to come off it. The reason they go half naked is because they want to create a little unrest. Tell them that act should have been cancelled when they accepted the hike of the hem and said "To hell with decency." — U. OF ILLINOIS.

DEAR U: Amen. Brother. Amen.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was the eldest in a large family. Because there were so many of us, Mother had to depend on help from the older children — mainly me.



My earliest memories are of messy diapers, runny noses and crying brats. All I ever wanted was to be free of it. I swore I'd never have any children. Never.

Then I met and married a wonderful man who said he didn't care about children either. All he wanted was me. We were very happy for several years, at least I thought so. Now he tells me his ideas have changed. He wants a family. Every time he mentions the subject I have an attack of nerves.

Shall I have a child (at age 30) and despise it, or stick to my position and take a chance on losing the man I love? — BETRAYED.

DEAR B.: Your feelings about children are grossly immature. I suggest counseling. You'll probably lose the man either way if you don't grow up and stop being so self-centred.

FRENCH SIT COM — Dominique Michel (right) and Denise Filiatrault perform a bedroom scene during the CBC's French-language network situation comedy Moi et l'Autre — Me and the Other One. The half-hour weekly comedy, about two girls sharing an apartment in Montreal, has become French Canada's most popular television program. Director Roger Fournier says the idea for the program sprang from the lack of comedy on the French network. (CP Photo)

CBC's French-Language Comedy Show Tops Quebec Television Ratings

MONTREAL (CP) — Until four years ago, the CBC's French-language network suffered from a serious lack of good situation comedy programs. That was before Moi et l'Autre—Me and the Other One.

The delightful half-hour weekly comedy, about two girls sharing an apartment in the city and getting into most unusual mixups, has become French Canada's most popular television program.

It topped the TV ratings for French-language programs in 1969, attracting 40 per cent of the TV audience in the Greater Montreal area.

Moi et l'Autre is seen on the Radio-Canada network every Tuesday night, from Winnipeg to New Brunswick.

"The idea for Moi et l'Autre sprang up from a lack of comedy on the French network," director Roger Fournier said in a recent interview.

"Each week we go through a different situation, and each episode is complete in itself."

The show is written by Gilles Richer and has made its two main actresses, Dominique Michel and Denise Filiatrault, top stars of French-Canadian TV.

"Both are extremely funny girls," Mr. Fournier says, "and Moi et l'Autre suits them perfectly."

Produced by Jean Bissonnette, Moi et l'Autre appears on TV 32 weeks of the year—39 weeks of original material and 11 weeks in the summer when the best of the series are repeated.

"At the beginning of the season," Mr. Fournier says, "the show is taped three weeks ahead. After the Christmas holidays, however, they are done only one week ahead. Then, no one has the right to be sick."

There are three two-hour repetitions and six hours of taping to get the show ready. All the shows are done inside the studio on magnetoscopic ribbon.

Dominique Michel, a petite brunette with sparkling brown eyes, plays Dominique Andre in the show. In preparing for a final taping, which includes a makeup job and dressing, she never stops nervously moving about and talking continuously.

"I love the show. I feel quite at home doing it. At the beginning I was quite nervous but not any more. The show is really quite funny and people enjoy looking at it.

"But the funniest parts the public never sees. I can think of so many times when Denise and I went into peals of laughter."

She mentioned one episode which called for lighting a lighter, "but the blasted thing just wouldn't work."

Once, when a glass door was part of the set, one of the actors forgot and walked through without opening it. Still chuckling, Dominique explained that for viewers it was to have been a glass door; for those on the set it was nothing more than an empty door frame.

"These are just two of the funny mixups the public doesn't see because they are cut. But believe me there are quite a few."

Dominique has been in show business for 13 years, either as a recording artist or as a comedienne. She spent five or six years singing profession-ally, but mainly on records—"I seldom sang for a live audience."

She has been working with Denise for 13 years and finds it much easier to work with someone she knows well.

Born in Sorel, Que., she came to Montreal at the age of five. Educated in convents, she studied piano at the Conservatory of Music.

"I wanted to be a pianist. But it didn't interest me enough to follow it through."

Her partner has been doing comedy work for the last 15 years. She played the part of Denise Letourneau in the show.

Tall and slim with shoulder-length blonde hair, Denise is calmer, more reserved and not inclined to talk about herself.

Coming in late, she headed straight for the makeup man. Ready to tape the first scene and eating breakfast at the same time, she did disclose a few facts.

"I have done a great deal of singing since I began in show business."

"At first I did some night-club work and variety shows. Now, most of my time is taken up by Moi et l'Autre but I do manage to do a few night stands."

Both feel their job is just like any other job. "There is nothing very special to being a TV actress except that we have irregular hours while others don't," Denise says.

Moi et l'Autre in 1970 deals with the same kind of problems the girls have struggled with successfully for several seasons.

But a new complication was added last fall when Dominique was given a TV husband, complete with engagement, wedding and honeymoon.

When the newlyweds returned they moved into Dominique's apartment, sharing it with Denise. It seems three can get into even more trouble than two.

Jean-Paul Dugat plays the husband. Also regularly seen in the show are the apartment landlord, Roger Joubert, and janitor, Real Beland. Guest appearances vary every week.

"Whatever the situation happens to be," Mr. Fournier says, "you can be sure it's funny."

New Morning Show

Dinah Shore Back at NBC

CHICAGO (AP) — Dinah Shore asked: "Is anybody here superstitious? I just broke a mirror." She spun around on her heels and wet a finger.

Dinah, blonde, in a white, ruffled gown, was standing in the middle of a crowded reception at the Conrad Hilton Hotel called to celebrate her return to NBC after an absence of seven years.

She will star in a morning show beginning in July called Dinah's Place. The show, to be seen at 10 a.m. EST Monday through Fridays, will replace the game show It Takes Two.

Her producer, Bob Stivers, explained: "What it's going to take in is everything interesting to women. Singing, fashions, cooking, gossip, big name guests.

"Every show will have a theme," he said. "It's not really a talk show, although we'll have talk."

Miss Shore was one of the reigning queens of television. Her variety show was a Sunday night fixture on NBC for many years until 1963.

She starred in a special Like Hey! first seen on NBC in April, 1969, and seen on CBS last Friday night. Dinah has been a frequent guest on the talk shows and was host on the NBC Tonight show twice in 1968.

"What really got me started on this was my co-host duties for a week on the Mike Douglas Show," she said.

"I saw how an operation like that can move without you killing yourself."

Dinah was in Chicago to sing at a Tuesday night banquet of the Broadcast Pioneers at the 44th Annual convension of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Why is she coming back after such a long absence?

"I haven't done anything I haven't done before," he said.

"The field of variety shows — they're wonderful, but there hasn't been a breakthrough in that in years — but this is different," she insisted. "In a weak-headed moment, I said why not?"

Pollution: Quinte Residents Hear Warning from OWRC Official

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Reporter

AMELIASBURG — Future man in space may be living the carefree life with all the sophisticated machines technological genius can develop.

But his relatives back on earth won't be faring nearly as well if pollution trends continue in line with the information OWRC district engineer Larry South offered to an Ontario Municipal Board hearing here yesterday.

As the situation worsens in the rural areas in particular septic tanks and silo leaks may have to be replaced by another disposal system, said Mr. South.

He said it was possible the old type of privy would become fashionable again with a collection service going into effect.

Causes of the concern are nutrients which are elements that do not break down in the soil. They impregnate the land, regardless of depth, and, eventually runoff into bays and lake. Then they feed vegetation with dreadful results.

The OWRC combatted sewage pollution but with the latest discovery of nutrients as a threat, the government agency is in a different ball game altogether, said Mr. South.

"Pollution was a black eye before and it's an even blacker eye now," he warned.

"For sewage disposal in rural areas the OWRC prefers holding tank installations with the contents pumped into trucks and put through municipal treatment plants," Mr. South disclosed.

The ideal situation for a sub-division in rural areas is piped water and sewage systems within the complex said the governmental engineer.

Air Pollution Got Attention, Little Heed for Water Problems

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — There were red faces in the Lambton Industrial Society when the present scare about mercury contamination broke.

The society and its predecessor since 1953 have kept a close watch on the quality of air in and around this industrial community but scant attention was paid to water pollution.

What attention the water got was in the form of four biological surveys taken along the Canadian shore of the St. Clair River. No attention was given to chemical pollution.

"Now, all of a sudden, everybody is an expert on mercury," said Mason Jones, manager of the society. "Hindsight is wonderful."

The society, the first of its type in Canada, is made up of senior representatives from 12 major industrial firms in the Sarnia area. Objectives are to measure existing levels of pollution and the factors affecting them; to suggest methods of reducing pollution through an exchange of technical information, and to measure the effectiveness of remedial steps.

The forerunner of the society was the St. Clair River Research Committee, which was formed in 1952 by three participating companies. Three more firms joined the following year and by 1959, 11 major industries were in the fold.

It was incorporated as the Lambton Industrial Society in 1967.

The society's main concern has been air pollution caused by heavy industry and since its inception a vigorous program of air monitoring has been carried out.

The society first became actively concerned with water pollution about 14 years ago and the first biological survey was commissioned in 1957. Others followed in 1959, 1963 and 1968.

No mercury was found because no one was looking for it.

Mr. Jones feels the society has been an effective watchdog over biological pollution of the river but says "there are occasional accidental discharges or spills that are not acceptable."

Five monitoring stations maintain a constant watch on the atmosphere in and around the city, monitoring many types of air pollution. Among the most important are sulphur dioxide and hydrogen sulphide.

One result of the program was that sulphur dioxide pollution exceeded desirable maximums for about eight hours a month in 1967 and fewer than four hours in 1968.

Hydrogen sulphide pollution, bothersome because of its rotten-egg smell, originates from the areas of refineries and chemical plants south of the town and is at its worst with a south wind.

The society, along with Ontario Hydro which burns high sulphur fuels in its plant south of Sarnia, is working on an efficient forecasting service as special steps can be taken to cut down sulphurous emissions when the wind is in the south.

Mr. Jones could not say whether the society will become involved in chemical analysis of the river and river bottoms. He said the annual budget of about $100,000 is spent mostly on the air monitoring program. Expenditures in other fields would have to be approved by society members.

One of the society members is Dow Chemicals Canada Ltd. which has been identified as the prime source of mercury spilled into the St. Clair River and Lake St. Clair.

Pollution Control Is "Priority" --- Keegan

A Belleville alderman has commended Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company on its recent installation of air pollution control equipment at its plant in Foster Ward.

Alderman Arthur Keegan called for a letter of commendation to be forwarded to the company.

He said the company had given leadership in pollution control and expressed the hope that this leadership would be followed by other local industries now causing air pollution in the city.

Pollution control in all its aspects, must be a "number one priority" in an already serious situation is not to become hopeless.

If massive pollution control measures are not instituted promptly, the human race will destroy itself in its own filth, said the alderman.

U.S. Concern Is Growing

DETROIT (CP) — Pollution is growing as a source of public concern.

Bombarded with pollution stories in newspapers, on radio and television, the public has become not apathetic, but more aware.

An indication of this is two recent polls in the state of Michigan.

In July, 1968, a poll taken by the state Democratic party, showed pollution 14th as an area of public concern. Six months ago, a poll taken by the Republican party showed pollution had climbed to fourth place, behind law and order, race relations and the Vietnam war.

Seminars on pollution are springing up. There was one at the University of Michigan in nearby Ann Arbor last weekend; another is planned in Sarnia, Ont. this weekend.

The talk at these seminars is tough.

John E. Kinney of Ann Arbor said the "agitated malcontents and genuinely concerned citizens don't know the facts, have no specific and realistic concepts of environment they want and thus, without knowledge, indulge their frustrations in violent symbolic acts against 'the establishment' as proposals for correction."

There are also glowing predictions.

James Kelly, an executive with Dow Chemical in Midland, Mich., predicted that Michigan would have clean air by 1974. He didn't say how much that clean air would cost.

Yet Dr. Ralph A. MacMullan, director of the state department of natural resources, said recently it would take $1,250,000,000 to eliminate all the state's water pollution problems, and expressed fear that the public would lose its enthusiasm for the anti - pollution crusade when people realize the huge costs involved.

People are quick to impute political motives.

A Quick Splice Does the Trick

Mike Newton, producer-director of a six minute black and white movie made at Loyalist College, splices film. The movie, which is set to music, was shot entirely in the Quinte area.

Young Moviemakers Produce Project with Quinte Themes

By IAN ROBERSTON
Staff Reporter

A movie on alienation of youth in modern society is the completed project of four students in the second-year communications arts course at Loyalist College.

For the past two months the movie has been a course assignment. Scenes — shot entirely in the Quinte district — have been carefully selected to match the lyrics and rhythm of the hit song, Bridge Over Troubled Waters by Simon and Garfunkel.

Although it is extremely difficult to synchronize edited film and sound, producer-director Mike Newton felt that his six - minute production would be a "real challenge", the first attempt of this kind in the course.

Working in close co-operation during approximately 150 hours of filming were Diane Grimmon, as script assistant and timer, and production assistants Doug Law and Dale Beebe.

Doug Law, whose chief job was to edit close to 600 feet of film, spent more than 15 hours cutting and splicing the film, closely following the timed script. The finished product is a sequence of scenes which darts across the screen. Their intermittent recurrence in flashbacks throughout the sequence emphasizes that the movie after — Ron McNamara recalls scenes from his past.

The projects' participants were presented a challenging chore. Much of the scenery had to be shot with equipment carried through below-zero weather.

Expert in Belleville

Hints for Local Winemakers

Quinte district residents will have an opportunity Friday night of being inducted into one method of beating the high cost of the good life.

The Quinte Winemakers' Guild is bringing an expert to the city to discuss amateur wine making and to share his professional secrets with the home - brew artists.

R. F. Crowther, a research officer with the Canada department of agriculture at Vineland Station, will show films and slides at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street, starting at 8 p.m.

As a researcher, whose professional life is devoted to aiding the wine industry in the Niagara peninsula, he is one of the few Canadians with expert knowledge of the subject.

The Quinte Winemakers' Guild, formed over a year ago and limited to 12 members, has found that interest in home wine making has become the hobby of an increasing number of district residents.

As a service to hobbyists, the Guild, in conjunction with the Belleville Recreation and Arena Committee, has opened Mr. Crowther's lecture and films to the public.

Stringent provincial liquor laws still limit the scope of the home winemaker's activities. The permit to allow home manufacture of wine confines the hobbyist to producing a "nominal amount" each year for his own use. As a result, comparative sampling of the product — and winemakers' competitions — are curtailed.

President of the Quinte Guild is Gordon Davies, who has been involved in the hobby for over six years.

Art Show for Ameliasburg

The community hall in Rednerville United Church will be the setting this coming Saturday night for a varied selection of pictures painted by local amateur artists in classes held in Ameliasburg. The entries on exhibition have already drawn favorable criticism from established painter Allan Cameron, left, who selected submissions for show last night.

Ameliasburg Art Classes Discover Local Talents; Exhibition This Week

AMELIASBURG — An art exhibition planned for the township is shaping into an impressive undertaking.

Last night art critic Allan Cameron, resident on Rednersville Road, judged works produced by classes instructed by his wife, Mrs. Donnah Cameron in Mildred Corke public school. The classes have been held on Monday and Wednesday nights since the middle of October.

The classes, a program under Prince Edward County board of education, attracted amateur talent from Belleville, Mountain View, Crofton and Ameliasburg.

Commenting on selections previewed last night class instructor and painter Mrs. Cameron observed: "The response is terrific. I couldn't believe it."

The exhibition is scheduled for Rednersville United Church community hall this Saturday night starting at 7.30 p.m., when between 50 and 60 of the art class members' best efforts will be on public display.

The collection to be shown includes landscape, still life, flower paintings both in oils and water colors. There are also excellent line drawings among the exhibits.

Easter Seals Drive Still Seeking Goal

B'leville Rotary Club's Easter Seal Campaign has not yet reached its goal — a situation common to the fund drive in Ontario.

A sum of $8,522.16, including $728.78 proceeds from the performance of the Boss Brass, has been collected thus far, considerably short of the target of $8,400. Rotarian Don Stirling told the club yesterday.

Mr. Stirling said the Ontario Society for Crippled Children had indicated that this situation was general throughout the province and was due in part to other campaigns on behalf of heart and cancer research.

Rotary has scheduled a program with a difference for June 22. It will involve a choral presentation by three quartets under Tom Carruthers, Glyn Reynolds and Bill Pinkis, respectively. Linton Read will be accompanist and their performances will be judged by Rotarians Bert Simpson, Jack Deacon, Brig. Harold Sharp of the Salvation Army and Judge Anderson.

Council Agrees To Bottle Ban

Belleville city council yesterday endorsed two London resolutions, one urging a ban on use of non-returnable bottles. The second resolution asked that municipal property tax on homes in which taxpayers live be allowed as an income tax deductions.

PICTON — Replacing Allen Spicer who resigned last month as Picton's parking meter attendant is Mary Burrill. Mrs. Burrill officially was appointed to the job at a council meeting last night. Her annual salary is set at $3,400.

Empty Nets Called Burlesque Tactic

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

National Hockey League governors likely will discuss rules changes next June in an attempt to restore the big league's image, tarnished by jockeying for playoff positions during the windup weekend of the regular season.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said "the clubs were doing the right thing under existing regulations. It is up to the governors to make any changes."

He was commenting following an uproar Monday over tactics employed by New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens in the last-ditch fight for the fourth and final playoff position in the Eastern Division.

Rangers, with about four minutes to go and leading Detroit Red Wings 8-3 Sunday afternoon, pulled goalie Ed Giacomin in an attempt to pile up goals—even at the expense of giving some up—and make more secure their hold on the final playoff spot.

It didn't work. The Rangers were held scoreless while the Red Wings hit the empty net twice.

Sunday night, Montreal tried a similar tactic against Chicago Black Hawks. Down 5-3 and with the game apparently lost, Montreal pulled goalie Rogatien Vachon six times within the 4½ minutes left.

The strategy was that since a Montreal loss would result in a fourth-place tie with New York, the only road into the playoffs was to beat the Rangers' goals-for record no matter how many goals Chicago piled in. Three more goals would have turned the trick for the Canadiens.

Again, it didn't work: Chicago scored five while holding Montreal scoreless.

Under NHL rules, teams tied in game points at the end of the season break the tie by comparing their goals-for records.

The president suggested one solution might be to adopt a system similar to that of football.

The Canadian Football League breaks ties by considering the record of games between the tied clubs. If that fails, they consider the points for and against between the clubs in question.

Only after that do they consider over-all points for and against.

The spectacle of top clubs firing at length an untended nets drew cries of "parody, mockery, burlesque, travesty, farce and bush" from sports writers.

Jeff Dunnell Toronto Star, wrote:

"Big league hockey's hottest finish in 53 years had to wind up deep in the bush. It took the best race in NHL history to bring back burlesque. . . . The NHL brass must tremble . . . when they realize what might have happened if the Montreal game had been on the CBS network. They might have lost their contract . . . The most futile strategy since Bill Veeck sent a midget to bat."

Scott Young, Toronto Telegram:

". . . the NHL had within its grasp a day of the biggest drama in sport—and turned it into parody, mockery, burlesque, travesty, farce. The NHL goofed. Now, no doubt, with great speed, the governors will change the rule so that this attack of instant bush-leaguery won't happen again."

Red Fisher, Montreal Star:

"The finale . . . was distasteful. Six times Vachon was removed from the nets—five empty-net goals. Ten goals would not have been scored against the Canadiens if they did not have to play without a goalie to satisfy a system. It is a wound that is raw and sore with most of the athletes today. The Canadiens will remember . . . because it is a day which should not be forgotten. . . . Hockey itself should remember . . . because its rules placed several of its teams in a position where the end result was an insult to the game, plunging it to a third-class attraction."

Larry Merchant of the New York Post was also critical, but mostly about the use of a second-string goalie and the resting of top defencemen by Detroit Red Wings against the Rangers in their final game. He suggested this was "unethical" and wrote:

"The Red Wings owned the Canadiens, and hockey, their best effort. Some of them looked like refugees from Wolman Rink."

Unprecedented Feat

Big Hawk Rebound Worth $2,500 Each

MONTREAL (CP) — The most-used word Monday by ardent National Hockey League fans had to be "if." But it didn't change a thing.

The NHL wound up its most hectic regular-season schedule ever Sunday in a wild finish.

Chicago Black Hawks became the first team to go from last place one season to top spot the next as they won the coveted Prince of Wales Trophy and the $2,500 per man as East Division champions.

St. Louis Blues won the West Division title for the second time in three seasons and also took the Clarence S. Campbell Bowl and $2,500 for each team member.

Montreal Canadiens wound up out of the playoffs for the first time since 1947-48, and that combined with Toronto Maple Leafs' dead-last finish in the East Division set the scene for the first-ever all-United States playoff schedule.

New York Rangers, after one of the bigger collapses in recent years, rebounded to get a playoff berth on the final day of the East Division schedule.

Philadelphia Flyers slipped from second place in the West Division race March 24 right out of the playoffs, while Minnesota North Stars climbed into third place from fifth one week ago.

The Stanley Cup playoffs start Wednesday in four U.S. cities as Detroit Red Wings visit Chicago Black Hawks; New York is at Boston for a tiff with the Bruins; Minnesota visits St. Louis; and Oakland Seals are at Pittsburgh against the Penguins.

The same teams hold to the same venues for the second game of each series Thursday night. The venues shift for Saturday and Sunday contests in all four series.

Individually Bobby Orr is $2,000 richer as the NHL's new scoring champion—the first defenceman ever to win the crown. The Bruin all-star finished with 120 points on 33 goals and 87 assists—all records for a defenceman, while the 87-point assist total is the most ever recorded by any player.

The 22-year-old Orr receives the Art Ross Trophy and $1,000 as top champion, plus $500 for leading the race in the second half and another $500 as first-half leader.

Phil Esposito, whose scoring crown of last season has been removed by his team-mate Orr, is runner-up with 99 points, which gave him $750—$500 as over-all runner-up and $250 as runner-up in the second half.

Another Phil, this one Goyette of St. Louis, won $250 as first-half runner-up to Orr. Goyette finished with 78 points in fourth place, eight points behind Stan Mikita of Chicago who was third. Esposito was goal-scoring leader with 43, one more than 22-year-old Gary Unger of Detroit Red Wings.

Phil's brother, Tony Esposito of the Hawks, wins the Vezina Trophy and $2,000 as over-all leader—$1,500 for winning the title and a total of $500 for leading in each half of the season.

Tony set a modern-era record of 15 shutouts and wound up with a 2.17 goals-against average. Esposito will not share the award money since no other Chicago goaltender played the required 25 games to qualify.

The St. Louis trio of Jacques Plante, Ernie Wakely and Glenn Hall share the $750 over-all runner-up prize.

Black Hawks Move West in Style

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Black Hawks said goodbye to the East Division of the National Hockey League by winning the Prince of Wales trophy.

Now they would like nothing better than to take the Stanley Cup with them when they become members of the West Division under the expansion program of the 1970-71 season.

The Hawks, who became the first team in NHL history to climb from last one season to first the next, haven't won the Stanley Cup since 1961.

They won the Prince of Wales trophy and the NHL title in 1967 but were knocked out in the opening round of the playoffs. They are determined on giving it a better shot this time when they open the playoffs at home Wednesday and Thursday nights against Detroit Red Wings.

"This club is ready," said centre Stan Mikita. "Three years ago it was more slated and we had a bigger celebration because it was the first time we had won the championship. This time we'll hold off the big celebration for later.

"The last time we won it big," continued Mikita. "When the playoffs started, we were flat and Toronto didn't have much trouble with us. But this year we've had to battle all the way. We're mentally sharp and in good shape physically, too."

Bobby Hull, who like Mikita is a holdover from the 1961 Stanley Cup champions, feels the Hawks can go all the way this time.

"This is the greatest team I've ever played with," said the Golden Jet. "We might have had better individuals in other years but for hustle, spirit and pride this has to be one of the greatest teams in league history."

Pit Martin, the big hero in the Black Hawk resurgence who climaxed it with three goals in the final victory, said:

"We're No. 1 and we're going to stay that way."

TV Tips

The CBC will televise the first two games of the Chicago-Detroit Stanley Cup quarter-final Wednesday and Thursday night from Chicago. The CTV network will carry playoff games from the stage when a team is in position to win its series. CBS will carry Sunday afternoon games throughout the playoffs.

First-round Bouts Well-matched

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eight National Hockey League teams hit the playoff road Wednesday with a total of $137,500 prize money at stake along with the Stanley Cup, a trophy that was worth only $48.67 when it was donated in 1893 by Lord Stanley of Preston.

The East Division champion Chicago Black Hawks play host to Detroit Red Wings in their opener, to be televised nationally by the CBC. Boston Bruins open their best-of-seven quarter-final series at home against New York Rangers.

In the West, the division champion St. Louis Blues are on home ice against Minnesota North Stars while Oakland Seals open their series with the Penguins at Pittsburgh.

The second game in all four quarter-final series will be Thursday night at the same sites with the teams moving to Detroit, New York, Minnesota and Oakland for the fourth and fifth games Saturday and Sunday.

Each of the four teams to survive the quarter-final round wins $47,250, based on 21 units of $2,250 for each player. Another $47,250 goes to each team winning the semi-final rounds and the Cup winner takes home another $63,000.

Thus, each player on the team that survives the final contest between the East semi-final winner and the West semi-finalist will be richer by $7,500.

And Montreal Canadiens, the team that has taken home more playoff money and more Cup victories, will be out of it for the first time in 22 years.

The Canadiens, who won the Cup a record 16 times, were squeezed out of the tight East Division race in their last game Sunday at, Chicago.

"Today they were to have held a noon-hour press conference, which according to a new lease issued a week ago, was to be their "Canadiens 1970 Pre-Stanley Cup Playoffs Luncheon."

But with or without the Canadiens, the likely playoff outcome is a difficult one to predict with almost all quarter-final pairs equal in their regular season play.

Chicago and Detroit each won four games in their eight season encounters with each winning two at home and two in the other's home arena.

Boston and New York also split on four wins each with each taking three of their victories on home ice.

St. Louis and Minnesota each took three victories with their other two games tied. Each won two, tied one and lost one game on home ice.

Oakland was the only team to come out with an edge in its season encounter, taking three wins against two losers and three ties with the Penguins. The Seals' three victories and one of the ties all came on Oakland ice.

Eric Deacon of the Quinte Curling Club engages in some vigorous broom-bending in the opening round of the Quinte Closing Mixed Bonspiel. Al McCallum will be attempting to be the first repeat winner in the 12-year history of the event. Finals will be played at 4 p.m. Saturday.

McCallum Up Against 12-Year Winners' Jinx

Al McCallum will be looking to break a 12 - year jinx that has hit every winning skip of the Quinte Closing Mixed Bonspiel. Since 1958, when the event was initiated, there have been twelve different members stretched to the Northern Electric Trophy, awarded to the winners of the first event.

Last year, McCallum captured the silverware with a foursome consisting of Earl Flemming, Kay Fepe, Bill Downing and himself.

Standing in the way of a repeat performance by the 1969 winner, will be a total of, 32 rinks, taking part in the final bonspiel of the season for the Quinte Curling Club.

Besides the competition for the Northern trophy in the first event, there are three consolation rounds, which assure each foursome of playing at least a trolit of games. First round losers enter the second event, while those with two opening losses are dropped to the fourth event.

Beginning yesterday, the bonspiel will run through until Saturday, with the finals beginning at 4 p.m. Presentation of the trophies will be at 11 o'clock Saturday night.

One member of last year's champions has already been defeated as Earl Flemming's rink lost an 8-4 decision to Bill Meagher.

Anglers After Pickerel May 9

Angling afficianados throughout the Belleville - Tweed area may have to keep trolling in their bath tubs for a while longer as officials of the Lands and Forest Department are predicting a late-season break-up for the area.

Trout season which has been open since January 1, will continue through the summer as the most dedicated members of the fishing fraternity will be able to exchange for gear for Evinrudes in pursuit of fish fillet. Brook trout (with a limit of ten per day) and rainbows (five per day) will be "in season" until Sept. 20, while fishermen can capture up to five lakers daily until Oct. 10.

Pike and pickerel will be open from May 9 to next March 31 with a daily limit of a half-dozen for either species.

Largemouth and smallmouth bass, which have identical limits to pike and perch will be fair game from June 27 to Nov. 30.

The current heavyweight champion of the fishing scene will have a season running from June 20 to Nov. 30 and anglers will be limited to a pair of (muskies) per day.

An angling licence for a resident will cost $3 and will be required of all males 18 years of age and over.

Anglers guilty of infractions of the game laws last season may recognize some of the merchandise at the Chief Ranger Office May 2 in Tweed. An auction of all confiscated fishing gear will be held beginning at 1.30 p.m.

Softball : Saturday Only

It's "now or never.." Saturday, for applicants to the Belleville Minor Softball Association program.

Registration will take place from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at the Pinnacle St. Recreation Centre. It will be the only chance to enroll in the association as no extensions will be offered.

Coaches, umpires and other helpers are urgently required for the group, which provided recreation for almost 700 Belleville youngsters last season.

Frontenacs Loss From Elimination

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Mountain Bees took a 3-2 lead in their Ontario Hockey Association Junior B semi-final playoff with a 5-4 victory Monday over Kingston Frontenacs.

Canadian hockey patriots have had little reason over the years to become as upset as they are now.

Some are going into apoplexy at the thought of watching the first-ever Stanley Cup playoffs minus any Canadian-based representation.

The very idea of a Stanley Cup without Montreal and/or Toronto participating!

The fact is, of course, that what is monopolizing the upcoming National Hockey League spectacle is not American hockey players but U.S. currency. A combination of geography and capitalism has decreed there are more United States centres capable of financially supporting teams playing our national game.

But despite their advantage in numbers and cash, the Yanks have had little success in wresting Lord Stanley's 19-pound (that's sterling, not avoirdupois) urn from Canadian grasp.

Even almost exclusive use of native Canadians has failed to bring American presidents more than 17 Stanley Cups since 1926, the year I far the treasured mug.

Montreal's dear departed Canadiens alone have had 18 Cup engravings, as many as this year's four eastern division combatants combined.

Detroit's seven Cup wins make them the most successful of Uncle Sam's challengers. New York, Boston, and Chicago each have three to brag about, the latest coming with the Black Hawk miracle of the '60-'61 campaign.

Aside from that interruption, the Habs and Maple Leafs boarded the Cup from the spring of 1956 to this season.

Last year's Boston Bruins were the first team in a decade to outplay, although not outclass Montreal. This generous bit of foreign aid to professional hockey was negated a week later when a bunch of clowns from St. Louis proved, for the second straight year, that east is east, west is west, and never the twain shall meet.

It's good for any sport to have the greys spread around. With the exception of Detroit, who powerhoused the NHL as recently as the fifties, the U.S.-based entries were beginning to think the Stanley Cup was a figment of Clarence Campbell's imagination.

Boston, for example, last napped from the Cup in 1946-47 with a lineup including Hall of Famers Bill Cowley, Dit Clapper, and Frank "Mr. Zero" Brimsek, and the Knants — Milt Schmidt between Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart.

A year earlier, New York had their last Cup fling thanks to the Patricks — players Lynn and Muzz and manager Lester; Alf Pike and fiery Phil Watson, who both were to become Ranger bosses over 20 years later; Mac and Neil Colville, and a goaltender by name of Dave Kerr.

Mr. Kerr, whose Dundas St. East establishment is renowned for generous portions of meat and potatoes, had a minor's reputation in those days. He posted a goals-against average of 1.67 and recorded three shutouts as the Rangers disposed of Boston and Toronto in 12 games to win their third and last Stanley Cup.

In 1937-38 the Hawks, a dismal 14-25-9 hockey club in the regular season, polished off Montreal, New York, and Toronto to win their second Cup. Johnny Gottselig, Carl Voss, and Mush March were among the Hawks who filled the first ten places in the western division playoff scoring race.

Detroit won their first Stanley Cup in the 1935-36 season, and rumour has it that Gordie Howe was playing for the Wings then, although that Howe's name was Syd.

The abovementioned Gordon was, however, a member of the Detroit team that won Cups in '49-'50, '51-'52, '53-'54, and, finally, in '54-'55.

Howe is one who can vouch for the recent rarity of Cup migrations south. Detroit will have a larger cheering section in the next week simply because many went to see "The Big Feller" have one more taste of glory before he ends his 25-year career — if he ever does!

We have no objections to the Americans harvesting our trophy . . . just so long as they don't start telling us how to play our game.

Batters Step Ahead

Batters in leagues playing under Ontario Amateur Softball Association rules will be able to lean a little more into pitching deliveries this season.

Delegates to the weekend's 48th annual OASA convention in Peterborough voted to enlarge the batter's box by 6 foot towards the pitcher's dish, bringing the size of the rectangle to three by seven feet.

The OASA box is now in line with international soft a l l rules, such as those used by the Canadian Amateur Softball Association.

Delegates also favored removing the "neutral field" playoff stipulation. In future, managers can agree on playing a third or deciding playoff game on the field of either club.

Effective this season, OASA entries without permanent outfield fences will have to erect one 300 foot from home plate.

To be eligible for playoffs, players must sign their own names on an OASA certificate by July 15. It will no longer be permissible for players' names to be signed by coaches or managers.

Reds Stop Montreal Cold Behind Merritt's Three-hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montreal Expos resumed their familiar losing rule Monday, dropping their National League season opener to Cincinnati Reds while Mickey Lolich of Detroit Tigers used a secret pitch to shut out Washington Senators in the American League start.

The Reds gave rookie manager Sparky Anderson a solid start by trimming Montreal 5-1 behind southpaw Jim Merritt's three-hitter at Cincinnati.

"I just sat on the bench and enjoyed a nice relaxed time," Anderson said after watching Merritt hold the Expos hitless for 6 1-3 innings while the Reds' Lee May, Bob Tolan and rookie Bernie Carbo rocked Montreal's Joe Sparma for fourth-inning home runs.

At Washington, meanwhile, Lolich and the Tigers took a 5-0 decision from the Senators after David Eisenhower, President Nixon's son-in-law, threw out the traditional first ball before a chilled crowd of 45,015.

"I worked on a new pitch and I threw it a lot today," said the Tigers' stocky left-hander, who scattered seven hits and struck out 10 in a rain-delayed, three hours and 43 minutes of baseball.

"I call it the classified pitch."

Pressed for elaboration, Lolich said: "I refuse to answer on the grounds the hitters may incriminate me."

All the other clubs were set to play today, with the exception of St. Louis Cardinals, who open Wednesday at Montreal.

Tom Seaver got the starting call for the world champion New York Mets at Pittsburgh against the Pirates' Steve Blass. Baltimore's American League defenders opened at Cleveland, with the Orioles' Dave McNally pitching against the Indians' Sam McDowell.

Chicago Cubs faced the Phillies at Philadelphia, Atlanta Braves met the Padres at San Diego, Houston Astros took on the Giants at San Francisco and Cincinnati was at Los Angeles against the Dodgers in other NL action.

Jarry Park Improves

MONTREAL (CP) — No one could blame Lou Martin, Montreal Expos director of operations, for casting anxious glances skyward Monday and praying an open line to the weather office.

Martin is responsible for getting the National League's club's Jarry Park in shape in time for Wednesday's home opener against St. Louis Cardinals.

"It's getting better every day," Martin said Monday. "The field will be playable. We're rolling the infield and outfield now and I've put 150 tons of gravel on the warning track all around the field."

Martin's efforts received a severe setback last week when adverse weather dumped six inches of wet snow on the ball park after the initial spring cleanup had been completed.

Martin said he is prepared to cover the infield in the usual manner and spread 200 tons of moisture-absorbing compound on the outfield to counteract any further precipitation.

He said the skin of the infield is in excellent shape with no frost. Earlier he had the diamond covered with 10 tons of straw to keep the frost out of the crucial area.

Milwaukee Brewers, formerly the Seattle Pilots, established California Angels while Oakland Athletics meet the Royals at Kansas City, Minnesota Twins visited Chicago White Sox, Boston Red Sox played the Yankees at New York and Detroit was at Washington in the AL's second day.

With President Nixon detained at the White House because of a key Senate vote on the Supreme Court nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell and Vice-President Agnew also unavailable, young Eisenhower was assigned to throw out the first ball.

After a 55-minute rain delay the President's son-in-law flipped a blooper from his box seat to the first base line, where Senators' outfielder Hank Allen made the catch. Allen also caught Nixon's first toss a year ago.

The pre-game ceremonies completed, Detroit teed off on Senators' starter Dick Bosman in the first inning. Willie Horton's bases-loaded double giving Lolich all the offensive help he needed.

When Frank Howard came to bat in the bottom of the first, Morgana Roberts, an exotic dancer, holed from the stands and embraced the towering Washington slugger. She had made a similar unscheduled foray last summer at Atlanta, planting a kiss on the Braves' Cleto Boyer as he went to the plate.

Thus fortified, Howard grounded out. He and Ed Brinkman drubbed six of the Senators' hits, but by the time Nixon arrived in the fifth inning, Lolich still was ahead 2-0. The Tigers added a run in the sixth and rookie Cesar Gutierrez singled home two more in the seventh.

At Cincinnati, a crowd of 30,124 saw Merritt stop the Expos cold until Rusty Staub tripled with one out in the seventh. Ron Fairly followed with a run-scoring single but Merritt allowed only one more the rest of the way.

"I'm really happy the way things turned out," he said. "I'm glad because it gets Sparky out on top."

Kuhn Gives Guidelines: McLain Barred from Dugout

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn met for 45 minutes Monday with suspended Detroit pitcher Denny McLain and his advisors to lay down guidelines he must follow during his probation period.

Kuhn, who said he called the meeting, told newsmen before the American League opener here that the discussion dealt with McLain's behavior from this time forward up to July 1 and thereafter."

McLain, a 31-game winner in 1968 and 24-game victor last season, was suspended by Kuhn last Wednesday until July 1 for his association with gamblers involved in an alleged bookmaking operation in Flint, Mich., in 1967.

Kuhn said he laid down some guidelines which he wanted McLain's advisers, particularly his financial consultants to be aware of. He did not give further details of the money discussions.

Kuhn said McLain can meet Detroit players, as long as it is away from the Tigers' facilities and the ball park.

He said McLain may not go to the Tigers' dressing room before or after a game or go to the dugout.

The Eureka Vibra-Beat makes other vacuum cleaners look like brooms

A true canister cleaner should do more than just clean the surface of your carpets.

Which is why we think our Vibra-Beat feature is a big deal.

Simply, it vibrates 2,210 times each minute. So it shakes and beats out deeply embedded dirt. And it fluffs and raises the nap.

The adjustable brushes then take over and whisk up anything on the surface.

And that's not all. When the Vibra-Beat's bag is full, a buzzer rings and an indicator shows red. There's a power suction selector, a two-speed motor, a step-on toe switch, easy-roll wheels and automatic cord rewind.

We make a number of models. The Vibra-Beat is one of them.

You'll like it . . . unless you prefer to sweep your carpets.

Bertrand Finds Road Rough

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Snow, striking miners and a strident mayor encountered Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand Monday in his campaign for the Quebec general election April 29.

His political opponents provided little comfort.

Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa said the premier's plans for a possible referendum on Quebec independence by 1974 are irresponsible.

And Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, said the Union Nationale's referendum plans are "strictly back politicians stuff."

At Ottawa, Prime Minister Trudeau said the federal government would get nowhere if it suspended Quebec programs when "petty provincial politicians" threatened separatism.

Mr. Bertrand was campaigning in the northwestern Quebec riding of Abitibi-East, held by a Liberal in the last legislature.

Mr. Bourassa travelled to Rouyn, a riding just east of Montreal held by the Union Nationale, to attack the Union Nationale's referendum idea.

Mr. Levesque spent the day in Montreal Laurier, the riding he has held in the Quebec legislature since 1966.

Creditiste Leader Camil Samson took Monday off. He is to visit Portneuf riding west of Quebec City today.

A snowstorm prevented Premier Bertrand from visiting Temiscamingue riding Monday, but he addressed party supporters there by telephone.

Near Val d'Or, about 230 miles northwest of Montreal, the premier's car was met by a demonstration of airlift miners.

The premier stopped his car, got out to shake hands and discuss problems of the 300 men on strike at a mine in Malartic-Est.

At Val d'Or the premier ran into Mayor Wilfrid Sabourin, a Liberal, who accused the Union Nationale government of neglecting the region.

Mayor Sabourin appealed for more provincial investment in tourism, noting that the Ontario government is investing $1,000,000 in an adjacent region of Ontario.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

Tuesday, April 8

Your birthday today: You are promised the chance to hasten your progress and prosperity in the coming year. Early rising habits are easier to cultivate and you have more energy available to pursue your productive activities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your mood is apt to be abrupt today—a clear expression of the natural fire of your Sun sign. Just remember how it may strike others. Put in a sound day's work, then relax with a definite change of pace, light entertainment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Personal plans can be advanced if you sidestep needless bickering. Use your extra energy for business, exploration of new ways of earning.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Let yesterday's experience alone: start fresh, behave as if everything has been going very well. Any critical comment has far more bite in it than you intend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Everybody seems to have his own pet scheme today and a place in it for you to turn the wheels. Keep both your composure and a little distance — matters improve in the later hours.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Having your own way is not nearly so important as you feel now. Channel the extra energy into clearing off the most neglected of your projects.

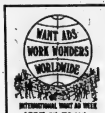
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Try to leave off actual handling of details and step back for a better perspective.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Today again comes in for an inordinate share of your attention. Resources of others for which you carry responsibility are the centre of concern.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Continued tact and patience are required — and very worth the effort — particularly among longtime associates.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Tend strictly to your own work and your own personal affairs; keep out of other peoples' controversy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Early emotional stressed settle down as the day progresses if you will remember that such matters are all passing phases now. News from people in distant places promises to be favorable.



AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your plans are too detailed for most people and may include ventures not everybody is willing to share with you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): By your own serenity you help the community. Pay no attention to gossip; wait a while for the whole story.

Mitchell Sharp Visits Germany

BONN (CP) — Canada is changing its world role but this does not mean a move towards isolationism or declining interest in Europe, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said today.

Explaining why his country is withdrawing one-half of its NATO forces in Europe, Sharp said Canada is seeking to assume a larger share of home defence "and to respond more readily to other obligations."

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

White Gum Patch Could Be Cancer

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a white patch on my gum. Is it possible it's cancerous? — Mr. Y.

COMMENT: I hope you do not think I'm being unfair. I am going to ask you many questions; you have asked me only one. But I need to know more about you before I can answer at all. First, I'm going to assume that you have the common irritation of the mouth, lip and gum area we call leukoplakia.

So I ask: Do you wear dentures, partial or complete? How do they fit? Do you continue to wear them at night, keeping the pressure on your gum IN history a day.

Do you smoke? (Cigarettes, cigar or pipe?) Do you have any jagged teeth? Do you chew tobacco?

I ask these questions because any of these, if answered in the positive, may be the reason for leukoplakia. I have known some who gave up cigarettes and developed these irritations because they switched to a hot pipe. Switching from cigarettes is not always the correct answer to the smoking problem.

I recall a few patients with gum irritations who improved when they removed their dentures at night. Or, had them refitted. Or, had a bad filling filed down.

Now, to your one question. Is it possible it may become cancerous? The answer is yes. However there is no need for you to worry if you are under observation by a competent dentist and physician.

If the white patch grows or becomes thicker, then a biopsy may have to be made. The tissue will be examined under a microscope, at which time it can be determined if the cells are normal, pre-malignant or actually malignant.

For Mrs. D.: If you are in doubt about marrying your first child because of fears about what it will do to your breasts, I think you will like this reassurance: nursing does not cause more breast-shrinking or sagging after pregnancy than bottle-feeding.

Here are some other interesting points: A breast infection does not interfere (usually) with nursing. A mother can (usually) nurse twins. The size of the breast (usually) has nothing to do with the ability to nurse. Even though a mother has had a Cesarian operation, she can nurse her infant. A premature baby who is able to nurse is usually better off on breast milk.

• • •

For Mrs. I.: There are few complications after the extraction of a wisdom tooth. The condition you speak of, muscle contraction in the jaw, is called trismus and is usually due to an infection and not to the actual tooth extraction. When the infection clears up so does he trismus.

For Mr. V.: There is no danger in wearing the clothes of one who had cancer.

• • •

For Mrs. O.: One blue eye and one brown? Not common, as you know. Why does it happen? All we can say is "it's in the genes."

When a baby is born the color of the eyes is blue. Then, depending upon genes, they turn to various shades of blue, green or brown. Using the newer contact lenses, I suppose you can "transform" your eye color to any shade you wish. For further information why not get in touch with your ophthalmologist.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Many of Poor Are Ill

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Some women I know have been working as volunteers on the "Call for Action" radio programs, sponsored in 22 U.S. cities by the Urban Coalition. The program deals with complaints by the public about lagging city services, and acts as a kind of unofficial "ombudsman" to make local governments more responsive to citizens' needs.

Several of these women were discussing their recently, at a little coffee - meeting where I happened to be present, and one of them said something that struck me as more important than the work they are doing.

"You know," she said, "most of the calls we get are from people who have specific problems — poor garbage collection, or muggers on the street and little police protection — but there is one thing in common I've noticed about the great majority of our callers.

"And that is, " she went on, "beyond the obvious problem they are calling about, they seem to be in deep trouble personally. They simply can't cope with the world around them in any rational and effective way. And this is more than just being economically or politically powerless.

"What I mean is that their whole emotional stability — their mental health, if you want to call it that — is so precarious that a leak in the ceiling or a broken furnace is often the last straw that sends them into a state of shock or anxiety. Their social and living problems are real enough, of course — but just remedying the particular problem isn't going to help these people very much.

"It seems to you," she continued, "from listening to hundreds of callers, that many of these people are as nearly sick, in a psychic sense, as if they had typhoid or bubonic plague. Their life-situation has been so bad so long that only the most resilient can cope with reality, and the rest just go along from one crisis to another.

"I'm convinced that helping these people physically is futile — though it must be done — without at the same time helping them get some strength. Otherwise, no matter what is remedied, some other problem will rise up to throw them.

"It's not enough to give the poor more money, or the uneducated better schooling, for they'll make the least of whatever they get, until we can revitalize the whole person, and give him a sense of worthiness and a new horizon of hope. From my contacts, the mental health of these people is in very serious question, and until we can strengthen the roots of their personality, the branches can only wither."

Guatemala Faces Exodus of Envoys

GUATEMALA CITY (CP) — Guatemala is threatened with an exodus of ambassadors in the wake of the terrorist slaying of Count Karl von Spreti, the West German envoy.

Msgr. Gerolamo Prigione, the papal nuncio and dean of the diplomatic corps, said Monday night that nearly 70 per cent of the ambassadors "have said" they are seriously considering asking their governments to reassign them or withdraw them from Guatemala."

The West German government already has announced it will withdraw the rest of its embassy staff and indicated Guatemala's ambassador to West Germany, Antonio Gandara, is no longer welcome in Bonn.

An army spokesman said special protection was being given to all ambassadors.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravates at night.

If you want satisfactory relief — that's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Among those sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions — even cases of long standing.

This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — developed by a world-renowned research institution. The substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Turner Plans To Seek Ruling

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner Monday told the Commons the government had decided to refer the question of the validity of breath tests directly to the Supreme Court of Canada to save time in clarifying the law.

The section of the Criminal Code making breath analysis tests compulsory was proclaimed in December. Its status had been in doubt since last week when a British Columbia Supreme Court judge ruled the law unconstitutional.

Mr. Turner said Tuesday that the required order in council would be filed with the Supreme Court "within the next few days."

At Least Ninety Die In Expo City Blast

OSAKA, Japan (CP) — At least 90 persons were killed and another 210 injured, many of them severely, when a series of explosions ripped through a subway construction site in a densely populated area of Osaka today.

The blast touched off a fire which swept through some 30 private homes before firemen brought it under control.

Osaka's pride, the Expo '70 world's fair, was not damaged. Police said the explosion site was 20 miles from the fair grounds.

Many of the injured were in serious condition.

The explosions in quick succession occurred about 2:20 p.m., just after offices had closed for the day and most subway trains were jammed with commuters on the way home. Police said many of the victims were commuters.

The explosions levelled several buildings, and the fires that followed destroyed about 30 homes, police said.

Investigators attributed the explosions to leakage in the municipal gas system.

Tests Raise Fears

Red Spots May Ground Apollo

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (CP) — Two of the Apollo 13 astronauts could break out in a rash of German measles at any hour, their doctor reports. If so, their planned trip to the moon starting Saturday will be postponed until May 9.

Medical specialists studied additional blood samples of all three astronauts—James Lovell, Thomas Mattingly and Fred Haise—to obtain up-to-date information on their immunity levels.

All three have been exposed to German measles through contact with Apollo 13 backup astronaut Charles Duke, who came down with the disease Sunday.

If anyone is coming down with measles, the symptoms should appear by Thursday night.

Although the disease is mild among children, it can be more serious for adults. Doctors believe a severe case could seriously disrupt the flight or cause an "abort," something that has never happened in the American manned space program.

Further tests will continue for the days preceding the launch.

After Duke becomes infected, blood samples from Lovell, Haise and Mattingly were taken Monday and flown to the Manned Spacecraft Centre in Houston. Analysis of these samples showed that all three men had satisfactory immunity to German measles at the time the blood was taken. But Berry said in the case of Haise and Mattingly, the information could be misleading.

The doctors said Mattingly and Haise showed no immunity when blood was taken during a routine physical examination March 31. He said the satisfactory immunity level recorded in Monday's samples could mean either that disease-fighting antibodies were building up as a result of their exposure to astronaut Duke, or that they were developing symptoms of the disease.

After Tuesday, a recheck of the blood samples indicated that Mattingly had no immunity to German measles. Additional samples were taken and flown to Houston.

Lovell showed a high level of immunity in both tests. He also was exposed to red measles last week, through his four-year-old son Jeffrey.

Fishermen Will Get Advances

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and Ontario governments agreed Tuesday to compensate commercial fishermen forced to halt their operations because of mercury pollution in Lake St. Clair, Clay Lake and the Detroit and St. Clair rivers.

But ministers from both governments made it clear that the final bill will go to the industries responsible for the pollution.

Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis told reporters that a maximum of 180 commercial fishermen are affected by the ban. He said that the amount of compensation to be paid to the fishermen will not be made public "since it might prejudice the efforts of the fishermen to get further compensation from the companies responsible for the pollution."

The advances will be shared on a 50-50 basis by the federal and provincial governments.

A release issued after the federal-provincial ministerial meeting Tuesday said that "these advances would be repaid after those responsible have been compensated by the polluting industries."

'Suicide by Proxy' Sought by Laborite

LONDON (Reuters) — An attempt to introduce a bill permitting euthanasia on request failed in the House of Commons Tuesday.

The bill's sponsor, Labor MP Dr. Hugh Gray, suggested that ill, elderly patients should be able to decide whether or not they remain alive.

"Call it suicide by proxy if you like, this seems to be the choice as an adult that I should like to be able to make," he said.

'Is this Cambodia, Laos, or Vietnam, Sorry?'

Cambodia Approves Of Forays

SAIGON (AP) — Cambodian and South Vietnamese authorities are collaborating in armed efforts to crush thousands of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops inside Cambodia, official sources disclosed today.

U.S. ground forces apparently are involved so far only as blocking or support forces on the South Vietnamese side of the border, in wait for any of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong who are driven east.

Cambodian officials have approved armed forays inside their country by South Vietnamese ground troops, bombers and helicopter gunships, one highly placed source said.

The local authorities have an agreement between each other to help," said the source.

The sources reported that South Vietnamese helicopter gunships flew five miles inside Cambodia in the last 24 hours and killed an estimated 138 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops.

Cairo Reports Israeli Attack

CAIRO (Reuters) — Israeli jets killed 30 schoolchildren when they attacked a primary school in a raid on Sharkia province, the Middle East news agency quoted the interior ministry as announcing.

A ministry source said another person also died at Bahr el Bakr school, about 30 miles north of Cairo.

A statement issued by the ministry said 28 pupils and 16 other persons were wounded in the raid by Israeli Phantoms.

Cairo radio said the bombing of the school came during an Israeli attack on Egyptian military positions near the Suez canal.

The Israeli military command said earlier in Tel Aviv that Israeli planes had raided military targets along the canal 18 miles inside Egypt.

The jets struck at Salihiya, west of El Kantara, and other areas, an Israeli spokesman said.

The school was a primary level co-educational school, meaning the children were in the six- to 12-year-old bracket.

It was the biggest reported Egyptian civilian casualty toll from an Israeli air raid since Feb. 12, when more than 30 workers were killed and 50 wounded in the bombing of a scrap metal factory northeast of Cairo. The Israelis said that raid was an accident.

Arabs Are Fearful Of Big Power War

By WILLIAM I. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Despite disclaimers on both sides, there may have been something important in the insistence of the World Jewish Congress president that Gamal Abdel Nasser wanted him to mediate in Arab-Israeli peace talks.

In a situation deeply deadlocked as the Middle East crisis, Dr. Nahum Goldmann's claim could have represented a glimmer of light at the distant end of the tunnel. It depended upon what was on President Nasser's mind as he brooded about Egypt's future.

On the Arab side, one who pooh-poohed Dr. Goldmann's claim was Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, chief editor of the Cairo newspaper Al Ahram and an unofficial voice of Nasser. Yet it was Heikal himself who provided hints of Nasser's state of mind. It was Heikal who seemed to suggest, however vaguely, that mediation would be the only way to ensure that Egypt had any future at all.

Recently in his weekly column Heikal remarked that the superpowers were going to meet again this month to see if anything might be done about limiting superweapons, which always present a danger of war and catastrophe by miscalculation. But he saw the tensions generated by the Middle East crisis as even more dangerous than missiles and nuclear stockpiles.

Was Heikal hinting on Nasser's behalf that there was room between the Israeli and Egyptian stands for exploration? Was he, in fact, hinting that Nasser might talk with an Israeli representative? And if so, in view of the Israeli threedown of the Goldmann statement, is the door still open?

Can Tenderness Really Be Obscene? Perhaps Not But Talk Can Be Mean

TORONTO (CP) — An NDP member accused Ontario's tourism minister of showing dirty movies and another member threatened to punch a third in the mouth as the legislature debated obscenity and the role of the provincial board of censors Tuesday night.

Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) renewed a charge he first made two years ago when he accused Tourism Minister James Auld of putting together a "superpornographic movie" of bits from censored films and showing it to privileged members of the legislature and senior civil servants.

"I said two years ago such a film did not exist and I say today it did not exist," Mr. Auld replied.

"I challenge the member—put up or shut up. Show me your evidence."

Pat Lawlor (NDP—Toronto Lakeshore) made the punching threat when he was interrupted by Eddie Sargent (L—Grey-Bruce) during a philosophical discussion of the meaning of obscenity.

Mr. Sargent complained that the house was wasting time when it should be discussing "important issues", like unemployment.

"Will the yahoo from the north please go back to the hole where he has been hiding," Mr. Lawlor said.

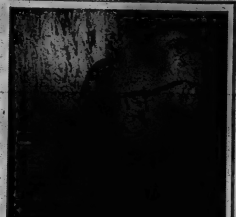
Mr. Sargent interrupted again as Mr. Lawlor suggested there cannot be obscenity in movies if a scene shows respect and tenderness.

"Be quiet, you chirping pop-pinjay," Mr. Lawlor erupted, "or I will come over and bust you in the teeth."

The threatened violence subsided as Mr. Lawlor went on to suggest that sexual licence has been one of all civilizations just before they fell.

Dr. Shulman and Mr. Lawlor said Ontario needs a censor board to rate movies, to prevent young people from seeing potentially-harmful fare and to allow adults to judge for themselves what they want to see.

Dr. Shulman said this requires "an intelligent board," and he labelled the Ontario board "stupid." He said it does not throw away the "dirty parts" it cuts from movies but glues them together to make a pornographic extravaganza.



Such a movie was shown in March to a special party of reporters, he suggested. It was the same kind of movie, he said, that had been shown two years ago despite the denials of Mr. Auld.

Mr. Auld denied such a movie had existed two years ago.

One was shown in March to media representatives so that they could judge for themselves how adequately the censor board does its job, he said. The same show of clippings is available for members of the legislature, for the same purpose.

In the March showing, reporters saw a feature-length film which had not yet been judged by the censor board. Then they saw 30 minutes of scenes cut from movies, and the sections from which they had been cut. They were asked to judge for themselves whether the film should have been censored at all, whether too much had been cut or too little.

Retarded School Renamed

William R. Kirk

Belleville's school for retarded children now has a new name — the William R. Kirk School.

The change took place yesterday when Mr. Kirk, once an executive director of the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded, visited the school.

He was taken on a tour of the building where he visited the students and viewed some of their work. Afterwards, he joined the youngsters for a party.

Mr. Kirk was executive director of the Ontario Association from 1959 to 1967 and is still involved in the organization's training programs.

He was executive director when local organizations were starting to form in Ontario and he worked closely with the local units.

Last October he received word that the Belleville Association would like its school named after him.

"I was floored and honored," he said as he paced through the William R. Kirk school for Retarded Children.

City Grant Needed: Ord

UCS Short on Funds, Workers

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Lack of money and of volunteer workers is plaguing the 14 community service agencies supported by the United Community Service fund in Belleville and district.

Last night representatives of the agencies got together with UCS directors and solicitors to hear reports of their activities for the first three months of 1979. The gathering was the first of a series of quarterly meetings planned to acquaint each agency with the work of other member units.

Robert Ord, UCS president, told the group the organization required the assistance and support of city council and the services of a professional executive director.

"We can't continue as a viable organization without a city grant," he said.

He paid tribute to Mrs. Freeman Burrows and Mrs. Harry Fast, volunteers who have acted as social planning co-ordinators of UCS and kept the organization going since the resignation of its executive director over one year ago.

But, said Mr. Ord, the work load is too much for the two volunteers to carry indefinitely, and the organization must have an executive director.

The group heard of certified progress as a result of insufficient funds and shortage of volunteers.

Douglas Wilson of the Navy League said the program for junior cadets would be eliminated next fall because of lack of leadership.

He told the group that because of lack of cadet officers, the junior program had degenerated into a "baby-sitting service". Continuing the program would need five new officers to take training this summer and organize a complete program for the fall.

He said the sea cadet program was of most benefit to older boys, from 13 years of age up. By concentrating on them, the Navy League activities will "cost less and produce more".

Three Cub groups folded last year because of lack of leaders, the agencies were told and enrolment in Scouts and Cubs has declined from 1,986 five years ago to 1,326 today. The local Scout and Cub movement has 115 leaders.

A report that the Victorian Order of Nurses is short $4,400 this year and has gone to the city for a grant drew comment from UCS directors.

Should individual agencies go to the city for money or should UCS ask for one sum from council to be shared by all member agencies?" asked Mr. Ord.

Ald. Jean Smith, last year's campaign chairman, replied that all 14 member agencies should co-operate as one unit.

"The United Appeal is equipped when an agency makes an independent appeal to other agencies," she claimed. "Our beck on services, if necessary, until a director is secured and we produce enough money to continue."

She advised a policy of asking member agencies to take their cases to the UCS board of directors before making independent pleas for funds to outside sources.

But Clifford Balch, treasurer of the Minor Sports Association, said his organization could not operate without the independent support of council and the recreation - arena committees.

He said 2,000 children between the ages of seven and 19 years participate in minor sports and 600 volunteer workers contribute their time.

"Last year the city spent $12,000 on maintenance of playing fields alone," he continued.

Representatives of both the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and the Red Cross Homemakers Service explained their roles and how they would be increased this year.

Providing homemakers to look after households during illness of mothers will cost $11.38 a day in 1979, and will require a $5,000 contribution from UCS.

Bert Meissacar of the Family Y outlined the services to youth in the planning stage.

"We plan more youth involvement than ever before," he said. "Particularly in working with other agencies on the problem of troubled youth."

Mr. Meissacar said his agency has noted an increase in problem relationships between parents and their teenagers, and one member of the Y staff this year has counselled 115 youngsters with conflict with their parents.

Mrs. Burrows gave the report of the social planning co-ordinators for the first quarter of 1979. She announced that a regional conference of the Ontario Welfare Council will be held in Belleville on May 22 and 23.

The co-ordinators have completed a handbook for volunteers working with pre-school children. At present 45 four-year-olds are attended in a pre-school project and 19 children from three to five years attend a newly-licensed day nursery for handicapped children.

Under the sponsorship of UCS and the St. Andrew's Church Women, Dr. Hildegarde Corbett is organizing a service for New Canadians at St. Andrew's.

A baby-sitting group of volunteers has offered to stay with children of single-parent families to allow the mother an evening free to attend community programs at Queen Victoria School on Wednesdays and Thursdays.

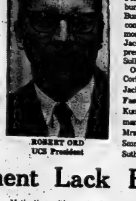
At present, a survey is under way to determine the number of elderly shut-ins in the city.

Mini-dive Pledges $6,400

A mini - campaign to increase United Community Service's funds for 1979 has yielded promises of $6,400, Ald. Jean Smith, the campaign director, said last night.

With pledges that came in after the Nov. 30 deadline for the United Appeal and the subscription drive for the mini - campaign, the UCS fund now stands at $120,000 — $10,000 short of the projected budget for 1979.

Kenneth Leavens, UCS treasurer, said the organization is now making monthly payments to the 14 community agencies at a rate of 85 per cent of the originally approved budget.



UCS has sought approval from the city for a lottery to be run in connection with its services.

Mrs. Smith told UCS directors and representatives of the 14 member agencies last night that provincial government permission is required for a lottery paying more than $5,000 in prizes.

President of UCS for 1978 is Robert Ord and vice-presidents are Andrew Robb and Hugh Pepper.

Other officers are: treasurer, Kenneth R. Leavens; chairman of public relations and publicity, J. Kenneth Fleming; director volunteer bureau, Mrs. Freeman E. Burrows; chairman of budget committee, Carl R. Whitehead; campaign director, Jack B. Bennett and past-president, Magr. James F. Sullivan.

Other directors are: J. Ben Corke, Gerald Cunningham, Jack Dunn, Mrs. Harry J. Fast, Mrs. Cecil Keller, John Konotsky, Mrs. Irving Shulman, Mrs. Jack E. Sisson, Mrs. Jean L. Smith, Lorne Scurke and Rev. A. Laurie Sutherland.

Involvement Lack Blamed

Concern for others is woefully lacking among citizens of the Quinte district, a group of United Community Service officers and agency representatives decided last night.

Motivating citizens to become involved in volunteer service work was a recurring theme during the first quarterly meeting of UCS directors and officers of the 14 member agencies at the Belleville Family Y.

Ray Day, of the Navy League, said the problem on the line when he declared: "The people we see here tonight are the same people we see every other night of the week at other meetings. Two hundred or 300 people, at the most, run everything in this city."

"We can't get people to participate and work," he added, "Some of us here put in 20 to 30 hours a week on volunteer activities. We should get more people to donate two hours a week and spread the work out."

But Mr. Day confirmed the problem was not chronic and widespread and he had no ideas on motivating people to take an interest in their community.

"People are too darned lazy," Mrs. Shulman declared. Carl Whitemore, chairman of the UCS budget committee.

"Get the kids, from the ages of 17 to 20, involved," he suggested. "That might be the answer."

Hugh Pepper of Loyalist College told the group the colleges now offer a course for mend - professional workers in the social service and welfare field.

He suggested that the service of these students could be offered to agencies on a volunteer basis.

Board Rules Out Library in School

Joint use of the library at Centennial Secondary School on Palmer Road both as a school and public library would not be a practical solution to the need of library facilities in the city's west end.

This is the opinion of members of the Corby Public Library Board who, earlier this year, viewed the possibility of combining a public library with the present school facility.

The decision of the library board was conveyed to city council this week in a letter from Mrs. A. S. Lewis, chairman of the library board.

Mrs. Lewis says investigation showed that Centennial school library is already overcrowded, with students using the room as a resource centre. The school principal also expects an increased enrolment in September indicating the library would be even more crowded.

The proposal that the Centennial school library be also used as a public branch library came from city council as a cost saving suggestion.

The library board chairman said the board wished to co - operate with council in any way possible "but this does not seem to be the answer to the library's needs."

An item of $100,000 is included in the city's five - year capital works program for construction of a new branch library in 1971.

Moose Still On The Loose

A cow moose which somehow wandered into Prince Edward County last year apparently is mixing in with domestic animals.

Dept. of Lands and Forests officials say they recently heard the moose was rubbing with farmers' cattle herds. They say they've received numerous reports of the animal being spotted with cattle at feeding time.

Sharbot Lake Complaint

OPP Deny Harassment of Man Seeking Liberal Nomination

A senior provincial police official in Belleville has denied the OPP have been harassing an Arden rest estate man because of his political affiliation.

Ross Baker claims the provincial police at Sharbot Lake have been harassing him since he announced he will seek the Liberal nomination in Frontenac - Addington, a provincial constituency held by Works Minister J. R. Simonett.

Insp. R. L. Bender today termed Mr. Baker's charges of harassment "ridiculous."

He said provincial police never monitor the Arden resident nor use anything for political association.

Mr. Baker says he drives 75,000 miles a year and in the past four years has not lost a point on his driver's license.

Now, he claims, he is about to lose nine points for driving offences and, if he loses 15, he will also lose his driver's license.

Mr. Baker set out his troubles in a letter to the Perth Courier and says that in the nine weeks after he announced his political intentions, he has been stopped six times by the OPP Sharbot Lake detachment.

The detachment declined comment Tuesday, saying the whole matter is under investigation by superior headquarters at Belleville.

Mr. Baker was last in court Friday at Sharbot Lake, charged with driving at 80 miles an hour in a 60 mph zone.

The charge was reduced to driving at 65 mph when evidence showed that the arresting OPP officer was having a coffee in a restaurant when he saw Mr. Baker drive by and gave chase. Mr. Baker was fined $10 but lost no driving points.

Mr. Baker says he decided to enter the political arena against Mr. Simonett after a new public school for Kennebec and Olden townships was built not centrally but as close as possible to Sharbot Lake, Mr. Simonett's hometown.

Mr. Baker says these things happened to him after he announced Jan. 19 he would be a Liberal candidate against the cabinet minister:

Jan. 19 — The OPP stopped him at his farm gate and asked to see his driver's license, ownership and insurance.

Jan. 21 — The OPP gave him a ticket, while he was parked in a gas station, for 52S having a properly working headlight.

Jan. 24 — The OPP drove in his farm and submitted his car to a safety check. He was carrying a pail of water to the house when the police arrived.

Feb. 19 — The OPP stopped him for improper passing.

Feb. 23 — The OPP stopped him, for speeding.

March 23 — The OPP charged him with failing to dim his lights.

Insp. Bender today said visits to Mr. Baker by provincial police on three occasions involved a summons and warrants of committal from police departments elsewhere in Ontario.

P.M. to Use Trenton Jet on Asia Tour

TRENTON—Prime Minister Trudeau's press secretary announced today that the prime minister will use one of the Canadian Forces' newly acquired Boeing 707 aircraft for his coming Asian tour.

Three of the four 707s arrived Friday at Canadian Forces Base Trenton — home of Air Transport Command and 437 squadron which will fly the new jets — after completion of a seven - week training course at Boeing's Seattle plant.

Crew selection from the squadron for the Prime Minister's Asian tour is almost complete and will be announced Friday at a press conference shortly before the three 707s arrive, a CFB spokesman said here this morning.

Mr. Trudeau will depart from Ottawa May 10 on his 19-day Asian tour and arrive back in Canada May 29 at Vancouver, press secretary James Whiteman said today.

Highlight of the tour will be a four-day stopover in Japan, commencing May 25 and including a visit to Expo 70 at Osaka.

May 27 is Canada Day at Osaka.

The Prime Minister departs from Ottawa May 10, stops overnight in Honolulu and arrives in New Zealand May 12 for a three-day visit before going to Australia May 15 for a five-day stay.

On May 20 he arrives at Kuala Lumpur, the capital of Malaysia, for a two-day stopover, then travels to Singapore May 22 for a one-day visit. A trip to Hong Kong May 23 for a two-day visit will precede the prime minister's stopover in Japan.

The size of the Prime Minister's party is not known, but his press secretary said that as many as 25 members of the press may accompany Mr. Trudeau.

On Feb. 3, 1970, the defence department announced purchase of the four 707 long range jets, at a cost of $55,900,000, to replace the turbo prop Yukons in service since 1961.

Plans call for the 12 Yukons to be phased out by March 1971, giving way to the Boeings, which will be used for passenger service and cargo.

The Boeings have a greater load-carrying capacity and high speed.

They can accommodate 188 passengers and 14,100 pounds of freight, or 91,000 pounds without passengers at a cruising speed of about 600 miles an hour.

The fourth Boeing is expected to arrive at Trenton about April 23 to complete the jet flight.

Cleanup: Hold On!

Local householders are jumping the gun on the annual spring cleanup conducted by the city public works department.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said today that the spring cleanup chore had been delayed a week because of bad weather, but many householders had already raked lawn refuse to the curbside for pick-up by the public works department.

"It will likely be blown all over by the time the pick-up starts," said Mr. Purcell.

The city engineer said the spring cleanup would commence next Monday with men working in all parts of the city. The cleanup chore is expected to take about a month.

Announcing the wilderness vacationland of SHAWANO

a private unspoiled paradise of lakes and forests

A VAST NEW TERRITORY

Encompassing over 1,000 acres in Lake Township, Hastings County, the property includes four lakes and virgin timberland of outstanding natural beauty. The principal lakes are Dickey Lake and Lake of Islands. Unspoiled beaches, crystal clear waters, excellent fishing and hunting, make this an ideal resort community for the most discriminating modern vacationer.

The entire project will be developed in progressive stages. Phase One now underway will provide 124 registered building lots on the north and east shores of Dickey Lake.

Already, private roads have been cut through the forest to provide quick, easy access to the building sites. This work will continue until all the sites are properly serviced by good roads.

SHAWANO is the largest single development ever undertaken by the Bowes & Cocks organization and one of the largest such projects in Canada.

MAXIMUM VALUE

A wide choice of architect-designed cottages is now available and ready for erection on the large wooded lakefront lots. For example, a five-room B.C. cedar cottage complete with plumbing, water-pressure system and heavy-duty wiring costs only $10,900, including land. Larger lots and custom designs are available too.

SHAWANO WILL PRESERVE AREA'S NATURAL BEAUTY

One of the principal aims of the developers is to preserve the natural wilderness setting of the area while providing access to the lakes and residential facilities.

This will be enforced by policies designed to protect the forest and treed areas and keep all building at a discreet distance from the waterfront.

The property is heavily wooded and includes some of the finest stands of white pine in Hastings County. The crystal clear lakes offer trout and bass fishing.

OUTSTANDING PLANNING

The $8 million SHAWANO project will be developed over a five year period. Its 1,000 acres includes more than 12 miles of shoreline on Dickey Lake, Lake of Islands, Perch Lake and Lost Lake. The area is noted for its rich, natural beauty and is near the site of Eldorado Mine, the first gold mine to be established in Ontario.

An outstanding characteristic of SHAWANO will be its carefully-controlled development. The project will provide public beaches, camping and picnic areas, woodland trails for hiking, horseback riding and snowmobiles, ski hills, a boat marina, service and shopping facilities and tourist accommodation.

Canadian Enterprise

We are forever hearing moans about the extent of United States investment in Canada, forgetting that without much funds and the business and jobs they generate we would just be hewers of wood and drawers of water.

But what about Canadian investment in the United States? Better watch out Washington, or you could become a Canadian business satellite! Well not really, but just the same it is good to note a little enterprise in this direction down at Prescott.

This is where British and Americans used to make rude forays at each other across the St. Lawrence — like that time around 1837 when a party of Americans crossed the frozen river and released prisoners from the jail in Brockville, and a retaliatory raid was made on Ogdensburg from the Canadian side a week later.

Now it is all quite peaceful and "The Burg" is a popular spot with visitors from this side. And from Prescott, site of the 1812-war defence work, Fort Wellington, comes news that the Prescott Paper Products Company is to establish a new manufacturing company in Ogdensburg to serve the U.S. market.

A building has been purchased for the manufacture of tarpaulins — made of laminated paper — for use in the lumber industry. A Prescott report says a new material just coming onto the market from the Laminated and Coated Division of the St. Regis Paper Company is to be used.

It is said that the product has met with wide acceptance by the lumber and housing industry in the northeastern United States.

Good luck then to this Canadian enterprise in the United States. More activity in this direction could redress, to some extent at least, the imbalance of investment that currently favors our neighbor so heavily.

Playgrounds

A word about the recreation situation in Belleville. The city has an officer in charge of this activity, and an assistant, and they do a good job. The community also has playgrounds — and yet a common sight after school is youngsters playing in suburban streets.

Sometimes the hockey game is complete with nets; and the way kids slouch off with their equipment to the side of the road should you happen along in your car, it is as if you are the intruder and they are doing you a favor by getting out of the way.

It is the same with teenage conversations conducted in the centre of the road — there is the same surly daring of the driver to virtually run them down.

It speaks poorly for some of our young people.

Then there is that other suburban spectacle of youngsters tramping all over the front lawn — but the lawn is not their own. No, it seems that any patch of green will do for a romp or a chase, so long as it is not your own; and oh yes, the neighbor's driveway makes a handy right-of-way to wherever takes your fancy, say to the open ground beyond.

Young people should be taught respect not only for others but also for other people's property. Unfortunately there is too little of it around, too little in the sphere of good manners generally.

Women Announcers

The CBC has fired its one and only woman announcer on the English language network and if the voice of a mellow syrupy voice was heard at station breaks we can understand why. It seems that her vocal style grated with others too, including CBC staff. She was said to have developed "a strange sort of style," and her pronunciation was described as "precious."

The CBC for its part does not take women announcers very seriously. However it does boast five on the French network, so why the prejudice against women on the English network?

The British have had women announcers — and good ones at that — ever since the inauguration of television service in that country. Doubtless there is a new crop now, but back in the fifties we recall the BBC's Mary Malcolm (in private life Lady Barnett), Sylvia Peters and Noelle Middleton.

New Zealand's television service is another, which makes use of women announcers.

Thus, there are precedents for giving the ladies a break on television. If we can have so many talented women artists entertaining over the various networks, why not women announcers as well? If the CBC wants to improve its image here is one way to do it.

West German Envoy Murdered

Kidnapping Is Dangerous New Tool of Revolutionaries

By RAY DECK

WASHINGTON (CP) — The rash of South American political kidnappings, culminating last week in the murder of the West German ambassador in Guatemala, has renewed fears in diplomatic circles here of a new era of personal danger for envoys in many parts of the world.

What many diplomats fear, and express privately, is that political ransom may catch on in other areas, such as in the Middle East and Southeast Asia, similar to the spread of aircraft hijackings from the U.S. to other countries.

As yet no one has come up with a successful method of preventing plane hijackings, and the consensus here is that political kidnapping is probably as difficult to prevent since no government can guarantee the safety of any diplomat from determined kidnappers.

There certainly will be more abductions, diplomatic sources believe, as long as political kidnapping remains one of the more effective tools available to revolutionary groups for short-term objectives.

During the last year, such kidnappings have occurred in Guatemala, Colombia, Brazil, Argentina, the Dominican Republic and Uruguay, among other Latin American nations. The victims included officials of the United States, Paraguay, Guatemala, Uruguay, Japan, Russia and other nations.

But last week West Germany was added to the list, and the kidnapping and murder of its ambassador, Count Karl von Spreti, brought shock and indignation from many countries.

Guatemala previously released some in exchange for its own kidnapped foreign minister and an abducted American diplomat. It said it could not this time because the prisoners were already sentenced by the courts or scheduled for court action and to release them would violate the constitution.

It was a reminder that outright rejection of political kidnappers' demands as a way to stop such domestic revolutionary activities was futile in the death of an innocent observer.

Latin American governments have reacted to the wave of kidnappings by placing hundreds of extra police around foreign embassies, diplomats are taking strict precautions in travelling and public appearances and Argentina has proposed to bring the problem before the Organization of American States.

Argentina will propose that all member nations agree to withhold asylum or release of political prisoners freed by unlucky kidnap ransom demands, a revolutionary proposal since almost every nation in Latin America is currently the home of political exiles from neighboring countries.

Neither the precautions nor the proposal, however, can provide a complete answer to the problem. Kidnappers can make other demands besides the release of prisoners, possibly more serious ones.

In the meantime, political kidnapping remains an effective tool for revolutionaries, and it could become increasingly attractive to other areas of the world besides Latin America.

Away from It All

If you are a city dweller, life away-from-it-all, amidst a tranquil setting like this, may be just too much. No polluted air, no traffic, no noise; only the rushing stream and the song of birds — and, most of us are not used to that sort of thing. But people do live in such places, scattered throughout Ontario, and perhaps they are the more fortunate members of our society. This is the old flour mill on the Salmon River at Lonsdale. Drive north at Marysville and you will come upon this idyllic scene. The mill, by the way, is now a private home.

TODAY IN HISTORY

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover told a United States Senate subcommittee 19 years ago today—in 1951—that a "hard core" of trained Communists was already to sabotage vital industries in the event of war. He set the number of known Communists in the U.S. at 43,217. The next day, he said loyalty checks had resulted in the dismissal of 304 government employees and the resignation of 2,91 others under investigation.

Tax Exemptions and the YMCA

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I lived in Belleville for many years, until, forced by ever increasing taxation I left for my present home in the country. In all the years I lived there I was never able to understand why the city council persistently handed over large sums of our tax money each year to the YMCA.

I was never fully aware of the extent of this financial involvement until the letter in your columns last week. I certainly had no idea that Belleville had been handing out its tax dollars by way of exemptions for over 41 years. Had I known this, my ward member would have had an earful from me.

As I recall, this city bought back the old YMCA building from the YMCA at a cost of around $35,000. In view of the fact that the taxpayer had been carrying the YMCA through its tax exemptions for 40-odd years I would have thought it a Christian act for the YMCA to have handed over the building to the city gratis.

From what I read in the papers, the YMCA in this city seems to have set itself up as the complete answer to all the city's recreational and social requirements. From what they advertise from time to time, it seems to me there is no field they are not involved in. I do, however, take exception to the fact that all this apparent activity is being paid for in a large part by taxpayers' money. Also, I am not aware of any program that the YMCA runs that is free to the taxpayer of Belleville. As I understand it, not only do they charge all the non-members for everything, but also the members themselves.

The figures that your correspondent quoted for five years were indeed, to say the least of it, very disturbing. How on earth can our society expect to keep up our taxes at a reasonable level if they are going to continue a program of handouts, on such a scale to the YMCA.

I ceased my annual contribution to the United Appeal fund solely because of the huge amount that was given each year to the YMCA. There are many more needy and impecunious areas for charitable donations in this area. We have cancer, heart, muscular dystrophy, retarded children, minor sports, the blind, etc. To me these are much more pressing and human needs.

DISGUSTED

Pollution and the Individual

Letter to The
Hamilton Spectator

Since 1881 industries have been curbing pollution. Today, more than 80 per cent of all pollution is caused by individuals, yet they want industries to cut further back without doing anything themselves. Without the "oxygen - giving" algae plant, there would be no life in the Great Lakes. Why not fight for secondary sewage treatment plants, and the discontinued use of road salt, as this creates big problems?

Soon Hamilton will have a pollution index published daily. But this will only cover relatively safe pollutants (smoke and sulphur dioxide). This practice was given up in other cities, because it does not give a true picture of air pollution. Only by using a spectroscope are we able to detect the most dangerous air pollutants.

People should be more concerned about the pollutants responsible for smog, cancer, heart disease and respiratory ailments, such as hydrocarbons, carbon - monoxide and oxides of nitrogen.

Hans Jensen,
Dundas.

Presidential Finances

Christian Science Monitor

It's one of the more interesting pastimes to try to figure out how much it costs to maintain a president in office. The official White House budget at the moment is a shade under $6 million. But it doesn't include the 340 persons working for President Nixon but "detailed" from other departments. Nor the president's share of the 18 jets which transport high government officials. Nor the million dollars or so it costs to outfit and move the two personally owned but government-maintained presidential retreats, Camp David and the Texas Christmas ranch (or the Navy-maintained Camp David). Nor the expenses of gardeners, police and Secret Service men who maintain the White House grounds and guard the president.

The Wall Street Journal's rough guess is that the cost of the presidency would total about $70 million. There's a reluctance in government circles to break out the precise details of the nature of other department's budgets. Of course secrecy must be maintained on certain intelligence measures. And the president's men may well feel that if the total were ever really examined out, the public might not be so happy.

This July, President Nixon is taking a step forward in ward candor in White House finances. He is incorporating budget for the next fiscal year will move that double to $8,- 550,000, because it will now include the cost of aides farmed out to other departments. This is still far from the full story, however — far less than the Internal Revenue would accept from the rest of us.

A Word to the 'Turned on' Generation

Using Your Mind, Not 'Blowing It,' Is the Best Fun

Bruce West in
The Globe and Mail

The following quotations are from an address given by Michael Bonnycastle, professor of English at Brock University, to a group of principals and guidance officers. I like them, and think they bear repeating here:

"What I would like to do, if you'll allow me, is to point the finger at two or three popular mythologies that saturate the air we breathe, cloud our eyes and warp our minds. If you can see how dangerous they are, me fight them. First, the notion that man's prime duty is to have fun; turn on, blast off, get your kicks, have a ball — as if the heavens were full of voices singing 'Enjoy Yourself!' Or, to be more accurate, the notion that all fun is easy and comes by instinct.

I'm no killjoy. I believe in having fun and I enjoy most of the things I do. But that isn't the same as doing, nonstop, all the things I enjoy. For I remember (what everyone used to know) that the best pleasure is the kind you work for; and that the rarest kind comes from (in fact comes in) mastering something difficult. And (if I may make a wildly unfashionable claim) I know the most reliable fun — best tasting, longest - lasting, no hangover — is had not by turning the mind off, or blowing it, but by learning to use it well.

Next, just behind the mythology of fun (and maybe a foundation for it), is the false philosophy which says that the world is absurd, and that the only way to beat it is to join it — by growing up absurd yourself. Come on, you wretched bleaters. The world is neither more nor less absurd than it ever was. What you mean is, you can't cope.

"The fairy tales (or beliefs or concepts) that were once adequate to handle the world for life of the universe) have broken down and you have jumped to the conclusion that the sky is falling . . . Santa Claus is a lie . . . and Daddy's a fink for putting me on. Let's grow up. If we complain that there is no meaning, we are not merely confusing our reality to find one; we are really saying that we've got to win every time or we won't play . . . And meanwhile, sitting around for Godot to make a move won't help the bums, or grow the food, or redeem Lake Erie, or even repair the TV set. Our job, inside the classroom and out of it, is to build worlds — not to weep that they've broken down . . .

"Finally, the deep ground — it cannot be called a philosophy, and scarcely a mythology, because no one has to think about it at all: we simply know it's so. To wit, that everything is relative; that every man (and child) is an island, entire of himself, boy-o! all hope of communication and that he hath therefore got to be a Phoenix, and recreate his whole world for himself, from scratch . . . Well, it won't work. Life's too short. The world's too complicated and moves too fast.

"To cling to obsolete concepts in the teeth of change is an obvious lunacy. To reject past wisdom as being out of date is no less mad, but less obvious because it is the in thing to do. Each of us needs all the help he can get, from the living and the dead. The kind of understanding you get by doing your own thing won't last a minute when the wind changes . . ."

Breakup : Not That Bad

Many city streets are admittedly in bad shape, but, says city engineer Wilbur Purcell, the spring breakup this year was not as serious as expected.

Mr. Purcell said that, considering the severe winter, the spring breakup of city roadways might have been worse.

Works department employees have been at work for several weeks filling potholes with cold patch.

Ann Landers

Re Husband's Wish Something Sick

DEAR ANN LANDERS: All this talk about transplanting organs has me worried sick. For personal and religious reasons I don't want any of my parts removed after I die. I want to meet my Maker intact.

ANN LANDERS

Why should the dean of Harvard Medical School or my next of kin have access to my heart or kidneys or eyes?

I have no objections to anyone else giving up their parts if they want to, but I do not choose to do so myself. How can I make sure it won't happen. — ANCHORAGE READER.

DEAR ANC.: Put it in your will.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: On occasion you reprint poems sent in by readers. I've been saving this one for years. It was written by Betty Billups. I'm sure there's as much truth as poetry here. Please print it.

"No child of mine, I used to cry,
Before the stork had fluttered by,
Will ever throw a temper fit,
Or bite or scratch or whine or hit.
Or wear a diaper till he's three
Or sit for hours and watch TV
Or dawdle so he makes me late
Or leave his spinach on the plate.
Or act, in short, like other kids
Who've made their parents flip their lids.
But with the patter of baby feet
Are 46 million words to eat."

Any parent who is honest will appreciate this. — MRS. D.H.J.

DEAR D.H.J.: Yeah — and grandparents, too. Thanks so much.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently a reader wrote complaining about doctors — their fancy cars, trips to Europe, etc. I would like to use your column to say "Thank you" to a doctor in Grant, Nebraska.

His "office" is in his home and his hours are when you need him. Believe it or not, he even makes house calls. I know personally of times he has driven 25 miles at 2 a.m. to see a patient and then brought him to the hospital in his own car, which is a Ford not a Cadillac. I know of one hospital patient who was so upset he couldn't sleep. When the nurse called for special orders Dr. C. came to the hospital at 4:30 a.m. to talk with the patient.

Dr. C. isn't a young man anymore. His wife is his office nurse and assistant. You pay him when you can and he never duns you.

I know there aren't many doctors like Dr. C. and I want everyone to know how much we appreciate him. — GRANT, NEBRASKA.

DEAR FRIEND: I'll bet Dr. C. will have a busy telephone today! My best wishes to you — and to him.

Confidential to NEED TO KNOW BY HOOK OR CROOK: Sorry, I don't agree. A mother who snoops will never know what goes on. Her children will just think of new ways to circumvent her. Trust begets trust. Try it. It works.

Salmon and Cheese Add to Casserole Dish

BY MARY MOORE

Six people may sit down to dine from this comparatively economical casserole. You need one 1-lb. can of salmon — red or pink. Many of the other ingredients you will have on your shelf of staples.

SALMON and CHEDDAR MACARONI (6 generous servings)

1 cup uncooked elbow or small shell macaroni
1 tsp. salt
6 cups boiling water
3 tbsps. butter or margarine
½ cup chopped onion (or ¼ cup bottled onion flakes)
3 tbsps. flour
1 tsp. salt (second amount)
⅛ tsp. pepper
1-16 tsp. garlic salt
1¾ cups hot milk
½ pt. (1¼ cups) dairy sour cream
1½ cups shredded Cheddar cheese, slightly packed
One 1-lb. can salmon, pink or red
2 tomatoes sliced
¾ cup bread or cracker crumbs
2 tbsps. melted butter or margarine (second amount)

Cook the macaroni in the boiling water with 1 tsp. salt until soft — about 20 min. Drain.

Now make the sauce in a large pot by melting the 3 tbsps. butter or margarine and adding the onion, flour, salt (second amount), pepper and garlic salt and stirring until blended. Stir in hot milk until thick. Remove from heat and stir in sour cream and shredded cheese. Spread half of the cooked macaroni on bottom of large casserole. Open the can of salmon and pour the liquid over the macaroni and remove the spine bones. Break up the salmon and distribute half over the macaroni and cover it with half of the sauce. Repeat these three layers, arrange sliced tomatoes on top and cover with crumbs which have been stirred into the melted butter or margarine (second amount) until coated.

Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 35 to 40 min. or until deep gold and bubbly.

We served this with a big tossed salad. My friendly critics who were invited for Sunday evening dinner declared it full of good flavor and nutrition and an economical meal for budget watchers.

I think our casserole cooks should reach for the scissors and clip this too.

Combine economy in a casserole and our readers clip like crazy. That is what Mary Moore has done and hopes you will do with today's Salmon and Cheddar Macaroni after you try it.

Successful Living

Moral: Don't Pose As A Martyr

By DORIS CLARK

Myrtle was a farm girl who stayed with her parents when the rest of the family married and moved away. She cared for them when they grew old — and felt like a martyr.

When they both died, and on top of that her faithful old boy friend died; she became bitter about life and talked constantly about her hardships. Finally an old friend snapped: "If you are sorry for yourself, no one else will be!"

This jarred Myrtle into a right-about-face. It didn't happen overnight, but eventually this really vital 55-year-old woman found a new career as a saleslady in a dress department. She is cheery now and you'd never believe she was once a martyred self-pitier.

* * *

Dear Doris: My daughter is going to be a flower girl in my niece's wedding.

Since my niece and my daughter have been very close (she baby-sat her from infancy) I would like to get her a small gift from my daughter. Could you suggest the type of gift? — Auntie.

Dear Auntie: It has to be something for a very special girl. I would suggest perhaps an old friend mapped: "If you are sorry for yourself, no one else will be!"

This jarred Myrtle into a right-about-face. It didn't happen overnight, but eventually this really vital 55-year-old woman found a new career as a saleslady in a dress department. She is cheery now and you'd never believe she was once a martyred self-pitier.

* * *

Dear Doris: My daughter brides about the special small gifts that they have particularly enjoyed.

* * *

Dear Doris: My 30 - year - old daughter is marrying a divorcee this summer. They want me to give the bride away. Somehow I don't believe this is right. I am a widow.

She has four children by her first marriage and has been a widow for five years.

She wants 200 people at her wedding. I think a second marriage should not be such a show. — Just Wondering

Dear Wondering: You just don't have a large showy wedding second time round, if you are going by the etiquette books. The guest list should be kept to under 100. Bride and groom have just one attendant apiece.

The bride's mother has been known to give her daughter away, walking down the aisle with her, but without holding her arm. For a mature bride, this part of the ceremony is usually omitted.

What's troubling you? Putting it on paper to Doris is the first step towards solving your problem.

Students Enjoy Trip to Mexico

Recently a number of Centre Hastings Secondary School students arrived back from a two - week trip to Mexico.

This was a geography field trip organized and planned by Owen Weaver of the C.H.S.S. staff. Plans were laid as early as October; the County of Hastings Board of Education co - operated generously; groups from Bancroft and Belleville were welcomed on the band wagon and - raising projects mushroomed into being; and finally two busloads of students and teacher - chaperones set off for their March vacation and a course in the study of environment and people.

Mexico is a country familiar to Mr. Weaver. He has studied extensively at the University of Mexico, and for several years served as its Canadian registrar. His knowledge of the customs of the country, and his contacts there proved invaluable.

The first phase of the trip was a long haul through Michigan, Illinois, Missouri and Oklahoma, ending at Temple, Texas. Crossing the border at Laredo, the travellers visited Monterrey, Saltillo, San Luis de Potosi, Tampico, Mexico City and intermediate points. They enjoyed the comfort of modern motels, in the beauty of picturesque mountain settings, and they basked in the warmth of genuine hospitality.

Highlights of the holiday were: a visit to the pyramids outside Mexico City, dancing in the streets with and among the Mexicans in a fiesta in Tezco, dining at an old monastery, where the dinner service was solid silver, shopping in the market on Sunday at a small town, listening to 105 degree and 104 low basis.

On Thursday, April 2 during activity period, the students displayed the gifts and souvenirs they had brought back, for the admiration and perhaps envy of all viewers.

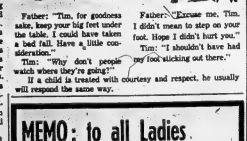
Home and School Association News

Park Dale Home and School Association held its annual fun fair at the school last month. It was a perfect blend of co-operation and eager participation by parents, teachers and students which resulted in the fun filled evening. The fair was convened by Mrs. Marie Merrell and Mrs. Myrtle Bushell. The more than 15 different booths and various games were supervised by teachers and parents with added assistance from both students of Park Dale School and many teenagers in the area.

This year, the fair offered something for every member of the family. In addition to the ever popular fish ponds and other timely games, a gun target and balloon dart game were added for the children. Those who wished something a little quieter could sit and relax watching short movies. In addition to the many wares offered for sale, orders were taken for Oriental plaques provided by one of the parents and finished by students in her Friday afternoon activity class.

Many parents and students supplied the sewing and knitting table with a wide variety of hand made articles from doll clothes to aprons of all sizes.

The grade 6 special project offered a wide variety of goods for sale including baked goods made by the students. This project was supervised by Mrs. Maxine Walker one of the grade 6 teachers but the majority of work was carried out by the students. Proceeds from their efforts go towards financing scheduled spring trips.



After a change of pace, one could sit and relax in comfort in the tea room. The women transformed the kindergarten into a Japanese tea room for the event offering tea, coffee and delicious home made treats while soft music was piped into the room. The auditorium was the central selling market decorated to represent an outdoor fair.

The close of the fair came with the drawing of the various prizes. Winners were Gary Riddell, Jay Bochnek, Mrs. Kerr, Mary Ann Webb, Miss Eleanor Short, Master Tommy Belch and Ron Johnston. Winner of the grade 6 draw was Miss Jane King.

The annual fun fair was reluctantly brought to a close by B. A. Wright, principal, who thanked everyone for participating.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Tim, for goodness sake, keep your big feet under the table. I could have taken a bad fall. Have a little consideration."

Tim: "Why don't people watch where they're going?"

If a child is treated with courtesy and respect, he usually will respond the same way.

Realists Just Aim at Stopping Acceleration of Pollution

DETROIT (CP) — Purists talk about beating the water pollution problem, about cleaning up waterways.

But the realists in Michigan are aiming at something different. Their aim is first to slow, then to stop the acceleration of the pollution problem, not stop pollution entirely. That's another step.

Dr. Ralph MacMullan, director of the Michigan department of natural resources, says: "It will be a really tremendous accomplishment if we can just halve the acceleration."

The state has instituted rigid new controls and imposed deadlines for their implementation, but even so, the program will take time.

"I'm confident now that in another 10 or 15 years, we'll have the acceleration stopped and we'll start cleaning up our water," MacMullan says.

"In a lot of ways we're getting the Detroit River a whole lot cleaner than ever before. There's only about one per cent of the oil in the river that there was 18 years ago."

Full installation of pollution controls in industry is several years away, and some unscrupulous operators are skilfully avoiding the regulations now in effect.

Some industries have been known to hire hoteliggers who fill huge tank trucks with waste in the dark of night, then dump it into streams alongside roads. This practice was unheard of before the new regulations, MacMullan says.

The caustic acid, phenol, oil and floating solids are showing up in greater quantities in the St. Mary's River between Lake Superior and Huron than at any time in the last 30 years.

There have been seven fish kills since 1964 in the Tittabawassee River near Midland, Mich. They have been attributed to effluent from the Dow Chemical Ltd. plant there, and Dow has been working to clean up the problem. Recently the company planted 400 pike in the river to replace those killed.

The River Raisin south of Detroit is so befouled with industrial waste that even such hardy species as carp and catfish can't live in it. The Rouge River in Detroit is an open sewer.

The state has floated $335,000,000 bond issue to help pay for the anti-pollution program. This, coupled with municipal and federal funds, would have provided a total of about $1,200,000,000 for the fight.

But federal revenues have been cut, costs are rising, and the state timetable is in serious trouble, says MacMullan.

"If we don't get federal funds, we're dead."

Ohio Is Not Excited About Pollution

TOLEDO, Ohio (CP) — "Pollution control," says Toledo Mayor William Ezzigs, "is not a slogan; it has become a way of life."

Because of this, he says, this city on the west end of Lake Erie has "all the necessary mechanisms" to abate pollution in its effluent.

He made his statement in a public forum on the International Joint Commission report on pollution in Lakes Erie and Ontario and the International section of the St. Lawrence River.

It is difficult to find excitement about lake pollution here although some people acknowledge its existence.

Some of the apparent indifference towards lake pollution can be traced to the state capital.

Gov. James Rhoes of Ohio considers pollution of Lake Erie to be a Michigan problem in spite of the concentration of Ohio industry on the lakefront here and at Cleveland.

NDPer Supports PC Amendment

Anti-hate Law Wouldn't Have Stopped Nazi Pogrom Says Jew

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's anti-hate bill wouldn't have stopped the Nazi slaughter of Jews during the Second World War and can only disguise the uglier symptoms of real social ills, Marc Saltzman (NDP—Waterloo) said in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Saltzman, his party's financial critic, is a Jew and, as a Canadian air force corporal, visited the German concentration camp at Belsen shortly after the end of the Second World War.

He spoke as the bill, which would outlaw advocacy of genocide and promotion of hatred against groups, faltered through the report stage against stiff but scattered opposition.

Under debate is an amendment by Eldon Woolliams (PC —Calgary North) that would delete from the bill provisions to make it a crime to incite hatred of identifiable groups. The amendment would leave only the anti-genocide section intact.

Preferring the amendment Monday, he said the bill is crisis legislation that duplicates law in the Criminal Code and may boomerang against minority groups with legitimate grievances.

The debate continues today.

Mr. Saltzman, 48, said that bigotry in Canada has moderated since he was a boy in Toronto. He felt that better living standards are responsible for the improvement.

He didn't feel hate propaganda should be banned. It was a thermometer of underlying social ills that should be treated.

Refusing to take the temperature wouldn't solve the illness.

Meanwhile, a government backbencher, John Roberts (York-Simcoe), attacked the bill. He said it is contrary to the principles of liberalism.

The moment a government suppressed the views of one group, others would be endangered, Mr. Roberts said that Socrates, Christ and Galileo were among those killed because of their views.

Among those supporting the bill was Lincoln Alexander (PC —Hamilton West), Canada's first Negro MP.

The dignity of man had to transcend freedom of speech, he said, speaking as one who knew how it felt to be a member of a minority group.

What does a mother tell a child who comes home in tears after a racial slur? "Does she say to him 'Freedom of speech is paramount'?"

Mr. Alexander said he has experienced rejection and hate but is fortunate compared with others.

"I don't want to point to any particular province but Ontario's take me long to point out," he said. The majority of Canada's Negroes live in Nova Scotia.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood), James R. Walker (York Centre), parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau, and Mark MacGuigan (L—Windsor-Walkerville) were among those supporting the bill also.

Mr. MacGuigan was, with Mr. Trudeau, a member of the Marxwell Cohen committee that four years ago recommended legislation to make hate propaganda a crime.

Reforms Made Election Bait?

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was accused in the Commons Tuesday of postponing the introduction of needed reforms in Canada's social security system until as close as possible to the next election.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said in an adjournment debate the government intends to put off its white paper proposals or social security until probably the last week of the current session of the House.

What it means, Mr. Knowles said, is that old-age pensioners and war veterans will be denied increases in their allowances for at least another year. He called the policy reprehensible.

Stanley Haidasz, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister John Munro, said the government is fully aware of present shortcomings in social security.

"However, compassion and sympathy will not solve the problem," he said. "We need a good useful and workable program."

NDP Calls For In-depth Attack On Unemployment

TORONTO (CP) — A New Democratic Party motion that the Ontario budget debate be adjourned until the government produces a "comprehensive program" to combat rising unemployment was rejected in a 75-17 vote Tuesday.

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald, who made the motion, followed it with a four-point proposal to combat unemployment, calling for more funds for housing starts; capital expenditures for pollution control projects, increased aid to municipalities and legislation to require adequate notice of plant shutdowns and layoffs so remedial government action can be taken.

In his speech in the budget debate, Mr. MacDonald charged the government with practising "mythology by claiming a $26,000,000 budgetary surplus for fiscal 1969-70 when the figure was "actually $160,000,000."

He said an analysis by his party reveals that the province elapsed of all but $28,000,000 by putting $10,000,00 in a premium stabilization account for 1970-71 hospital costs. Another $34,000,000 went to education grants to county boards in 1969-70.

"In brief, our analysis reveals that instead of the mythology of balanced budgets which the government boasts about, last year they actually had a surplus of $160,000,000."

LESS TIME TEACHING

SASKATOON (CP) — The staff of Saskatchewan collegiate spent only about 76 per cent of their time teaching in 1969 compared to 88 per cent in Regina collegiate, J. C. McIsaac, Saskatchewan health minister, said.

Election Issues Are Multitude

Talk Rages Along the Campaign Trail in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Separatism, terrorism, language rights, high finance and tax reform were the talk of the campaign trail Tuesday for Quebec's general election April 29.

So was Prime Minister Trudeau.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand asked about 450 people at a meeting in Rouyn, in northwestern Quebec, if they were in favor of independence. Many shouted: "Yes."

Separatist Leader Rene Levesque complained at Quebec City that the Liberals and Creditistes are trying to give people the impression his Parti Quebecois is a terrorist party.

Creditiste Leader Camil Samson, addressing a crowd of 600 near Quebec City, said the Liberal and Union Nationale parties are controlled by financiers.

Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa, campaigning in an Eastern Townships riding, said his party would reform personal income taxes.

Prime Minister Trudeau was attacked by intergovernmental Affairs Minister Marcel Masse, who said he would rather deal with former prime minister Lester Pearson.

Mr. Masse told 50 junior college students at Rouyn that Mr. Trudeau is blocking constitutional negotiations in an effort to please "les Anglais."

Premier Bertrand said Mr. Masse visited the riding of Rouyn-Noranda, where the Union Nationale party has had internal problems over language-rights legislation.

The Union Nationale member for Rouyn-Noranda quit the party last year when the government presented legislation to ensure language rights of Quebec's English-speaking minority.

The premier explained the bill on a paid political broadcast on Rouyn television, saying it has advantages for both French- and English-speaking Quebecers.

Under the law, he said, the English would be obliged to learn French in the schools and the French would be encouraged to learn French on arrival in Quebec.

Separatist Leader Levesque participated in an open-line telecast at Quebec City, saying opponents are trying to paint his party terrorist.

Speaking of terrorists, he said:

"If our party has quelled their desire for violent action, so much the better."

Creditiste Camil Samson spoke up for Social Credit at an enthusiastic rally at Donnacona, in Portneuf riding 25 miles west of Quebec City.

In the riding held by the Union Nationale in the last legislature, Mr. Samson expressed the Creditiste complaint that "old parties" are manipulated by high finance.

He also attacked the government for what he described as the deplorable financial state of school boards, saying many teachers are not getting paid on time.

Liberal Leader Bourassa campaigned in Richmond riding, held for the last 18 years by Emilien Lafrance, a former Liberal cabinet minister who has retired.

Mr. Bourassa talked economics, saying the Liberals would propose a tax reform system when their platform is unveiled Tuesday.

Today Mr. Bertrand will meet rier and the Creditistes will with his cabinet at Quebec City rally at Thetford, an Eastern and visit Pontiac and Gatineau Townships riding they hope to ridings. Mr. Bourassa will take from the Union Nationale.

Mr. Levesque will campaign in his riding of Montreal-Laurtravel to Temiscamingue.

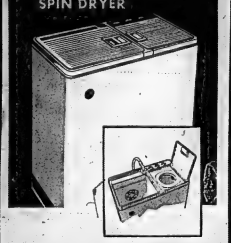
Lawrence: Ban on Denison Hurt Uranium Industry

TORONTO (CP) — Mines Minister Allan Lawrence said Tuesday the future expansion of uranium mining in Ontario has been jeopardized by the federal government's refusal to permit the sale of Denison Mines Ltd. to an American-owned company.

Replying to questions in the legislature, Mr. Lawrence said he did not believe Ottawa knew the "immense implication of its decision" at the time it made it.

He declined to say what plans the province had to counteract the effects from a closing of the Denison uranium mine at Elliot Lake, which company President Stephen Roman has suggested is a possibility resulting from the federal action. About 900 persons would lose their jobs if the mine was closed.

Mr. Lawrence said any plans the province had were contingent on some knowledge of what Ottawa intends to do.



In a later interview, Mr. Lawrence said he does not believe federal proposals to limit foreign ownership of resource industries will work because of the "impossibility" of tracing ownership.

Equal Pay for Women Is at Stake in Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario labor department is appealing a court decision that has tied the province's hands in enforcing legislation designed to ensure equal pay for women workers.

The first case, to be heard by the Ontario Court of Appeal April 16, involves Metropolitan Toronto's refusal to give equal pay to women nursing aides at its Greenacres Home for the Aged.

"Unless we win this appeal our hands may be tied in getting equal pay for women in Ontario," M. E. Howard, director of the provincial employment standards branch, said Tuesday in an interview.

The case arose when inspectors from the employment standards branch found that female nursing aides at the Toronto home were being paid 40 cents less than male orderlies although their jobs involved equal skill and responsibilities.

The 135 female nursing aides were getting $2.25 an hour and orderlies $2.65, despite a provincial equal-pay law passed Jan. 1, 1968, that stipulates female workers must get equal pay in any establishment where they do the "same" work.

The branch ordered Metropolitan Toronto council to pay $21,986 in the branch to be turned over to the female aides for back wages and to pay equal salaries in future.

Although the province of Ontario has been giving equal pay to female aides in all provincial nursing homes since ordered to do so a few years ago by the Human Rights Commission, the city decided it would ignore this precedent and contest the order.

This was the first court challenge to the equal-pay legislation. Other employers ordered to give women equal wages by the board have complied.

The case ended in the Supreme Court of Ontario where Mr. Justice Campbell Grant held that the word "same" in the Ontario legislation can be held to mean identical.

Since nursing aides mainly work with female patients and orderlies with male patients, he ruled that the work performed was not identical and that Metro council did not have to pay.

The ruling has meant that the branch has been unable to proceed with equal-pay orders against other nursing homes under the jurisdiction of Metropolitan Toronto.

Honor of Profession Jeopardized - - Judge

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court judge said Tuesday night the honor of the legal profession is jeopardized by perjured criminal law because a lawyer may have to protect a guilty client or discredit an honest witness.

Mr. Justice Edson L. Haines told a meeting of the Toronto Academy of Medicine that "abolition of the right to remain silent" in criminal law "is necessary to save an honorable profession (law) from its own dishonor."

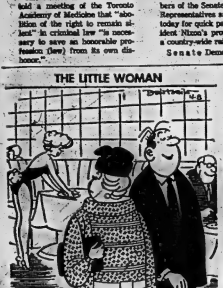
He said that in criminal cases a lawyer's lips are forever sealed when his client makes a damaging confession to him.

The lawyer properly must advise his client to silence and use his skills to prevent the prosecution proving its case.

He contrasted the system of criminal law with that of civil law, in which the lawyer tells his client he must tell the truth.

"Our rules of civil procedure are calculated to get at the truth and take the sporting element out of litigation. Hence the vast majority of civil cases are resolved by settlement."

No Obstacle to Ban on Rail Strike



WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Senate and House of Representatives saw no obstacle today for quick passage of President Nixon's proposal to avert a country-wide rail strike.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, noting the Senate labor committee approved the bill unanimously Monday, said it appeared it would pass with little delay.

Representative Harley O. Staggers (Dem. W. Va.), chairman of the House commerce committee which approved the measure 15 to 13 Tuesday, said he hoped the House also could clear it this afternoon.

There are minor differences between the two versions.

Tax Rates Will Be Cut in White Paper

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert B. Bryce, the government's leading authority on Income Tax Act revision, said Tuesday some tax rates in Finance Minister Edgar Benson's white paper proposals will be reduced before the proposals become effective.

But he told the Commons finance committee that until new legislation is introduced and passed by Parliament, no one can say where the rate reductions will be made.

He indicated his own reluctance to cut proposed rates of personal income tax, but said reductions might be made in corporation taxes, sales taxes, or some other field.

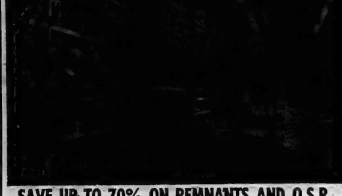
He reiterated earlier testimony that he believes the personal income tax is "the fairest and best" form of taxation. It is more directly related to a person's ability to pay taxes than is the corporation profits tax, sales tax, or municipal real property taxes.

Inquiry Asked

TORONTO (CP) — An inquiry into the management of Ontario provincial parks has been requested by the Algonquin Wildlands League, a special advisory committee set up last year to examine the management of Algonquin Park.

Six Sherpas Killed by Block of Ice

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Six Nepalese Sherpas have been killed by a huge block of ice that fell on them while guiding a Japanese expedition up Mount Everest, a message reaching here said today.



It was the worst disaster ever reported on the world's highest mountain.

The message said the accident occurred last Sunday and that two other Sherpas were rescued.

The ice block roared down the slopes of the mountain as the Sherpas were at an altitude of 19,000 feet—18,108 feet below the summit—carrying equipment to the first main camp site.

Pressure Just Beginning

Goals Cost More in Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tonight the real pressure starts for the National Hockey League's top goaltenders as the 1970 Stanley Cup playoffs open on four fronts.

Netminders like Tony Esposito, who collected a record 15 shutouts in regular season play, will find stopping pucks a little more difficult with the opposing forwards trying for the $7,500 prize money that goes to each member of the cup-winning team.

Esposito and his Chicago Black Hawks team-mates play host tonight to Detroit Red Wings in one of four best-of-seven quarter-final series.

The Red Wings will likely have Roger Crozier in goal after his sparkling performance against a 65-shot attack by New York Rangers in the final regular-season game at New York last Sunday.

The Chicago game will be televised nationally by the CBC, beginning at 8:35 p.m. EST.

The other three series see Boston Bruins against the Rangers at Boston in the East while the West has Minnesota North Stars at St. Louis against the Blues and Oakland Seals taking on the Penguins in Pittsburgh.

Second games will be played at the same site Thursday night with the clubs switching home rinks for the third and fourth games Saturday and Sunday.

The Rangers, who last won the Stanley Cup in 1940, are confident they can put up a stronger fight than they did in the last three years when they dropped 12 of 14 playoff games.

Coach and general manager Emile Francis said his Rangers are a better team than they ever were.

"We've got guys who weren't with us during those losses, guys who aren't affected by the past. And we have a Brad Park and a Walt Tkaczuk, who were only rookies in last season's playoffs."

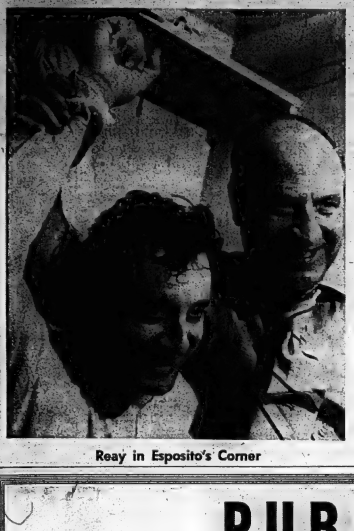
Francis said he has emphasized that his players should avoid unnecessary penalties.

"That doesn't mean we're not going to retaliate," he said. "As long as a guy takes someone with him to the penalty box, that's OK. But if the other guy gets caught first by the referee, then we'll lay off."

New York left wingers Don Marshall and Vic Hadfield are coming back off injuries and may yet see playoff action. Marshall was told by the team doctor Tuesday he will be out another 10 days yet with a shoulder injury and Hadfield will start skating for the first time today after an ankle injury.

Boston defenceman Rick Smith, who suffered a shoulder injury late in the season, worked out Tuesday and will play.

Gerry Cheevers will get the call for Boston's starting goalie against New York's Ed Giacomin.



"Ha, I don't get nervous," Cheevers said in the Boston dressing room Tuesday. "I'm used to this, after all."

"But things are different than in the regular season. Now it's gotta be 100 per cent hockey. 24 hours a day. Know what I mean? You have to concentrate more."

Bruins coach Harry Sinden praised his goalie as one of the top competitors on the team.

"He's the kind of guy you can count on to make the big saves that turn games around. He'll let the odd softie in but he gets the big ones."

Cheevers has veteran Ed Johnston backing him up while Terry Sawchuk, four-time Vezina Trophy winner, will be ready to step in if Giacomin needs help.

Nolan Blanks Dodgers

Reds' Pitching Allows 5 Hits So Far

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Lucchesi is off and running. Sparky Anderson is off and wobbling and New York Mets are finally off on the right foot.

Left-hander Chris Short, sidelined virtually all last year by a back injury, gave Lucchesi a rousing sendoff as Philadelphia's new manager Tuesday by pitching the Phillies to a 2-0 victory over Chicago Cubs in their National League baseball opener.

Right-hander Gary Nolan kept Anderson, Cincinnati Reds' new skipper, in orbit by following southpaw Jim Merritt's three-hit opening-day triumph over Montreal Expos with a two-hit 4-0 conquest of Los Angeles Dodgers.

The world champion Mets, winless in all eight of their previous season openers, tripped Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 on Donn Clendenon's two-run pinch single in the 11th inning.

In other National League opening games, Norm Miller's three-run pinch homer carried Houston Astros past San Francisco Giants 8-5 and a three-run blast by Nate Colbert helped San Diego Padres stun Atlanta Braves 8-3.

St. Louis Cardinals play their first game today at Montreal.

Short, who pitched just 19 innings last April before undergoing surgery for the removal of a herniated disc, launched his comeback with a five-hit performance against the powerful Cubs. It was his first victory since Sept. 29, 1968, and his first opening day shutout in 11 years with the Phils.

"It's a lot to miss a year out of your career," he said. "There are only so many years you can play. I knew I was back from the way I pitched in the spring, but you still have to prove it in the hitters."

Leo Durocher, Cubs' manager, needed no further proof after watching his hitters mowed down by the 35-year-old veteran. "He shut us out, didn't he?" Leo snapped. "You can't win without runs. He looked the same to me—tough!"

Nolan, 21, checked the Dodgers on two singles, both by Willie Crawford, and permitted just four other runners to reach base, three on walks and the other on an error. Crawford's scratch single off shortstop Dave Concepcion's glove in the fourth inning was the lone Los Angeles hit until he singled to right in the ninth.

Clendenon drilled a single off reliever Joe Gibbon's first pitch with the bases filled in the 11th, giving the Mets their opening-day breakthrough.

Pittsburgh had tied the game against Met ace Tom Seaver in the sixth on a triple by Matty Alou and Roberto Clemente's single.

Miller drove Geyland Perry's two-strike delivery over the left-field fence in the seventh inning at San Francisco, knocking in three runs to snap a 3-3 tie.

Expo Ground Crew Completes Miracle

MONTREAL (CP) — The weatherman finally bowed to baseball power and promised a warm reception today as Montreal Expos launch their second season in National League baseball.

Sunshine and temperatures around 50 degrees are predicted for today's opener against St. Louis Cardinals. Warm weather in the last three days has helped ground crews put Jarry Park in almost perfect playing condition.

When the Expos take the field today sporting their unconventional red, white and blue caps, a sell-out crowd will cheer their heroes.

Expos coach Gene Mauch looked at the field in amazement Tuesday and said:

"They did it again," referring to the ground crew which last week was hunched by a winter backlash of more than 12 inches of snow.

"I've stopped being amazed," he said as he watched a light sno-hour workout by the team following a parade for the players in downtown Montreal Tuesday.

Thousands of youngsters, and office workers joined in showering the players and coaches with handfuls of rice. The players were later greeted by Mayor Jean Drapeau and a 92-piece band.

Alyea at Home In Twin Suit; Drives in Seven

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brant Alyea, up and down the Washington Senators baseball organization for the last few years, now seems to have found a home in Minnesota Twins' outfield.

Alyea blasted two homers and two singles, driving in seven runs in the Twins' 12-8 opening-day romp over Chicago White Sox Tuesday.

Elsewhere in the American League, California Angels welcomed Milwaukee back to the majors with a 12-0 shellacking of the Brewers, Baltimore Orioles slugged Cleveland Indians 8-2, Boston Red Sox tripped New York Yankees 4-3, Oakland Athletics defeated Kansas City Royals 6-4 and Washington pounded Detroit Tigers 14-4.

Until Tuesday, Alyea's claim to fame had been a home run in his first major league swing with the Senators back in 1965 and stickers on his luggage since then that read Hawaii, New York, Montgomery , and Buffalo—all ports of call for Washington baseballers.

Alyea got into 104 games with the Senators last year and was one of the few hitters who lost ground instead of gaining it under manager Ted Williams.

"I wasn't one of his pieces," said Alyea. "I batted .270 the year before he took over and .250 under him."

The Senators, shopping for pitching help this spring, dealt Alyea to Minnesota for Joe Grzenda three weeks ago. He was installed in left field and now it looks like he can unpack for keeps.

He had the biggest day of his career in the opener against Chicago, singling in his first two swings and then jolting consecutive three-run homers.

Alyea's heavy hitting made things easy for Jim Perry who coasted on a six-hitter for the shutout.

Andy Messersmith also rode some heavy California hitting to a four-hit shutout over Milwaukee, spoiling that city's return to the majors.

The Brewers attracted 37,237 for their debut but the Angels rained the show with a heavy attack that produced 14 hits, including three triples and three doubles.

Roger Repoz ripped a double and triple and Aurelio Rodriguez cracked three singles to pace the California attack.

Baltimore opened defence of its league crown with an impressive victory over the Indians as Dave McNally span a four-hitter and struck out 12.

Paul Blair and Dave Johnson each drove in two runs with eighth-inning doubles as the Orioles broke the game open.

A pair of run-scoring doubles by Rico Petrocelli had helped the Red Sox to a 4-0 edge before the Yankees knocked out Peters in a three-run sixth. But Lee shut the door after that, making Eddie Kasko's major league managerial debut a success.

Oakland used home runs by Sal Bando and Don Mincher and some light relief by Rollie Fingers to beat Kansas City.

Bando's two-run shot and a double and triple by Rick Monday as well as Mincher's homer, helped the Athletics to an early lead and then Fingers shut off a Kansas City come back in the late innings.

Del Unser drove in four runs with a single and triple, Mike Epstein and Tim May socked homers and Ed Brinkman came up with his second successive three-hit game as the Senators buried Detroit under a 17-hit barrage.

Ouch... Mr. Benson

Government efforts to stem inflation have succeeded quite well in spite of high interest rates and soaring freight costs!

Increased production and new methods in carpet and furniture making have kept our prices from increasing, but now slower sales and bulging warehouses are forcing even the largest manufacturers to reduce prices or stop production.

Help get things moving again! Curb inflation and beautify your home at the same time. Wrays Home Furnishers at 306 Front St. in Belleville have reduced everything in their store by 20% off their regular low price and some items up to 50% off.

Don't miss this opportunity to fight inflation and save.

Mighty Mites

Belleville's littlest all-star hockey team — the Wilson Concrete Tykes — go about things in a big way. The eight-year-olds have won their first three games in the Mississauga Paperweight Tournament and get a chance to advance further with another pair of games this weekend at the Dixie Arena. The opposition has yet to score on the Belleville tykes in their lone tournament outing of the year.

Littlest All-Stars Face Big Weekend Challenge

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Depending on what "MHA" you come from, they're called squirts, atoms, tadpoles, or mites.

In Belleville, the littlest hockey players are tykes, and their all-star representatives are the Wilson Concrete kids — about 1,000 pounds of scrambling hockey enthusiasm venturing forth on 16 slightly shaky sets of ankles.

The littlest all-stars are currently involved in their biggest challenge of the year — participation in the sixth annual Mississauga Paperweight Tournament, the only major meet in these parts for fledgling hockey players.

After three wins, the Wilson tykes are included among the last 32 of 82 original tourney entries. A win in a 1 p.m. Saturday match against Dixie Barnamthorpe at the Dixie Arena would leave the Belleville team in the last 16 entries, with further knockout play Sunday cutting the field to eight. Championship games will be held the week of April 20.

It's a big undertaking for a bunch of eight-year-olds. Seven of them are "veterans" — members of last year's inaugural tyke all-star team in the city. But most of the Wilson players have played their previous hockey - the cross-rink house league style.

"Actually, playing on the full ice surface helps the boys learn positional hockey," points out Larry Deighton, who, along with John Guthrie has been handling the Wilson tyke coaching chores.

Coaching eight-year-olds has its limitations. "About all we can hope to teach a boy about hockey at this age are the basic fundamentals — skating, shooting and passing."

"And the only way for a kid to learn how to handle the puck is for him to hog it. We let the boys go at it every min for himself as sort of a treat if they've put in a good practice."

Another bonus for the tykes in the past week has been the chance for carnage at a respectable hour, unlike the ungodly 8 a.m. Friday morning time slot they yawned through all winter.

In addition to their weekly practice, the tykes have averaged about three games every two weeks, compiling a respectable 19-8-1 record to date.

That's about the only statistic the coaching staff likes to advertise. Although they have a few promising hockey players-in-the-bud — centres Chris Valentine and Mark Crawford have scored 20 goals between them, and defencemen T l m Soule can body-check and slapshot with the best of the 70-pounders — coaches Deighton and Guthrie prefer to keep things on a teamwork basis. They refused to even keep scoring statistics for the first half-dozen games of the season until assistant Larry Hodge convinced them of the advantages.

"All the kids are trying hard and that's the way we want to keep it," explains Deighton. "It's all right to be competitive, but not so much that you get the kids down. As it stands, our boys don't take it exceptionally hard when we lose."

"And great co - operation from the parents has made things a lot easier."

Meanwhile the Wilson tykes and coaches Deighton a n d Guthrie know they'd best make the most of whate v e r success they enjoy in their lone annual tournament fling.

Next season the only player still eligible for tyke competition will be Joe Guthrie, who shared this year's goaltending duties with Donald Ouki.

The pair have yet to give up a goal in the Mississauga tournament, which proves that the littlest all-stars like to do things in a big way.

Hotelmen Take Series Lead

Some first-rate goaltending by Vern Fraser wasn't enough to close down Belvedere Hotel, as the Hotelmen dominated play in their 4-2 victory over Aluminum Star last night. The win gives them a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series for the Quinte Hockey League championship.

Fraser displayed some good stand-up backstopping in the Aluminum Star net, kicking out a number of fine scoring chances by Belvedere. The Stars were hampered by the absence of three first stringers, including centre Bill McGuire whose hat trick had paced their second game win in the series.

Jim Muir gave Aluminum Stars a 1-0 lead as he fired a screened shot past Dave Hicks after Ron Post had won the face-off in the Belvedere end. Hicks came through with a solid game in goal for the winners, although he saw far less work than Fraser.

Gerry Cole evened the contest as he was left uncovered in front of the Aluminum Star net and backhanded a shot past Fraser. High-flying centreman Elmer Cain made it 2-1 for Belvedere as he broke Fraser with a backhand shot from the right wing.

Cole added his second goal of the game in the final period in a scramble in front of the Stars net, converting passes from Bill Nolan and Doug Moreau. Nolan turned in a hustling performance throughout the game for Belvedere, picking up assists on both of Cole's tallies.

The margin, to one goal as he backhanded a rebound under Hicks, who had made the first stop. But Bob Ethier scored with five minutes remaining to put the game out of reach as he fired a slapshot from the faceoff circle for the winner's fourth goal.

Errol Johnston, who was the best forward for Aluminum Star came close on two occasions in the third period, as he hit the goal post after stickhandling through the defence and pulling Hicks out of the net.

McCallum Latest Victim of Curling Jinx

The twelve - year jinx that has seen no repeating performances by a winning skip in the last year's champion Al round of the Quinte Closing Mixed Bonspiel last night.

McCallum's foursome was knocked out of the championship round for the Northern Electric Trophy as they lost their first game to a rink skipped by Bill Spinelli. Other first-round winners were Bill Riley, Finley McCorquodale and Ross Booth.

In second round games, Bill Henderson and Paul Knutson kept their teams in the first round by beating Bob Alexander and Dave Blair, who move to the third event in the competition.

Charlie Cox and Bill Hipwell rebounded from opening losses to remain in the second event, while Ross Willson and Ken Pinder saw their rinks drop to the fourth round as they lost their second consecutive games.

Juniors Pad Schedule

Belleville junior baseball players will be assured of plenty of summer employment, at least on-the-field, as Belleville Minor Baseball Association president Garth Brodshaw announced the entry of the club into the old Lakeshore intermediate Baseball League.

In addition to playing a partial schedule in the rejuvenated Lakeshore loop, coach Murray "Moe" Hunter's charges will compete in the local South Hastings Baseball League.

Junior baseball will also be returning to Trenton, who along with Bowmanville, Kendall, Oshawa, Port Hope and Little Britain will be forming the opposition for Belleville. Both local teams will play home-and-home series with the other clubs in the league.

Seven Teams Certain Starters For Departmental Softball Opener

The Interdepartmental Softball League will be assured of at least seven teams when it begins its schedule May 19.

The league, which held its second meeting of the year last night, will be without an eighth entry, a midget all-star team, although the Fire Department may fill the void. League representatives voted against admitting the midget team at last night's meeting.

Certain starters will be CNR Combines, Union Corbide, CNR Turbos, Post Office, AOO (American Optical), Mead Johnson and The Intelligencer.

It was decided at the meeting that any team wishing to lodge a protest this season will have to put up a five dollar bond.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: How late in the spring can I continue to drive with studded tires on the car?

ANSWER: In Ontario, April 30th is the last date on which their use is permitted on the highways.

QUESTION: We are visiting Washington, D.C. for the first time and would like a fast route down by-passing cities. When are the cherry blossoms out and what are some of the main places of interest there?

ANSWER: Spring comes to Washington almost a month ahead of Belleville. That, and the fact that the U.S. capital is just a one-day drive away, makes Washington a favorite destination for winter-weary Canadians at the cherry blossom festival time. This year's festival is from April 8th through April 12th and features parades, cruises on the Potomac River, Army Bands and the Cherry Blossom Festival Ball at the Sheraton Park Hotel where the 1970 Cherry Blossom Festival Queen will hold court. There are also fashion shows, luncheons and concerts. But the real stars of the show are the 3,000 Japanese cherry trees which line the banks of Washington tidal basin and circle the Jefferson Memorial. At cherry blossom time, it is probably best to try to avoid Washington on weekends in favor of a mid-week visit. Traffic is bumper-to-bumper on weekends, but during the week you'll be able to enjoy it more. Washington's cherry blossom show is second only to that in Japan. The first trees were a gift from the Japanese ambassador 58 years ago.

There are so many attractions in Washington, it would be hard to list them all. They have sight-seeing buses that will give you a tour of all the places of interest. This way, you don't have to worry about parking your car, which can present problems in Washington.

Free tours of the White House are offered Tuesday a.m. to noon.

The National Gallery of Art on Constitution Avenue N.W. is one of the world's finest museums and contains a magnificent collection of art, including masterpieces from all over the world.

At the Air and Space Building you will find on display many firsts in aviation.

The National Historical Wax Museum displays more then 200 figures of people prominent in American history.

The Natural Zoological Park covers a 165-acre tract of land affording a natural background for all kinds of animals and birds.

Explorers' Hall of the National Geographic Society exhibits depicting famous Geographic explorations.

The Washington Monument has an elevator which you can take to the 500 foot level, giving a splendid view of the city.

Mount Vernon, the home and burial place of George Washington, is open to the public daily from 9 to 5.

Then, of course, two "musts" are the Lincoln Memorial and the Thomas Jefferson Memorial.

A fast route down is to follow Highway 401 to Route 9 from the Ivy Lea Bridge to Harrisburg, Pa., take 83 to Baltimore and bypass the city on 695 to the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, which will take you into Washington. It is advisable to make accommodation reservations in advance. Mileage by this route is 600 miles.

Carswell May Lose Court Seat

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Independent counts indicate that Judge G. Harrold Carswell is within one or two votes of being denied a seat on the U.S. Supreme Court when the Senate votes today on his confirmation.

But few congressional observers were willing to predict the outcome of the vote. Three Republican senators who have not announced their intentions were believed to hold the key to whether the 59-year-old U.S. Appeals Court judge from Tallahassee, Fla., joins the high tribunal or whether President Nixon—who nominated him—will again be thwarted.

In November, the Senate refused to confirm the president's nomination of Judge Clement Haynsworth of South Carolina by a vote of 55 to 54.

Senate Democrats opposing Carswell—who is accused of being both racist and mediocre—said Tuesday night they were confident they could obtain at least a 48-to-48 tie, [illegible] in that case the tie would be broken by the Senate president pro tem, Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, in favor of Carswell.

Four senators are expected to miss the vote. Two of them are ill.

The bipartisan opposition was within one or two votes of blocking the nomination, independent tallies indicated, and could succeed if the undecided senators voted against Carswell.

THE PICK OF Punch

Constable Charges Police Corruption On Brantford Force

TORONTO (CP) — A Brantford police constable Tuesday accused the Brantford police department of corruption and called for a public inquiry into his charges.

Constable Lester Lolil, picketing the offices of the Ontario Police Commission and the legislature, said a private investigation of the Brantford department last year by the commission was "a whitewash."

He charged that:

—One policeman had committed 27 offences of breaking and entering and had been allowed to resign from the force because two other policemen were implicated.

—Another had pocketed $3,300 in fraudulent cheques and had been charged under the Ontario Police Act instead of in criminal court.

—Another had attempted to extort $300 from a woman with whom he was having an affair, on the threat he would tell her husband. Both husband and wife had complained to police authorities.

—Men on a night shift had stolen boxes of vegetables from a truck.

—One policeman had told a motorist he would forget about a traffic charge if the motorist forgot a $20 account which he, the policeman, owed.

—Last policeman had been seen robbing the city's parking meters.

Constable Lolil said he had brought about the original commission investigation of the department by his complaints, but that he had not publicly detailed all the charges before.

Later Tuesday, Percy Millgan, chairman of the commission, said if Constable Lolil can reasonably substantiate his allegations, the commission will consider holding a public inquiry.

Council Won't Pay Legal Fees

BRANTFORD (CP) — City council has turned down a request that it pay the $2,615 legal fees incurred by two police constables acquitted in January of charges of communicating police matters to the press without authority.

Constables Ron Stockdale and Lester Lolil were suspended last September in connection with statements about an investigation by the Ontario Police Commission into the operation of the Brantford police force.

Liberals and NDP Fight for Rail Lines

REGINA (CP) — The Liberal government and NDP opposition of the Saskatchewan legislature combined forces Tuesday in a fight against increased rail freight rates, abandonment of rail lines and reduction of rail services.

The legislature endorsed a New Democratic Party resolution calling for more public meetings on the CNR's master agency plan.

John Kowalchuk (NDP—Melville) said the plan, which provides for centralization of rail services now provided in smaller communities, could mean the end of many small centres.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Recently I reprinted the complaints of a husband who was impatient with wives who do nothing but "read and play cards." Here is a reply from a reader of the Washington Evening Star:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: This will answer the unhappy husband. Many other husbands do not understand why women play cards, loaf around, and drink during the day.

It would be a real service if someone could explain what happens to a person of either sex who tries to handle unlimited loneliness on a regular 40- to 50-hour week schedule. A woman's duties at home do have challenge and importance.

Unfortunately, they usually require more of her hands than of her brain. Her busy hands do only a little to ease the sense of solitude she faces day in and day out when the door closes in the morning behind her husband and children.

A job brings to her husband's life people. It gives him — if nothing else — other human beings he can react to, think about, like or dislike, joke or quarrel with.

Housework is solitary. Even a small baby requires only those three hours daily of close interaction with his mother — and, in this period, he can't contribute much in the way of conversation.

The rest of her day is given to chores which leave her mind free to absorb the full impact of her solitude. In time, she may learn to populate her world through the bridge table route, the coffee party, the telephone.

If these don't, attract her she may stay alone until fear comes to the conscious level and she feels the little creeping sensations of disorientation that go along with too much isolation. She begins to hear the stairs creak and the walls close in. When her hands get clammy and her stomach turns over, the lucky woman may find on the TV set a group of people in whose lives she can immerse herself.

If she isn't lucky, she may grow a little lifeless, exchanging the characteristics of a woman for those of a "thing" — unable to do housework or to care for more than a "hamburger, until to eat" for dinner.

This is the reason for her silly friends, her silly pastimes, her apathy about her home (and eventually her husband and children). It is also frequently the reason for her love affairs, her alcoholism, and her suicide.

To avoid this, I work — and except for brief periods when my children were very small, I always have. My job is satisfying because it brings people into my world.

Husbands should not feel responsible for the dilemma their wives are facing — husbands have not created this situation. There is very little they can do to alleviate it. I think, however, they can spare themselves much unhappiness by coming to understand why the average suburban matron functions as she does. She is lonely, believe me. (Please sign me — A Mother in her 30s)

Housework Solitary And Can Be Boring

Wishart Says Tycoon Not Given Secret Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Millionaire George Clinton Jones Duke, 66, of Oakville, Ont., was not given a secret trial nor any special treatment when he was charged last December with threatening a woman, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart told the legislature Tuesday.

In a five-page statement which he read to the House, Mr. Wishart said a detailed review of the case has convinced him that "these allegations and innuendoes are without foundation."

Mr. Duke, president of Duke Lawn Equipment Ltd. of Oakville, was convicted in the family division of the provincial court on a charge of threatening Elizabeth Citron with a .38-calibre revolver. He was ordered to post a $2,000 peace bond and to keep away from Mrs. Citron, who had laid a private complaint against him Oct. 23, 1968.

Evidence was that Mr. Duke went to the Citron home looking for his wife, a close friend of Mrs. Citron.

Mr. Wishart said the trial was held in family court at the request of Mrs. Citron who was concerned for "her own reputation and for her own family relationship." He said family court hearings are open to the public, although publishing of the proceedings may be prohibited by the judge.

Massive Crackdown Underway

Several Are Questioned About Diplomat's Murder

GUATEMALA CITY (Reuters) — Several persons were under interrogation today as part of a massive crackdown by Guatemalan troops and police searching for the killers of West German Ambassador Karl von Spreti.

They are being questioned now but this is all we can say," government spokesman Col. Miguel Angel Ponce said after announcing the arrests.

But he would not say how many were being held nor was he able to say if they were connected with the murder of von Spreti Sunday night, five days after he was kidnapped by guerrillas.

The kidnappers demanded $760,000 and the freedom of 25 political prisoners for his release but the Guatemalan government refused.

Ponce said it was possible the count might have been shot—he was killed by a single bullet fired into his left temple—because Guatemalan troops were closing in on the rebels' hideout.

"I cannot deny this, it is a possibility," the colonel said in answer to a question Tuesday night.

The West German embassy made a public appeal to the count's kidnappers to return a briefcase filled with personal documents he had with him when he was snatched from his car.

The embassy said the briefcase contained papers and documents of "an exclusively personal nature which are of great importance in the family."

Throughout the day the count's wife, Countess Helene von Spreti, sat before her husband's coffin in a funeral parlor here as hundreds of Guatemalans trooped by in homage.

The government, meanwhile, said the count will be posthumously awarded the Order of the Quetzal, one of the country's highest honors.

Arabs Maintain They Have Received 'Very Raw Deal' in News

OTTAWA (CP) — The Arab side of the Middle East story has received "a very raw deal" from newspapers and broadcasters in Canada, says the Canadian Arab Federation.

News slanted in favor of Israel and against the Arabs is "criminal, by negligence or by wilful intention," because it promotes moral and material support for one side in the conflict and thus encourages Israel "to cause so much suffering and destruction," the federation said in a submission to the special Senate committee on mass media.

The federation said it represents about 80,000 Canadians of Arab origin and other Canadians interested in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

It cited examples of alleged bias in the CBC, The Telegram and The Star of Toronto, La Presse, The Gazette and The Star of Montreal, and a program on CHCH-TV, Hamilton.

The Toronto Globe and Mail has presented "a more or less balanced point of view." The London Free Press has "remarkably improved" its foreign news coverage.

Historical Western prejudice against Arabs dates from the Crusades of the Middle Ages, the federation said, and it presented examples of "racism pure and simple" it said are contained in portrayals of Arabs as shifty fanatics.

It said The Max Ferguson Show on CBC radio often includes derisive statements about Arabs and Arab states.

Some newspaper reporters, columnists and editorial writers are committed to the Zionist cause, it contended.

The Toronto Telegram is "notorious," publisher John Bassett being a staunch supporter of Israel and very hostile to the Arabs. Rabbi Reuben Slonim, The Telegram's associate editor, follows the Israeli line "to a ridiculous extent" and columnist Douglas Fisher is "consistently pro-Israel," the federation said.

"The Toronto Star does not have its resident rabbi, but Rabbi Rosenberg writes a weekly column."

"Peter Newman, editor of The Star, upon his recent return from Israel, did not find in the whole grave situation in the Middle East anything worth reporting except admiring Dayan's (Defence Minister Moshe Dayan) eye patch and his resemblance to (Prime Minister) Trudeau."

La Presse has been conducting "a hate-the-Arabs campaign." Headlines in the French-language daily last October and November had referred to the Arab guerrilla movement as fanaticism, compared Palestine Arab leader Yasser Arafat to Benito Mussolini and applied a picture of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic with the line: "The escalation of unreasonableness."

Although The Globe and Mail attempts to provide a balanced picture of the Middle East, its pro-Israel articles outnumber its pro-Arab articles."

The CBC also is guilty of bias, the federation said. A recent program in the Wojeck series "parroted a typical Zionist propaganda line" by picturing Palestine before Israel as a desert country empty but for a few Bedouin.

Last December, CHCH-TV had carried several Pierre Berton shows that featured interviews with Israelis about Middle East peace prospects, but no Arabs were interviewed.

The media often depend for what is supposed to be objective reporting about the Middle East on Israeli citizens, the federation said. CBC national news often carries reports by Abraham Avihai, Andre Schemmans and Victor Cygielman from Jerusalem which "are not exactly the example of objectivity."

Canadian media depend mainly for foreign coverage on United States agencies, which meet American requirements of consistency with U.S. foreign policy and "propagation of the Israeli point of views as a result of strong Jewish pressure in the U.S."

The London Free Press sent its editor last year to visit Eastern Europe, North Africa and the Middle East and its foreign news coverage was remarkably improved in quality and quality."

In Quebec, French-language newspapers were more objective than English-language papers.

Prince of Miss Jean Brodie. She had been nominated in 1965 for a supporting role in Othello.

Miss Smith's rivals were Geneviève Bujold of Montreal, Jane Fonda, Lisa Minnelli and Jean Simmons.

Miss Bujold, 26, a product of the French-speaking theatre in Montreal, was nominated for her co-starring role with Richard Burton in Anne of the Thousand Days.

She won the best actress award in the Golden Globe presentation of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association for her role in the film, a tale of the tempestuous time of King Henry VIII.

The film, made in England, has been named best motion picture by the association.

Miss Bujold, daughter of a Montreal bus driver, became internationally known through a role in Alain Resnais' award-winning French film La Guerre est Finis (The War is Over).

Miss Fonda was nominated for They Shoot Horses, Don't They? and Miss Minnelli for The Sterile Cuckoo and Miss Simmons for The Happy Ending.

Gig Young bounded on stage as if on springs to accept the best supporting actor award for his performance as the bravery master of ceremonies at a dance marathon in They Shoot Horses, Don't They?

Goldie Hawn, the blonde siggler of television's Laugh In, was named best supporting actress. She played Walter Matthau's dizzy girl friend in Cactus Flower.

Most honored film was Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid which captured four Oscars in all—best story, best original score, cinematography and best song, Raindrop Keep Fallin' on my Head. The score and song were written by composer Burt Bacharach.

The big budget musical Hello, Dolly! took three Oscars—best score for a musical, best achievement in sound, and best direction.

The Algerian-made 'Z' took prizes for film editing and as best foreign-language film.

It was also a night for memorable moments:

—Elizabeth Taylor, in a blue gown and wearing husband Richard Burton's gift—$1,000,000 diamond in a necklace. She presented the best picture award.

—A salvo of applause and a 20-second standing ovation for Cary Grant, voted a special Oscar by the academy's governors for many memorable performances.

—Wayne telling the audience: "I'm John Wayne. I work with my clothes on. I have to. Horses are rough on your legs —and your elsewhere."

—Comedian Bob Hope, one of 11 stars who presented the awards, said as a joke that the Oscars are "dedicated to the proposition that jealousy and envy shall not perish from the earth."

Commenting on current screen nudity, he said: "It's such a novelty to see actors and actresses with their clothes on.

"They're putting things on the screen that the French wouldn't allow on past cards."

Hope presented the Jean Hersholt Humanitarian Award to George Jessel for entertaining troops.

Memorable Night

John Wayne's Oscar Award Caps 30 Years of Stardom

HOLLYWOOD (CP) — After bashing and brawling his way through more than 100 Hollywood movies in 30 years of stardom, tough old John Wayne finally made it. He got an Oscar.

Wayne, 62, who started his film career as a prop man, won the best actor Academy Award Tuesday night for his portrayal as the rough, hard-drinking marshal Rooster Cogburn in True Grit, a sport of his usual westerns.

As he accepted the award for portraying the fat, one-eyed lawman, Wayne said: "If I'd have known I'd have put that patch over my eye 35 years ago."

Wayne once before had been nominated for an Oscar—The Sands of Iwo Jima in 1949—but failed to win it.

Motion picture academy voters awarded the other seven honors to a youth-oriented, seamy tale of friendship between a sick Manhattan bum and a Texas male prostitute, Midnight Cowboy, starring Dustin Hoffman and Jon Voight, but the ruling for best actor awards.

The film also won Britain's John Schlesinger the award for best director and captured the best screenplay Oscar.

Maggie Smith, also from British, fought off strong competition to win the best actress award for her role as an eccentric Scottish schoolmarm in The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie.

Jewison Choice as Director Fits in with His Background

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Norman Jewison was assigned to produce and direct Fiddler on the Roof, it seemed like strange casting. He had made such films as The Cincinnati Kid and In The Heat of the Night, but never a musical.

"What people forget is that I directed mostly musicals in television," he explains. "I worked in musicals almost exclusively in Canada. In the U.S., I directed The Hit Parade, the first Andy Williams Show, The Big Party with Goodman Ace, two Harry Belafonte specials, The Fabulous 50s and specials with Danny Kaye and Judy Garland.

"It is strange that I've never directed a movie musical. But I never found one that excited me. Until now."

Jewison, a Toronto native, worked his way through the University of Toronto by driving a cab and waiting on tables. After working as an actor and scriptwriter in London, he returned to Canada and made a name for himself in television production with the CBC.

The youthful-looking director is obviously excited about Fiddler. His office at Goldyn studio is cluttered with such things as research on Jewish life in tsarist Russia and sketches of Ukrainian villages. He has been interviewing actors here, in New York and London for cast members to join Topol, the Israeli star who will play Tevye.

Next month Jewison will embark for Europe, where he will spend a year in preparing, filming and editing Fiddler. Exterior shooting will begin in Yugoslavia Aug. 1.

He expects to shoot through December in Yugoslavia, then return to London for nine weeks of interiors. The budget of the total cost is $9,000,000, including rights to the play.

Fiddler on the Roof appears to be the only musical scheduled for production this year. Other companies being wary because of the flops of Dr. Doolittle, Sweet Charity, Star! and others.

Jewison believes that Fiddler can beat the musical jinx.

Sydney J. Harris Says

New York Bar Backs Poor

This year, the Bar Association of New York marks its 100th year of existence — for the first 50 of which it remained pretty much a gentleman's club preserving its own prerogatives more than protecting the public's rights. Like most bar associations everywhere in the U.S.

During the last decade, however, it has moved steadily away from its traditional role as a professional trade union defending the Establishment, into the arena of social conflict and community affairs. It is even taking a belated look at the word "justice," so often invoked in speeches and so little observed in practice.

A committee of the New York bar recently recommended a long overdue change in the state law that is called "holder in due course." This is a device by which the poor, the ignorant, and the gullible are taken to the cleaners by greedy merchants and uncaring finance companies.

Under this doctrine, which holds in most states, a buyer of shoddy or defective merchandise is not permitted to stop payments on a finance or credit card company, but must keep on paying for the faulty goods even if it is returned. He can sue the seller for "breach of warranty," but this is so expensive and troublesome that nobody will bother to.

Of course, reputable department stores and other concerns of respectable standing will make good on such purchases. But many companies that cater to the poor turn over their installment contracts to a finance company that becomes a "holder in due course" of the contract. This company can collect the money under any circumstance, and is not responsible for the condition of the merchandise.

If you buy a TV set on an installment contract, and the set is defective, you are wholly dependent upon the store's good will to exchange it or return your money. If the store has sold your "paper" to a finance company, the company has a legal right to demand full payment, even if the set blows up a week after you bought it. You could sue the store, or perhaps the maker, but this might cost you as much as the set itself.

"Holder in due course" is a brutal and pernicious doctrine, which operates unfairly in the benefit of the merchant and finance company, and victimizes precisely that segment of society which can least afford it. It puts the burden of proof, and the cost of litigation, on the poorest consumer, who has neither the resources nor the knowledge to press his claim or seek redress in the over - crowded courts.

Bar associations elsewhere should follow the lead of the New York bar in those states where "holder in due course" is in effect. Only when the legal profession demonstrates its genuine devotion to justice will the public regain its dwindling respect for the law.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

Thursday, April 9

Your birthday today: The year ahead leads you into some service beyond what is usually expected of you. Much of what you must do depends on your faith and trust in yourself and your relationships. For some the experience will have mystical qualities, for others theatrical.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): News and helpful figures come from strange places and peculiar people. Original ideas may lead you into being different or out of line with what is expected of you. Just be sure of your facts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Steady work and some new ideas pay off better than speculation today. It may be somewhat difficult to distinguish which of several paths to take.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Go full speed and speech ahead today; bring your most persuasive powers to bear.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): If some of your work can be done alone, out of public view, focus on that part of it. Confidential deals with insulations work out readily and more permanently now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): In this relatively inactive day some mates and intriguing friendships may develop. Old problems yield to fresh ideas.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The news is generally advantageous to your interests today. Put in a steady effort and include your fresh views; much can be achieved.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Self-improvement studies, consultations with experts and technical advisers are all under good aspects today. Take care of correspondence and the needs of people located at considerable distances.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Seek out obscure information. Look and listen to learn who is really pulling the strings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Teamwork is easier. Put in a reasonable effort; leave something for the others to decide or be amenable to compromise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your special skills and knowledge show readily today. Press forward, make a good impression. Novel methods or new tools help to produce very good results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Use your most conciliatory manners since what seems to you simple candor may rub others the wrong way. The logical thing is not always the human thing to do.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are a lot freer from pressures than you might assume. Try your limits, use your personal world as a bit larger and more rewarding.

Canada Will Impose Controls in Arctic

Sovereignty Not Involved

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has taken a bold though carefully calculated step to assert its control over Arctic waters.

Legislation introduced in the Commons Wednesday aims at preventing, pollution not only in the Arctic archipelago but 100 miles to seaward.

Its purpose is to affirm Canadian jurisdiction in a vast area of land and water, ice and snow, without needlessly antagonizing foreign governments—particularly the U.S.

Many observers have grave doubts as to whether the U.S. will acquiesce in the new measures. Some predict a serious confrontation between the two countries, others a continuation of the muffled dispute over Arctic sovereignty that has been under way for a year and more.

Asked whether the government expects opposition from Washington over the action taken Wednesday, an official replied simply: "We have had discussions."

The U.S. has a dislike for unilateral declarations of law in what it regards as disputable areas. It also has an historic objection to anything which appears to infringe on freedom of the seas.

Some observers here were keeping a long-range eye focused on the U.S. super-tanker Manhattan, now on its second voyage into the Canadian Arctic to test ice conditions there. It's been suggested that the Manhattan could conceivably turn around and head back to a U.S. port in view of the Canadian initiative.

If this happened—it presumably would be at the instigation of the U.S. government. If the vessel proceeds into the Arctic, it may be a sign that Washington will continue trying to avoid a direct clash with Canada on the sovereignty issue.

Officials here insist that only one of the two bills given first reading Wednesday involves directly an assertion of Canadian sovereignty, though Canada continues to maintain its claim to sovereignty over the entire Arctic region.

The bill in question is an amendment to the Territorial Sea and Fishing Zones Act of 1964, and extends Canadian territorial waters to 12 miles from the nearest coast. Until now, Canada has claimed a three-mile territorial sea, with an additional nine miles reserved for fishing purposes to Canadians.

The U.S. follows the same three-plus-nine principle. Fifty-seven other countries, however, claim a territorial sea of 12 miles or more.

One important effect of the changes introduced Wednesday would be formally to proclaim Canadian control over Barrow Strait, a key channel on the eastern side of the Northwest Passage.

Canada would grant foreign vessels innocent passage through the strait—as through all its territorial sea—but would reserve the right of inspection to see that any given voyage is, in fact, innocent.

This means, in the context of the government's current main preoccupation, the right to see that the vessel concerned is adequately equipped with pollution-safety devices.

"If they go through the passage they go through subject to Canadian authority," said a government spokesman.

The U.S. holds that the Northwest Passage is an international waterway, with status of different countries having the right of free and unfettered transit through it.

The second bill placed before Parliament is designed to prevent pollution of the Arctic waters as a whole. Its application will be from the 60th parallel of north latitude—the border between the four western provinces and the Yukon-Northwest Territories—all the way to the top of the Canadian archipelago.

Except in the narrow straits between Canada and Greenland, Arctic regs will also extend 100 miles out to sea.

Canada Can't Delay Controlling Companies

TORONTO (CP) — Canada should not wait for other nations to find ways of regulating the operations of multi-national corporations, the cabinet member considering foreign control of Canada's economy said Wednesday.

Herbert Gray, minister without portfolio, said his recommendations in this field now are being reviewed by the cabinet. He expected a new federal policy to be announced "without undue delay."

Speaking to a group of Osgoode Hall law students, he said the issues of main concern are encouragement of Canadian investment in national companies, control of the impact foreign corporations and their subsidiaries have on the Canadian government, and preventing the laws of other countries from affecting the behavior of Canadian companies.

Will Not Bow To World Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Without claiming its sovereignty over Arctic waters, the Canadian government moved Wednesday to impose pollution controls on both the open and frozen waters adjacent to the mainland and islands of the Arctic islands.

Canada also served notice, Minister Trudeau said the Arctic bill is to be regarded only as an anti-pollution measure.

It could be compared with the powers now exercised by Canada and the United States over aircraft approaching their coast lines.

"These controls now go out hundreds of miles over the Atlantic but no one is saying they are an assertion of sovereignty," Mr. Trudeau said.

The prime minister also said he didn't expect the opposing parties to stop criticizing the government for 'not making an open declaration of Canadian sovereignty.

"If we did that, then they would damn us if we were taken to the international court and lost a case," he said.

Mr. Stanfield said that the prime minister "can't seem to get it through his head that this is something that the Canadian people want settled."

Canada must make an outright declaration of Canadian sovereignty, the Conservative leader declared.

Mr. Lewis roundly denounced the government for not being ready to defend the legislation in the international court.

Mail Truck Drivers Plan March

MONTREAL (CP) — Former mail truck drivers and supporters from the Montreal area unions were scheduled to leave, on buses at noon to stage their third protest march in Ottawa.

Despite six consecutive days of violence in the continuing dispute between the unemployed drivers and the government, rented trucks have cut out the backlog of parcels to 40,000.

First class mail was reported to be between 24 and 48 hours behind schedule.

One driver was slightly injured Wednesday when six trucks had their windows broken or their tires slashed.

Two of the damaged trucks were owned by a company renting vehicles to the post office but were not being used for mail delivery.

Apollo 'Sub' Being Tested

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Backup astronaut John L. Swigert Jr. begins a crash training program today to determine whether he can replace a measles-threatened member of the Apollo 13 crew in time to take off for the moon Saturday.

Swigert is to climb aboard a spaceship simulator with James A. Lovell Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr. to practice such critical maneuvers as rendezvous and docking in lunar orbit and short situations on the launch pad and near the moon.

The big question is whether Swigert, who has never flown in space, can work smoothly with the other two in maneuvers that require close and rapid coordination.

Lovell, Haise and Thomas K. Mattingly II have practised together as a team more than two years, first as backup pilots for Apollo 11, man's first moon-landing mission, and then as the prime crew for Apollo 13. Observers say they are a superbly co-ordinated team.

Mattingly hasn't been dropped from the mission but all indications are that he will be victim of his exposure and lack of immunity to German measles.

Lockout Notice Is Served

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for unions in the British Columbia construction industry voiced surprise Wednesday at the announcement by the Construction Labor Relations Association that it is serving a 72-hour lockout notice on seven unions representing 8,000 members. The CLRA cites "exorbitant" wage demands for its action.

But CLRA officials declined to say if the CLRA actually plans to lock out workers after the notice expires Saturday.

Don O'Reilly, president of the B.C. and Yukon Territory Building Construction Trades Council, said it was his understanding that the seven trade unions involved had been bargaining in good faith with the CLRA.

Doug Fraser, secretary of the building trades council, Vancouver-New Westminster and district, said the action sounds the death knell for the recently-formed CLRA.

"At the sign of the first problem, which isn't really too serious, they take such drastic action," he said.

COST HUGE

A lockout would stall $200,000,000 worth of construction in the province.

C. J. Donaghan, CLRA president, said the CLRA represents about 600 contractors, 70 per cent of those in B.C., and the membership voted unanimously to serve lockout notice.

Morley Callaghan

Suddenly Callaghan In Clover

TORONTO (CP) — Novelist Morley Callaghan has achieved the ironic distinction of being best known for being neglected.

Canadians are notorious for not heeding their own prophets but Callaghan has had more than his share of this cold comfort.

Lately, however, there have been signs that his countrymen are ready to award him belated signs of their esteem.

Last month, the Canadian Council gave Callaghan the $15,000 Molson prize. Wednesday in Ottawa, he was awarded the Royal Bank of Canada's $50,000 prize given annually to an outstanding citizen.

Not bad, considering he hasn't published a new work since his memoir, That Summer in Paris, in 1963.

His writing days are far from over. At 67, he is working on two more novels to add to a considerable life work of 12 published novels, two plays and innumerable short stories.

Two West Indians Are Fined $1,000

MONTREAL (CP) — Two young West Indians were each fined $1,000 Wednesday after pleading guilty to charges of mischief arising from their participation in a computer centre sit-in at Sir George Williams University last year that ended with damages of nearly $2,000,000.

Miss Huntley Marshall, 22, of Barbados, and Douglas Mosely, of Jamaica, were the first of 15 students who opted for trial before a judge on charges stemming from the Feb. 11, 1969 incident.

$60 Million Tag on This White Paper

Joey Envisions Labrador Playground

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The provincial government has offered to accept a national park in western Newfoundland if Ottawa agrees to provide up to $60,000,000 during the next decade to turn the northwest coast and part of southern Labrador into a giant playground and historic site.

The proposal was outlined in a white paper prepared by Resources Minister W. R. Callahan and tabled in the legislature Tuesday.

Critics said the white paper was an attempt by Premier Joseph Smallwood to blackmail the federal government.

Mr. Callahan said in an interview Wednesday initial reaction from federal ministers was "sympathetic."

He said enlargement of the department of regional economic expansion (Dree) program to pay for the development would be a "commensurate benefit" for surrendering forever provincial mineral and timber rights in the 600-square-mile park area 40 miles north of Corner Brook.

In 1966 the federal government formally proposed a national park be established at Bonne Bay to enclose between 400 and 600 square miles.

Dr. W. O. Pruitt, then associate professor of biology at Memorial University in St. John's, surveyed the area for the Canadian Wildlife Service in 1967 and recommended an area of 1,500 square miles.

Dr. Pruitt said the larger enclosure would ensure protection for all time of Arctic Hare and Pine Marten, believed by some conservationists to be in danger of extinction. It also included a caribou range.

Expanding on the white paper, Mr. Callahan said a wilderness park—as proposed by Ottawa—was not sufficient.

The province believed the Norse archeological discoveries at L'Anse aux Meadows, near St. Anthony, and three ancient Indian and Eskimo sites should be part of the over-all development.

The cost of establishing tourist accommodation beyond the park's northern limits was beyond the means of private enterprise in the area, so the federal government should provide the money, Mr. Callahan said.

The white paper includes a similar argument in suggesting that Ottawa pay for resettlement of people living within the park boundaries.

Province Delays Approval of Capital Works Budget

By ROY PEACOCK
(Staff Reporter)

The provincial government's austerity program with department officials wanting a clear look at proposed capital spending, is delaying Ontario Municipal Board approval of the city's five-year capital works budget.

The delay at present is the Hastings County Board of Education capital works budget which has been sent back to the board for clarification.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds met Monday with OMB chairman J. A. Kennedy with respect to the city's five-year program of capital spending.

"I had a good reception from the board chairman. He considered the city's requests reasonable, but no decision will be given until Mr. Kennedy sees the revised capital budget of the county board," said Mr. Reynolds.

The city manager expected the decision from the OMB would be received within a week.

The city's capital works budget, approved by city council some weeks ago, calls for spending of just over $2,000,000 this year and $12,022,000 during the next five years.

But the Municipal Board chairman declined to give approval on the city budget until he had seen the revised county school board estimate.

County director of education, Mr. Eric Runacres said the board's capital works budget had been before the County Municipal Board since last November but had not been sent back for enlargement and clarification of some items.

Money is tighter this year and the board wants to take a look at the whole county," suggested Mr. Runacres.

He said the revised county school board capital works budget would be in the mail before the end of the week.

The big item in the school board's capital budget is construction of the proposed new secondary school complex at Bayside.

Other construction projects in the five-year plan include the construction of an addition at Sir John A. Macdonald elementary school in west Belleville to allow use of the present Bayview school on Dundas Street as a school for retarded children and possible additions to elementary schools at Stirling and Tweed.

Improvements to the Frankford elementary school and to schools in Trenton are required.

In addition, population growth in Belleville will soon require schools at the Bell Road and Tracey Street school sites and an addition to the Sir Mackenzie Bowell school in West Belleville.

L. A. Kells, superintendent of administrative services said the elementary school projects would be required within the next two or three years.

Prisoner Recaptured Quickly

One of the fastest captures in the history of police work was made at the Canadian National Railway Station in Belleville yesterday.

George Pallister, 47, was being escorted from the Barton Street jail in Hamilton to serve a term of life imprisonment in Kingston Penitentiary. He made good his escape from the train at 11:30 a.m. during the confusion of embarking passengers.

The guard escorting Pallister gave immediate chase, calling to CN railway police for assistance.

Lieutenant Mike Parry from Canadian Forces Base Trenton and Constable Jack Wyatt of the Belleville Detachment of ON Police made good the capture less than 200 yards from the station behind Lafalm's garage on Bleecker Avenue.

The time of the capture was given as 11:32 a.m.

Fred Howard, a spokesman for the CN police commented: "It sure must be about the fastest recapture in history."

A Belleville city police cruiser which was in the immediate vicinity at the time of the break, arrived on the scene to give assistance, but Pallister had already been returned to custody on the train, which was only held up five minutes.

Calling the Tune

Doing their own thing now is the prerogative of the senior citizens as well as the younger generation. As a new drop-in centre opened yesterday at Bridge Street United Church, Mrs. J. W. Sherlock marked event with music, assisted by Mrs. T. L. Cavanagh.

Seniors Run Own Centre

Teenagers in the community are not the only group with a drop - in centre of their own.

At the other end of the age scale senior citizens now have their own social centre every second and fourth Wednesday of the month in the basement of Bridge St. United Church.

Called the Golden Age Club, it came decided upon yesterday by a vote of the members, it offers the senior segment of the community a place to "do their thing" for two hours in the afternoon, twice a month.

The project is sponsored by the health committee of the volunteer bureau of the United Community Services under the directorship of Mrs. E. Mordess.

Bridge St. Church is considered the ideal site for the premises as often as the members desire, and they decided on the twice - monthly visits.

Yesterday, members played shuffleboard, checkers and bridge at their drop - in centre. One member, Mrs. J. W. Sherlock, gave them some piano technique and climaxed the afternoon's activities with the accompaniment for a sing-along.

The senior citizens' drop - in centre was created by UCS to meet an unfilled need the agency discovered in the community. Further services to older residents are to the planning stage, following a study now under way to ascertain the number of elderly shut - ins in the city.

Bothered by Flies?—Raise Own Spiders

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

The joy of spring, for all its charms, also presents some problems.

Like flies, for instance.

Right now, some household-ers in the Belleville area may be bothered with the buzzing insects.

However, spring presents certain problems. Hordes of cluster flies are awakening after a winter's hibernation and are attempting to reach the outdoors.

Pollenia rufiss, commonly known as the cluster or honey bee fly, is probably the commonest household — Musca domestica — is not harmful to humans, other than being a pest. This fly, which is smaller and more awkward than the housefly, is an earthworm parasite and will not seek human sustenance.

Dr. Gordon Bucher, research scientist with the Federal Department of Agriculture's Research Institute, in Belleville, makes it clear that contrary to rumors, the centre "has never experimented with the cluster flies to my knowledge and even if we had, we don't release any insects, which are kept in careful confinement."

As to the increased number of these flies this year, Dr. Bucher offered a possible explanation:

"With last year's late spring and the same outlook for this year, it's just possible that we are experiencing a good year for earthworms, and therefore, a good year for earthworm parasites. With an increase in the parasites, we could have an increase in the spiders that feed on them: it's quite a circle of life."

Murray Maw, also an Institute research scientist explained that the older a home, the more likelihood that these pests would invade attics, the crawl-spaces, and ventilators. He advised that anyone greatly bothered by them should make a careful inspection of their homes — even new ones — brick, window and door casings and overhanging eaves.

"You can even find them in the newest of homes," he says. "They head for the sunlight, so you are most likely to find them at your windows. They are only trying to get out into the fresh air."

The solution?

Dr. Bucher advises that control of the insects using good flypaper or strips is effective; good, non-banned insect sprays are useful.

"Even a good old swatting will get rid of them."

"If you are really desperate," Dr. Bucher adds dryly, "you could raise your own spiders to combat them."

And later is the season?

Well, the common housefly won't be around until late summer or fall. Then there's the bee family, which should also be thriving on the late winter season and wet spring.

School Issue Draws 350 Residents to Ameliasburg Meeting

By ELMER BONTER

AMELIASBURG — The dream of a 16-classroom complex for the Kente school area is still just that.

Even after three hours of verbal confrontation between those for and against the idea it was obvious last night there was no change of mind on either side.

It was evident, however, a great deal more discussion will transpire before any such project is undertaken.

Interest in the proposal encouraged 350 taxpayers to turn out at the auditorium of Kente school to hear John McNeil, director of education for Prince Edward County Board of Education, outline the need for expanded facilities and present supporting facts and figures.

The director called his presentation as "a plan to attempt to provide equal education for all the children in the county."

Opposition to the proposal was mainly critical of the economics of the undertaking and resulted in repayment of the capital expenditure through property taxes.

The board of education is basing calculations for the cost of the project, including architects' fees, on a $3,000,000 figure, according to the education director.

Redneraville Road resident William Trithart, who disclosed he was a member of the committee for quality education with fair taxation, suggested the township's 325 students attending secondary schools in Hastings County be asked for their say in the matter. He questioned whether Ameliasburg students would approve breaking off ties with friendships of long-standing in this changeover.

Mr. Trithart also expressed concern for the future of Robbie's Lake if the school complex started using 18,000 gallons of water a day.

"The demand may cause the destruction of the one - third square - mile fresh water supply and I don't believe the OWRC will approve putting effluent in that proportion into the ground water," he said.

Pollution of the lake would result before many years, and then there will be trouble if run off from the complex septic system spreads to the underground source of supply for the lake," he added.

Prince Edward board chairman Edward Butler noted that, unless the department of education rules otherwise, Ameliasburg must be considered part of the county educational system, if the Kente project is approved.

"There'll be around a long time after I'm gone," said Mr. Butler.

Parks employees are now working at Exhibition Park, installing new roadway guard posts and painting the iron fence.

The park is still closed but the roadway entrance to Zwicki's Island has been graded and potholing is also underway there.

Victoria Park has already been cleaned up, a few picnic tables have gone out and the new trash cans are in place.

complex or one similar to it is not accomplished in two years Hastings county will have to embark on another building campaign to cope with Ameliasburg requirements along with its own.

Chairman Nathan secured an enquiry on the board's location was to provide no frills. Only expenditures for necessities would be authorized by the department in Toronto.

Former Ameliasburg reeve George Cunningham voiced strong disagreement to director McNeil's forecast on county and population figures. He predicted that by 1985 facilities for school accommodations should be for 25 years.

Hollywood 1970-Style

Hollywood has changed — if you have not already noticed. Suddenly there is a whole new spectrum of film matter and star personalities. Realism, as Bob Hope points out, has supplanted the "hollipop" screen images of the past. The violence and the weirdo atmosphere of much of today's screen presentations, he suggests, are mirrors help up to life and they have a message — a valuable one — for mankind.

From the hurt and the decadence, Hope seems to be saying, we can turn away, because on the screen we can recognize the shame of it and, instead, espouse a nobler way of life. As the same time there is in today's film offerings much that reflect greatness. Humor, compassion, love are all there.

Today there is a generation gap in Hollywood, as between the John Waynes and Cary Grants and Myrna Loys and Dustin Hoffmanns and John Voights and Dyan Cannons, and film material which the over 30s have difficulty grasping, let alone finding the time to keep up with.

Bridges remain however. Cary Grant after all was married for a time to Miss Cannon, some 35 years his junior, and they have an infant daughter; and at Tuesday night's Academy Awards the stars were out in force, the greats of yesteryear and the rising young actors and actresses of the present day.

Gregory Peck, never an award winner himself but at 54 still one of Hollywood's most distinguished actors and personalities, introduced the proceedings, and there was Bob Hope, his jokes wearing a little thin but as good as ever when he spoke in more serious vein of the acting industry, its hopes and aims.

The years between, to which all of us over 40 could relate, came into sharpest focus in the tribute to Cary Grant, now 66, with extracts from his films going back to 1932. And when he spoke his thanks he seemed just a little older than even his contemporary pictures suggest, and his voice had lost just a little of its resonant tranatlantic pitch and we were reminded that all of us are a little older. Then suddenly it was the still zestful Cary Grant talking, predicting a new golden era in Hollywood, like his own; and there was a poignant moment when he said he had never been a "joiner . . . had never belonged to any particular social set," yet had been privileged to be there during the film colony's greatest days.

And there was Fred Astaire, lean and lissome as ever, also perceptibly older, as well he might be at 70. And there too was the familiar voice, now just a faint echo of the old Astaire, and he was saying that he had given up dancing a year or two ago . . . but then suddenly there marvelous limbs were moving and he was dancing again, and the audience was cheering. Yes Astaire too is alive and well and living in Hollywood. . .

Irish Ructions

In Northern Ireland Protestants and Catholics are still being uncivil to each other, and both factions are throwing things at the British troops who are trying to keep the peace. As a result, the army is under orders to shoot to kill if so threatened. Now, just to complicate matters the outlawed Irish Republican Army is threatening reprisals in kind against the troops.

While it may appear that life in Ulster becomes more irrational with each passing day, it should be remembered that these ructions for the most part involve only a minority of its million and a quarter citizens — namely the substantially "working-class" hotheads who inhabit the crowded tenement areas of industrial Belfast and Londonderry.

Forgotten, as in the midst of every other political aberration, be it in Ireland or Guatemala or Japan, is the fact that life still goes on as usual. Over the Easter period, for example, the annual Circuit of Ireland motor rally was held. In a land where motor cycle and auto rallies are popular, this is one of the most challenging. It attracts drivers from near and far and takes the cars over some of the most testing roads in Europe.

Politics are forgotten in such an event, involving as it does the whole country; just as when Ireland fields its rugby teams in the international championship, the players are selected from all of Ireland.

Just Who Does Run the Country?

Federal Bureaucrats Monopolize 'Order of Canada' Award

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — If, as Conservative Senator Grattan O'Leary, and former Transport Minister and still leading Liberal MP, Paul Hellyer warn, the federal bureaucracy is making "puppets" of us all — including Parliament itself — the politicians seem to be making no strike back in self-defence.

It may be too late to save us from the bureaucratic "Establishment" O'Leary and Hellyer publicly proclaim now faces us sure as taxes, but the parliamentarians, Liberal and Conservative, New Democratic and Creditiste, are trying.

Not only are the mandarins of the bureaucracy cramed with power-greed, charges Oxford Ontario Conservative MP Wallace Nesbitt, but have become so ravenous for glory they have formed an updated "Family Compact" to monopolize state honors.

Wallace Nesbitt blew the whistle on the senior civil servants when he was informed by Prime Minister Trudeau's office that 36 of the 100 people who have been appointed Companions of the Order of Canada were federal bureaucrats.

It was like something out of Gilbert and Sullivan, he laughed, as he contemplated the composition of the "Advisory Council" which recommends to the Governor General who is to be honored with the Order of Canada.

Making up this council are three federal mandarins, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the Undersecretary of State, and the Chairman of the Canada Council.

Representing the public, so to speak, the Prime Minister's office has the President of the Royal Society of Canada and the President of the Association of Canadian Universities and Colleges.

That makes the score three for the "insiders," two for the taxpayers.

New Democratic Whip Stanley Knowles, never one to overstate a case, allowed it was "a bit much" that 36 percent of all Order of Canada Companions were federal civil servants.

Vancouver Liberal MP Grant Deachman suggested there was only one way to put the victim's highest civilian honor in proper perspective — immediately change the name to the Civil Service Order of Canada.

To Wallace Nesbitt, it was all "a little too cosy" for bureaucrats nominating the selection board to so monopolize the honor for the "Civil Service Club."

Was it not possible, he wondered, that these civil servants sometimes picked "worthy candidates" in business, industry, charity and politics?

Perhaps even distinguished parliamentarians?

Like Diefenbaker?

A few of the "outsiders" from beyond the Ottawa boundaries perhaps.

But parliamentarians? Never. They are politicians, and in the selection eyes of the bureaucrats, neither worthy nor qualified. Not even Diefenbaker.

Not qualified either, it turns out, for appointment to the boards of government owned crown corporations, let alone the Order of Canada.

This has been established by Liberal MP Ralph Stewart of Cochrane, in the course of Commons debate on his motion that MPs might be invited to the directors of such government enterprises as the CBC, the CNR, Eldorado Mining and Refining, and any one of a score of others.

And while it is not likely, for nobody ever has performed the economic miracle — a business subsidized with public crown dream up ways of getting the CBC out of the taxpayers' pocket.

But the bureaucrats who run these and other crown corporations' at the annual public-cash dollar loss, have not been at all backward in letting it be known that the politicians of Parliament just are not competent in the arts of management.

Ralph Stewart scorns and resents this self-proclaimed superiority of the Big Bureaucrats.

He argues that parliamentarians as directors of crown corporations and the government's many boards, harvests and commissions could provide a "agents of the taxpayer" and perhaps even check the "fungus growth of the bureaucracy that is sapping the strength and authority of the House of Commons."

Strong words from a Liberal MP, those.

Ideal directors of crown corporations among the parliamentarians might be Paul Hellyer with his business and executive, and industrative backgrounds; and former Toronto mayor Phil Givens.

And there are others.

Almost anything might be better, he suggests, than leaving the nation's affairs in the clutches of the power-grasping Civil Service "encrusted and insulated by its own regulations."

After the 1926 election, recalled Ralph Stewart, more than 700 new bright, young and ambitious MPs came to Parliament Hill "anxious to change things . . . but no way were not with the reins of power in the hands of the mandarins."

Like Mr Paul Hellyer and Senator O'Leary said, the Big Bureaucrats could be making everyone, including parliamentarians, mere "puppets on a power string."

Students' Search For Identity and Purpose

S. I. Hayakawa, President of San Francisco State College

A basic source of college problems is the fact that hundreds of thousands who have no great desire for high education are in college simply because it is expected of them. Naturally and physically mature since they were 14 or 15, they marry and have children in succession with the kids outside of school.

Most college students, especially those who know what they want to make of themselves, are not marriage bias. They are eagerly pushing on towards degrees in engineering or agriculture or librarianship or biology. They are not a problem. They are the delight of their teachers — and their parents.

But many others are marking time and marking time, majoring in English one year, switching to sociology the next, then changing to art or drama. They are young men and women still in search of an identity. Most of them are bored with their purposeless existence at the same time as they are too aware of themselves to decide on a purpose. Although dissatisfied with college, they cannot make up their minds to leave it. It is from this group that troubles come.

They drop out of classes, although continuing to hang around the fringes of the campus. Driven by their internal emptiness, some of them turn with anger, taking up revolutionary ideas and plaster their walls with portraits of Mao Tse-tung and Che Guevara. From this point it is but a short step to attacking the university, occupying buildings, perpetrating acts of senseless violence, destroying research files and libraries, thereby endowing, they believe, their lives with heroic meaning.

Spring—A Cynical View!

Peterborough Examiner

We know it!

We were just waiting for it.

As soon as spring arrives the Ottawa Citizen digs into the thesaurus looking for soppy metaphors to bolster its anthology of lyrical tendencies and reminds its readership that Ottawa, like the rest of the nation, should not be fooled by the arrival of a new season.

Last March the Citizen published about the beauty of the coming days when tulips and daffodils will bloom, the gourd will change at Parliament Hill, and flowers and sunshine and the birdies will return to the capital for what we hope will be a long, nice summer."

This year, however, a cold wave and unsuspecting spring enthusiasts. But our spirits are spring-ing up and we expect to be singing in the air and in our bathtubs.

Speak for yourself, Citizen. We have a thin skin and the wild blows cold around our spirits. We have no enthusiasm for such tiresome seasonal chores as climbing up new ways to cheat on income tax, being polite to the first dozen robinspotters, borrowing the ladders from a grouchy neighbor so that we can take the storm windows off, suffering the headshaking of the garageman when we ask for a post-winter check on the old Olds., and picking the dried vermin off all the fish hooks that were borrowed by a friendly tourist last fall.

History Repeats Itself

'Irish Question' A Millstone Around Westminster's Neck

LONDON (CP) — The Irish question, which made life a misery for famous British statesmen of the past, may turn out to play the same millstone role in Harold Wilson's career as prime minister of Britain.

Reports from Northern Ireland, scene of continuing bomb blasts and demonstrations in recent weeks, are currently filled with gloom about the future.

A vigorous-seeming reform program has been instituted by the Ulster government with constant prodding from London.

But the conflict between Protestants and Roman Catholics appears to have entered a new phase of bitterness.

The worst fears at present centre on the possibility that dedicated extremists trying to stir up new trouble may resort to terrorist techniques more readily associated with contemporary revolutionaries in Latin America.

William Gladstone in the 19th century and David Lloyd George in the early 20th were two British prime ministers for whom the troubles of Ireland were the main headache.

Now Wilson has been forced to reiterate that British troops will be left in Ulster "as long as it is necessary to fulfill the job they have to do."

The Commons statement was occasioned by remarks originating with Lt.-Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, who commands the 7,000 soldiers in Northern Ireland.

Freeland expressed some pessimism about the immediate future in Ulster since "there are so many weapons about on both sides of the community."

But he warned that "the army may not be able to stay long enough, or may not be allowed to stay long enough," to solve Ulstyr's problems.

The statement has caused serious worry to the embattled Unionist prime minister of the North, James Chichester-Clark.

He relies on the army to police dangerous parts of Ulster and is himself caught between militant Protestants in his own party and dedicated rebels like the Irish Republican Army among the Catholics.

Freeland finds himself forced to threaten extremists with "the tremendous firepower and weapon power" of the army.

However, moderates are worried that his reference to a possible pullout will encourage terrorists to step up a campaign which lately has brought bombing to central Belfast as well as to more outlying working-class districts of the city.

Wilson already is saddled with the never-racking imponderables that go with a period preceding a general election.

The pressure on him can only be intensified by such Ulster developments as the growing unpopularity of British troops with the Catholics who once considered them friendly protectors.

Nerves all around are further frayed by the unpredictability of the bomb blasts and the extra bitterness engendered by the troubles during Easter.

The road to peace in Ulster shapes up more than ever as a long, tough slog which present events may make worse instead of better.

Ground Dries Out Grass Fires Start

TRENTON — Trenton Fire-fighters spent almost two hours Wednesday afternoon extinguishing two grass fires in this town's industrial section.

Firemen arrived on the scene behind Knox Gelatine Plant on the Carrying Place Road at 1:30 p.m. and spent a half hour extinguishing a fire which came within 25 to 30 feet of the plant, burning about three acres of grassland Deputy fire chief Henry Barre said.

Plant employees formed a barrier with garden hose and buckets near the plant and assisted firefighters until the blaze was under control.

Deputy chief Barre said the fire started when the wind carried flames into the grass field while plant employees were burning some paper bags.

The second — and most serious — fire occurred at 2:25 p.m. and scorched about eight acres of grassland and scrub, starting at the north end of west street behind the Central Bridge plant and extending northward.

It took Trenton firemen 30 minutes to extinguish the blaze which, fire department officials believe, was started by children.

Canada to Prevent Arctic Pollution

mons, Mr. Trudeau defended the government action on the grounds that international law hasn't been formulated for the right of coastal states to defend themselves against pollution.

International law now favors the oil-exporting nations, Mr. Trudeau said.

Government officials conceded that Canada was acting in advance of world opinion with its pollution bill. But a change might be expected at a 1972 Brussels meeting called by the UN on the subject.

In the meantime, Canada was moving to defend the fragile Arctic against a possible disaster.

The government bill asks Parliament to declare its eagerness to see the Northwest Passage and other northern waters open to commercial voyages. It would benefit both Canada and the world.

But the use of Arctic waters must be confined to ships that posed no threat to man or to animal life, Mr. Trudeau said.

Ships unable to use Arctic waters could be required to show financial responsibility and be subject to Canadian inspection.

They would be subject to regulations concerning hull, fuel-tank construction, navigation aides and icebreaker support.

The U.S. supertanker Manhattan, now making its second voyage through Arctic ice, agreed to the same regulations before Canada agreed to lend icebreaker support for the trip.

"Frozen or liquid waters adjacent to the mainland and islands of the Canadian Arctic within the area enclosed by the 60th parallel, the 141st meridian of longitude, and a line measured seaward from the nearest Canadian land a distance of 100 nautical miles."

An exemption would be the waters between the Canadian islands and Greenland.

Fines up to $100,000 were provided for the dumping of waste in Arctic waters or on the islands or mainlands where the waste could degrade or alter the water to the extent it would be detrimental to man or any animal useful to man.

Ships wishing to use Arctic waters could be required to show financial responsibility and be subject to Canadian inspection.

Helicopter On Mercy Mission

TRENTON — The CFB Search and Rescue unit sent a helicopter Wednesday on a successful mercy flight to Hope Island in Georgian Bay.

At 5:05 p.m. the helicopter landed on the deck of the cargo ship John O. McKellar to pick up crewman Frank Hosanna and transport him to Midland Hospital.

The helicopter landed on a football field at Midland at 5:35 p.m. and Mr. Hosanna was taken by ambulance to the hospital.

The crewman had been hemorrhaging from the nose since 2 a.m. Wednesday and was listed in serious condition.

The helicopter was the only possible means of rescue, a CFB spokesman said today. There was still too much ice in Georgian Bay to permit rescue ships to put out and too much water on the ice for snowmobiles.

You Can't Legislate Love, Conservatives Argue in House

(OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MPs continued Wednesday to oppose the government's bill to outlaw the advocacy of genocide and incitement of racial hatred.

They repeated their argument that it may threaten free speech while pursuing the impossible goal of legislating love.

The debate in the Commons on the report stage of the bill—the stop before third reading—ended its third day without bringing to a vote amendments proposed Monday by Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) intended to limit sharply the application of the legislation.

During debate on the subject, Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer) claimed that if it was in effect now it would make liable for prosecution Indian leader Harold Cardinal, Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, Quebec separatists, the editors of Maclean's magazine and George Davidson, president of the CBC.

Mr. Thompson did not elaborate on this remark, but said:

"..... To attack the rights of one man is to attack the rights of everyone."

Don Mazankowski (PC—Vegreville) said:

"We have here a law that seeks to control and regulate the emotions of love and hate, and a law that allows the courts of the land to interpret an alleged crime in any way it sees fit.

"I fear this bill is an open invitation to the commission of gross misrepresentation."

"I am also puzzled by the government's position that it can legislate against both an emotion as hate without first taking steps to remove the motivation behind such emotions."

Clifford Downey (PC—Battle River) said that however commendable the bill might be in intent, "it is impossible to accomplish this intent by any legislative device."

P. R. Rynard (PC—Simcoe North) suggested the bill is an easy way out of the problem presented by hate literature and propaganda. Law-makers may sit down to rest once the bill is passed, forgetting that "a war between good and evil is continually being waged in this world."

Liberal back-benchers Steve Otto (York East) and former Toronto Mayor Philip Givens (York West) supported the bill.

Mr. Otto said Canada has a history of racism. He said that "because their skin was yellow" Canadian Japanese were uprooted from their homes on the West Coast only 30 years ago and scattered across the country.

Mr. Givens warned that Parliament will be considered in disgrace if it fails to pass the measure. Hundreds of people in Toronto had asked him when the bill would pass, he said, and if it did not the failure would set back the cause of brotherhood 100 years.

Hugh John Flemming (PC—Carleton-Charlotte) said he has never seen so many letters opposing a bill, many from New Brunswickers.

A vote on Mr. Woolliams' amendment and one by Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) will be taken Thursday.

Bill Called Nothing But Gimmick

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto lawyer, said Wednesday "every civil liberties lawyer is opposed" to the hate literature bill, now in Ra final stages before Parliament.

W. Glen How called the bill "nothing but a great big political gimmick," and said it erodes the liberty of the Canadian people.

Mr. How, a civil liberties lawyer, made his comments during a public debate on the bill between Dr. Maxwell Cohen, chairman of the committee which recommended Criminal Code amendments to ban advocacy or promoting of genocide and incitement to hatred, and Eldon Woolliams, Conservative MP for Calgary North, who opposes the bill.

Dow Denies Responsibility to Pay Fishermen

TORONTO (CP)— The president of Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd. admitted Wednesday his company was a source of mercury pollution in the St. Clair River, but he denied the company's responsibility to compensate fishermen whose livelihoods have been destroyed by the pollution.

L. D. Smithers told federal and Ontario officials at a meeting at Queen's Park that the company does not believe it is the only source of mercury pollution on the Detroit-St. Clair rivers system.

Nor does it accept, he said, that its metallic mercury alone is responsible for contamination of fish in the river and Lake St. Clair which led to a federal ban on sale and export of fish taken from the system.

Following meetings with Dow and representatives of commercial fishermen and Lake St. Clair resort operators, the federal and Ontario governments announced they would extend "social-measure" loans to persons affected by the pollution.

But they made it plain that those responsible for polluting Ontario's waterways ultimately must pay.

Federal Resources Minister J. J. Greene said the federal-provincial loans are not grants against future compensation and are not compensation in any way.

They are simply "social-measure" loans to permit those affected to "get over this difficult period."

The two governments are accepting joint responsibility, and a primary responsibility of government is to see that taxpayers bear no share of the ultimate cost, Mr. Greene said.

Mr. Kerr said the loans, the first of which should be available within a month, should be sufficient to meet normal costs of living.

Mr. Kerr said that ultimately whoever is responsible for the pollution "will pay either us or the fishermen."

"I hope industry will pay the whole bill."

Mr. Harlow declined in an interview to identify the plants beyond saying all are in northeastern Ohio.

Mr. Greene said Dow has agreed to "take all action necessary ... that federal and Ontario officials ask, including dredging the lake bottom to remove the pollutant."

The maximum direct loss to the 65-to-70 commercial fishermen operating on Lake St. Clair, with a catch last year of 1,800,000 pounds, is estimated at about $1,800,000 if the fisheries can be opened up again for the 1971 season.

Both Mr. Greene and Mr. Kerr suggested that suits for civil liability will have to be launched by injured parties if there is an ultimate refusal to pay compensation.

Ohio Commences Analysis of Drinking Water

CLEVELAND (CP) — Ohio health officials began analysis Wednesday of drinking water supplies in Cleveland, Toledo and other Lake Erie cities, looking for possible mercury contamination.

George Harlow of the United States federal water pollution control administration said three plants are believed to be discharging mercury. He said three others may be.

Revealing this at a news conference later, Mr. Mason said he replied that his government will "have in mind the views of his major suppliers."

However, he was unable to give the specific assurances sought by Mr. Pepin because it was not yet known when actual bargaining with the Common Market would begin.

After the talks with Europe are under way, the Canadian request for high-level consultations can be re-considered, Mr. Mason said.

Canada Asks Talks on Britain's Trade Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has again failed to obtain British agreement to early, cabinet-level consultations between the two countries on Britain's plans for negotiating entry into the European Common Market.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin requested such talks in a meeting Wednesday with Roy Mason, president of the British Board of Trade, a minister in the British cabinet.

Canada should be consulted at all stages of the negotiating process, including the preliminary stages, Mr. Pepin told the British minister.

Mr. Mason said in reply that those responsible for policies affecting Canada's export trade are aware of the importance of the matter to Canada.

Rev. John Wiese officiated at the recent marriage in Frankford United Church of Gloria Jean Chard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Chard, Frankford and Richard Perry Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Lewis of Shannonville. Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Sykes.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length sheath gown of imported pure-dacke featuring an empire waistline and a bodice trimmed with four rows of imported Venise lace. There was a row of self covered buttons down the front. A wedding band collar and full-length sleeves with wide cuffs were trimmed with the same lace. Attached at the waist was a train of matching peau-de-soie trimmed across the bottom and down both sides with Venise lace. The headpiece was a Juliette cap of peau-de-soie with a large bow at the back. An edging of Venise lace trimmed the cap and the four tier silk illusion chapel veil. She carried a bouquet of white mums and red roses.

Mrs. Wayne Garrioso as matron of honor and Miss Bonnie Chard as bridesmaid, both sisters of the bride, were identically attired in floor-length dresses of polyester crepe in deep mauve. The sleeves and neck were trimmed with lace, and pink ribbon was woven in their hair. Both attendants carried a large white mum with pink tinted edges and a white ribbon hanging from the stem.

Tom Lewis attended his brother and ushers were Ken Chard, brother of the bride and Terry Marucle, cousin of the bridegroom.

For the reception held at Rose Lowery Hall, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a mint green dress with matching coat, yellow accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a pea green dress with matching coat, yellow and black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Douglas Bateman, cousin of the bride. She wore a floor-length gown of blue brocade cut in the empire styling and featuring short sleeves with a cowl neck and matching train and headdress and carried a nosegay of white and pink carnations.

A Combination of Styles!

Working and playtime fashions were modelled by Miss Linda Hitchon and Mrs. Diane Loupelle at the fashion show "Hello Summer" held last night at Education Hall, sponsored by the B.G.H nurses.

School of Nursing Sponsors Fashion Show

"Basic staples are the name of the fashion game this year" said commentator Sheila Nash at last evening's fashion show, "Hello Summer." The event took place at Education Hall under the auspices of the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing. Fashions were provided by McIntosh Brothers Stores Ltd. of Belleville.

The most prevalent outfits modelled were pant and jump suits. One of the more outstanding pant suits was a jersey patterned black and white one with slightly belled legs and empire waist. Sure to catch the fashion conscious girl's eye was a double-knit 100 per cent polyester jump suit with yellow bottoms, and white bodice trimmed in yellow.

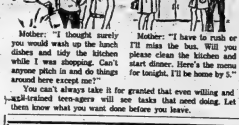
Lounging clothes played a major role in the show's theme with many - colored washable jersey pant suits, empire styling and zipping up the front was most eye-catching.

Next on the list of fashion musts for this season is the coat dress. What better choice than one of hand washable nylon, belted and buckled.

The nurses had their share of the limelight as they modelled the newest styles in uniforms. Uniforms are designed today from fortrel, nylon and dacron, all easy care materials. Judging from those modelled, it would seem that nurses are as fashion conscious as any other working girl.

Shown also was a cute little rayon skimmer for spring — green and white with abstract surface appeal featuring bell-bottom shaped short sleeves.

Accessories, as anyone up on the fashion scene will tell you, are "in" this year. Purses and jewelry and sun glasses added the finishing touches to all the outfits modelled. These were supplied by Doug Jones Jewellery Store and American Optical. Hairdos were by the French Salon.



Co-commentator was Jane McCutcheon who also created the musical routines.

Models were Marie Heasman, Gerry Frost, Judy Phillips, Linda Hitchon, Donna Sheery, Judy Hume, Mrs. Pat Burrowes, Lorretta Naras, Meribeth McIntosh, Mrs. Diane Loupelle, Peggy McCutcheon and Mrs. Janis Naras.

Proceeds from the show will go to assist in raising funds for the 1970 graduating class.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I thought surely you would wash up the lunch dishes and tidy the kitchen while I was shopping. Can't anyone pitch in and do things around here except me?"

Mother: "I have to rush or I'll miss the bus. Will you please clean the kitchen and start dinner. Here's the menu for tonight. I'll be home by 5."

You can't always take it for granted that even willing and well-trained teen-agers will see tasks that need doing. Let them know what you want done before you leave.

Ann Landers

Counselling Suggested For Teener's Problem

DEAR ANN: I am not signing my name to this letter because we are friends. I don't think you can guess my identity. At least I hope not.

ANN LANDERS

The letter from the mother of the teen-age boy signed "Mrs. Had It" got to me. (And to millions of other bewildered parents, I'll bet.) Our hostile rebellious teen-ager is a girl, not a boy, but the description fits her. She isn't pregnant but I thought she might be, so I called a lawyer to find out what MY rights are. Well — I don't have any. According to Illinois law, if a 16-year-old daughter wants to keep her child, even though she can't support it, her parents are stuck.

"Mrs. Had It" is luckier than I am. At least her husband backs her up. Mine doesn't. He takes our daughter's side and together they try to beat me down. He sees nothing wrong with her staying out till 3 or 4 in the morning. He does he see anything wrong with her friends who not only use hard drugs but push them. I am sure our daughter smokes marijuana. He sees nothing "serious" about that either.

My husband feels because she is pleasant to him that they have a wonderful relationship. He points out that he has no trouble with her while she and I fight constantly. Therefore he insists what he is doing is right and I'm the one who is at fault.

I am becoming bitter and frustrated. The situation seems hopeless. I've just about given up. Any suggestions, Ann? Sorry I can't sign this. I hope you can't guess. — SAME CIRCLE.

* * *

DEAR S. C.: I suggest you attack this problem at the source. The real trouble is between you and your husband. Your husband's permissive attitude as contrasted to your ineffective attempts to maintain discipline has made your home a battleground. Your daughter is the victim. I urge you both to get counseling.

Your daughter needs outside help at once. She has tuned you out completely. Her father will not give her decent counsel because he has opted in favor of being a pal in an effort to keep on good terms with her.

A therapist might be able to get through to the girl. And, incidentally, I do not have a clue as to your identity. I know at least a dozen people who have a problem similar to yours.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son's wife is a talented art student. She has painted a large portrait of our son in the nude. It now hangs in their living room. I have seen nudes hanging in other homes, but not in the living room — and never of a member of the family. The painting is very life-like and it makes me uncomfortable. Have you ever been asked this question before? — ILL AT EASE.

DEAR ILL: This one — no. I've had something similar, however. The painting was of the wife but it was hanging in the bedroom.

Great art is great art anywhere, but a student's "very life-like" nude painting of her husband does not sound like great art to me.

Conspicuously absent is your question. "Should I say something?" The answer,if you had asked, would be — "No."

Expo 70 Is Mixed Blessing

OSAKA (CP) — Expo 70 is a mixed blessing for housewives in the surrounding suburbs and for business visitors to this Japanese industrial city.

Senri New Town is a densely populated suburb which has had the 815-acre fair plunked in its midst. Housewives there complain that Expo visitors have caused prices of meat, potatoes, onions and other foodstuffs to soar.

Meat is particularly expensive with prices even in downtown Osaka running 100 yen for 100 grams—about $1.28 a pound—for a prime rib of beef, a high price in a country which ranks 19th in the world's standard of living.

The Daily Yomiuri, English-language newspaper printed in Osaka and Tokyo, quotes one housewife as saying:

"I will support the leftists' plan to obstruct the fair after I see it once."

The leftists have denounced against Expo, calling it "a scheme of the establishment" to divert attention from the Japan-United States security treaty up for renewal in June.

Visiting relatives from other parts of Japan have been a bair shirt for some Senri housewives. One is quoted as saying she had to set aside 100,000 yen (about $286) from her husband's year-end bonus to cater to some 40 relatives expected to stay with them during the fair's 183 days.

Successful Living

Without Loving, Babies Pine Away

By DORIS CLARK

There's a legend about an emperor who wanted to see how great an effect love had on children. He ordered that the babies in the foundling home be fed and kept warm and dry, but never cuddled or loved. Within a few months, the babies were dead; they had lost their will o live.

This, of course, is only legend — but the discoveries of modern psychology point to a germ of truth in it. During the Blitz in England, children who were loved and enjoyed by their parents were found to gain weight and thrive despite the bombings; while other children, separated from this kind of love, lost weight and vitality under far less damaging physical conditions.

Today, thousands of clinical histories indicate that the human personality, too, is weakened by loss of love in babyhood. Doctors now believe that a baby cannot be given too much love if this love is the right kind. — "Do Babies Have Worries?" National Association for Mental Health, Great Britain.

* * *

Dear Doris: I started to work 19 years ago because my husband had lost some property through not being able to pay the taxes. I was very much hurt that he hadn't confided in me.

Now it is getting worse. He ignores me. He makes out I'm stupid in front of people. He actually had me thinking there was something wrong with me, until I found other people liked me and thought me perfectly normal.

I thought of leaving him but I still love him, and feel he is sick and needs treatment. He was overseas for a year, and I've been a whipping post ever since. — Crying Too Much.

DORIS CLARK

Dear Crying: A man who feels like a failure may take out his resentment on the person closest to him — you.

His war experience may have left him upset, but it is not likely he is suffering from anything which could be labelled a disease — although he is not in the best of mental health, and that's for sure!

It's hard to guess just how much he has bottled up, but he needs, very badly, to be helped to talk. Could you get your doctor's help about this? Doctor, or minister, or social worker: These are the helpers that can sometimes bring about the blessed relief of communication.

The waste of years you could be enjoying together is dreadful.

Dear Doris: Where did Canadian Indians originate from? — Fifth Grader.

Dear Fifth Grader: From Asia. It so happen that a mere 20,000 years ago, there was land connecting North America with Asia, just about where the Bering Strait now runs through. They must have gotten over — populated in Asia and came along this bridge looking for food.

A few thousand years later the land gradually disappeared and they were stuck with Canada. But I think they liked it, until us white people came along to complicate matters.

* * *

(Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Fluffy Whipped Icing

By MARY MOORE

Kit McDermott had a reception for her sister Anne Gray, who was visiting from England. Mrs. Rosen, the matriarchal mother of this family from Holland, was there and almost stole the show from her two lovely daughters.

Kit patronizes a Dutch bakery in town and the goodies were irresistible. One of the sweets, little frosted squares, intrigued me so much I tried to analyze it as I took little nibbles. It had been made from a white slab cake cut in layers with filling between and topped with the most delectable coffee frosting I have ever tasted. So and behold I discovered it was our beloved White Whipped Frosting in a different guise.

One of my tests over the weekend was to attempt to reproduce that frosting and I think I did.

I made a 13 x 9 x 1" white cake and when it was cool frosted it with

CAFE AU LAIT WHIPPED FROSTING

⅓ cup strong (double strength) coffee
2 tbsps. corn starch
⅓ cup cold milk
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup (¼ lb.) butter (no substitute (room temperature)
1 tsp. vanilla

In a small pan stir together until smooth the corn starch and milk then stir in hot coffee and cook stirring until thick. Remove from heat and cool.

Into beater bowl measure the granulated sugar, butter and vanilla and beat until snowy white—about 10 mins.—scraping down sides of bowl two or three times. Add cooled coffee mixture and beat on "high" 10 to 15 min. or until all sugar crystals are dissolved. Spread attractively on sides and top of 13 x 9 x 1" slab cake. If desired sprinkle with chocolate shot or shaved chocolate or chopped toasted almonds. Cut into 2 by 1¾" squares to serve.

NOTE: This frosting keeps well covered and refrigerated but has to be warmed to room temperature to spread because of the high butter content.

Need I add that this is a sumptuous frosting?

Money Returned

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Rummaging through an old file, Doris Lind found two traffic tickets issued 19 years ago and mailed them to city officials, with a cheque for $2. A records check showed that conviction had been paid the same month it was issued in 1951. The second ... never paid. City Judge Floyd Gowans reviewed the case and ordered that "in light of the long delay and the honesty displayed" the tickets and the money be returned to Mrs. Lind.

Company Hopes to Sell Transcript

Firm Gets Ban on Disclosure of Kopechne Inquest Evidence

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts Supreme Court Wednesday blocked public disclosure of the transcript of the secret inquest into Mary Jo Kopechne's death in Senator Edward M. Kennedy's car. The court acted at the request of a stenographic firm that claims a financial interest in the transcript.

The firm, engaged to make the record of the inquest in January, said the transcript contains "valuable property rights" for possible resale to news media and others.

The court ordered clerk Edward V. Keating of the Suffolk Superior Court to delay releasing the papers pending further order of the court.

Lawyers appeared for Sidney R. Lipman, a free-lance, certified court reporter, and said in a letter I obtaining that Lipman was engaged to make the record of the Kopechne inquest.

The letter said that with the knowledge of the Edgartown court and the district attorney, and without objection from them, Lipman made contracts with news media and other parties to furnish them copies of the transcript at the usual rates when the impounding order is lifted.

The abrupt order came as Judge Wilfred Paquet of Suffolk Superior Court, who holds legal control over the inquest pa, . . . was preparing an order to release them, possibly within a week.

The case involves the drowning death July 18, 1969, of Miss Kopechne, 28, whose body was found in Senator Kennedy's car after it went off a bridge into a pond on Chappaquiddick Island.

Educational Television Is Approved

TORONTO (CP) — An educational television authority for Ontario was given approval in principle Wednesday as the legislature gave second reading to its ETV bill.

Liberal and NDP critics objected to parts of the bill as giving Education Minister William Davis too much power. They said they will oppose the scope of ministerial power in the bill receives clause-by-clause study in committee.

Tim Reid (L—Scarborough East) said the bill gives Mr. Davis veto-power over authority appointments while ignoring the right of teachers, parents and students to participate in the system.

In other legislature business Wednesday:

—Premier John Roberts announced that the final proposal for regional planning of the Metropolitan Toronto area—"first of a series of comprehensive plans" dealing with the economic regions of Ontario"—will be made public May 5.

—Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said the province does not intend to change the law which says an accused man has the right to remain silent. A day by Ontario Supreme Court speech to a group of doctors. change was recommended Tues- Justice Edson Haines, in a

Wells Sees Need to Reassess Existing Health Care Schemes

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Health Minister Thomas Wells said Wednesday there must be a reassessment of existing forms of health care to cope with rising public demands and expectations.

"Increasingly, the day of isolated health activity is disappearing," Mr. Wells said in a speech to a health sciences dinner at the University of Western Ontario. "Isolated health action on the part of individuals or specific professions is becoming less and less desirable."

Those in the health field must increasingly work and train alongside each other.

He said the physician, dentist and nurse of the future will need to be familiar with computers and managerial techniques to make full use of their skills. Computers, and not the experts, would be making routine diagnostic tests.

"But if we are going to do this, it has to be set up in the educational process. We have to break with tradition significantly . . . as they will be more concerned with health as with disease, with prevention as with cure, with social and community matters as well as with technical detail and expertise."

U.S. Eager for Agreement on Oil with Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States is "very anxious" to discuss a proposal to give Canadian oil free access to U.S. markets, George Schultz, U.S. secretary of labor, said Wednesday.

Mr. Schultz, chairman of a presidential task force on oil imports, told a news conference the scheme—to replace present U.S. import quotas with tariffs—would benefit both countries.

"It makes a great deal of sense for both countries to work co-operatively," he said.

"They both have a good deal to gain. That's what makes a good trade—if both gain."

Mr. Schultz was in Montreal to address the 23rd annual meeting of a U.S. labor body, the national academy of arbitrators.

Until the beginning of April, there were no formal limits on Canadian oil sales to the U.S. but annual volume ceilings were agreed upon voluntarily by Washington and Ottawa.

Mr. Schultz's task force has recommended that Canadian oil be subject to quantitative limits during an initial period and subsequently be allowed access to U.S. markets through a tariff arrangement.

He said Wednesday the task force examination showed that U.S. policies were "too restrictive in nature and should be changed."

Both countries should adopt a "spirit of communality," he said.

Welfare Payments Will Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will allow persons on welfare to earn limited amounts in addition to social assistance payments to increase their monthly income and will expand assistance under the family-benefits program.

The family-benefits plan applies to blind, disabled and aged persons, permanently unemployable fathers with dependent children, widows and single mothers with dependent children.

The increases in social assistance are scaled to "have the greatest impact where need is greatest." Actual amount of payments will depend on the circumstances of the recipient.

A single blind person now receiving $115 a month will get up to $145; a widow with three children now receiving $238 a month will get up to $282; and a permanently-unemployable man with wife and two children, now receiving $253 can get up to $279.

Howe Slipping: First Time Lower Than Fifth in 21 Years

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadien's Front Sports Editor

One of the most consecutive and dramatic stretch drives in National Hockey League history had just ended.

Sensational young Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins had won the scoring championship-the first time it had ever been done by a defenceman.

Beside Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks had won the Vezina Trophy and set a modern record of 15 shutouts along the way.

But somehow, in the uproar, a milestone had been missed and it concerned the oldest player in a league where the accent is on youth.

The story is told in the final list of top NHL scorers for the 1969-70 season and it reads:

9. Howe, Det 24 46 70 58.

Translated—Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, finished in ninth place with 31 goals and 39 assists for 71 points. He had 58 minutes in penalties.

Howe, at 42 years of age, led his club in points scored, one ahead of Frank Mahovlich.

A remarkable achievement for one his age? Undoubtedly. for anyone other than Gordie Howe.

But it marked the first time in 21 years that the player his team-mates call "The Big Guy" had finished out of the top five in the season-end scoring statistics.

Howe has spent his entire NHL career with the Red Wings, with whom he broke in during the 1946-47 season.

He didn't hit the top 10 scorers until the 1949-50 season, when he came third. Until this year he never looked backfinishing no lower than fifth for 20 consecutive years.

He took over first place in 1950-51 and stayed there for four years. He was fifth in 1954-55, second in 1955-56, and back up to first in 1956-57.

He was fourth in 1957-58 and 1958-59.

At the end of the 1959-60 season he was tied for fifth with Andy Bathgate of Montreal Canadiens and was fifth again the following year.

In 1961-62 he tied for third with Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks.

In 1962-63 he was back on top, slid to fifth the following year, then moved up again to third.

Howe took fourth spot in 1965-66, a position he shared the following year with Ken Wharram of Chicago. He finished third the next two seasons.

That Howe is sitting he admitted a couple of months ago when he celebrated his 42nd birthday.

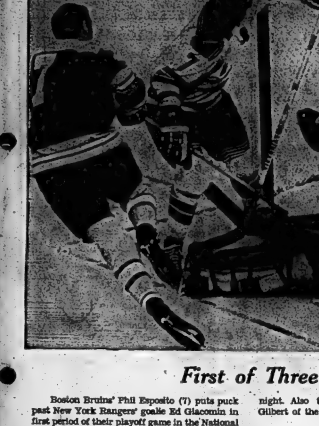
"I'll play as long as my legs hold out," he said.

He rubbed a left wrist swollen by arthritis and said:

"It has been getting steadily worse the last three or four years. I can't make some of the plays I used to make. I'm not as strong with the stick.

This year he played in his 21st all-star game, a record nobody is even threatening.

He has been the league's top scorer a record six times, most valuable player a record six times, has played more seasons—24—than anyone else, has scored more goals, played more games and got more assists.



This year Gordie Howe had to settle for ninth place in the scoring statistics—that's ninth out of about 220 in the toughest league in one of the toughest sports on the calendar.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As if the National Hockey League still wasn't convinced that Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito are its top scorers, the two Boston Bruins marksmen Wednesday night combined for a total of seven points to set the pace in their drive for the Stanley Cup.

Esposito, last season's scoring champion and second only at Orr this year, scored three goals to lead the Bruins in an 8-2 romp over New York Rangers in the opening game of their quarter-final playoff series.

Orr, who won the scoring leadership this spring with 120 points, added two goals and both he and Esposito combined to set up Wayne Cashman for another of the Boston markers.

In the other Eastern Division series, the champion Chicago Black Hawks downed Detroit Red Wings 4-2. St. Louis Blues, the Western Division utilists, opened their series with a 6-2 win over Minnesota North Stars while Pittsburgh Penguins took their started from Oakland Seals 3-2.

All four of the best-of-seven quarter-final series continue tonight at Chicago, Boston, St. Louis and Pittsburgh with the teams switching home arenas for the third and fourth games Saturday and Sunday.

The bruising battle at Boston started with Esposito getting his first two goals in the first 16 minutes. Rookie Jack Egers kept the Bruins' lead to one with a goal one minute before the period ended.

Orr started the second-period explosion with his two goals and Derek Sanderson, Esposito and Cashman followed up with one each. Fred Stanfield wrapped up the Boston scoring with his goal early in the third period before Bob Nevin collected the Rangers' other score.

Orr's second goal and the one by Sanderson came with the Bruins' Don Marcotte sitting out a tripping penalty.

Bruins coach Harry Sinden said after the game that Sanderson's goal on a pass from Eddie Westfall was the key score in the match.

"The play Westfall made to get the puck up to Sanderson was tremendous," Sinden said. "If there was a turning point, that was it."

But Emile Francis, Rangers manager-coach, went back to Orr's first goal which came when the Boston defenceman grabbed his own rebound off the goalpost and slipped the puck behind goalie Ed Giacomin.

"That was the backbreaker," Francis said. "Everybody seemed to stand around figuring the first shot had gone in, but the referee hadn't. But give Orr credit—he had his wits about him, and he made sure the second one went in. Then, as if that isn't enough to seal the outfits, we get a man up and they score two goals."

The game got rough in the late stages with several fights breaking out. New York's Walt Tkaczuk, Bill Fairbairn, Brad Park and Orland Kurtenbach had scraps with Boston's Johnny McKenzie, Ken Hodge, Esposito and Sanderson.

Gerry Cheevers had a strong game in the Boston goal as the Rangers outshot the Bruins 36-34.

Giacomin lasted the first two periods with Terry Sawchuk taking over the New York goalie duties in the final session.

A crowd of 14,433 turned out to watch the start of the Bruins' run for the Stanley Cup which they last won in 1941, the year after the Rangers last held it.

The Black Hawks, whose last cup victory came in 1961, had a tougher time than the Bruins getting their first win.

The Red Wings took an early lead on a goal by Wayne Connelly but Pit Martin scored to tie the game late in the opening period before a Chicago crowd of 16,666.

Gordie Howe's third-period goal cut the Hawks lead to 3-2 but they failed to get the equalizer even after pulling goalie Roy Edwards for an extra attacker in the final minute of play. Eric Nesterenko scored the Hawks' final goal into the empty Detroit nets.

Maki's goal also came when the Hawks were a man short while Martin and Mikita scored with Detroit players in the penalty box.

Chicago goalie Tony Esposito faced 37 Detroit shots and Edwards made 40 saves.

Gump Worsley, the losing goalie at St. Louis, was also over-worked as he faced 46 Blues shots on the Minnesota nets, allowing two goals each by Terry Crisp and Ab McDonald and one each from Red Berenson and Gary Sabourin.

The North Stars' Bill Goldsworthy and Jean-Paul Parise put the puck behind veteran netminder Jacques Plante who stopped 19 other shots.

The crowd of 16,304 fans saw the Blues claim their 10th straight victory in Western Division Stanley Cup action. The Blues were eliminated in the cup final by the Eastern Division's Montreal Canadiens in the last two playoff encounters.

The Blues, who were second only to Boston in power-play goals scored during the regular season, collected three of their scores while playing with a man advantage.

At Pittsburgh, the Penguins edged by the Seals on a disputed goal by Nick Harbaruk late in the third period.

Oakland goalie Gary Smith allowed a goal by Joan Prosovost and Pittsburgh's Les Binkley let in one by Gerry Ehman in the first period. The two netminders held the game scoreless the rest of the way until Harbaruk put the puck in the Oakland nets on a goal-mouth scramble.

Smith came charging out of the nets claiming the goal should be disallowed because he had been held inside his nets by Pittsburgh's Glen Sather, but referee Bruce Hood let the score stand at 2-1.

Cards Make Up For Flood Loss

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals have used first baseman Guillermo Montanez to Philadelphia to compensate the Phillies for Curt Flood, who was traded but will not play this year.

General manager John Quinn of the Phillies said Montanez would play with Philadelphia's Eugene, Ore., Pacific Coast League team.

The Phillies also have the right to choose another player Aug. 31.

Flood was involved in a multi-player trade with Philadelphia at the end of last season. But he filed a suit challenging the reserve clause in baseball player contracts and a result is sitting out the 1970 season.

Doctor Clears Green, Could Begin Suspension

OTTAWA (CP) — The assault trial of Boston Bruins defenceman Ted Green was adjourned Wednesday to May 27—largely because of the National Hockey League playoffs.

Defence lawyer Edward Houston told Judge M. J. Fitzpatrick late Wednesday afternoon that he might want to call Bruins executives and a Boston reporter as witnesses. He would prefer resumption of the trial after the league playoffs.

TED GREEN

Green and winger Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues were charged by Ottawa police following a high-sticking duel at an exhibition game in Ottawa last Sept. 21.

Green suffered head injuries and underwent three operations. A plate has been placed in his skull. He has not played since the injury.

Green's Ottawa physician, Dr. Michael Richard, declared the Boston player physically fit following a check late Tuesday.

This opens the way to Green serving the 13-game suspension set by NHL president Clarence Campbell following the stick fight.

Campbell said earlier he would await the Ottawa doctor's verdict before allowing the suspension to begin.

But Green himself discounted any possibility that he will get into the current playoffs.

Maki, now with Buffalo in the American Hockey League, has served his suspension.

Maki was acquitted Feb. 5 of a charge of assault causing bodily harm in connection with the stick duel. Green was charged with common assault.

Ottawa Fire Chief Phil Larkin, a spectator at the game, testified Wednesday he had seen Maki spear Green with the blade of his stick "three or four times."

Chief Larkin, who was at ice level near the Boston net, said he saw a glove pushed into Maki's face during a scramble for the puck directly in front of him. He said he could not be sure whether the glove was Green's or Maki's.

The two players skated a short distance from the boards and Maki faced Green, said Chief Larkin.

"He prodded the blade of his stick three or four times into Mr. Green's stomach. You could see Mr. Green's sweater moving."

Blanks Senators in Debut

Niekro Helps Take Up McLain Slack

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joe Niekro is the latest Detroit Tiger hurler to take up some of the slack caused by the gambling suspension of Denny McLain, ace of the Detroit staff.

The 25-year-old right-hander, obtained from San Diego in an off-season trade, made his American League debut a rousing success Wednesday night with a six-hit, 3-0 blanking of the Washington Senators.

It was the second shutout of the slugging Senators in three days by the supposedly weakened Detroit mound corps, although they were battered for 17 hits and 14 runs in the middle game of the series. Mickey Lolich stopped Washington on seven hits opening day.

Elsewhere, Kansas City's Dick Drago stopped Oakland 2-0 on a four-hitter, Mike Cuellar hurled Baltimore past Cleveland 3-2 and three California pitchers combined to hand Milwaukee its second straight setback 6-1.

In the National League, St. Louis trounced Montreal 7-2, Atlanta whipped San Diego 6-1, San Francisco edged Houston 5-4 and Cincinnati beat Los Angeles 5-2.

Bill Freehan's two-run homer in the seventh inning following Willie Horton's single broke up a duel between Niekro and Washington's much-traveled George Brunet, now with his eighth major league team.

The Tigers added their third run in the same inning on a walk to Don Wert, a single off Brunet by Cesar Gutierrez and a wild pitch by reliever Horacio Pina.

Niekro worked out of three jams in the first six innings, getting Ken McMullen for the third out each time with runners on base.

Drago didn't permit Oakland a hit after the fourth inning and allowed only four runners as far as second base. He got the only run he needed in the fourth inning when Amos Otis singled, took second on an infield out and rode home on Ed Kirkpatrick's single.

The Royals picked up an insurance run in the eighth when Rico Carty drove in four runs for the Braves—three of them on an eighth inning homer that broke the game open, as Atlanta whipped San Diego.

Pat Jarvis hurled a five-hitter and Bob Tillman added a bases-empty homer for the Braves.

Cincinnati won its third straight with Jim McGlothlin beating the Dodgers in his National League debut.

Bobby Tolan tripled and singled, driving in two of the Reds' runs and Clay Carroll nailed down the victory, stopped the Dodgers after McGlothlin tired in the eighth.

Richie Allen staged an explosive debut for St. Louis, walloping a homer and two doubles in the Cards' victory over Montreal.

Allan scored the first St. Louis run after doubling in the fourth, then tied the game with a homer in the eighth and drove in two more runs with his ninth inning double.

Bob Gibson, with ninth-inning help from Chuck Taylor, was the winner, allowing just five hits—only two after the first inning.

Bill Voss drove in four runs with a triple, two doubles and a single to pace California past Milwaukee. Voss singled home a run in the first, doubled home another in the third, tripled one across in the eighth and knocked in his fourth with a ninth-inning double.

Giant Super-strategy Pays Off

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

There were the San Francisco Giants trailing Houston 4-3 with two out and nobody on in the bottom of the eighth inning Wednesday night.

The Giants had lost their pioneer in the Astro Tuesday and clearly, something had to be done fast. It was.

Hal Lanier singled and moved up on a wild pitch Steve Whitaker delivered a pinch double for one run. Now the wheels started turning in earnest Manager Clyde King sent up left-handed Bob Burda, who had six homers and 27 RBIs last year to bat for righty Bobby Bonds (32 homers, 90 RBIs last season).

That move so shook Houston skipper Harry Walker that he yanked righty Jack Billingham for southpaw Jack DiLauro. King played the percentage game all the way, sending up righty Ron Hunt to pinch hit for pinch hitter Burda. Naturally, it worked.

Hunt singled the tying run across and moments later scampered home with the winner on rookie Allan Gallagher's double.

Elsewhere Wednesday, Atlanta thumped San Diego 6-1, Cincinnati tritmmed Los Angeles 5-2 and St. Louis took Montreal 7-2 in the only games scheduled.

In the only American League action, Baltimore edged Cleveland 3-2, California dropped Milwaukee 6-1, Detroit blanked Washington 3-0 and Kansas City shut out Oakland 2-0.

Until the managerial wheels began squeaking, the Giants and Astros had been engaged in a long ball duel. Dick Dietz tagged a two-run homer for San Francisco and Doug Rader and pinch hitter Jim Beauchamp—a strategy coup by Walker—cracked Houston homers.

Palmer Sniffling, But Claims Nothing Cold About His Golf

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Arnold Palmer sniffled and snorted with a bad cold and announced that his golf game "is sounder than it has been in five years opening the Masters. Coming from a four-time champion, it sounded like a warning to all the rest.

Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and 80 other golfers, including Toronto's George Knudson, started today in the 34th fight in win the Masters tournament at Augusta National Club.

"I feel physically up to it," said the 40-year-old Palmer.

"Although I'm not hitting the ball better than past years, my over-all game has as much muscle as, well . . . as it did in the early 1960s."

Palmer won the Masters in 1958-60-62-64.

"I can't think of many things I want more than a fifth Masters," he said. "Sure, I'd like to have a PGA championship, too, since I've never won that one. But I'm eager to see what happens at Augusta National this week."

The rolling Augusta National course is a subject of controversy. Some, like Bruce Devlin and Dan Sikes, say it appears in poorer shape than any of their past years here. Nicklaus, on the other hand, says it's not as pretty but is super for pure golf.

"The greens are fast and I'll be the happiest cat around if they're like greased lightening and experience comes into play. When experience comes into play, I think I'll be among those with an advantage."

Jack and his close pal from amateur golf days, Deane Beman, agreed that the greens are slicker for this Masters than any since 1963.

Baseball Joins Computer Crowd

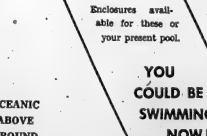
SEATTLE (AP) — Baseball may be entering the age of dial-a-lineup when a manager can tell a computer the other team's pitcher and find out the best batting order to use against him.

The time might not be that far off, because a Seattle computer analysis firm already has such a program worked out and is positive it can help a team win 20 more games a year.

What's more, the system might go even further into baseball and a general manager will use computer analysis to determine which players in the minors will make it to the major leagues.

One team already has expressed interest in the possibility, say officials of Systems Analysis, Inc., of Seattle. The firm, which prides itself on its creative approach to the computer age, has made trial runs to see if the system would work. They say it would.

"We're still negotiating with an eastern team about it," said Perry Sikes, head of SAI's research and development section.



"We estimate that it would mean 20 more victories a year, or we take three," he added.

Obviously, managers now use what they consider the best lineup possible. The big difference is a computer's ability to amass factors ranging from a player's past performance to the weather. Another factor is human predictability, Sikes commented. Psychological tests indicate humans are very predictable.

"We've looked at the possibility of using computers in scouting and we believe it can be done," he said. "Human behavior and reactions are among the most predictable things in the world. A computer would be able to use factors scouts can't even begin to use to make predictions."

The system would cost a team perhaps $100,000 a year, depending on how much a team used it. But a team's expenses likely would be reduced if the system lives up to SAI's expectations.

Lacrosse Jrs. Open May 31

The Quinte Lacrosse Association last night set an opening date of May 31st for their summer schedule with the Belleville Juniors' first home game will be played Monday, June 1st.

A constitution and schedule were adopted for the six - team league, with the top four to meet in playoffs. Among the league entries are Trenton, Cobourg and Picton.

The league set a signing date of July 1st for competing players and will allow 17 to dress for a game.

A clinic for lacrosse referees will be held at the Recreation Centre this Sunday from 1-3 p.m.

Raising Cain

Belvedere centre Elmer Cain swings around Aluminum Star rearguard Don Robson in Quinte Hockey League play-off action. Cain scored three goals and assisted on another to pace the Holelmen to a 4-2 win and leave them one game away from the league championship.

Hotelmen Win from Title

Elmer Raises Cain with Stars

Elmer Cain showed the form that won him the league scoring championship last night and the Aluminum Stars are hoping that he postpones any future demonstrations indefinitely.

The classy Belvedere centre fired three goals and added an assist to lead his team to a 4-2 victory over Aluminum Star and move them to within one game of the Quinte Hockey League championship. The Hotelmen's best series loss in the opening game was only the fourth defeat that they've suffered this season.

Doug Hollson combed Jo Cain's first period pass to open the scoring and Belvedere went on to build up a 3-0 lead at the end of two frames. Markers by Errol Johnston and Bill Rushlow brought the Stars to within one goal of the winners before Cain added his final tally.

The Belvedere defence played a strong game in front of Dave Hicks despite the fact that regular Doug Morson missed the game because of an arm injury. Morson was voted the league's most valuable defenceman over the regular season.

The winners picked up five penalties against a pair for Aluminum Star. Belvedere will be looking to wrap up the series in a 8.30 battle tonight.

Bears Hug for 20th Reunion

Belleville's Ayeon which has withstood the rocking and socking of a winter's hockey season faces its stiffest test this Sunday, when its well-weathered rafters will be assailed with the huffing and puffing of the Belleville Bears junior hockey team of 1943-46 vintage.

Combining over five centuries of hockey experience the "vet set" will wheeze into their 20th annual reunion at 1 p.m. Sunday. Hoping to manoeuvre their wheel chairs out of the reach of flailing sticks and crutches in the inter-team battle will be three brother combinations, including Jack and Harry Wardaugh, Bernie and Al Meagher and Doug and Bob Green.

Among the other combatants planning to substitute experience for conditioning will be Don Barrett, John Semark, Pork York, Bill Holway, Huck Reeves, Art Plumley, Reddy Lyle, Doug Day and Jim Markle.

"I think most of the guys will be there," states one of the greybeards. "A few miss because of sickness or job commitments but practically all of them have turned up at one time or another."

Coach of the team, Toots Holway, has passed away since the time when the unit was fighting on-ice battles of a more serious nature, along with Jerry Mosher, Hance Bush and Bill Grentrix.

Included among the club executives are Monty Reid, Bill Dennis, Wally Berry, Tom Florey, Jack Doran and Don Lee.

Rumor has it that slapshots, cross-checks and motorized skates have all been declared illegal in the game, which will conclude on-ice activity at the arena for the season.

Carmel Bantams Going 'A'

Carmel Peewees have expanded operations, competing this season in a league with Trenton, Port Hope, Cobourg, Orono and Kendal, while the Thurlow district's bantam baseballers came under new management.

Jerry Mann has taken over the coaching duties of the Carmel bantams, with Gernie Adams as manager and Larry Adams as assistant coach. The bantams, who lack competition in their own section will be forced to play against "A" division teams.

Both teams, who are currently under membership, will be holding an organizational meeting at Harmony Public School next Thursday at 7 p.m.

Odds Favor Quinte Curling Hex

While the 12 - year jinx against repeat winners in the Quinte Closing Mixed Bonspiel hasn't won out yet, it's holding 7-1 odds to stay unbroken for at least another year.

Bill Riley is the only remaining skip of the eight rinks left in first event competition who was a previous winner. Riley captured the Northern Electric Trophy in 1968.

Tonight's play will see the elimination of some teams from competition, with every rink having played at least three games.

Rinks skipped by Jim Petricrew, Dave Brown, Doug Bennett and Goldie Livingstone stayed in the running for the second event title with wins last night.

Finals begin at 4 p.m. Saturday with the presentation of the trophies coming at 11 o'clock Saturday night.

Softball Meeting Monday

The Commercial Softball League will be holding an organizational meeting at the Sergeants' Mess in the Belleville Armories on Monday evening.

Election of officers and the receiving of team entries will be the major items on the agenda. It is expected that there will be seven or eight teams in operation this season with City Hotel, Point Anne, Corby's, Richard Ellis Juniors and Stinson's as almost certain returnees. It is not known whether Black Diamond or Belvedere Hotel will be fielding teams this season.

Time of the meeting is 7 p.m.

Speedway Field Already at Line

While opening day won't be until Sunday, April 19, top 'bo-cal drivers are "lining up" already for the start of competition at the Shannonville Speedway.

Top area stock car drivers already entered in the first meet are Everett Baldwin, Belleville; Paul Butcher, Napanee; Bill Card, Kingston; George Pettingill and Gary Sheffield of Picton.

Entry deadline to ensure full purse benefits for opening day is Sunday, April 12.

Frontenacs Must Win On Road

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Kingston Frontenacs forced a seventh and deciding game in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior B semi-final series Wednesday night, beating Hamilton Mountain Bees 6-4.

Final game is Friday night at Hamilton.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P., Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: When my husband gave up smoking he became nervous. Our doctor prescribed tranquilizers. He told him to take one or two a day for only two weeks. But I happen to know he has been swallowing six to eight every day for the past two months, without our doctor's knowledge. Can they harm him? — Mrs. H.

Comment: Large doses of tranquilizers may be harmful. But, not knowing the dosage in his case, I can't express an definite opinion.

But this question comes up: Where is he getting all the pills? Is he bootlegging them? Many people do. They get prescriptions filled after several visits to a few doctors — but admitting that they already have been taking tranquilizers..

I don't want to preach old sermons, but such self-treatment can be dangerous. See if you can get your husband to follow your own doctor's advice. If he does, chances are he won't be taking so many pills every day.

* * *

Q. For Mrs. A.: There is reason enough why the plastic surgeon you consulted refuses to use silicone injections to increase the size of your breasts. It is this: the U.S. government does not now license its use for such injections.

Another reason: it is not effective treatment. The injected material does not stay in place. It tends to sag and become lumpy.

* * *

For Mrs. E.: A mumps vaccine has now been perfected and approved by the government. If available, and recommended by your doctor, it can be given to children over 1 year of age.

As for cysts, a skin test will tell whether or not they are immune. At this time we are not sure how long immunity lasts. When mumps attacks older children and young adults, there is always the possibility that there may be complications in the reproductive organs. Therefore, susceptible people should seek advice regarding vaccination with the mumps vaccine.

* * *

For Mrs. T.: It is true that the condition of nipples used on baby's feeding bottles is often overlooked by otherwise conscientious young mothers. Nipples should not be so soft that they collapse and interfere with the milk flow. Nor should they be stiff and hard enough to make the infant work very hard to get his nourishment out of the bottle. When in doubt, show them to the doctor and let him make the decision whether or not to change nipples.

* * *

For Mrs. D.: A cystocele is a hernia of the bladder. It protrudes into the vagina. One cause may be a very difficult labor and a tear. Fortunately, tears are usually carefully repaired. Another cause may be the weakening of pelvic tissues as one grows older. If a cystocele occurs, operation to overcome it is usually simple and effective.

* * *

For Miss Z.: Mother is right. If she squeeze pimples hard, especially if they are red and infected, you're liable to spread them. Better to daub with alcohol occasionally and leave them alone.

As they bother you so much, I am surprised that neither you nor your mother have asked your doctor's advice. It's better to have him on your side in the stubborn fight against acne — even though he may not be able to help right away.

U.S. Eases Transfers Of Canadian Executives

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon signed into law Wednesday a bill designed to expedite transfers of executives and managers for foreign companies to branch offices or affiliates in the United States.

Sponsors said they were particularly concerned about protests from Canada over long delays in admission of such business personnel to the U.S.

The bill would establish a new non-immigrant classification for any alien employee abroad for one year and who is seeking entry to the U.S. to work for the same firm.

Imperial Oil Hits Tax Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. of Toronto, biggest petroleum corporation in Canada, complained Wednesday that the government proposals would raise its tax bill and possibly kill such projects as development of the Athabasca oil sands in northern Alberta.

Imperial joined a parade of protesting companies before the Senate banking committee to a study of government tax-change proposals presented last November.

W. O. Twaits, Imperial's president, zeroed in specifically on proposals to abolish in stages the present three-year tax holiday for new mines and oil wells and to change the system of applying another special tax relief known as depletion allowance.

"Taken together, the two proposals, if enacted, would so reduce the attractiveness of our oil sands project that they would almost certainly kill it and in so doing largely eliminate any chance of the further development of this mammoth mineral resource," said Mr. Twaits.

Senator John Connolly (L—Ontario) asked Mr. Twaits whether the government tax proposals would prompt Imperial to shift exploration activities outside of Canada. He said minding company he had said they would move out of Canada to kinder tax jurisdictions. . . .

Mr. Twaits, whose company is the Canadian arm in the worldwide operations of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, said there is nothing in the government tax proposals that would make Imperial move abroad. . .

"If we moved out, somebody else would move in," he added.

Asked how that would come about, Mr. Twaits said foreign companies would have an advantage because of easier taxes in their own countries. . . .

Mr. Twaits said Canada should adopt the United States system of tax relief for oil producing companies. . . .

Government-owned Company May Fold

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

HALIFAX, N.S. (CP) — Thee Nova Scotia legislature was told Wednesday that government-backed Clairtone Sound Corp. may have to be sold within eight months if it fails to establish a money-making product.

The Stellarton, N.S., plant, backed by then-premier Robert Stanfield as a "dramatic example" of economic development when it opened in 1966, has since lost a total of $17,921,061.

Company President G. A. MacDonald told the legislature's industry committee the firm's future depends on the success of sub-contract work and a pre-production run of solid-state television sets expected to start April 20.

The company, controlled by Industrial Estates Ltdg the province's Crown corporation, was turned over to the provincial government last month in the wake of continuing losses and drop in the Stellarton work force to the present 50 from a peak of 900.

Mr. MacDonald said Clairtone's two subsidiaries—Strathroy Industries and Middlesex Furniture Co. in Strathroy, Ont. —showed a combined loss of $129,911 in 1969 which was included in the over-all loss figure. The two plants currently employ 106 persons.

Funds Supposed To Reduce Risks

By KEN MANT
(Copyright, 1976, Toronto Telegram Syndicate)

What is an investor really buying when he or she invests in a mutual fund?

There are other considerations, but mostly an investor is buying an individual fund's dedication to the principle of reducing investment risk.

Why do they do so well? you ask.

The fact is they don't, at least not as well as they could.

The unsophisticated investor who expects his fund's management to be all-knowing in investment decisions is in for a shock, according to two professors who studied the performance of 23 funds between 1960 and 1969.

Although the 23 funds did better than the average industrial investor, they earned only 25 per cent of the maximum return possible on a "perfect portfolio" during the six - year period.

Some funds showed as much as 39 per cent of the maximum possible, and the average was considerably above the 25 per cent maximum return that the Royal Commission on banking found was average for the individual Canadian investor.

These findings, and others relating to Canadian mutual funds, were published in a recent issue of the Canadian Chartered Accountant. The researchers were David Quirin and William Waters, both economics professors at the University of Toronto.

They conclude that much of the funds' failure to make the maximum possible profit for their shareholders was caused by dedication to the principle of reducing investment risk rather than increasing yields.

The professors say this is what the investor is really buying when he or she invests in a managed fund.

"Perfect-hindsight" portfolios were selected from a random sample of 76 stocks listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange to test the mutuals' performance.

But even the professors acknowledge that stock market forecasting is no longer fact art. Figuring out the money you could have made may be interesting, but it hasn't much chance in the future of being translated into real dollars and cents.

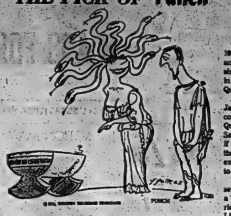
The professors also reiterate the mutual funds' claim that there is a long-term investment that does not pay off for the in-and-outer.

The researchers show that a person who invests in mutual funds through a life insurance policy will need to wait 10 years before he or she could realize a gain on the purchases.

In a fund where sales charges are prepaid, a person will need to wait five years.

In a par — as you go fund, a person can make a profit after a year, but it would only amount to 1.7 per cent.

After 20 years, however, the funds' returns are brighter: one per cent for the pay-as-you-go, 9.5 per cent for the prepaid, and 4.9 per cent for the insurance-policy funds.



"Mutual funds have provided a useful medium for equity investment by many investors whose holdings would in all likelihood be restricted to debt instruments if mutual funds were not available," the researchers assert.

They say the funds generally provide yields above those earned on bonds, at "acceptable levels of risk," and are also a useful hedge against inflation.

Whatever the return on their money, Canadians are continuing to invest increasingly in mutual funds. The Canadian Mutual Funds Association, comprised of 44 of the largest funds, says shareholders increased by 20 per cent last year to a record 944,171.

They received dividends totalling $49,798,222 — about $400,000 more than in 1968, and bought $321,611,000 worth of fund shares, a record amount and about $175,000,000 more than in 1968.

THE PICK OF Punch

"Look, darling, her first smile."

Molotov Cocktail Dropped

OTTAWA (CP) — A small bottle of oil, wrapped in rags, was dropped down a stairwell in the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings Wednesday, but the resulting fire did not cause any damage or injuries.

Don Blais, a 46-year-old maintenance worker in the building, said he was standing five or six feet away when the bottle struck the marble floor and burst into flames. "It went out in two or three minutes," he said.

Levesque Is Critical

Promise of Jobs Under Attack

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier of 200,000 new jobs by 1971 and financial stability for Quebec drew sharp attacks Wednesday night in campaigning for the April 29 Quebec general election.

Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, told a meeting of 300 people in his riding of Montreal Laurier that Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa is misleading Quebecers by promising 100,000 new jobs.

"A hundred thousand jobs is beautiful in one year. But where and how will he create them?"

The last time Quebec produced 100,000 jobs in a single year was in 1965 during the "super-prosperity" period of construction for Expo 67, Mr. Levesque said.

But things are different in 1976, he added in his two-hour-and-16-minute speech during which about one third of his audience trickled out.

Mr. Bourassa told a group of 200 Liberal supporters in Lorraineville, a small town in remote Temiscouingue riding, that Creditiste solutions to the province's economic problems are illogical and impractical.

He said Creditiste Leader Cecil Samson promises both tax reductions and increased spending which will amount to millions of dollars.

The Liberal leader called Union Nationale cabinet ministers "hardened Santa Clauses" whose many promises are "ill-considered, repetitious and irresponsible."

Mr. Samson told a Trefford Mines audience of what his Creditiste have in store for Quebecers if the party forms the next government.

A sample:

—Besides the $5,000 exemption for married persons, single men and women will have a basic income tax exemption of $2,500;

—Old-age pensions of $139 a month will be provided for both husband and wife if the breadwinner is 60 or over;

—Grants of $50 a month will go to all students 18 or over;

—The provincial sales tax will gradually be abolished.

Premier Bertrand's helicopter pilot decided to make an impromptu landing in a muddy field about six miles outside of Aylmer, just west of Ottawa, because the planned arrival spot on an Aylmer race track was packed with several hundred persons.

Mr. Bertrand, and his entourage that included Marcel Masse, minister of intergovernmental affairs, went the rest of the way by car.

Earlier in Mansfield, 90 miles north of Aylmer, the premier shook hands, kissed cheeks and signed autographs while youngsters swarmed around the 35-year-old Mr. Masse.

In Aylmer, Mr. Bertrand told reporters: "We're very fortunate to have arrived, and for this I thank God."

Ameliasburg Museum Grows

An addition to the rear of the historical museum at Ameliasburg will provide a workshop and storage space needed to house continuing donations to collection. Engine in foreground is from England, and is one of the first upright gasoline models manufactured around the turn of the century. It was donated to the museum by Howard Weese of Carrying Place.

Drama Criticism Displeases Critic

OTTAWA (CP) — The Dominion Drama Festival says it shares a growing concern about Canada's news media and "we regard with particular dismay the coverage or the lack thereof of responsibly prepared materials dealing with the performing arts, especially drama and more particularly amateur drama."

The problem appears mainly to be a lack of people qualified "in any sense of the word" to write about theatre. And with a few exceptions, that applies to larger urban areas too, says a submission to the Senate special committee inquiry into the mass media.

The brief prepared by Dr. John A. MacPherson of the drama festival's national office is one on which no personal appearance will be made before the committee headed by Senator Keith Davey, Toronto Liberal.

"The simplistic approach of most critics that criticism and damnation are synonomous is lamentable and intolerable," says the brief.

"Such conduct is reminiscent of late-night movies—usually made in the 1930s—about newspapers and their sensationalist reporters intent more on promotion than fact.

"There is probably not a newspaper of even modest size which does not take the reportage of sports, professional or amateur, with some serious zest."

And, adds the brief, sports-writers are so "fiercely loyal to their calling" that criticism of an athletic performance is hard to find.

"But it would seem that the performing arts, especially drama whether professional or amateur, do not enjoy such benevolence."

There has been heartening growth in the numbers of professional and amateur theatrical companies across the country, the brief says.

But the tone of general theatrical criticism can hardly inspire enthusiasm among young and non-professional actors for an "art which is the brunt of so much misconceived and ill-advised reporting and criticism."

Carswell's Rejection Hurts GOP

WASHINGTON (CP) — The crushing Senate rejection of Supreme Court nominee G. Harrold Carswell loomed today as a major factor in November's congressional elections. There were hints that defecting Republicans might have trouble unlocking party campaign chests.

The 51-to-45 vote against the Florida jurist Wednesday was the most serious blow dealt to President Nixon by Congress so far. The White House was gloomy and a spokesman said Nixon was naturally disappointed and had no one in mind at present to be his third nominee to fill the seat.

The defeat of Carswell, who said he would stay on as a judge on the Fifth Circuit court of appeals, followed Senate rejection in November of Nixon's first nominee, Judge Clement F. Haynsworth of South Carolina.

For Nixon, it was a personal as well as a political defeat. Not only did the senate turn down two of his nominees—the first time it has happened in this century—but 13 Republican senators went against him despite his personal intervention last week.

Republican senators now are urging Nixon to consult them before submitting another nomination.

The White House gave no hint of Nixon's third choice for the court vacancy.

London Council Vote May Give Clues About British Election

LONDON (CP) — Londoners vote today in a king-size municipal election which may yield vital clues about the crucial months ahead in British national politics.

A national election is due within about a year and a strong comeback by the Labor party in balloting for the Greater London Council may mean a June or autumn date for the countrywide poll.

For 23 years prior to the last election in 1967, Labor held a commanding grip on London municipal politics.

But Conservatives won a sweeping victory three years ago and today hold 91 out of the 100 council seats.

Although concerned with the local problems of sprawling London, the triennial council balloting usually is interpreted as a slap or kudo for the national government.

Thus Labor Prime Minister Wilson will keep a close eye on the outcome of this year's race.

The election follows months of bitter debate among the capital's 8,000,000 residents about such pressing questions as a roads program which threatened widespread demolition of homes in the interests of gargantuan networks of expressways.

Both the minority Liberal party and a group of hard-talking independents tried to cash in on concern over the roadways situation.

The Liberals and the major parties put up candidates for all 100 seats. There were almost 200 candidates, counting independents. A total of 5,200,000 were eligible to vote, but a heavy turnout was not expected.

For April 10

Your birthday today: Your desire to consolidate and reorganize your life and your holdings leads to achievement this year. Everything you do takes more energy than you habitually put forth, thus creating new challenges for you. The wisdom most needed now is the judgment of what is essential and what is merely expensive for by own sake.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The past head rather than muscles now. Conferences, travel, visits are more likely to be successful.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Changes you have been planning for a long while can go into effect now with the least amount of fuss.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Sociable activity brings virtual interest into all departments of your life today. Look around for connections and ideas — keep rather complete notes of details.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take yourself out of the centre of the scene. Let others show off while you quietly make arrangements which are needed to keep everything running.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Formal occasions come off well today. People arriving from far places bring new interesting opportunities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Everything you do today is quite readily visible to all who care, so make the best of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct 22): Press any legal matters you may have in mind. Allow for time to think where you are going, what sort of work you want to make for yourself in both near future and long range.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Financing and refinancing are favored. Rearrange your assets, take inventory. Your work now should attract attention and perhaps added rewards.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Close collaboration is easier today. Make a joint appeal for better working conditions. Charter a group for an independent venture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Use your best salesmanship. Try out your ability to persuade people to go along with you — assuring you have given thought to programs for action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Partnership ventures in general thrive, even where rivalry (shun) is much for granted.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Anyone you have to see will be heard so make a good job of it, or keep very quiet.

Canada's Jurisdiction In Arctic Disputed

Children Buried
Funeral Brings Wave of Fury

CAIRO (Reuters) — Fury swept through Egypt and the rest of the Arab world Thursday as grieving parents buried 30 school children who, the Egyptians charge, were killed in an Israel air strike Wednesday on the Nile Delta town of Bahr el-Bakr.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser was under strong pressure to order reprisals against Israel, which stuck by its insistence that only Egyptian military targets had been hit in the raid.

Some of the 76 other civilians who, the Egyptians say, were injured in the attack—30 of whom also are children—were reported in critical condition Thursday and fears grew that the final death toll would soar.

More than twice as many civilians died during an Israeli raid on a metals factory outside Cairo Feb. 12, but the emotional impact of the death of the children has been much greater.

At the United Nations Wednesday, Egyptian Ambassador Mohmed el Zayyad charged that United States military assistance had made the raid possible.

The Lebanese newspaper Sawt-al-Auruba echoed the accusation and said "photographs of the child victims of the Phantom (aircraft) bombs will constitute a storm of international violent wrath that will rock not only the White House but the strongholds of imperialism wherever they are."

A Palestinian Arab commando organization warned in Damascus, Syria, it would strike at civilian targets inside Israel in retaliation.

A spokesman for Saiqa said the organization "will make the Zionist enemy pay dearly for (Wednesday's) bombing of a school in the United Arab Republic."

In Tel Aviv, Israeli officials said Egypt was to blame for Wednesday's tragedy because it appeared the Egyptian authorities bussed children in the compound of a military installation.

ATHENS (Reuters) — Premier George Papadopoulos lifted today some restrictions placed on Greece since his 1967 coup but said the country was not ready to return to parliamentary rule.

His liberalization measures, announced at a news conference, included restoration of constitutional protection against arbitrary arrest.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A storm centre moving across northern Ontario into Quebec continues to feed cold air southward over the entire province. Cloud and snowshowers accompany the cold flow particularly to the lee of the lakes. This circulation will continue during the day, then slack off by evening. High pressure will move over the Great Lakes Saturday bringing clearing conditions.

U.S. 'Regrets' Canadian Move

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has termed "regrettable" proposed Canadian legislation to control Arctic waters and warned that the U.S. does not recognize jurisdictions of other countries over its ships on the high seas.

The statement Thursday by a state department spokesman, the strongest yet on the Arctic sovereignty issue, made clear the U.S. will stick to the three-mile territorial limit now in force by both Canada and the U.S.

"The U.S. does not recognize the right of any state unilaterally to establish a territorial sea of more than three miles," said press spokesman Robert McCloskey, "or to exercise more limited jurisdiction in any area beyond 12 miles.

"Therefore we regret the introduction of this legislation by the Canadian government which in our view constitutes a unilateral approach to a problem we believe should be solved by cooperative international action.

"The U.S. does not recognize any exercise of coastal states' jurisdiction over our vessels on the high seas."

The state department reaction followed by one day the announcement of the proposed Canadian legislation to extend Canadian sovereignty 12 miles out to sea and establish Canadian jurisdiction up to 100 miles offshore over shipping in Arctic waters.

Up to now both the U.S. and Canada observed the three-mile limit plus an additional nine miles for fishing rights. A state department official here recently suggested a 12-mile territorial limit if it could be agreed to internationally.

McCloskey said that both governments had discussed the issue over a long period and that "the Canadian government

Cross-fire Kills 100 Villagers

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — At least 100 men, women and children of Vietnamese descent were killed when they were caught in a cross-fire between Cambodian and Viet Cong forces Thursday night, witnesses said today.

Journalists returning from Prasaut village, near the South Vietnamese border, said 200 other persons were wounded.

They reported seeing the bodies of 84 women and children lying near a compound into which all people of Vietnamese origin had been herded after an identity check Thursday.

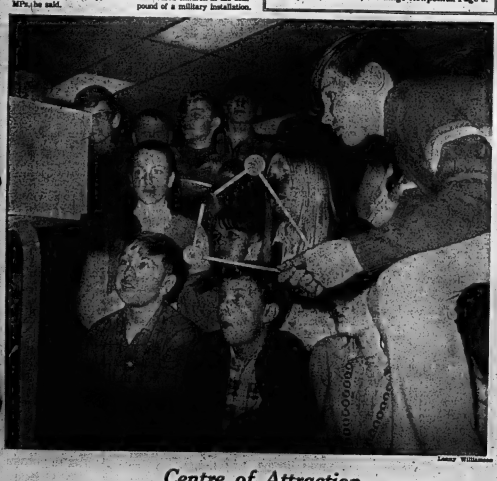
A witness reported that military officials in Svey Rieng town, about 80 miles southeast of here, said the civilians were caught in the crossfire following a Viet Cong attack on the village.

Hees Wants Plans Told MPs First

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MP George Hees told the Canadian Association of Broadcasters today the federal government should make all major policy announcements in the Commons where they can be debated and clarified instead of presenting them at news conferences in a one-sided fashion.

Mr. Hees, the member for Prince Edward-Hastings, also said the auditor-general's staff should be enlarged and his authorities "as the watchdog of federal spending" widened.

Information Canada, the government's centralized information agency set up April 1, will cost taxpayers between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000 and will be mainly a propaganda tool for government, Mr. Hees said.



An independent "watchdog" should be appointed to supervise the activities of Information Canada.

The government could also improve the dissemination of information by answering the questions passed on the Commons order paper by opposition MPs, he said.

Jean Marchand Joins Montreal Mail Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Progress in solving the Montreal postal dispute remained slow Thursday despite another spirited demonstration on Parliament Hill.

The government is still deadlocked with union leaders over the terms of entry into post office employment of mail truck drivers formerly employed by a private contractor.

Late in the afternoon, following a Parliament Hill demonstration of solidarity by close to 1,000 union members, wives and supporters from Montreal, a further meeting was arranged between union leaders and treasury board president C. M. Drury.

The talks included for the first time Jean Marchand, Regional Economic Expansion minister and former president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

The sticking point remained the CNTU's insistence that the drivers keep their present union and enter the post office as a separate bargaining unit. The government has repeated that such a procedure would contravene its existing staff-relations laws and Mr. Drury said following the meeting it would result in "administrative chaos."

Paul McCartney Leaves Beatles

LONDON (AP) — Songwriter Paul McCartney today split off from the Beatles but said he may be back.

This first open rift in the world's top pop group was announced from Apple, the company which manages Beatle affairs.

Paul, 27-year-old composer, lead guitarist and singer, blamed the break on "personal differences, business differences, musical differences — but most of all because I have a better time with my family."

McCartney is married to American photographer Linda Eastman. They have a seven - month - old daughter, Mary. Linda has another daughter, Heather, by an earlier marriage.

McCartney said he does not know whether the rift is permanent.

Mavis Smith, the company's spokesman, admitted today that it is months since McCartney saw John Lennon, his songwriter partner, and fellow Beatles Ringo Starr and George Harrison.

Apollo's Fate Known Today

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Three astronauts, including a last-minute rookie substitute on whom everything depends, learn today only 24 hours before the scheduled blastoff whether they will leave for the moon Saturday.

The 2:13 p.m. EST Apollo 13 launch was left a cliff-hanger pending a decision on whether John L. Swigert Jr., the stop-gap replacement, can mesh talent and personality with prime crew members, James A. Lovell and Fred W. Haise.

If not, the flight will be postponed until May 8 at a cost of $320,000.

The decision was to be made by Thomas O. Paine, administrator of the U.S. space agency, this afternoon after evaluating Swigert's performance in a four-hour rehearsal session today.

Thomas K. Mattingly II, who had the misfortune not to be immune to German measles to which he was exposed, was all but ruled out of the mission Thursday. Physicians figured they would be taking too much of a chance sending him on the 10-day flight.

While Swigert worked out in simulators with his new crewmates, the sleek, 363-foot high Saturn V rocket was being readied as if no uncertainties existed about its human cargo.

The preparations were on schedule. The weather was forecast to be scattered clouds with no rain.

Trenton Shutdown

National Economy Slowdown Catches Up with GE Plant

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Canadian General Electric Company Ltd. announced Thursday afternoon that a national economic slow down has forced the company to close its Trenton plant for a two - week period beginning April 28.

A company spokesman said that all manufacturing departments employees would be affected but that the exact number is not known yet.

He also said that the slowdown of the economy was affecting other Canadian electric plants across the province. (There are 34) and would result in "some permanent layoffs" at the Trenton plant.

However he declined to reveal the number of permanent layoffs in the offing.

This morning a spokesman for local 525 of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America beyond being aware of a planned move by government and business to force the economy into a slump, had no comment.

He said that more than 150 of the 1 170 hourly workers employed by the plant Thursday would be out of work during the two-week shutdown, with the warehousing and maintenance staffs the least affected.

In addition, the local union spokesman noted that the company announced a 12 per cent pre-shutdown layoff to its employees yesterday.

This would affect about 23 workers, the union spokesman said.

"A planned reduction in manufacturing which began in February will cause 79 permanent layoffs by summer," the union spokesman said, "reducing the Trenton plant's labor force by almost one-third since January."

"A further one-week layoff planned to immediately precede the annual two-week holiday shutdown in July will combine with the forthcoming shutdown to almost completely nullify the initial 27 cent hourly wage increase. Trenton employees received in the recently negotiated two-year contract," the union spokesman asserted.

The pending shutdown is the first since General Electric opened its plant here in May, 1966 to manufacture washing machines and dryer products.

Both company and union representatives stressed that yesterday Ottawa's withdrawal from the electronic tube product sacrificing plant in Canada will not affect the Trenton plant.

The shutdowns will affect GE plants in Bayrie, which close down today for two weeks, and Toronto, the union representatives declared.

The union spokesman expressed concern over the situation in Trenton and said that the union will ask local members of the provincial legislature and the House of Commons in review both the local and national scene in the Canadian electrical industry.

Rubble Pile All That Is Left of Milford Barn

Cattle Lost in PE Fire

MILFORD — Fire spread through a barn belonging to the Wes Stock Farms, RR 2, Milford - at noon yesterday, killing 18 head of dairy cattle and causing an estimated $30,000 damage.

Owner of the frame barn, Sam Way, discovered the blaze as it raced out of control, threatening the farm home and nearby outbuildings. He joined with his son, Laverne, and several neighbors in dousing adjoining sheds and barns with water to prevent flames from spreading. The burning barn, partially covered by insurance, was a total loss. Cause of the blaze is undetermined.

Destroyed in the fire was a palomino pony owned and shown extensively in the Quinte area by Brenda Way. A loss of about 300 bales of hay also was reported.

The Way Stock Farm is located in South Marysburg township about 10 miles south of Picton.

Although South Marysburg and Athol townships recently decided to amalgamate in a cost - sharing fire fighting force, both municipalities still lack fire protection. Outlining the proposal for fire protection services, South Marysburg councillor A. G. Ford explained that an auxiliary pump, 800 feet of hose, and an 850 gallon tank to be installed on a truck chassis would be purchased.

For less than $3,000, councillors from both townships expect to outfit a fire fighting force comprised of volunteers. Telephone alarms will be centrally located in Milford and Cherry Valley. Initial load costs of the fire department will represent approximately a one mill tax raise for each township.

Since most of the necessary fire fighting equipment will be bought during the brigade's first year of operation, costs will drop in future years. Athol and South Marysburg are centrally located near one another and roads are readily accessible in the event of a fire alarm.

New Shape to Area Skies Arrives at 4:30 Today

TRENTON — New Shapes take to Quinte skies today.

Today at approximately 4.30 p.m. three of Canada's new Boeing 707 long - range jets will arrive here at their new home — CFB Trenton.

The jets, which, with a cruising speed of 600 miles an hour, will become the fastest planes stationed at Air Transport Command headquarters here. They will be manned by 437 squadron crews on their return from a Pacific route conversion training course at Boeing's Seattle plant.

At further periods, the lead jet piloted by Lt.-Col. J. G. Wyne, the squadron's commanding officer, will make a flypast over the base before landing.

At present, it appears all systems are go for the flypast. The duty forecaster at CFB Trenton reports a mainly sunny weather with light winds and temperatures in the high forties for the afternoon. Winds will be from the northwest at 20 miles an hour with gusts to 30 miles an hour.

Accompanying Lt.-Col. J. G. Wyne of Innisfail, Alta., in the lead plane will be first officer, Captain D. M. Truscon of Lindsay, flight engineer, Warrant Officer C. A. Bailey of Pembroke, B.C. and second flight engineer, Sgt. J. HIM of York, Scotland.

Captain R. A. Lest of Hamilton, commanding the second jet, will be joined by first officer, Major C. L. Ash of Essex, Ontario, and flight engineer, Sgt. C. O. Herr of Vancouver, B.C.

Crew members of the third jet will be aircraft commander, Capt. L. R. Clarke of Hope, B.C., first officer, Capt. L. M. Vaughan of Vernon, B.C. and flight engineer, Warrant Officer R. E. Anderson of Shesaswan, Saskatchewan.

Brigadier - general D. R. Adamson, director of general operations from Ottawa, and a former commander at Trenton, is expected to provide the keynote address during changes at the base to accommodate the new jets. The will follow a press briefing.

The fourth Boeing is expected to arrive in Trenton later this month after its crew completes their seven-week training course in Seattle, Washington.

The defence department announced purchase of the four Boeing 707 long - range jets from for $25,900,000 in early February. They will replace the 12 turboprop Yukons in service since 1961.

After a brief trial, the Boeings will be put into service by Prime Minister Trudeau announced he will use one of the Boeings for his May 16-29 Asian tour. Crew selection for the tour will be announced today.

Present plans call for the Yukon to be phased out by March 1971, as the Boeings assume their position in the modernization of the Canadian Armed Forces.

The four engine 707s have a greater load - carrying capacity, a higher speed and a greater reliability than the Yukons, say defence officials. The Boeings accommodates 189 passengers plus 14,100 pounds of freight or 81,600 pounds without passengers at a cruising speed of 600 miles per hour.

By comparison, the Yukon carries 136 - passengers or 34,000 pounds of freight at a cruising speed of 370 miles an hour.

New settings beget new approaches to traditional problems — something the students of Loyalist College proved yesterday.

Yesterday was the day for a mass student confrontation with authority at the three-year-old community college.

At Loyalist the accepted behavior pattern of collegiate confrontation was absent. Even the name was different.

They called it concord.

At least that's the name they gave the'event, when students, staff and members of the board of governors faced each other for much of the college day.

Concord Day was the inspiration of the college's students' administrative council. It was an attempt to bring all people involved with the campus together in one place to air beefs, or aim broadsides.

The end result: A crowded students' lounge for the highpoint of the program — a panel discussion that saw students trade queries and complaints with the people who run the college.

"This was the first attempt at obtaining feedback from the administration and the board of governors," explained council president Donald Carson.

"This time you've had the chance — not of confrontation, but of concord," summed up Loyalist president J. K. Bradford, one of the panelists fielding a multitude of questions. "But I do think this is a very valuable experience for all of us."

"Today is an excellent example of the way we can get a better line of communication throughout the college with the students and the college," commented John Dowden, a member of the board of governors who also fielded questions from the students.

"Loyalist is not just bricks and mortar. It's a student body. There's no good putting up a college unless the students are getting what's good for them."

Board chairman Frank Rabel described the exchange as providing "communication that is vital and important."

In all, the question-answer session lasted close to two hours.

In that span students, teachers and governors brushed out a wide spectrum of questions ranging from fees paid for student activities to sports.

Some of the nuggets extracted: It would cost Loyalist an estimated $50,000 a year to run a computer for use in programs an administration.

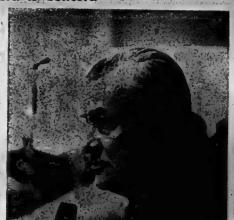
The college again is seeking a radar licence — after being rebuffed once by the transport department because of feared interference with CFB Trenton.

Possibility of an athletic director being appointed next year also is being probed by the administration.

Students even pressed for a seat on the board of governors.

Mr. Rabel said a student would be asked to report to the governors on Concord Day — the first student ever to attend a board meeting.

"That's a start," retorted a student. "But could we not have a representative stay on the board of governors constantly?"



Student panel moderator Ross Watts hoped students would "eventually be able to get a vote" on the board.

"I hope it's something that'll be looked into," he added.

Donald Carson noted that Concord Day had revealed a line of communication direct to the board.

Feedback would increase, he said. But Loyalist is a new college in a new educational system, and will take time to settle on a communication pattern between students and administrators.

"I think we've made great steps here today," he added.

P.M.'s Asian Tour

The cost to the Canadian taxpayer of Prime Minister Trudeau's forthcoming Asian tour will be heavy, but it must also be remembered that such a mission will benefit this country in many ways.

It will mean increased trade, on top of that already generated by the recent visit to Australia and New Zealand of Trade Minister Pepin, additional interest in Canada from prospective immigrants, and not least a cementing of relations between Canada and the countries the Prime Minister will visit.

The fact that one of the new Boeing 707 jets will be used to transport Mr. Trudeau, his staff and press members makes sense in light of the fact that the journey is a long one and this aircraft is one of the most reliable and commonly-used types in the world today. It will get the Prime Ministerial party to its several destinations at greater speed and in greater comfort than would the turbo-prop Yukon it replaces. Servicing facilities for the 707s are everywhere on the Prime Minister's route.

Economics, as ever, are a matter of concern to the public. Purchase of the four 707's has been made with this in mind, and ultimately, it is hoped this will pay dividends.

More on Movies

Violence in the movies and on television, to which we alluded the other day in an editorial on latter-day Hollywood, is of course nothing new.

Those of us born in the twenties can recall many a horror involving such Hollywood heavies as James Cagney, Edward G. Robinson, Brian Donlevy, Lloyd Nolan and George Raft.

Even the celebrated Mickey Rooney, we seem to recall, played the role of a "hard" on occasions; but that was late in his career, after that happy, strictly family fare Andy Hardy series, with Lewis Stone. It was "generation gap" stuff, but then no one had heard of that term then.

Mr. Rooney meanwhile is still going strong in his late forties and we learn that he is to spend Saturday night here in Belleville before flying to Germany from CFB Trenton, to entertain the men over there.

For our own part we seem to have survived a long series of film shootouts and other horrors going back to the thirties, not to mention practically all of the breathtaking fare served up by Errol Flynn, Douglas Fairbanks and Ronald Colman.

Of them all, perhaps the most chilling piece of cinema, one which still makes us shudder at the memory of it, was Edgar Wallace's The Crimson Circle. That — and Jack The Ripper. And the thought occurs that amidst all today's themes there are few emanating from Hollywood or anywhere else that are really funny any more, or pass for old-fashioned family entertainment. Gone too are the musicals — and much else besides.

Betsy's Example

When ski champion and Olympic gold medallist Betsy Clifford was admitted into Canada's Sports Hall of Fame at a ceremony in Ottawa recently she was rightfully hailed as a model for the youth of our day.

Miss Clifford is just 16 and W. Harold Rea of Toronto, who inducted her into the Hall of Fame, emphasized the value of sport for young people.

Mr. Rea, chairman of the government's task force on sport, said surveys had shown that most of the young people who take to drugs and offbeat culture, "are bored with life and very few of them have ever participated in sports of any kind."

It is scarcely enough though to suggest that if Canadian youngsters would accept Miss Clifford and other prominent sports figures as their ideals the threat posed by drugs would be lessened.

Miss Clifford after all has been in a favored position all along by virtue of the fact that her father runs a ski resort at Camp Fortune, Quebec.

Skiing is an expensive sport. Moreover, it takes courage and determination to become proficient and we suspect that those who hang around the street corners or the youth clubs, with their mod atmosphere and pop music-oriented activities, would sooner have that than the ski slopes, the tennis court, the swimming pool or the golf course.

Unhappily, we are not really a sports-oriented people — in the sense, that is, of everyone participating in one sport or another. The Betsy Cliffords are the exception rather than the rule and it is likely to remain that way.

Jobs for 150 New 'Information Communicators'

'Information Canada' Runs Into A United Opposition

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The Honorable Members of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition — Conservative, New Democrats, Creditiste and Independent — seldom see eye to eye on any issue.

But unless there is a change in Information Canada, an issue that could fuse them into a solid anti-government bloc.

The last time these mixed ranks was back one April day — the 22nd to be precise — seven years ago.

It was then that Liberal, New Democrat and a Social Credit pulled down former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's minority Conservative government.

There was a near-miss, two years ago, in the opening weeks of 1968 when the Conservatives, New Democrats and Creditistes united to vote down one of former minister Liberal Prime Minister Pearson's budget bills.

By all the rules of Parliament, hereditary received by 101 years of Confederation, that should have been the dismissal from power of the Pearson Liberals.

But the then Prime Minister persuaded the new Conservative Leader, Robert Stanfield, to skip the cancelled vote; the censure-that was never carried, giving the Creditistes time to change their mind and switch their vote, leaving the unified Opposition front and saving the Liberal day.

Only now, then, when it mattered and a United Opposition could have broken a minority government, was it done.

Union of a splintered — threeway — Opposition is so difficult it is rarely achieved even when it does not matter, with a majority government, like Prime Minister Trudeau's, safe from united assault.

The Opposition groups usually go their different ways even when they may be "for" something in fear that one or the other might profit politically.

Divides goes deeper than they are "against" something.

Deputy New Democratic Leader David Lewis aptly terms it "News Management Unlimited."

It has a gearing-up budget of $7,000,000.

This will be piled atop the annual $140,000,000 the federal government spends on the Media for its information services.

Its starting - up manpower of 150 "information communicators" as they are being called, will be added to the 600 publicity and public relations types already on the federal payroll.

Now ask yourself this question — how much have these 800 information specialists at the gigantic cost $140,000,000 added to your knowledge of how the government spends the taxes it extracts from you?

The "official" answer to that was provided by the government's own special Task Force on Information — almost in despair.

Because of "indolence and incompetence," the Task Force reported the superabundant means, power and money had been "almost entirely wasted."

So what now? Well, they are going to "co-ordinate," to use the official phrase, more effectively and what is more, compound it by adding another 150 public relations types to the bloated 800 already standing by their typewriters.

But here will be benefits — for the selected 150 recruits. Unless the pattern is broken, they like the 800 who preceded them, will be on the federal government payroll — eager, thirsty with the press, radio and TV news rooms.

All probably doing better financially than they ever dared dream on a pay scale that Cinche described as "a mere over $30,000 peak."

As the splintered Opposition, as it is, agree unanimously on any issue, Information Canada is, indeed, quite extraordinary.

Tolerance and All That

One Law for the Rich Another for the Poor

Peterborough Examiner

We demand tolerance and patience from the poor while the rich play their games of 'fighting' inflation through voluntary restraints. Not only they wait, but the poor must even bear the brunt of unemployment which has reached a rate of over six per cent and is still rising.

It is absurd for the American Supreme Court to demand tolerance from Black Panther Bobby Seale in the light of the authorities' intolerance towards the Panthers. Here is what a distinguished American educator and former scholar in residence at the Centre for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, W. H. Ferry, has to say about racial tolerance from the officials.

"Twenty-one Panthers have been murdered by the police in the past year, and there would have been more were it whitetown if twenty-one panthers in America's most had been wandering at large . . . The police are the effective rulers of blackness today. Theirs is the paraphernalia of any police state . . . Frame-ups, informers, illegal bail, unwarranted searches and seizures and similar practices are commonplace of ghetto life. Helicopters hover over black neighborhoods, searchlights darting and bullhorns shouting, and the protests of citizens go unheeded . . . "

A cry for America's blacks to practice tolerance is a cry for continued tyranny.

And before we say it could not happen here, we would do well to remember the black ghettos in Halifax, the slums in every major Canadian city, the Indian reservations scattered across the land and the slum dwellings inhabited by welfare recipients in Peterborough.

We should recall, for example, that a young Indian could not persuade a Crown prosecutor to proceed with the case against a white man who had assaulted him while, at the same time, the Liberal Government in Ottawa was making great claims about reforming the Criminal Code by removing sections dealing with acts of bestiality committed by married couples in their bedrooms. Millions suffer injustices while the bestiality section hauls fools with Legislative tinkering and calling it reform.

In the meantime important law reforms such as bail procedures remain unchanged and the courts continue to be the tool of the rich, powerful and privileged.

We should be tolerant of a society that allows a fortune from the poor and the penniless and fail to place any meaningful restraints on the excesses of the rich and the powerful.

The American Supreme Court's judgement about the need for 'dignity, order and the like' is truly meaningful but it has no place in a system which demands respect and submission from the weak and gives only contempt in return.

New Jet Will Take P.M. to Asia

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

When he leaves on his forthcoming Asian tour, Prime Minister Trudeau will board one of the four new jet Boeing aircraft recently purchased to replace "obsolete" Yukons at a cost to us of $25,000,000.

The Prime Minister will be accompanied by his staff and some 25 members of the press.

The 707s accommodate 123 passengers with 14,00 pounds of freight. Using basic arithmetic and estimating his staff at 75, we arrive at an occupancy rate total of 189 persons scheduled to make the flight. This leaves about 60 vacant seats on the aircraft.

The picture of a smiling Mr. Trudeau surrounded by a flower of his lapel, stepping down from the luxury new aircraft after scorning around at 600 mph in a half-filled plane, could, I suppose, support the legend of an affluent and worry-free Canadian society. But the cost to taxpayers is outstanding and is a fiscally but false public image could (and should) stimulate further criticism in the House, as well as in the street.

Jet and Car Travel May Overreach Itself

In Praise of Trains in A Crowded, Hectic World

Ottawa Journal

This is an editorial in favor of trains. And in criticism of the very successful and deliberate efforts of the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific to make trains so shoddy and inefficient that the Canadian public is being forced to drive bumper to bumper on crowded highways or commit itself to the efficient but frantic pace of air travel.

A train trip used to be a joy. Trains ran on schedules that met the public's desire; one could make connections without waiting half a day; the seats and bunks were clean, the porters and conductors were agreeable and helpful, meals were served, not hurled, and the waiters didn't start closing the place an hour before arrival so they could wash their dishes and be first off, and the clerks in the offices did not regard an effort to purchase tickets as an intrusion.

But that's nostalgia. There's more than nostalgia to cut wish for a return of a decent train service. The country is going to its fatal into channels of hurtling confusion. If temper and economic unpreason if we let the trains go.

In France to widen their highways they're having to cut down those lovely avenues of trees that for centuries have given character to the French countryside. Their airways too are in some areas approaching danger densities. But in France they are re-discovering trains. In an article on France in the Nesta Roberts mentions a train trip this way:

"I was easier to think beautiful thoughts like that, because the train in which I was avoiding towards Lyon, smooth and level as if over ice, was one of our cruchs, the Lyonnais, similar to the Mistral, which goes on farther south. France has realized that, with bigger and bigger aircraft, landing more and more people faster and faster, to airports farther and farther away from anywhere they may possibly want to be, it is the railways which are going to supply the luxury travel of the near future. The Lyonnais gets me from city to city in three hours and 45 minutes flat, and in superb comfort, with air conditioning, and seats shaped to the human frame, and Perspex doors in the corridors, that open at your approach so that you do not risk dislocating a shoulder heaving at them.

If you are a businessman or woman working to a tight schedule, you can dictate your letters on board or get your hair done. The restaurant car offers relatively lush, and very ample meals, but there is provision also for the more frugal. A buffet serves decent drinks, with salads and fresh fruit, quickly and pleasantly. You can buy books and tobacco, and presents for those you have left behind, or are going to meet. True while waiting for dinner — at the moment of writing, as the return journey, it is "Londonderry Air" — but at least there is in every compartment a button which enables you to tone it down, which is more than can be said for any aircraft in which I have yet travelled."

All right, the computer men with their hard eyes will now rise and say train travel has been proved unpopular for people don't use it. Statistics of the last decade do prove that use of trains fell off. But the novelty of air travel is going to wear off when the last penny to pile into flying hotels and when the drive from town to airport will be the longest part of the journey. And the automobiles now breeding like rabbits are very soon going to make highway travel like trying to escape from the conveyor belt Charlie Chaplin style, seeing nothing, enjoying nothing and go but like a bat in hell.

Don't tear up those tracks, oh ye wise fools; don't sell out those right-of-ways; let us have room for more highways; don't run this lovely land of ours as though we were all back in too much of a hurry to live.

Kennel, Workshop Destroyed by Fire

BAYSIDE — Sidney Township firefighters arrived in time Thursday afternoon to save the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Laney which was threatened by fire in a nearby workshop and dog kennel.

The frame workshop and kennel were destroyed but damage to the eight-month-old Laney residence at RR3 Belleville, a mile east of Bayside, was limited to scorching of the south side and portions of the roof.

Mrs. Frances Laney discovered the fire at 4:30 and rescued a lone German shepherd show dog from the kennel, then tried to extinguish the blaze in the workshop and kennel.

Unable to do so she called Sidney township firefighters. Before the firefighters arrived Mr. Laney returned home from Belleville and with the assistance of neighbors, battled the blaze which threatened the house.

Furniture was evacuated from the house and returned only after the firefighters brought the blaze under control.

Mr. Laney said that the buildings and contents, which included tools and machinery were insured.

No estimate of damage has been made yet and the cause of the fire is not known.

Fire chief John Aquino said the Sidney Township firefighters answered two other calls Thursday, including one near the Laney residence.

He explained that the firefighters were unable to save an old barn on the Frost Road just north of Highway 2 near Bayside. The barn, which contained a quantity of hay was ignited by a grass fire.

The Sidney firefighters third call Thursday was for a grass fire in Batawa which they quickly controlled.

Farmer's Union Receives Charter

PICTON — Local 213 of the National Farmers' Union received its official charter Tuesday during a dinner meeting in Picton attended by 165 Prince Edward County farmers and their wives.

Presenting newly - elected NFU president Kenneth Marriott with the charter, Otto Pross, NFU regional coordinator, announced a change in the local's number. The organization now will be recognized as local 333 of the NFU.

Summarizing NFU activities and goals, Prince Edward County farmer Leo McAlpine noted that five townships comprise a 300-man membership in local 333, Hillier and Ameliasburg townships combine to form local 334 while Athol, Hallowell, North and South Marysburg and Sophiasburg make their strength in the newly chartered local.

Guest speaker at the meeting was William Langdon, chairman of the NFU's Ontario dairy committee.

Mr. Langdon stressed the role of the NFU in modern farming. He emphasized that by seeking improved prices, the farmer helps not just himself but the entire economy, especially private enterprise.

Mr. Langdon noted agriculture remains the only large industry where the private entrepreneur can survive.

"If we lose control," he said "the consumer won't be able to enjoy the cheapest food in the world as he has been doing."

Before local 213 received its charter, members voted in an executive election conducted by Mr. Pross. President of local 333 of the NFU is Kenneth Marriott, vice-president is George Emlaw, Mrs. Stanley Young was elected as secretary, and Rendford Wheler, Stanley Young and Arnold DeVries were voted into directorships.

Chamber To Aid In Job Hunt

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce will lend its efforts this year toward the summer employment for college and high school students.

The job - finding effort will supplement the customary Canada Manpower student employment program which this year will have its headquarters in the city recreation department building on Pinnacle Street.

Chamber of Commerce president Harry Fast said the Chamber involvement in the program would primarily encourage local industry to take on students for the summer months.

Plans call for inviting local industrial heads to a meeting where the student employment program will be explained in detail.

Students Win Quiz

PICTON — Prince Edward County director of education John McNeil has announced the victory of four students from Prince Edward Collegiate Institute in the Industrial Accident Prevention Association's safety quiz.

New Ontario champions are David Dahmage, David Rigby, Barry Mathie and Donald Wandless, all technical students in FECI. The boys will receive colored television sets as winners' awards in the province-wide competition. Coach for the 'safety experts' was Herbert Pfirrmichles, a technical teacher at P.E.C.I. To win the contest, local entrants had to answer a wide variety of questions dealing with safety in traffic, on the water and in the handling of weapons.

David Gregory wins a piece of Canada

The first winner in Supertest's "Win a piece of Canada" contest is Mr. David Gregory of Mississauga, Ontario. A regular Supertest customer for the past three years, Mr. Gregory picked up a free-wins-nothing entry form when he made a routine gas purchase at Sheridan Mall Supertest, 2185 Southdown Rd., Clarkson, Ontario. After his entry was selected by the contest judges, he correctly answered a skill-testing question, to win the first of the twelve grand prizes to be awarded by Supertest, the Great Canadian Gasoline.

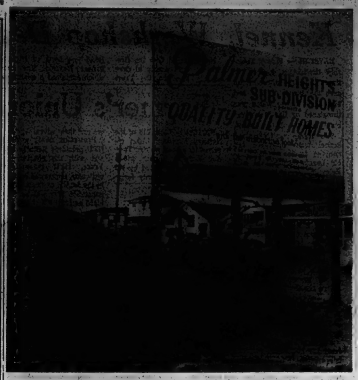
Mr. Gregory's prize is a large wooded lakefront lot on beautiful Harris Lake near Parry Sound and a handsome Colonial/Sunshiit cottage, to be erected on the site as soon as weather conditions permit. When advised that he had won, Mr. Gregory said "My wife and I can still hardly believe its true. We want to drive up to look at the property just as soon as possible."

The Colonial/Sunshiit cottage will be built and ready for the Gregory family in time for them to enjoy a full summer in one of Canada's prettiest holiday areas.

You too can win a piece of Canada, and a Colonial/Sunshiit cottage. There's a winner every week in Supertest's "Win a piece of Canada" contest. And every winner gets a large wooded lot, on which Supertest will erect a handsome 22 ft. x 30 ft., 3 bedroom cottage.

Enter now! Enter often! You don't even have to buy the great Canadian gasoline to win (But we hope you will). You can get a contest entry form every time you visit a participating Supertest dealer. And if you buy 6 gallons or more of the great Canadian gasoline he will give you a FREE Canadian art print, suitable for framing. Collect the complete set of six different prints and bring beautiful Canada into your home.

How to win a piece of Canada



1. Visit any participating Supertest station. 2. Ask for the "Win a piece of Canada" entry form. Read the contest rules. 3. Fill in your name and address. 4. Deposit in the needle mail box. 5. If your entry is drawn you will be asked a skill-testing question to qualify for one of the prizes. 6. Decisions of the judges will be final. 7. This contest not open to persons under 18 years of age, non-residents of Canada, nor to employees and their families of Supertest Petroleum Corporation or of its advertising agency.

Open House for Houses

Biggest urban undertaking in city's history now is underway at west end Palmer Heights subdivision. This weekend, 33 houses — first of a development to house 900 families — are on display to public.

Palmer Gardens Project First Peek Locally Of $20,000,000 Picture

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Bellevillens this weekend get a closeup of one of the most ambitious developments in urban living in their city's history.

Palmer Heights subdivision tomorrow and Sunday is displaying a corner of its wares.

In that corner are 33 housing units of what some day will be a community called home by 900 families. They will be distributed in detached, semi-detached, and high rises, with their own shopping area and their own greenbelt.

But that will be the whole $20,000,000 picture — some day.

What Bellevillens will view this weekend are the foundations of that community, a series of homes completed — or nearing completion — in their city's west end.

It also is something of a yardstick by which to measure the city's growth.

"This subdivision," says developer Leo Mann, "will grow with the city."

Palmer Heights is among the last remaining urban land blocs within the city's limits. Its development comes in the wake of the city's economic expansion during the past two years.

Dimensions of the project, called for much preliminary work. But, by early October, bulldozers had moved in and begun excavations on the 35-acre site north of Dundas Street West and stretching through to Bridge Street West.

If the landscape was large, its excavation did not a fair-sized task. The area is mostly historic shale and — Leo Mann figures — work crews used "tons and tons" of dynamite.

The entire development had to be blasted for service installations — another feature of Palmer Heights.

"For a community the size of Belleville, this is the first time that a developer has picked up a piece of land this size and serviced it," he says.

Blasting — and plenty of it — also was imperative in construction of the houses now going on view.

Leo Mann feels a house have security. Basic to a house is a solid foundation, he insists.

On such foundations in Palmer Heights, says Mr. Mann, he is raising what he stresses are "high-quality homes."

The big signpost fronting the subdivision's southside on Leland Drive emphasizes the same theme.

The homes are three and four - bedroom units — with provisions made in subdivision plans for five - bedroom units if demanded, he says.

The houses will possess a multitude of conveniences.

"The only thing they haven't got is maid service," says one of his foremen.

Price range of the homes is $23,500-$30,000.

Work began on the homes Nov. 15 and since that time the project has kept from 60 to 80 men busy. Delays were caused by cold weather — at times the mercury dipped to 32 below during the past winter.

Nonetheless this hasn't been the major braking factor on progress at Palmer Heights. Under normal conditions Leo Mann would have almost double the number of housing units built, he says.

But these are not normal times — in a financial sense.

Tight money has dampened development industry across Canada. Housing has not been exempt from the chill effects.

"Usually, we start with a minimum of 50 to 60 houses," says Mr. Mann. "We're just going at a slower speed now. It's the same all over the country."

Much of the subdivision must grow with demand — and the availability of consumer cash.

Eventually about 160 houses will be constructed, he estimates, to be followed off the blueprints by the remaining bulk of the development — apartment blocks, semi - detached and row housing, all in respective zones.

Fully serviced, Palmer Heights means Belleville will be absorbing a ready-made community.

However, the subdivision's location also is labor - made for urban living.

During the years the big land blue lay undeveloped the city grew around its environs.

Today on Palmer Heights' flanks is a high school (Centennial), a public school (Mackenzie Bowell), a drive-in theatre and the Quinte Exhibition Grounds.

"It's an ideal location," says Leo Mann.

This weekend BellevilleMann may judge the Mann style of development. Some six houses — showcases of basic construction plans — will be open for inspection.

Officially, the ribbon will be cut to symbolize the Palmer Heights' opening at 11 a.m. by Mayor Russell Scott. Subdivision visiting hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

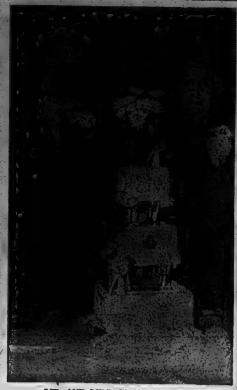
St. Julien Chapter IODE Presents Pins

The presentation of a 25-year pin to Mrs. E. Rotherford and to Mrs. F. Carscallen highlighted the regular meeting of St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. held recently at the Kiwanis Centre. The Regent Mrs. C. Whittemore presided.

On a previous afternoon a similar honor was bestowed on Miss Helen Blake when she was presented with a 50-year pin by Mrs. G. Weddin. A time of fellowship was enjoyed at this time with refreshments served by Mrs. H. G. McKay and Mrs. Watson.

A number of items were discussed during the business portion of the meeting. Volunteers were accepted by Mrs. A. Harris for the blood clinic to be held at Cleo Comers April 3. Mrs. G. Hume announced that citizenship court will be held May 27 when 20 new citizens will be received. Mrs. R. Ellis reported on the sale of tickets for the Arts Festival.

The chapter will sponsor the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra concert on April 22 and plans were completed for the event. The orchestra is directed by Stephen Choma and assisted by the Picton Handbell Choir directed by Jim and Andrew A. Harris.



A social time was spent following the meeting with Mrs. R. Taylor, Mrs. A. Harris and Mrs. C. Lusk as hostesses.

Church Members Honor Organist

Members of Emmanuel Baptist Church in Belleville and visitors gathered on Saturday evening April 4 to pay tribute to Mrs. Burrel Hamilton, who recently resigned her post as church organist, which she had held since the opening of the church in 1953.

Doug Rowe opened the evening with a sing-song, which was followed by the presentation of a corsage to the guest of honor by Grace Arthur on behalf of the Junior Choir. Games were then enjoyed by young and old under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. G. Low and Mr. and Mrs. G. Brunet.

A presentation of a silver pin in the shape of a treble clef was made on behalf of the Senior Choir by Mrs. S. Campbell. Gerry Low expressed the feelings of all when he thanked Mrs. Hamilton for all her service given to the church so faithfully. His words were climaxed by the presentation of a beautiful watch from the entire Emmanuel Church family. The minister, the Rev. Chas. Savage, added a few appropriate words.

MR. AND MRS. GRANT CROSBY

Cannifton Couple Mark 55th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Crosby of Cannifton marked the occasion of their 55th wedding anniversary with an "At Home" in St. Mark's Church parlors last Sunday afternoon. Approximately 200 relatives and friends attended.

Assisting the honored couple in welcoming the guests were Mrs. Reta Wright, Mrs. Dora Hiscreaft and Mrs. Clara Carpenter, all nieces of the "Bride" and Mrs. Ruth Hannigan, sister of the bridegroom.

The hall was appropriately decorated with green streamers and white wedding bells with the tea table attractively appointed with a lace cloth, silver tea service and candelabra, and centred with a beautiful three-tier anniversary cake.

Those pouring tea were Mrs. George Sills, Mrs. Ray Pound, Mrs. Clayton Eggleton, Mrs. Don Gariepy, Mrs. Morgan Sills, Mrs. John Botting and Mrs. Willis Brenton. A number of other relatives assisted in serving the refreshments.

Perhaps the highlight of the event was the presence of over 50 of Mrs. Crosby's former pupils from the old S.S. 12 and S.S. 15 schools of Ameliasburg Township. They travelled from many parts of Ontario to spend a little time with their former teacher and husband as well as reuniting with former classmates. They presented the honored guests with a large arrangement of red roses along with a monetary gift. Among the other guests were Reeve Horace Casey of Thurlow and Mrs. Casey and Norris Whitney MPP, and Mrs. Whitney, Ameliasburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Crosby received many beautiful gifts and floral arrangements from neighbors in Cannifton and vicinity, from the Senior Citizens' Club and from many more. A family dinner was held with Morgan Sills as master of ceremonies. He read a number of congratulatory messages received by the honored couple. These included greetings from Premier J. Roberts of Ontario, Governor-General Michener, Ottawa and from the Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier. Clarke Rollins MPP who could not be present for the event presented a provincial plaque to the couple earlier in the week.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Crosby expressed sincere thanks to all who had arranged this memorable event.

Company 12 Girl Guide Recipient Of Gold Cord

On Wednesday evening at a regular meeting of Company 12 Girl Guides, of Henry J. Clarke Public School, Heather Whaley received the highest award for Girl Guide work.

Mrs. G. Brennan, Company Captain, assisted by Lieutenant Mrs. A. Twigg presented the Gold Cord to Heather, while Mrs. D. Stewart, district Commissioner awarded the Gold Cord pin.

To complete the Gold Cord challenge Miss Whaley dressed a doll in the original 1919 English Guide uniform. This doll will be placed in the Guide area display of dolls depicting International Guide and Brownie uniforms, each countries doll having been dyed the Gold Cord challenge.

Also honored at the same meeting was Dorothy Maddocks, who had graduated from a two - year provincial cadet training course to receive an appointment Guider Lieutenant warrant. While taking the correspondence course Dorothy actively took service training with Company 12.

Top Honor for Guide

Captain Mrs. G. Brennan loops Gold Cord on Heather Whaley's shoulder to signify Heather has achieved the highest honor in Girl Guide work. Assisting Mrs. Brennan is Mrs. A. Twigg, Lieutenant of Company 12.

Ann Landers

Guests Not Specific About Arrival Time

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister-in-law telephoned us last week from somewhere in Arkansas, She said they were driving to the Coast and would be in Louisville "in a few hours," and offered them the use of our home. Before she had me they had another [illegible] with their seven people in it. It was the late to back out.

We expected them on Wednesday — certainly no later than Thursday. When they didn't show up we decided they had by-passed Louisville — so we accepted an invitation for dinner that evening. We got home at midnight and were shocked to find the whole tribe asleep on my good furniture.

My sister-in-law opened up a mouth that could be heard a mile away. She insisted we had been informed of their coming and should have been home. (They had no trouble.) Feelings are now strained. Were we wrong? — KY-WOMAN

DEAR KY: Since your guests were not specific about the arrival time you were under no obligation to be at the waiting. Next time they may be sufficiently annoyed to go to a motel next time.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Have you ever dealt with problems that arise when a married couple works in the same organization? If so, I have not seen it. We have two couples in this office who are ruining the morale of the entire organization.

Exhibit A and B met in the accounting department last year. They fell in love and were married in December. They are still honeymooning and her typing looks like she left her brains in Niagara Falls. He calls her Pussy Baby and she calls him Cuddle Bug. They have been to work at time in three months. Since he is head of the department, nobody can say a word.

The second couple is something else. They've been married ten years and are known as the Battling Bertrams. When they fight (which is every day), you can hear them all over the office. Sometimes she gets mad and leaves her desk for two hours. Her work must be done by the other girls and they resent it plenty.

Please comment on married couples working together. And I hope you say it's a bum idea, because it is — A WITNESS WHO SPEAKS FOR 30

DEAR WIT: Some married couples manage well in the same organization, but generally it's not a good idea. In addition to the problems you describe, too much togetherness can put the dead hand on a relationship.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 15-year-old daughter belongs to a club. There are 25 members — all girls between 15 and 17. They raise money for worthy causes and have done well.

Yesterday, Cathy told us they have decided to sell raffles for 50c. The winner gets a date, all expenses paid — dinner, theatre and dancing — with, of all people, her. My husband is furious. He refuses to allow our daughter to sell herself like a common, ordinary Yoo-Know-What. I thought the idea was very clever until he made a crack.

Cathy is deeply disappointed. She felt honored to have been the prize. We've been arguing for two days. You will cast the deciding vote. What is it? — ERIE, Pa.

DEAR ERIE: I vote no. Since the girls are so full of clever ideas, let them come up with something else.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jenny can't seem to learn to spell. I guess some people have trouble with spelling all their lives. We can't all be good spellers, but I certainly don't like it when she brings home such poor report cards."

Mother: "Your teacher says you are doing great in spelling, Jenny. The good thing it so interesting. She thinks we should drill a little more on your spelling, however. Why don't you study the words for awhile? Then I'll read them off to you."

Children are likely to live up to the labels bestowed on them by well-meaning parents. It's wiser to build on a child's strength, while you help her overcome her weaknesses.

Successful Living

Going Back to School Is National Pastime

By DORIS CLARK

Adults are streaming back to school these days, looking for better jobs, new skills, or just to fight boredom and use up our growing leisure time. Learning is now a lifelong quest.

We have assorted stories about this. One concerns what is in her granddaughter's university history class. She explains, "I only wanted to catch up with the rest of my family." She plans to go on to a master's degree and become a librarian.

At another university an Army captain is going to night school. He is studying for his second career — as an economist — when he retires at 45.

And this doesn't even include the many thousands working their way through correspondence courses, or concentrated on educational TV.

Going back to school has become the national pastime.

* * *

Dear Doris: I agreed to take in mail for the lady in an upstairs apartment because her husband spends all her letters.

I picked her up one night to say there was a card for her to pick up a catalogue. She was very successful and said if I had let her know that afternoon she would have picked up the items and saved me a downtown. I suggested she get a box at the post office.

Later she did get a box. But a letter came to the house and when I told her, she was very angry at me for even taking it in.

I asked her not to come to my home any more because all she did was complain about her husband. As she left with her letter she shouted back, "Don't come to my funeral."

It gave me a funny feeling. I know she is lonely — Not Wanting To Be Nosey.

Dear Not Wanting: What a mixed-up lady you have — so kind you've got on your hands! By now the doubtless regrets her rudeness, but with her emotional turmoil I doubt whether she can make a comeback to sanity without help.

Let her make the first gesture and don't bear any grudge. And if a single other piece of mail comes for her, skip it, unless it's dun.

* * *

Dear Doris: I wonder do you or any of the readers have the recipe for those small potato crullers? I think they were rolled in cinnamon. Also, can anyone a good recipe for a cinnamon type cookie?

It is good to be able to take pride in one's homemade goodies and one can always get new ideas.

I think it means young folk should spend a little time doing crafts and simple knitting when it has been proved that in they would do a service for themselves and others. They could make lovely rug pads for children. They would find a satisfaction for leisure time. There are so many jobs to be done around for old and young. Let's take up the challenge. — Up And At It.

Dear Up And At It: Well. It's the first time I've heard of a potato candy, but doubtless some of our skilled candy cooks will have your recipe right at their finger tips.

Rice Pudding Recipe Requested

By MARY HOOKE

LETTER: Since I am enroute and have to take iron medication, I try to eat liver once or twice a week. On occasion when I was preparing it for supper for dinner I decided to wash it, let the water drain off and then put it into a rice pudding (cooking mix). I put 1 tsp. of margarine in a heavy pan and let it get bubbly, then I browned the liver quickly browned liver on both sides, which takes only a minute or so. I turned the heat to second lowest, put on a tight lid, then poured in about 2 tbsps. water, holding lid to one side a bit — it sputters. It steam-cooked in a few minutes and is brown and oh, so good. Before I cooked it this way I just made myself eat it. Now I really like it. Maybe you already know of a similar way but thought I would. Now I have many of your lists who would be glad to know just how tasty beef liver can be. Get butcher to slice it about ¼ and ½". — Ruth T.

I think it means young folk should spend a little time doing crafts and simple knitting when it has been proved that in they would do a service for themselves and others. They could make lovely rug pads for children. They would find a satisfaction for leisure time. There are so many jobs to be done around for old and young. Diefenbaker Trains His Guns on Anti-hate Bill

"What's wrong with me, Muriel? I stood on the ledge all day and nobody noticed."

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's hate propaganda bill came under fire heaviest attack Thursday as John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) said it could be used "to stifle those who write that which the government does not like."

Mr. Diefenbaker, as the bill reached debate on third reading in the Commons, questioned its constitutionality and linked it with Information Canada and the Canadian Radio-Television Commission as an "assault on freedom."

The bill was given an equally stiff defence by David Lewis (NDP—York South), who said it will provide minority groups with protection against group libel.

Mr. Lewis said it has been the most misrepresented bill before Parliament and he criticized Mr. Diefenbaker for bringing political innuendo into the debate.

Earlier, Conservatives and New Democrats split sharply in a vote on an amendment by Edlon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) to nullify all but the anti-genocide section of the bill. Ten Conservatives and four New Democrats voted against the Woolliams amendment; 23 Conservatives and 10 New Democrats voted for it.

On the Liberal side, John Roberts (York-Simcoe) voted against the bill and Paul St. Pierre (L—Coast Chilcotin) abstained, saying later he considered it bad legislation.

The amendment was defeated 135 to 93.

The bill has been before Parliament for three years, stalled for the most part in the Senate, where it won narrow approval last fall after major amendment. It was further modified by the Commons justice committee.

Nevertheless, opponents continue to describe it as an infringement of freedom of speech that could be seriously abused. Proponents, meanwhile, said it can be a means of containing hatred aimed at racial, religious, colored or ethnic minorities.

The hate bill is to come up again next week. The Commons today deals with an NDP motion condemning the government for failure to provide a full employment program.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the bill may contravene the Bill of Rights, which his government passed in 1960, "very directly and very flashy."

He described it as "panic legislation," recommended by Mr. Trudeau "when he was a member of the socialist party" and when the prime minister was a member of the Dean Maxwell Cohen committee that recommended such legislation in 1966.

Much hate literature had been directed against Mr. Trudeau during the 1968 election campaign.

The prime minister has every right to be concerned over what is said about him, but all he has to do is take action for criminal libel.

Earlier in the Commons question period, Mr. Trudeau told J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) he is asking for another security check of Jean-Louis Gagnon on the basis of Commons questions. Mr. Gagnon was named recently as director of Information Canada.

He said Mr. Gagnon had been cleared of an "allegation" in a check ordered by an earlier prime minister, probably at the time Mr. Gagnon was appointed to the bilingualism and biculturalism commission.

Mr. Trudeau said that if the opposition has any information "from other sources than Ken Gostick, or others"—they should tell Solicitor-General George McIlraith. Mr. Gostick publishes an anti-Communist journal at Fleshertun, Ont.

Mr. Diefenbaker raised the subject of Mr. Gagnon again during the hate debate.

"If power were given to Mr. Gagnon and to the chairman of Canadian Radio-Television Commission (Pierre Juneau), these two men could destroy the freedom of this nation," he said.

"If the government believes something is a matter of national import, it puts it over CRTC. Radio and television are full of fear in this country. They are scared stiff."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the hate bill is identical to one of the first laws passed in Communist Russia in 1919, after the revolution.

Similar legislation had been passed in Britain, but didn't prevent even cabinet ministers there from making "the most stinging statements against race and color," he said.

'Quality of Life' Phrase Vanishes

OTTAWA (CP) — "Quality of life" was an all-party catch phrase of the 1968 election campaign and has been used since at some party policy conventions.

The phrase now is seldom employed on Parliament Hill, MPs evidently considering it a little worn-out.

Nevertheless, it probably still sums up best the current groupings and strivings of government and Commons, no matter how ill-defined and vague.

The subject that is all the rage now, though scarcely mentioned a couple of years ago, is pollution.

The anti-pollution measures being considered and promulgated go far beyond the fear of more oil spills off Canadian coasts.

No longer is there a consuming interest in the Commons in foreign affairs or defence arrangements.

Many MPs say they believe such subjects are becoming irrelevant to Canadians generally, that the public wants to see more action against unemployment, poverty and poor housing and more done for minority groups.

And they say there is growing concern about what some of them call "political pollution," meaning foreign ownership.

Sources close to the cabinet say that the government this time, will really go ahead with the long-proposed Canada Development Corp. The cabinet has already considered this matter at length and will give more time to it yet.

Plans for TV Fare Will Be Outlined

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission's controversial proposals for increasing Canadian content on radio and TV will get an intensive public review at a four-day CRTC hearing opening Tuesday.

The question is whether the CRTC will enforce the proposals, announced in February, or whether modifications and delays in their implementation will have to be introduced.

The proposals would have these major effects:

—A substantial increase in Canadian TV programs, particularly in prime time, attractive this fall for the CBC and before Sept. 1, 1971, for the private sector. By Sept. 1, 1971, all stations would have to give at least 60 per cent of their schedules to Canadian programming.

—Strict limits on the number of times a TV program may be interrupted for advertising and a clear separation between adv and programming.

—The inclusion of virtually all non-program material, including a station's own promotional messages, as advertising and a maximum of 12 minutes an hour that can be used for ads.

—A requirement that at least 30 per cent of the music played by AM radio stations be Canadian.

CRTC chairman Pierre Juneau has said the proposals could mean an increase of about three hours a week in Canadian programming on CBC TV this fall.

He told a news conference in Toronto Feb. 11:

"Since private broadcasters would have until September, 1971, to comply with the same standards as the CBC, this would mean for many of them about four additional evening hours of Canadian programs a week by this fall and another 5½ hours by the start of the following September."

Letters from individual Canadians, now open to the public, have been about "20-30 for and against the proposals," a CRTC spokesman said.

Some of the stiffest opposition is expected to come from the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, representing about 85 per cent of Canada's privately-owned radio and TV stations.

The C.A.B. began a three-day annual meeting here today to discuss the proposals and other business.

In a short brief already filed with the commission, the association says it could cost private broadcasters about $3,000,000 a year to implement the CRTC recommendation for increasing Canadian music on AM radio.

The proposal for increasing Canadian TV content would cost private broadcasters at least $7,000,000 more a year, the brief says.

One of the strongest supporting briefs has been filed by the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists. The ACTRA brief says the association includes about 2,000 writers working in film, TV and radio, as well as actors, singers and dancers.

"It is time for Canadians to stop being afraid of a frankly nationalist approach," the ACTRA brief says.

The CRC should be made completely non-commercial and lead the way, using government funds in producing and developing Canadian talent, it adds.

The CTV network should be forced to improve its Canadian programming, ACTRA says.

Many of the letters opposing the proposals have been written by people in areas of Canada now served only by CBC TV. These areas, generally, are too far from the border to permit viewers to pick up U.S. stations either through antennae or cable TV systems.

Bernard McDonald of Glace Bay, N.S., wrote:

"Any programs the CBC backs consist of birds, animals, sex or dogs addicts."

Glace Bay now receives only the CBC and unless the network gives most of its schedule to U.S. programs most area viewers will stop watching TV, he said.

Eleanor Rombach of Kitimat, B.C., wrote that the CRC must be allowed to share as many foreign programs as possible because "Canadian drama is 90 per cent poor, unsubsidized filth."

Almost all letters from supports the need for improved and for Canadians to assert their identity. Most are from areas where numerous American stations and the two Canadian networks are available.

Tests Show Erie Fish Contain Little Mercury

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Thursday fish tested in Lake Erie were found to contain little mercury.

He was replying to Conservative questions by Harold Stafford (L—Elgin) who asked whether compensation paid to fishermen in Lake St. Clair would be extended to those in Lake Erie if the fishery were closed there also.

Mr. Davis said there seems little need to give such assurances. There was little mercury in Lake Erie fish. But if the fishery had to be closed there would be compensation.

Senior Citizens Given Warning About Con Men

TORONTO (CP) — A guide to help senior citizens avoid becoming victims of a "con man" was produced in the legislature Thursday by John Yaremko, minister of social and family services.

The guide is printed on pocket-size paper that folds like an accordion and fits easily in a wallet.

Chief aim of the guide was to educate and inform senior citizens who have frequently become the targets of "con men, racketeers and other heartless individuals who prey on them," Mr. Yaremko said.

Among the suggestions the guide provides are: "Be suspicious of door-to-door salesmen offering deals on paving, chimney repairs, roofing or siding. Get other estimates."

Sudbury Students Shed Prexy

SUDBURY (CP) — The Laurentian University senate won its battle for a bigger voice in university affairs Thursday night when the board of governors announced President Stanley G. Mullins will be replaced and the senate will be given a larger role in making decisions.

The board's decision, announced at a public meeting attended by about 400 students and Sudbury residents, all but ended a month-long dispute in which students have backed senate demands for removal of Mr. Mullins and a share in long-term planning for the 1,700-student campus.

The board has not yet decided the terms under which the 63-year-old president, who has headed the university since its inception in 1964, will leave. Mr. Mullins is on a lecture tour in Italy.

The board announced a selection committee will be established later this month with the task of finding an acting president by July 1. The senate is expected to be represented on the committee.

Representatives of the senate chosen from the faculty, students, deans and directors—said they were satisfied with the results of a closed meeting earlier in the day at which the board expressed willingness to discuss other senate demands.

It was agreed to hold monthly joint meetings of the board and senate. It also was agreed in principle that there will be student and faculty representatives on board sub-committees in the future.

These resolutions will not be final until they are approved in formal resolutions placed before separate meetings of the board and the senate.

Backbenchers Ignored

Government A Clique Not Listening to Members Says Potter

Government backbenchers should have a greater voice in carrying out national and provincial affairs.

This is the feeling of Quinte riding member Dr. Richard T. Potter, who, in an address Thursday night to the Associated Nursing Homes of Metropolitan Toronto, said it was up to the government backbencher to increase his stature, live up to the expectations of his constituents and assume responsibility for a larger role in politics.

Commenting on his disappointment that the recent provincial budget failed to provide assistance for patients requiring nursing home care, Dr. Potter said there was need for a complete revision of the present state of health-care in Ontario.

"And in view of the difficulties we are experiencing in this need to our government it might be wise to take a good look at the backbencher and the role he should be expected to play in our modern legislature."

The Quinte riding member said that in years past the role of the backbencher was a relatively simple one.

"People were content to elect a candidate from one of the three parties and send him to Toronto or Ottawa to represent their riding in the legislature.

"Then they went about their own business and left the government to do the governing until the next election came around. The local representative got backbencher was expected to look after the individual problems of his constituents, support his party with his vote and, in the case of government members generally, not to interfere with the real business of governing."

But today times are changing and the old concepts of representation are being replaced by the electorate.

"People are asking pertinent questions about issues that concern not only their own community, but the province and the country at large and they are expecting answers and quick action."

This, according to Dr. Potter, represents a major change in public thinking and goes back to the roots of our political life.

Suddenly the backbencher must make a crucial change in his accustomed role as one who representation is not enough.

"He must become better informed about every department and aggressive enough to demand that action be taken where the interests of his constituents are at stake."

Dr. Potter asked if the backbenchers could be expected to cut through the mountains of red tape that have traditionally by surrounded every government decision.

"Bureaucracy is inevitable up to a point but it appears that we have gone far beyond that point and an aroused public is demanding that it be crushed.

"Instead of the unapproachable, indifferent oligarchy that has developed over the years, they (the people) are calling for two way communication and some assurance that their wishes will be heard and given fair consideration.

"Arbitrary decisions are no longer acceptable, and so the backbencher finds himself drafted to become the direct means of contact between the government and the people.

To his way of thinking, Dr. Potter said this was as it should be.

The government must be influenced by the thoughts and wishes of the citizens and who but the backbencher can convey those thoughts and wishes to Parliament?

Government must come to terms with the changing times and become more approachable and co-operative if it is to keep in touch with the people.

"Backbenchers traditionally serve on committees and although the system is supposed to let these members ernu their keep, it is rarely used to any embarrassingly into a government's affairs or to prod it into action.

"In my opinion," the Quinte riding member said "the committee system must either be made effective or be discontinued. It must be allowed to explore the area with which it is directly concerned, learn what can be done to make improvements in that particular area and then report its findings to the legislature.

"The backbencher would then truly be given an opportunity to make a worthwhile contribution.

"Until standing committees are allowed to become more effective they are nothing more than rubber stamps for government policy and an exercise in futility," Dr. Potter concluded.

Madoc School Scene Of Pilot Program In Creative Expression

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Hold up a mirror to childhood and what you see?

Smiling faces and the carefree abandon of the age of innocence?

Or an image overcast with violence, morbid preoccupations with disease and death and no serious concern for the problems of society?

Araby Lockhart, Canadian actress, has found the answer as she conducts a pilot project in children's drama, centred at Madoc Public School this week.

"The project is fulfilling one of the arts' oldest functions—instructing life as it really is, at least among the younger set.

And as Miss Lockhart leads the children through their first experience in dramatic expression — "tell how a situation feels by concentrating on details your senses tell you" — elementary school children with their defenses down stand revealed as anxious, fearful, but still fighting.

The use of drama in the schools is being explored by Miss Lockhart under the sponsorship of the Province of Ontario Council for the Arts.

She has worked with children of an inner city school in Toronto, and Ojibways on a reserve near the Ontario-Manitoba border. Her week in Madoc will complete her picture of representative Ontario children by focusing on youngsters from a semi-rural environment.

The project was sponsored to fill the gap in research/material on drama in education. Co-operating in the venture in another POCA project, a group of Toronto young people being trained in television filming, Thursday recorded Miss Lockhart's Madoc classes on video tape.

Working with one classroom at a time, the actress broke the ice with simple games of sensory perception — identifying objects when blindfolded, guessing the contents of a jar through smelling and tasting.

"You are a work of art that your friends can read," she told the children. "This is what acting is all about."

Dividing them into groups of four or five, she launched them immediately into drama.

"Think up some situation and tell how it feels," she said, and mayhem broke out.

The reactions of the Grade 6 classes were consistent. The boy enacted long and violent brawls triggered by fancied insults, and a stage coach hold-up accompanied by more fighting. The girls produced pantomimes of a car accident, a fight between two seeing-eye dogs guiding their masters, and an operation, and a mosh walk.

At the Grade 8 level, a request to enact a skit on a situation occurring now that may still affect the children in 1986 produced plays on drugs, racial discrimination, the generation gap and pollution.

After all had played their part, Miss Lockhart gathered the children around her to discuss their feelings about the situations that concern them. The students told her:

- Pollution would disappear if stern legislation curbed dumping of industrial wastes.
- Drugs should be legalized, "because then kids wouldn't take them because they would lose their thrill."
- Racial discrimination, economic and domination all mankind, both the discriminator and the discriminated against.
- The differences between the values deemed important by young people and their parents can never be reconciled.

"Drama is one way of helping out a situation," she explained. "The whole class had a series of workshop of district teachers later in the day. The violence the children displayed in "release, a way of working out some kind of problem," she noted.

Children all over the world are the same, said the actress, who began her work with children in England.

"But their social environment shades their reactions," she explained. "The average city child has no sense of group or community, a great alienation, but no power of sustained concentration. The Indian child has a strong sense of community, is expressive and identifies deeply with his Indian past and culture."

The inner city children's plays centred on crime and punishment, but the law officers' presence was only implied — no one would play the policeman's role.

"The academic side of the child is stressed too much," Miss Lockhart told the teachers. "The whole child, how he thinks and feels, is neglected. I am interested in fostering this side of the child so that by the time he is in high school he will be, very aware of himself and his environment."

The actress said she is not interested in drama as a teaching aid, although she produced a medieval fairy tale with a group of junior special education pupils, complete with costumes, while in Madoc.

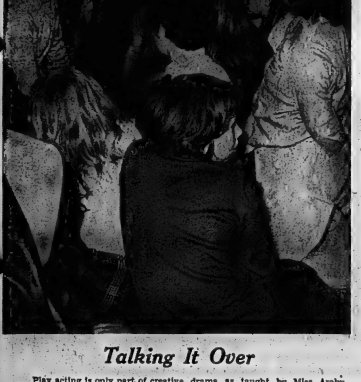
"I'm not interested in teaching, or taking a critical approach to the children's efforts," she said. "I try to bring forth the intuitive, imaginative, sensitive part of the child which somehow gets lost today."

Not only does creative acting release tensions, the actress asserted, it also gives the children training in talking among themselves about how they think and feel about problems.

"The lessons must be a joy to the children, because you are stressing that part of them," she told the teachers. "I am on a different footing with children because I'm not a teacher," she added in explaining her success.

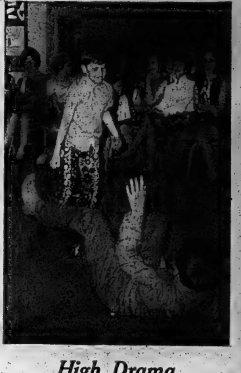
She never insists that every child take part, nor stresses that elementary boys and girls work together in acting out their plays.

"Girls play boys well, but boys are very silly in girls' parts," she noted. "When the sexes are integrated in children's own drama, the girls come on in very subservient roles".



Although the pilot project she undertook is nearing its end with completion of the week of classes at Madoc, Miss Lockhart confesses she has a long - range objective in mind as she works with children.

"The freer we are of our little defences — but not inthe moral sense — the more deeply we can enjoy living," she said. "This is my goal."



Exercise in Perception

Actress Araby Lockhart initiated Madoc Public School pupils into the art of creative expression this week in a pilot research project for the Province of Ontario Council for the Arts. The first step, she showed the children, was learning to recognize and trust their five senses, through simple games involving identifying objects while blindfolded.

Talking It Over

Play acting is only part of creative drama as taught by Miss Araby Lockhart at Madoc this week. After the children act out the situations their imaginations dictate, they gather around to discuss and put in words their feelings about the problems they presented.

High Drama

The brawl is the thing in play acting at the grade 6 level. Playing out an impromptu situation of their own devising, two Madoc pupils lash out in simulated violence.

Dragon Comes Up for Air

Only full scale production directed by Miss Lockhart during her stay in Madoc was a medieval fairy tale produced by a junior special education class with stage props and costumes they made themselves. The play illustrated the use of drama in teaching history, English and art as well as creative expression.

Bruins, Black Hawks Survive Early Deficits

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The walls may be a little more familiar but Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers still have their backs up against them as they head home for the third and fourth games of their quarter-final Stanley Cup series.

The Wings suffered their second 4-2 loss in as many nights at the hands of the Black Hawks in Chicago Thursday night and now return to Detroit for the next two games in their National Hockey League East Division playoff series Saturday and Sunday.

The Rangers slowed the Bruins down but still took a 5-3 loss at Boston. The Bruins whipped New York 8-2 Wednesday in the opening game of that best-of-seven series which moves to New York, also for Saturday and Sunday games.

But while the Wings and the Rangers may worry about falling behind, Boston coach Harry Sinden doesn't, as long as the disadvantage comes at the right time.

The Bruins fell behind 2-1 and Sinden said he thought his charges may have gone into the second game a bit over-confident.

"If that happens and you fall behind late in the game, it's not as good because by the time you wake up they may get another goal or two and then it's too late," he said.

"But early in the game it can work to your advantage, and I think it did for us tonight. It brought our team back."

The come-back started with Johnny McKenzie's goal early in the second period and veteran Johnny Bucyk added another to put the Bruins ahead going into the final session.

Ken Hodge and Ed Westfall took advantage of veteran Terry Sawchuk who started in place of Giacomin.

Rookie Jack Egers and Rod Gilbert scored for the Rangers in the first period and defenceman Tim Horton got the other goal in the final session. Jim Lorentz scored Boston's first-period goal.

"Bucyk's goal was the key play," said New York coach Emile Francis. The goal came at 19:14 of the second period.

"Any time you score like that near the end of a period it means a lot," Francis said.

Both coaches agreed that the move to New York would make the going tougher for the Bruins who never won a regular-season road game against an East Division opponent until they whipped Toronto Maple Leafs in the second-last contest of the schedule.

"The second game was tougher than the first," Sinden said, "and I know the third game will be tougher than the second. I think we'll meet our biggest challenge in that one."

The second contest, much less rugged than the fight-filled first game, drew a crowd of 14,825 fans, who saw the Rangers pelt Boston's Gerry Cheevers with 32 shots while Sawchuk and Giacomin together made only 24 saves.

It was Sawchuk's 105th Stanley Cup game, putting him in a tie for the record with goalie Glenn Hall of St. Louis Blues.

Pit Martin, one of Chicago's strongest performers in their late run for the division championship, scored id break a 2-2 tie and lifted the Hawks past the Wings.

Dennis Hull scored the clincher with less than two minutes remaining in the game before a crowd of 16,666.

Also for the second night in a row, the Hawks allowed the Wings the first goal with Pete Stemkowski scoring on Tony Esposito midway through the opening period with Detroit's Gordie Howe in the penalty box.

But Jim Pappin's goal a minute later tied the game and Bobby Hull scored the only goal in the second period to put the Hawks in front.

Bruce MacGregor's tying goal at 9:42 of the third period set the stage for the Hawks comeback on Martin's power play score.

Goalie Roy Edwards again had a busy night, holding off a 34-shot Chicago attack while the Red Wings had 33 tries at Esposito's nets.

Only 7,253 See Penguins Prevail

Nick Harbaruk is finding out that a good performance in Stanley Cup playoffs can bring quick fame.

The 22-year-old rookie right winger made his name well-known to Pittsburgh Penguins fans when he scored his second goal in as many nights Thursday to start his team on the way to a 3-1 win over Oakland Seals and a 3-0 lead in their quarter-final playoff series.

In the other National Hockey League West Division series, St. Louis Blues took their second game from Minnesota North Stars by a 2-1 score.

Harbaruk, a Polish-born rookie who spent the five previous seasons in the minor leagues, started his playoff splash Wednesday when he scored the winning goal in the Penguins 2-1 win. His second playoff goal, midway through the second period Thursday, tied the game and goals by Wally Boyer and Duke McAllum put the game away.

The Penguins, making their first Stanley Cup playoff appearance after finishing second in the West Division this season, launched a 42-shot attack on Oakland goalie Gary Smith, who took out his frustrations by tripping a couple of Penguins.

"When a goaltender gets frustrated because his team's behind he's got to do something about it, and he's a big man who can do it." Seals coach Fred Glover said.

But Smith's attacks earned him two penalties and failed to stir up his team-mates who had only 26 shots on Penguins goalie Les Binkley.

"The first period was all they played," Glover said of his team whose only goal was scored by Gary Jarrett.

But Pittsburgh coach Red Kelly was elated with his squad's win. "This was a big game for us," he said after the contest played before a crowd of 7,253 Pittsburgh fans.

At St. Louis, a crowd of 16,558 saw the Blues take their second win with the same powerful attack and fierce checking that earned them a 6-2 victory in the opener Wednesday.

The West Division champions took a 2-0 lead on first-period goals by Gary Sabourin and Phil Goyette with Minnesota getting its only goal from Bob Barlow late in the final session.

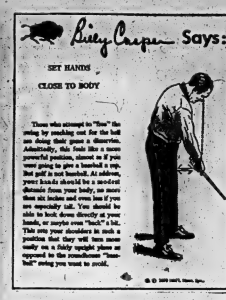
Quinte Hockey League president Al Kelleher presents the league championship trophy to captain Doug Hallam and coach Bill Vesterfelt of Belvedere Hotel. The Hotelmen blanked Aluminum Star 5-0 last night to win the best-of-seven final series in five games.

Belvedere Deals Blank In Quinte League Finale

Belvedere Hotel finished with a flourish, as they used a 5-0 whitewashing of Aluminum Star to cop the Quinte Hockey League championship. After dropping the first game of the series the Hotelmen came back to win four consecutive games.

The Stars were able to hold high - scoring Elmer Cain and Doug Hallam to one goal, but the new league champions dissipated their over-all strength as linemates Bill Goodfellow and Larry Marshall came through with two goals apiece.

Hallam scored the only goal of the first period, blasting a pass from behind the net into the far side of the Aluminum Star goal, as goalie Vern Fraser had no chance.



A second defensive lapse by the Stars resulted in another Belvedere marker as Fraser was left to fend for himself against two opposing forwards with Goodfellow picking up his first goal of the night. Harry Marshall added the third Belvedere goal as he broke into the clear and beat Fraser on his stick side.

Goodfellow nailed the Star's play-off coffin shut seconds later, as his tricky bouncing shot from centre ice eluded Fraser to make it a 4-0 contest. The goal seemed to take most of the drive out of Aluminum Star and they never threatened seriously for the remainder of the night.

Poor passing by the Stars was a major reason for their loss. Bill Bisbikow came closest to breaking the goose-egg but was foiled on a heads-up poke check by netminder Dave Hicks.

Belvedere picked up four of the six minor penalties handed out by referee Ted Hurst.

Captain Doug Hallam was presented with the Carl Jones Trophy awarded annually to the winners of the Quinte Hickey League playoffs. Belvedere were runaway pennant winners in the four - team league, losing only twice in the regular schedule and walking off with individual goaltending, scoring, top defenceman, and most improved player awards.

Mixed Masters

Bill Henderson and Don Cowley both iced wins in the Quinte Ukrainian Mixed Bonspiel last night to assure their ranks of a berth in the semi-finals of the Northern Electric Trophy first - event.

Opponents in the other semi - final will be determined at 9 p.m. tonight, when Bill Riley meets Finley McCorquodale and Jack Preston's foursome takes on Art Bannon's rink.

Last night's play saw the elimination of eight of the 32 rinks that started play in the tournament.

Doug Bennett and Bill Hipwell capsa away with wins that assured them a spot in the running for the second event title, while Bob Alexander and Bill Meagher came away with third - event victories. Fourth - round action saw wins go to Lloyd Lantz and Ross Wilson.

NOVICE — SATURDAY: Towers Food City Novices vs Stirling at Belleville Memorial Arena, 1.30 pm.

Forwards Terry Thompson, Bobby Crawford and Andy Lupenette are three of the Food City Novices who are hoping to bring the Zone Championship to Belleville for the third consecutive year. The Towers team has compiled a record of 45 wins in 51 games this season and captured four tournament titles. Crawford made a 106-goal contribution over the season.

Novices Could Coast In

Towers Food City Novices may find their third consecutive Zone Four championship the easiest yet. While the Belleville team is scheduled to meet Stirling at 1.30 p.m. Saturday, in the sudden-death championship game, a management hassle between the two clubs may result in the visitors not making an appearance.

"We're going to be on the ice tomorrow", says manager Glen Hamilton, "and if they don't show up, we'll consider ourselves champions."

Reports have it that the Stirling club felt there was little sense in even playing the Belleville Novices, who sported an impressive 45-5-1 record over the season.

Strong - point of the Belleville attack is their skating, while Bobby Crawford has looked after much of the Tower's scoring punch, hitting for a whopping 106-goal total.

Belleville already has won its share of plaudits this year coming up with tournament wins at Prescott, Kingston, Napanee and their first home-town tourney.

'Gary's Army' Next?

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — An air of tension hung over the start of the Masters golf tournament Thursday with hundreds of policemen turning the staid old Augusta National Golf Club course into an armed camp.

Gary Player of South Africa, the focal point of most of the security precautions, went off with a cordon of Pinkerton guards surrounding him. Plain-clothes policemen were scattered through his gallery.

Player has been the object of rumored threats because of South Africa's racial apartheid policy.

Tournament chairman Clifford Roberts said about 150 Pinkerton men were on duty in addition to city, county and state police. He said the FBI was reported to have agents on duty, too.

Shortly before Player teed off the Richmond County riot squad appeared on the course, complete with helmets and shotguns. The shotguns later were stored in an automobile, but they kept their pistols with them.

Aaron Tames Greens, Arnie Caught in Rye

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Tommy Aaron jumped out of the gate a leader in the Masters' first round Thursday with Gene Littler and Bert Yancey hot on his trail, but famed charger Arnold Palmer died by his own sword.

"I shot dead for each hole, like I always have, and was penalized for it," said Palmer. "It's not in my blood to hit shots soft and hope they happen to trickle up near the hole."

Aaron tamed Augusta National's hard greens with a four-under-par 68 and his closest pursuers were one shot off the pace. Grouped at 70 were Dan and R. H. Sikes along with Chi Chi Rodriguez, Charlie Coody and Bob Lunn.

"Good-looking shots turned into nothing all day," said four-time champion Palmer, who shot a 75. "The ball skidded across the greens and I found myself looking back at the hole from behind the green."

The rye grass that sprouts in many of Augusta National's rolling fairways failed to tickle Palmer's fancy. "It makes shots miserable to hit," he said.

"If I owned a golf course with fairways like that, I'd plow them up."

Aaron birdied three straight holes, the 12th through 14th, on a hot 33 back nine to stand alone after a day.

"Being from Georgia, I've always wanted to win the Masters," said Aaron, who has not captured a U.S. tour event in nine pro years.

Aaron was involved in the greatest Masters disaster in 1963, when he kept an incorrect scorecard for Roberto de Vicenzo. It cost the Argentine veteran a first-place tie with Bob Goalby.

Diefenbaker Tells PM Just What's Going On

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons question period took a new turn Thursday when a member of the opposition gave Prime Minister Trudeau some news about a government department.

John Diefenbaker, the former Conservative prime minister, began the exchange with a relatively straight-forward question about "special action" to deal with the large number of letters being received on the white paper containing the government's proposed tax changes.

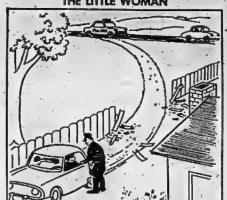
He asked Mr. Trudeau whether this special action was being taken to clear the backlog of letters, which he understood numbered about 5,000.

Mr. Trudeau said he knew of no particular arrangements to deal with "the very encouraging response" to the white paper. Amid heavy opposition laughter he said the term "very encouraging" referred to the number of letters, not their content.

He went on to say that the government has been vindicated in its belief that the white paper would "involve many, many Canadians in the process if this reform."

To that, Mr. Diefenbaker shot back: "There is nothing like the determination that comes from despair."

And then he went on to tell Mr. Trudeau about the "special action" he referred to within the finance department to deal with the correspondence.



Was the prime minister aware, Mr. Diefenbaker asked, that the special project for answering the mail, including the hiring of chartered accountants and economists, was being established at a cost of $190,000 for a three-month period?

No, said Mr. Trudeau, he was not aware of this. But he added that it wasn't a waste of money to communicate with the Canadian people on a subject such as this.

Mr. Diefenbaker grinned as he sat down.

A spokesman for Finance Minister Edgar Benson said later the special unit to deal with the correspondence was established about a month ago and has been answering letters at a rate of 200 a day. While it was unlikely that all the approximated $190,000 would be spent, he said this amount was asked for because it was not known how long the heavy flow of mail would continue.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"But you told me to pull off the road."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 11

Your birthday today: Unplanned change is essentially normal for this year in your life. Be on the alert for developments in your career; new methods, different things to do, perhaps a switch to another line of work altogether.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take a conservative, sensible approach to today's broken field complexities. Present conditions are like the weather: squall, intense but transitory.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accept your own quiet mood and that of others as within the range of normality.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): No magic is working today — you have to do whatever is done. Old issues again come to the surface for another effort at resolution.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Conflicting factors today can be amusing or difficult, according to how sound your own development is.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Older people ask some good questions — take the time to listen, so later the follow-up will not surprise you. Major business moves are not favored today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The main advantage now is in staying on the job, near home. People and news from distant places are of no particular help at the moment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Short term business matters promise to be lively. Long term contracts entered now turn out later to be limiting, inflexible. Emotional ties suffer momentary stress but should hold well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Have the wisdom to proceed slowly with all the important moves you must make now — or wait. Allow time for people to recheck their facts, get over their moods.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Moderate your expenditure of physical energy to remain fresh for livelier occasions yet to come.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Even if you must let details go unsupervised, get busy and catch up with neglected activities or routines.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Turn your attention to your own assets, property, and achievements. Some of the things you have skipped are available now for constructive uses.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be as tactful as you can, but exclude all those who really have no place in your view of life as you would like to live it. Your plans will work much better if you keep them confidential for now.

Senator Criticizes 'Strident Sentinels'

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Grattan O'Leary (PC—Ontario) Thursday criticized the "strident sentinels of sovereignty" who view the United States as a cultural menace.

Lumping Prime Minister Trudeau in with these sentinels, Senator O'Leary said:

"I suggest to you they are watching the wrong ramparts and identifying the wrong enemy."

Canada should speak frankly to the U.S. to make Americans understand their neighbor.

But there was too much talk from the sentinels of sovereignty.

He said the Prime Minister has said living next to the United States was like "sleeping with an elephant."

It could be true, said Senator O'Leary. But all things were relative. "I wonder if it has occurred to the Prime Minister what it would be like to sleep with a bear."

Sydney J. Harris Says

Annual Car Models Silly

The silliest merchandising and manufacturing ritual in American society is the "annual model" of the automobile. It has been going on in its own impetus for a long time, but the profits are beginning to diminish in proportion to the costs.

Why should a company put out a "new" car every year, especially when there are only minor changes in most years? And why invest so many billion in making new parts for the sake of newness and salesmanship and competition based on slogans more than on substance?

A new model ought to be made when some genuine and appreciable improvement calls for it. Then there would be a real competitive edge, and customers would be buying vehicles rather than erotic or aggressive fantasies, or status symbols that give little real status.

The frenetic annual race among the auto makers does nobody any lasting good. It increases expenses for the companies, and prices for the buyers, and the relative position is rarely changed. Perhaps more cars are sold than would be under a two-year change, but these cars can't be serviced satisfactorily, anyway, and the net result is disillusion if not disgust.

One of the reasons that foreign cars have done so well in the U.S. — beyond their economy and maneuverability — is their unwillingness (and so far successful financial inability) to play this annual-model game. The Volkswagen, indeed, has one of the highest resale values on the market precisely because the old models are not obsoleted every year or so.

Our society is slowly, but perceptibly, changing from a "more and more" to an "enough already" kind of thinking. We are becoming satiated with novelty for its own sake, and are ceasing to equate mere size and newness with value and quality. As the consumer becomes more sophisticated (and there can be no doubt that he has made a quantum-jump in sophistication in the last decade), he becomes increasingly suspicious of merchandising techniques that do not reflect substantial improvements in the basic product itself.

Manufacturers, like nations in an arms race, are caught up in custom and tradition, and often become themselves the victims of practices they might like to abandon but are afraid to be the first to jettison. The proliferation of products, like the escalation of weapons, then becomes an end in itself, without any rational relationship to the needs of the people — or even to the best interests of the competitors.
